Trout Stay Put

More fishermen than fish is the condition on Kawartha district trout streams today, opening day.

Weather was suitable; not even showers at dawn dampened the ardor of carloads of fishermen who started arriving at their favourite spots by midnight. Worms were the bait and, though frowned on by the purists, trout seemed to be hitting them.

Latecomer fishermen, a group of Cavan village schoolboys, said luck was not good; they caught one small trout between the crown on homemade gear.

Besides the fishermen who frequent immediate streams, great numbers took off Friday evening for the Highlands of Haliburton and North Hastings county. That is the home of the large speckles.

But one will never know where their catches come from for these intrepid ones keep locations to themselves. They will return to their homes by Sunday night, tired of their own cooking and just plain tired. They may even bring home some fish.

DISSENTION

Then there are the fishermen of another following. They always head south the first day. They subscribe to the notion that the water is too cold north of Peterborough so early in the year. But they feel that Cavan, Millbrook, the Garden Hill district and south of Rice lake, the trout have thawed out enough to give them some action. And perhaps a big brown is there waiting for them. Some of them, too, came home with fish.

7 Nations Attempt Solve Issue

Eden Mediates To Get Communists There

GENEVA (CP) — Delegates to seven nations met in private today in an attempt to get down to business on the Korean question.

The meeting of representatives of Britain, the United States, France, Russia, Communist China and North and South Korea began at 3:40 p.m. 10:40 a.m. EDT.

Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, a leading behind-the-scenes negotiator in the first week of the Geneva conference, acted as an intermediary in arranging for the Communists to attend today's unscheduled session.

The 16 nations which fought under the United Nations command in the Korean war decided Friday that something must be done to get Korean negotiations out of the unproductive atmosphere of the general conference sessions.

TAKE ELECTION STAND

Conference sources said the Western ministers started their negotiations from the present United Nations position—that free elections need only be held in Communist North Korea, since the UN already has sanctioned previous elections retaining President Syngman Rhee's government in the southern half of the country.

U.S. State Secretary Dulles was scheduled to meet with Australian Foreign Minister Richard Casey and New Zealand Foreign Minister T. Clifton Webb later today or Sunday. Sources in Geneva say he hopes to bridge differences of opinion with them on the allied approach on reuniting Korea.

Meanwhile, Undersecretary of State Walter Bedel Smith arrived from Washington to take over leadership of the U.S. delegation when Dulles leaves for home Monday.

DULLES MEETS MOLOTOV

Before today's seven-nation parley, Dulles met with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov and stressed the need for streamlining Indo-China negotiations. They also discussed President Eisenhower's proposals for international negotiations for peaceful use of atomic energy.

A communique issued after the hour-long Dulles-Molotov meeting said the two statesmen discussed the "reply of the Soviet government of April 27 to the United States note of March 29, 1954."

"This reply will be further considered by the United States in Washington," the communique from American delegation headquarters here said.

From the wording of the brief communique, and from American sources, it was apparent that Dulles and Molotov reached no firm conclusions in their discussion.

This was the second meeting the two major East-West diplomats had held since the Geneva conference opened Monday. Molotov

Anti-Red Speech Starts May Day

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's annual May Day parade got off to an unusual start today with a counter demonstration against communism.

A capacity congregation attended mass, under the direction of the Blue Army of Mary, at St. Michael's Cathedral in a service dedicated to the conversion of Russia to Christianity and the cause of world peace.

Meanwhile paraders marched through Toronto streets carrying placards. At Queen's Park they heard addresses by George Harris, Electrical Workers Union, Mrs. Annie Buller-Gueralnik, and Larry Arseneault, Toronto leader of the National Federation of Labor Youth.

Swims Lake Channel But Prisoner Caught

SUDBURY (CP) — Norman Gerrard, 27, of Toronto, who escaped from the Burwash industrial farm Friday by swimming across a narrow channel of Neely lake alongside the prison, was captured Friday night by the Burwash staff about six miles south of the farm in dense bush.

A companion, identified by the surname of Demeri, who escaped with Gerrard, was picked up half an hour after the break.

The two men were working in the camp laundry when they escaped.

Four of the five men who escaped April 22 have been recaptured.

May Divert Warships

VALETTA, Malta (AP) — British warships steaming to escort Queen Elizabeth home from Tobruk may be diverted to rush aid to Greek towns stricken by Friday's earthquake, a naval source said here today. Admiral Earl Mountbatten sent one of his staff officers to Greece to radio back if help is needed.

Queen, Duke Reunited With Children

TOBRUK, Libya (CP) — Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh hugged and kissed Prince Charles and Princess Anne today for the first time for five months.

Then the reunited Royal Family sailed out of bomb-wrecked Tobruk harbor for home on the final stretches of their world tour.

The reunion came after the Queen and duke had spent hours in official formalities ashore after their arrival from the East African protectorate of Uganda early this morning.

Prince Charles, five-year-old heir to the throne and his three-year-old sister came to this newly created independent North African kingdom by sea from Malta Friday.

But they had to wait until almost noon today before they could be reunited with their parents.

FLOWN FROM TOBRUK

A British Overseas Airways airliner brought the royal parents in to El Adem, RAF station 18 miles from Tobruk, after the flight from Entebbe, Uganda, where they spent three days.

Senior RAF officers were hosts to the royal couple at breakfast at the El Adem base before they began the 18-mile car ride to the palace of King Idris.

Along the way were grim reminders of warfare between the Allies and Rommel's Afrika Korps.

King Idris received them in white robes, red skull cap and burnouse. He decorated Queen Elizabeth with Libya's highest honor, the gold and enamel collar of King Idris I. It had been awarded only once before, to Prince Abdul Moneim, former regent of Egypt.

The duke received a hand-crafted gold cigaret case. For Prince Charles, Idris had a Libyan riding saddle, richly ornamented with gold and silver, and a purple Arab robe; and for Princess Anne, a solid gold "hand of Fatima," traditional sign to ward off evil.

The Queen invested King Idris with the insignia of Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire.

3 Explosions Rock Hotel

DETROIT (AP) — A 41-year-old man set off three explosions in a suburban Dearborn hotel Friday night, killing himself and injuring five of the hotel's 90 occupants.

The blasts ripped a gaping hole 25 feet high and 15 feet wide in the side of the four-storey Tuxedo Hotel.

Eighteen of the hotel's 146 rooms were damaged.

Dearborn police identified the dead man as John Sustersic, a factory worker who lived at the nearby Dix Hotel. They said he set off the charges.

Firemen recovered Sustersic's body from beneath a mound of bricks and broken glass on the first floor.

Heir To $3 Million Arrested In $41 Robbery

TORONTO (CP)—John L. Smallman, 20, know as Canada's richest young man, today was remanded to May 18 on a $41 robbery charge.

Magistrate F. C. Gullen continued bail of $1,000 set Friday after Smallman, heir to a $3,000,000 fortune left by a great-aunt, was arrested as an alleged accomplice in the robbery.

Smallman was charged with robbery with violence in connection with the holdup last Dec. 17 of Lawrence T. Nash. He reported to a suburban police station after police telephoned him, and we released on bail after questioning. G. Arthur Martin, Toronto criminal lawyer, has been retained to defend him.

Officers said Smallman, now a costume jewelry importer with a $1,000 allowance monthly from his estate, told police he met Nash in a downtown tavern and later sold him some jewelry. He said he knew nothing of a robbery or of the injuries Nash suffered at the hands of three men who robbed him of $41 after taking him for an automobile ride.

TO BUY JEWELRY

Smallman said after his arrest that Nash told him he wanted to buy some jewelry as Christmas gifts. They went to a hotel for more drinks and food, then adjourned to Smallman's apartment where he sold Nash two sets of costume jewelry for $10.

After that, he said, Nash drove him to the street corner where his car was stalled. He started the car and drove home. Any violence, he told police, must have taken place after he left.

Previously, Nash told police a man claiming to be a jewelry salesman, took him to an apartment where he sold Nash some jewelry. Afterwards, they joined two other men. He said the three men took him for a ride, then beat him and robbed him of his money.

Smallman was named heir to the $3,000,000 fortune of his great aunt, Mrs. Eleanor Morgan of London, Ont., when he was a 14-year-old student at Ridley College, St. Catharines.

According to his great aunt's will he was to receive the interest on his fortune at the age of 21—about $150,000—and half the principal when he became 25.

Smallman is a member of one of London's richest families. His grandfather, Jack Smallman, is a prominent race horse owner. His great-grandfather, was one of the founders of the Imperial Oil Company.

His wife, the former Mary Steers, grand - daughter of Col. W. G. and Mrs. Coles, socially prominent in London, gave birth to a child here Monday.

Three Forest Fires Reported Burning

TORONTO (CP) — Three forest fires, two in the North Bay and one in the Tweed district, are burning today, the department of lands and forests reported today. Scattered showers have helped but care is still required in bush areas as the woods are rapidly drying out and fires start and spread quickly, the department said.

Fires in Sudbury, Pembroke, Cochrane, and Parry Sound districts have been extinguished in the last 24 hours.

The department also said that Lake Temagami is now clear of ice but lakes farther north are still ice-bound.

25,000 Homeless As Quake Flattens Towns

ATHENS (CP) — King Paul and Crown Prince Constantine moved today among rescue workers searching in the debris of wrecked homes for survivors of Friday's disastrous earthquakes in central Greece.

Crowds cheered the King and his son as they toured the stricken area. They had interrupted an inspection of garrisons in Thrace to board a destroyer which brought them to the earthquake-damaged port of Volos.

Thousands of Greeks with the few belongings they managed to salvage had spent a night of terror in the open with the ground shaking and groaning.

STILL SEEKING THE DEAD

The shocks affected more than 1,500 square miles of central Greece, but so far only 26 people are known to have died. This figure was announced here by Gen. Mandouvalos, directer of the ministry of security, after earlier official estimates had placed the toll around 150.

Col. Kakabotsos, prefect of Larissa, said casualties in some remote areas might be greater than had been reported, but "I believe the earthquake has caused much heavier material destruction than human casualties."

New tremors shook central Greece today, terrorizing thousands of homeless who slept in the open Friday night. No new major damage was reported, however.

Interior Minister Ioannis Nicolitsias estimated that at least 25,000 are homeless.

The minister compared the disaster to that of the wide-spread quakes in the Greek Ionian islands last August, which killed up to

Goes Shopping House Changes

DUNBARTON—A house of a different color greeted a Glendale Dr. housewife when she arrived home Friday afternoon.

"What will my husband say?" asked Mrs. Fred Bennett when she found her pea-green frame house a victim of a painter's error.

The home, painted only a month ago, had been done over in a deep blue-green from top to bottom since she left in the morning.

Meanwhile next-door neighbors are waiting for painters to come and paint their house a deep blue-green.

The neighboring housewife watched anxiously this morning while painters cheerfully went to work on the Bennett home.

When she hazarded a suggestion they were painting the wrong house, the men forged ahead. "Boss said to paint this one."

Eyes Popping At New Bomber

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet air force stole the show today in the giant May Day parade with the first public display of a huge swept-wing jet bomber and 175 new jet fighters which made Westerners' eyes pop.

The planes screamed over Red Square as Premier Malenkov and other Soviet leaders craned their necks to watch.

Western observers said the gigantic bomber and the fighters were of a new type.

The huge bomber was sized up by observers as being capable of carrying any weapon which has yet been produced. It traversed from horizon to horizon—accompanied by four fighters in V formation—in 30 seconds.

The first 94 fighters which screamed overhead were twin jets with one engine painted blue and the other yellow. The next 81 were a swept-wing design, with wings swept back into a sharp V-shape.

Watching in the stands, U.S. ambassador Charles E. Bohlen said he was fascinated by the sight of the new jets.

Both Sides of Iron Curtain Echo May Day Peace Plans

LONDON (AP)—Europe celebrated May Day today in a holiday mood, with pleas for peace coming from both sides of the Iron Curtain.

The biggest demonstration was in Moscow's Red Square, where the Soviet defence minister, Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, told a crowd:

"In foreign policy it is the glorious task of our government not to permit a new war, and to keep up normal relations between all countries."

In Western Eruope, Communists and Socialists held separate rallies to observe the traditional international workers' holiday.

The Moscow celebration had a military tinge, with the Soviet armed forces on parade. Moscow radio's description of the show included the remark that "an enormous jet plane of a size never before seen flew overhead."

In the Far East, Communist China followed the pattern of her Soviet neighbor with a military review. Mao Tze-tung, the country's ailing dictator, appeared in the reviewing stand in the capital, Peiping, making one of his rare public appearances in recent months.

Shouts of "long live Mao" and "may Mao have a healthy life" could be heard. The latter obviously was a reference to his reported illnesses.

The radio said thousands watched the parade, which started at dawn. The military made up the major portion but one mass of marchers carried giant pictures of world Communist leaders, including Ho Chi Minh, chief of the Vietminh rebels in Indo-China.

In Tokyo, about 400,000 Japanese May Day demonstrators streamed through the streets under a sea of red banners, shouting their opposition to rearmament and clashing briefly with steel-helmeted police.

Divided Berlin had two May Day observances. West Berliners gathered at the front of the wrecked Reichstag building, on the edge of the Soviet sector, to hear addresses by the lord mayor, Dr. Walter Schreiber, and Jacob Kaiser, minister for all-German affairs.

Bad Tornadoes Lash 6 States

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Tornadoes and vicious winds lashing six states in the southwest and midwest left one person dead, at least 56 injured and caused damages estimated in the hundreds of thousands of dollars Friday.

Texas suffered the most damage, 39 injured in 23 towns and communities. Other states hit were Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri and Iowa.

Mrs. Doot Sowell, 73, of Many, La., was the only fatality reported. Her body was found draped around a fence post. Six persons in the Sowell home were injured.

Eleven separate tornadoes struck in eastern Iowa.

One twister injured five members of a family near Cedar Rapids when it tossed them about 100 feet into a field. Their farm home was destroyed.

Two were hurt in Arkansas, three at Versailles, Mo., and one in Oklahoma.

Eleven children were hurt in an east Texas twister that struck a schoolhouse.

Popular With Diplomats

Finds Canada's Ambassador Outstanding

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Moscow deplomats count Canada's John Watkins among their outstanding colleagues.

For a man who doesn't drip protocol and has been an ambassador in the Soviet capital for less than three months, that's an accomplishment. He is recognized as a man who knows much about his assignment, speaks Russian and knows the country well, and faces facts and tries to interpret them fairly.

Watkins says he is impressed by the material aspects of Soviet progress since he left in 1951, after three years as charge d'affaires in Moscow, to become Canadian minister to Norway and Iceland.

CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM

"When I left, the post-war construction program was just getting under way," he said during a meeting shortly before my own departure from Moscow.

"The university building had just been started and the foreign office building was taking shape. Since then both have been completed, and the amount of apartment building that has gone on is tremendous."

Russian building standards are not good. Structures like the foreign office are almost first-rate but run-of-the-mill building reveals poor workmanship and materials.

"At least they're getting people into better accommodation," Watkins said. "They'll probably have to rebuild sooner than we would. By that time, perhaps, higher standards of craftsmanship will be set."

SURPRISED PRESIDENT

His first night in Moscow he went to see a play and since has been to the theatre frequently. He astonished Soviet President Clementi Voroshilov when he presented his credentials by revealing that he had been to plays the old marshal himself had not yet seen.

Watkins is an accomplished pianist, and embassy callers know the ambassador is in by the cascading runs of a Mozart sonata, or the solemn chords of a Bach or Buxtehude chorale.

His personal library would grace any small Canadian town and contains classics of English, French, German, Norwegian, Swedish, Icelandic, Danish and Russian languages. He reads them all, and speaks all the tongues fluently, a faculty that enhances his range of sources of information and affords opportunity for frank and precise comparisons of notes with other diplomats.

John Watkins is a 51-year-old bachelor whose parents were farmers in Norval, Ont. He got an early interest in foreign languages from a Danish couple who worked for his father. His conversation with them in Danish extended naturally to Danish and then Scandinavian culture.

Between 1930 and 1945 he was with the American-Scandinavian Foundation in New York, which translates Scandinavian classics into English and English classics into the Scandinavian tongues. For a year after the war he was associate professor of history at the University of Manitoba and in 1946 joined the department of external affairs.

Society Split By Modern Developments Needs Help To Make Individuals of Cogs,

"Alcoholics Anonymous" is a misnomer. It would be more to the point to say "anonymous alcoholics" because it is anonymity, an inability to integrate with society, which drives many to drink.

This was the conclusion of Prof. C. E. Hendry, head of the school of social work at the University of Toronto. Prof. Hendry was speaking to more than 400 delegates to the ninth Ontario Recreation Association, packed into every available corner of the Empress hotel Kawartha room, Friday night.

Whereas work and play were once closely interrelated, modern technology has tended to make man a cipher, said Prof. Hendry. Work is different and separate from recreation and "therein lies the tragedy."

"The severe contrast shaping the events of our day" have created a "spirit of anxiety," Prof. Hendry continued. There has been a "shift in the very centre of gravity of our western culture." The shift has been from a tool-owning, crop-dependent society to a machine-using, cash-dependent one.

Assembly line techniques in manufacturing have produced "a flow of social consequences we haven't begun to understand.' Loneliness, said the speaker, has become a serious social phenomenon, and a characteristic one, rather than a fundamentally private experience.

PLAN TO PLAY

Summed up, said Prof. Hendry, this means that "people have to plan to play." He felt that recreation had become of ever-increasing importance to give modern man back his individuality.

A corollary to this "crowd loneliness" is the geographic mobility of modern man. In a single year, recently, in the United States, fully a fifth of the population changed residence. This produces a liquidity in society which poses a particularly difficult problem for recreation directors, assimilating those whose roots are so tenuous.

There has also been a shift from "adequate and well - defined values to inadequate and poorly-defined ones," Prof. Hendry asserted. He said that social movements could be related to character structure, and delivered an anthropological sketch of the ruman race to illustrate this thesis.

At first there was the primitive tribe, in which social values were determined by group traditions. Later there was the patriarchal structure characteristic of great rural communities. A cohesive familial arrangement "would keep a boy on an even keel however far he might stray from the family hearthside."

But with the decline of the family as a self-sufficient unit, there has been a corresponding decline in the strength of age-old values. Modern technology has tended to stultify man's mind and soul. This brought the speaker to quote from Alfred North Whitehead's "Science in the Modern World," which, paraphrased, says that when a man ceases to wander, physically emotionally and intellectually, he will cease to ascend. Adventures of thought, passionate feeling, and aesthetic experience produce this "Odyssey of the Human Spirit."

WRONG WANDERING

But the Odyssey is slowing down, Prof. Hendry warned. Physical wandering can sometimes dislocate a man from his society, but a mental and emotional failure to wander produce roughly the same effect. This has given rise to "spectatoritis" and spoon-feeding of culture.

The main "beachhead job'" for the Ontario Recreation Association is, thus, educative. It must interpret the need for recreation to the people, "because the people don't fuflly understand it themselves." Recreation, at best, can cancel out man's feeling that he is a helpless cog in an economic system which can, impersonally, put 500,000 Canadians out of work.

Specifically, the Peterborough Recreation Commission, and all others, ought, said the speaker, to give "serious consideration" to the welcome-wagon program so popular in the United States. This is a scheme whereby each new family in a community is visited by recreation representatives and immediately integrated into the new community. Peterborough has another, commercial type of welcome wagon.

Recreationists must, further, be agreed on what needs recreation is able to meet, what standards there should be in recreation, and an ethical approach to the overall situation. Full time professionals, said Prof. Hendry, have an obligation to use all available qualified consultants and must constantly mobilize new factual information through research. There should be the "closest collaboration" among experts and the representatives of government at all levels and lay citizens.

The need, then, is to build a "people's movement" because recreation is "for everybody and is everybody's business." Some consideration might be given to charging nominal fees in all recreation organizations, not so much for the money as to create better in-group relationships. And more work must be done at the grass-roots level for only 62 of Ontario's 214 municipalities have recreation directors.

PUBLIC RELATIONS

Public relations is a field which needs further cultivation, said the speaker. He recalled an experiment in Ottawa in which 30 different neighborhood meetings were held to discuss recreation from a zone point of view. Each group saw the same film and heard the same radio program in advance, discussed their ideas for a tape recorder and then, at the end of the evening, listened to an overall summary of recreation's future in Ottawa, chaired by newsman Blair Fraser.

Another scheme for fostering public awareness whilst bringing people to the heart of their personal recreation problems was developed in Minneapolis, in connection with Brotherhood Week. Ten couples gathered in each of 800 homes to discuss brotherhood at the human as opposed to the soapbox level.

The Ontario Recreation Association is steadily becoming more and more strong, said Prof. Hendry. This is exemplified in recent enabling legislation allowing merger of responsibilities of parks boards, recreation committees and community centres. It is a logical consequence, said the speaker, of the "growing status of the ORA."

But the ORA should never become so strong that it should lose sight of its objectives, should never forget the therapeutic value of criticism. Volunteer workers should be encouraged to contribute new ideas to keep the spirit of opposition alive in recreation.

In this connection, Prof. Hendry recalled a talk he had had with George Hees, president of the Progressive Conservative Association. Prof. Hendry has observed that if he, Hendry, were premier Leslie Frost he would set up a research organization and hire a vocal and effective opposition. Similarly volunteer workers in the ORA can "make their voices heard at all levels of government."

Summarizing, Mr. Hendry cited the need for more and better leadership as one of the most vital problems facing recreation in this province. These leaders, and those now officiating, must be "clear in their objectives, convinced in the value of them and confident in their ability to deliver."

Prof. Hendry was introduced by Miss Florence Philpott, executive secretary of the Toronto Welfare Council. She described the speaker, who had just returned from speaking engagements in Akron, Cleveland and Cincinnati, as "a man who has the respect and confidence of all."

Mrs. Estelle Cuffe Hawley, retiring president of the ORA, thanked the speaker for giving the 40 delegates a "widened perspective, filling us with more zeal for the big job ahead."

Earlier civic greetings were brought from mayor Norman Graham. The mayor even extended the hospitality of the city to the extent that he promised to fix a parking ticket for one luckless delegate who stood up, at the mayor's suggestion, presumably not knowing why he was singled out.

Organize to Fight Recession CFA Chief Urges Farmers

LINDSAY (ENS) — Canadian farmers should makek an effort to understand more about world markets because they influence Canadian farm incomes and standards of living, said Dr. H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, speaking to a large gathering at the Lindsay collegiate auditorium Friday night. The talk was sponsored by the Victoria County Federation of Agriculture.

As a Canadian delegate to many world agricultural organizations and the first president of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers, Dr. Hannam called on his knowledge of international conditions to illustrate this point of his address.

ORGANIZE AT HOME

He also stressed the need for Canadian farmers organizing at home through the federation for greater control of their own fortunes. During the 18-year history of the federation, he said, great strides had been made toward establishment of the farmer in his proper place in Canadian society. Through various marketing agencies, he said a more reasonable and steady farm income has been realized.

Despite this, however, the farm implement industry was experiencing a recession, because the farmers did not have enough purchasing power today to maintain it at its high level of three years ago.

UP 78 PER CENT

To amplify his claim that the farmer on the average is as good a workman as the industrial employee, Dr. Hannam said that over the past 20 years farm production is up 78 per cent while the farm labor force is down about 10 per cent, indicating almost doubled output per man power.

This fact, he said, pointed the way for the farmer to his rightful place in the economy for which he must organize to attain. The Canadian Federation of Agriculture now claims some two out of every three Canadian farm owners in its membership. It has gained the respect of government and led the way in international organizations. It has, said the speaker, achieved its present high standing through a strict non-partisan political policy — working harmoniously with the various parties in the country's provincial governments and also with the federal authority. It has not associated itself either with big business or labor and would not do so. "We'll fight either of them if we have to, but we'll also work with them on problems of mutual interest."

Turning on his second topic, Dr. Hannam made brief remarks on rural-urban relations. He answered some of the criticism of farmers in various fields. First he pointed out in reference to the complaints against farm subsidies, that though the impression was that farmers were the only ones to receive subsidies actually almost every major industry is subsidized and he went on to characterize unemployment insurance as a form of subsidy to labor.

In the field of price supports, he pointed out that seven years of supports had cost the country $10,000,000. This was approximately 12 cents per capita per year and the speaker expressed the opinion that the average shopper had saved that sum many times over during the seven year period on purchases of eggs or butter. Price supports benefit the consumer as much as the producer, since they keep the farmer in business.

TAX COMPLAINTS

Farm income tax was the main object of urban complaints, he said. "I don't know a single farmer in Canada who has escaped paying tax when he had to," said the speaker. He went on to point out that while 45 per cent of industrial workers are single some 90 per cent of farmers are married and thus have more deductible dependents. In 1951, 83,000 farmers had a gross income of $5,000 or less.

Turning finally to surpluses, Dr. Hannam declared that price supports are designed to alleviate situations which might arise with surpluses. The problem of handling surpluses is "one of the greatest facing the world today."

The wheat surplus was mentioned as a case in point. Dr. Hannam thought that it could be marketed without price cutting through the wheat board and the wheat agreement. If some of it is to be given away, he felt it should be through an international agency.

GOVERNMENT LIAISON

The speaker was introduced by V. S. Milburn, secretary of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture. He commented first on some of the activities of the Ontario federation in working with the provincial government in the past.

In this regard, he mentioned two important pieces of legislation on behalf of Ontario farmers: the consolidation of the dairy acts of the province, and the passing of the Farm Products Marketing Act, through which the farmers have been able to find markets for exportable surpluses of mills and for some 25 other commodities.

During the past year, he said, the federation has taken three important steps. First was the discovery of a means of marketing 10 million pounds of surplus Canadian cheese, after British and American markets were cut off. Second, the hog producers were able to establish a marketing agency through the commission firms, that brought the price per head to $2.31 above the average price over a five-year period preceding. In this regard Mr. Milburn predicted that most farm commodities will be marketed through such agencies within the next two or three years.

Finally the milk and soybean producers were able to get together following their differences of the previous months during the edible oils controversy.

Premier L. M. Frost also addressed the audience briefly, touching on the good relations between the government and the Ontario federation during the year, especially during the Toronto milk strike and the Edible Oils Act discussions.

The meeting was headed by president Hugh Davidson of the Victoria county federation. Entertainment was provided by Nancy Ann Harding and Fay Rich, vocal duet, Mrs. H. Simms, soloist, and Tony Deprink on the accordion.

Hon. G. R. Geary Dies In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Hon. George Reginald Geary, former federal justice minister, died Friday from coronary thrombosis at his home here. He was 79.

He was appointed justice minister in 1935 shortly before the Conservative government under R. B. Bennett was swept out of office in the general election in October of that year. In the election he was defeated in Toronto South, which he had represented in the House of Commons for 10 years.

Mr. Geary, noted corporation lawyer, soldier and a descendant of United Empire Loyalists, was prominent in municipal as well as federal politics.

In 1910 at the age of 36 he was elected mayor of Toronto after serving from 1903 as a member of the city's board of education, alderman and controller. He was re-elected mayor in 1911 and 1912.

UNSUCCESSFUL BID

After his defeat in the 1935 federal election, Mr. Geary made an unsuccessful bid to enter the Commons again when he ran in Toronto Trinity in the 1940 election.

He served in the First World War from 1914 to 1918. He was mentioned in dispatches and awarded the Military Cross and the French Legion of Honor. After the war as a lieutenant colonel, he commanded the Royal Grenadiers from 1924 to 1926. He was made an officer of the Order of the British Empire.

Defence Co-Operation With U.S. Excellent

VICTORIA (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton said Friday Canada and the United States have had the closest defence co-operation since 1936 and "we need nothing more than we have now."

He was commenting on a speech by Congressman W. Stirling Cole that Canada and the U.S. should sign a defence pact.

Mr. Claxton said in an interview that he can't think of any way of adding to existing machinery for defence co-operation to improve it.

He said that Canada and the U.S. have the best defence arrangement of any two countries in the world.

indicated earlier this week in his request for today's meeting that he was ready to deliver a reply to the super-secret "concrete" proposals made by the U.S. March 19.

These talks between the Americans and Russians have been going on behind the tightest cloak of secrecy since Eisenhower proposed an international pool of atomic energy raw materials and methods for peaceful uses in his address to the United Nations General Assembly Dec. 8.

There was nothing to prevent Dulles and Molotov from going over other problems, including the bogged-down discussions on Korea and the projected talks on Indo-China here at the Far East conference.

FULL SCHEDULE

The U.S. chief diplomat has a full week-end schedule before he leaves Monday to return to Washington. This includes a meeting with his undersecretary, Walter Bedell Smith, who will head the U. S. mission at Geneva after Dulles departs.

On his way to Washington, Dulles first will stop off in Milan, Italy, to confer briefly with prime Minister Mario Scelba on U. S.-Italian problems.

Although the formal meetings on Far Eastern questions here have been recessed for the week-end, the usual amount of behind-the-scenes diplomatic activity went on.

Among other meetings scheduled was a conference of the 16 countries which fought in Korea under the UN banner. This group is working out its strategy for the remainder of the Korean discussions here.

TO DRAFT RESOLUTION

The Allied group has appointed a sub-committee of nine to draft a resolution outlining plans for free elections in Korea designed to unify the war-torn peninsula.

There still is no definite indication when the talks will get started on the seven-year-old war in Indo-China between the French Union and the Communist-led Vietminh.

Private conferences on the composition of the Indo-China conference were in progress all this week and still are not closed.

French diplomats led by Foreign Minister Bidault were reported today to be renewing efforts to obtain a cease-fire for the hard-pressed Indo-China fortress of Dien Bien Phu. Earlier negotiations with Molotov, aimed to bring about a cessation of hostilities to permit removal of wounded, collapsed.

Reports that Foreign Secretary Eden has been acting as mediator between Red China and the West were dismissed brusquely by reliable sources.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Prices closed irregularly and generally lower Friday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Some buying in oats came from American interests. Export buying in barley suggested small parcel business may have been worked. Rye declined on offerings from United States accounts, prompted by losses on American markets. Flax trade was light and routine. Oats showed the best tone. Lakehead prices for the top grades of Class 2, IWA and domestic wheat were unchanged.

Communist Plan For Colonies

(By DOUGLAS HYDE)

LONDON (OFNS). — The direction in which Moscow is looking for Communist expansion in the next few years has been indicated during the conference of "Communist and Workers' Parties within the sphere of British Imperialism," which has just ended in London.

"Today the colonial front is the principal active fighting front against Imperialism," Mr. R. Palme Dutt told delegates in the report that formed the basis of all their discussions. "And," he added, "most significant of all in the present period is the up-surge in Africa."

Mr. Dutt's statement may be taken as reflecting the mind of the Kremlin for, although he publicly occupies only the modest role of vice-chairman of the British Communist party, he has for years assisted in formulating and applying international Communism's colonial policies. Moreover, a conference of this type, which brought together representatives of Communist parties in more than a score of colonial and dependent countries, is only called on the initiative of Moscow and under its direction.

Although attendance was reduced by the refusal of some governments to grant delegates travel facilities there were representatives from each of the British Dominions, from many parts of Africa, from India, Cyprus, Malaya, most of the Caribbean countries, and also some from Egypt and other parts of the Middle East, which, though not in the Commonwealth, were presumably held to be "within the sphere of British Imperialism."

The conference decided that new Communist parties should now be formed in a number of colonial countries, particularly on the African continent, where they have hitherto not existed, and that the "fight for national independence" should be extended to new areas.

How that is to be done was no doube settled in the behind-the-scenes talks which are always the most significant feature of such conferences. One may safely assume, however, that Moscow did not persuade delegates to travel a total of some tens of thousands of miles at great cost in order to hear speeches which might just as easily have been published as articles in the Communist press of the countries from which they came.

Officials Considering Open Moose Season

SUDBURY (CP) — An upswing in the moose population has prompted officials of the Ontairo department of lands and forests to suggest the possibility of an open moose season for non-resident hunters in certain sections of northern Ontario.

Richard Passmore, who has been conducting moose surveys, told a meeting of fish and wildlife officers Friday that the moose population is definitely on the increase.

He said that in one aerial check he made positive identification of what were believed 110 moose in a 53-square-mile island. He estimated the island supported 4.5 to 5 moose to the square mile and believed similar conditions existed elsewhere.

Conclusions reached at the meeting will be incorporated with recommendations from northwestern Ontario to shape future government policy for both non-resident and resident hunters.

1,000 persons and destroyed the homes of 120,000.

Friday's stricken area stretches from the east coast into the Pindus mountains, where shattered villages can be reached only over donkey trails. The destruction appeared to centre around Granitsa, 135 miles northwest of Athens, with the towns of Sofadhes, Farsala, Karditsa and Domokos hardest hit.

Thousands of persons slept in open fields Friday night, some because they had no home to return to, and others because they were afraid to go back to the towns they had fled.

RUSH SUPPLIES

The government sped supplies and medicine to the earthquake victims and dispatched troops to repair communication lines. A Greek religious holiday which had closed down communication and government offices hindered the relief measures.

Many telephone and telegraph lines were down, delaying details on the extent of the disaster.

Here is the situation according to available reports:

Sofadhes, a town of 4,000, is almost entirely destroyed. One person was killed and several injured.

Farsala, about the same size, has 80 per cent of its houses down, leaving 5,500 persons without shelter.

Karditsa, population about 28,000, has 75 per cent of its houses toppled.

Domokos is 10 per cent destroyed. Five persons were injured.

SMOKE FLOODS HOUSE

When an attempt was made to light a fire at J. F. McNeil's home, 273 Caddy St., shortly before 9 a.m. today, the house became filled with smoke. Firemen were called but there was no fire hazard and nothing was used.

JAMES MILLIGAN, who will be guest soloist at St. Andrew's church 121st anniversary services morning and evening this Sunday, was singing this week in Carnegie Hall, N.Y., where the Toronto Mendelssohn choir and Symphony orchestra under direction of Sir Ernest MacMillan won a standing ovation after a performanct of Handel's oratorio "Messiah," in which Mr. Milligan was bass baritone soloist along with Lois Marshall.

Evangelist Takes Second Stadium

LONDON (AP) — American evangelist Billy Graham has taken a second sports stadium for the final services May 22 of his three-month London crusade.

Prospects were that, weather being favorable, he will address audiences of 170,000 persons on his final day in London.

The British crusade committee first engaged Wembley Stadium, which accommodates 90,000 persons comfortably, for the final Graham meeting. But early last week the request for reservations exceeded the capacity of Wembley.

So White City, the stadium on the west edge of London where greyhound races are held, was engaged for an afternoon meeting. Without under crowding it accommodates 80,000.

Gardiner Sees Good Price For Wheat Stocks

OTTAWA (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner predicts Canadian wheat, now piled up in a record surplus, will bring a good price to producers when it eventually moves to market.

He also told the Commons Friday that he does not consider Canada's butter surplus is anything to worry about.

Of wheat, Mr. Gardiner said Canada probably has the greatest amount in storage ever. But he added it will be marketed "from time to time, and we expect it will bring a price which will be favorable to the farmers where that wheat is grown."

(Canadian wheat stores in Canada and the United States, March 31 totalled 741,200,000 bushels compared with 606,300,000 last year.)

Dealing with the 33,000,000-pound butter surplus, the largest the agriculture price support board has ever had on hand, Mr. Gardiner said he does not regard this as "any considerable surplus."

SURPLUS MAY DISAPPEAR

It could disappear in a few months. The board could accumulate more butter. In any case, the question would be dealt with as time passed.

Generally, Mr. Gardiner said, the Canadian farm industry is in better condition than at any time in his experience. The 70-year-old minister has headed the federal agriculture department for 18 years.

John A. Charlton, a leading farm spokesman for the Progressive Conservative party, took issue with what Mr. Gardiner said about butter.

The member for Brant-Haldimand suggested an increasing butter surplus may be in prospect.

Unless 1954 turns out to be a dry year with poor pasture, he said, there will be a "tremendous" amount of milk produced.

PRICES DROPPING

Prices for farm products are dropping, Mr. Charlton said. Farm production costs stayed high. Any drop in farm income would be reflected in the economy.

Mr. Gardiner, discussing livestock conditions, said there has been no difficulty about marketing cattle and hogs. Most hogs were going to the domestic market, and surplus beef was going to the United States.

In another part of an agriculture debate, Mr. Gardiner said the federal government has not discarded the plan for a power-irrigation project on the South Saskatchewan river.

"It is still under consideration and it is being given the most careful consideration we can give to it," he said.

Painter's Error

DUNBARTON (CP) — Mrs. Ted Bennett got home from work Friday to find her house had changed color since morning. Painted only a month ago, the house had been done over in a deep blue-green. Her next-door neighbors still are waiting for painters to do their home—in a deep blue-green.

Big Fish Bites Early

FLESHERTON (CP) — The first trout catch of the new season was reported today when Howard Siegrist of Owen Sound caught a 2½-pound speckled beauty in Hydro lake just 10 minutes after midnight. Conservation officers estimate that more than 1,000 fishermen have poured into the area.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sage

In the beauty of flowers and the large attendance at the funeral service in the Free Methodist Church, Aylmer St., Friday afternoon, friends paid their last tribute of esteem to the memory of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Sage. She had lived on Albert St. and Lansdowne St., and previously in North Monaghan. Those communities were represented in the congregation that filled the church.

The service was conducted by Rev. Kenneth Bauder, assisted by his predecessor, Rev. Robert Dorgan of Oshawa.

The Christian life of Mrs. Sage had been an influence on all those who had known her. She had testified day by day to the glory and goodness of God, Mr. Bauder said. She had loved God and all those who were her neighbors, and had helped many in circumstances of need. She would long be remembered for her practical helpfulness and also the influence of her holy life.

Mr. Dorgan said Mrs. Sage had lived in the Christian conviction of a glorious hope and by her example had strengthened that hope in others.

The pallbearers were Leslie Sage, Stuart Sage, Allen Sage, Henry Robinson, Cyril Robinson and Don McIntyre. Burial was at Little Lake Cemetery.

Lakeshore Loop Baseball Has Five Clubs

COBOURG (ENS) — The Lakesore League, one of the strongest intermediate groups in the O.B.A., will operate as a five-team unit this year. Lindsay Merchants, the sixth intermediate club, announced that they will not be an entry this season at the team entry meeting Friday night. The Lindsay crew are considering entering the Tri-County League.

The five clubs entered in the Lakeshore and Colborne Dodgers, Cobourg Legionnaires, Port Hope Legionnaire, Bowmanville Brookdale Roses and Whitby B.A.'s Oshawa junior A's and Peterborough Juniors are the other clubs who will not face the barrier in 1954.

Of the five teams remaining, only Colborne is not a charter member of the group.

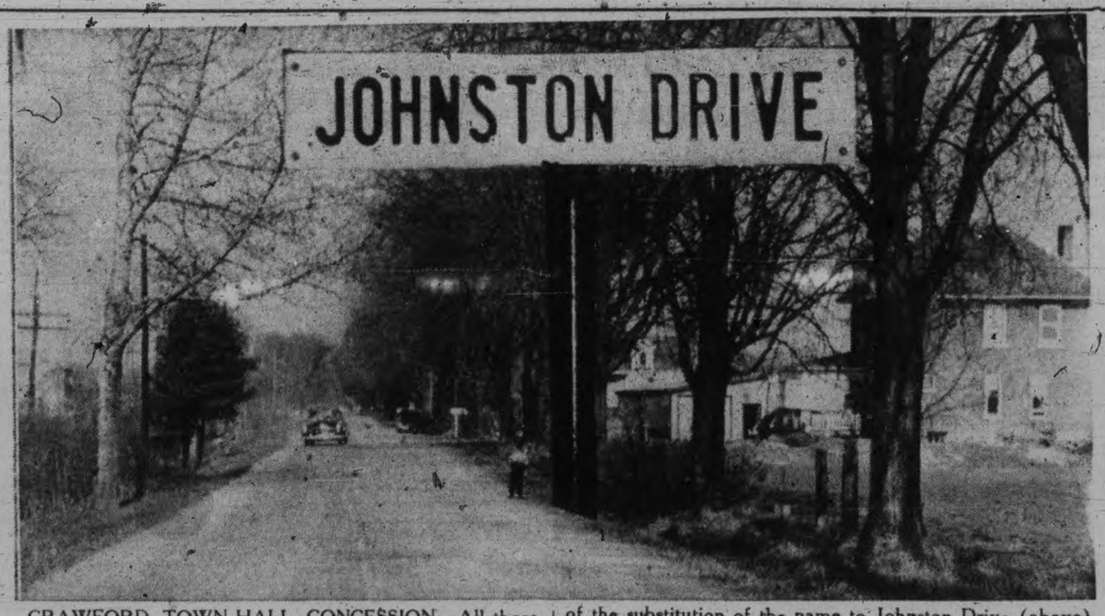
OPENS MAY 15th

The earliest opening in history will see Cobourg invading Port Hope, on May 15th. Port Hope will return the opening visit this year with the traditional starter here on May 24. Other opening dates on the 24th will find Bowmanville at Whitby where a parade and other civic doings will open the new baseball park.

Th teams will meet in a 32-game schedule with each club playing 16 games at home and the same number away. The teams will meet each other eight times during the regular schedule. The playoffs will consist of a round-robin series between the three A teams, Cobourg, Whitby and Colbourne, with a possibility that Bowmanville will also move up into the A ctaegory leaving Port Hope alone in B.

Cattle Die

WALKERTON (CP) — Five of 24 head of cattle in a transport truck stranded on Walkerton's main street by an engine failure died Friday. A sixth cow had to be slaughtered. The truck was owned by Walden Brothers of Ripley. Police said some smaller animals may have been trampled by others.



CRAWFORD, TOWN HALL, CONCESSION—All those names have been given a stretch of road at the foot of Monaghan Road running westerly through Crawford's Grove. But those people who appreciate appropriateness will approve of the substitution of the name to Johnston Drive (above). The family's long connection and association with North Monaghan and that road has resulted in the latest name. The long Johnston Drive is pictured above.

St. Lawrence Valley People Not Certain Boom Times Will Follow Power Project

By BART BARDOSSI

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP)—The people of the St. Lawrence valley are about to realize a 50-year dream of tapping the power of a mighty river but there's a "wait and see" undertone to the chorus of talk about boom times.

Folks in Massena — who will feel the impact most heavily on the U.S. side — have seen their hopes bloom and fade too often to stampede now that the digging is about to begin.

The New York state power authority has been licensed by the federal power commission to undertake the $600,000,000 project in parthership with the province of Ontario. The authority expects to get construction under way by June. The job, which probably will be compressed into five years, will bring a peak army of 7,000 workers into the area between here and Ogdensburg, N.Y.

SUDDEN BOOM

This presages a sudden boom for Messena and outlying communities but some citizens are wondering what will happen when the construction crews go back home.

Franklin R. Little, publisher of the Ogdensburg Journal, raised the issue, in a letter to Robert Moses, power authority chairman, requesting his views on the distribution of power to be developed at the St. Lawrence site. (About 6,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of energy will be the annual U.S. share of the project's output).

Little said that "if all the power is exported downstate or to other states, the . . . development can mean little for northern New York after construction is completed.

"On the other hand, if a substantial proportion of the power is available to industrial consumers who will build factories and employ people here . . . this area should experience a much-needed growth in population and income."

Moses replied that no distribution plan has yet been approved.

In Ithaca last week, an authority official said construction plans now include a huge park and recreation area on Barnhart island. He predicted this would attract a resort business that would "outstrip" the anticipated industrial growth of northern New York.

Meanwhile, village and town planners are busy.

Civic leaders admit that the area would be better off if the planning had begun five or 10 years ago.

Robert Ferguson, an engineer who heads the village planning board, notes that the ordinary citizen of Massena can hope for little immediate gain. The 6,000 workers at the Aluminum Company of America plant, who are the backbone of the village, can expect higher taxes, higher living costs and the myriad discomforts that attend a sudden influx of strangers.

The old Massena is a community of about 15,000 that has been growing steadily. In a prosperous dairy farming region, the aluminum fabricating and smelting industry draws workers from miles around.

Yet Massena retains many of the features of a village. Its downtown area lacks department stores and a hotel. Services and facilities have not kept pace with industrial and population growth.

Now that the project is almost at hand, speculators are beginning to drift in and size up their chances. A piece of property once valued at $12,000 was sold last month for $60,000.

The scope of the planning needed is emphasized by Prof. Thomas Mackesey, dean of the school of architecture at Cornell University. He noted that about 70 per cent of the work on the American side would be in the Massena area, 15 per cent at Iroquois dam site just east of Ogdensburg and the remaining 15 per cent between these two points.

He stressed that "this must be an integrated development" and recommended that all communities draft zoning and regulatory measures. Otherwise a community without ordinances may become "a dumping ground" for surrounding localities.

There are at least three private housing projects entailing between 500 and 700 homes in the works but these will not be enough. State officials have said there will be some sort of housing co-ordination in the area. The community would like to see all the permanent housing involved built within the village and all the temporary housing outside.

New permanent housing in the village, when it is built, will require costly extension of sewer lines.

Another major headache will be traffic control. There are bottlenecks now and Massena has hired a consultant to study the program. Other problems shared by town and village include police and fire protection, transportation and schools.

Union Heads Form Alliance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heads of unions in the coal, steel and trucking industries have formed a loose alliance to push for federal spending to combat unemployment. They also plan to act together in seeking other legislation they favor.

That was the announced result of a luncheon meeting Friday of presidents John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers (Ind.), Dave Beck of the AFL Teamsters and David J. McDonald of the CIO Steelworkers.

Lewis, acting as spokesman at a press conference afterward, said that the three unions have rich treasuries and a combined membership of about 3,000,000 members.

The trio denied advance rumors that they planned to form a third labor federation to compete with the AFL and CIO, or that Beck had invited Lewis and McDonald into the AFL.

Instead, the three union bosses said they had mutual problems and intended to meet often in the future to try to tackle them.

Catch Suspect After Two Years

HAMILTON (CP) — A man wanted in connection with a $1,500 robbery in Cornwall two years ago, was arrested here Friday night by city police.

Masson Skinner, alias Edward O'Brien, 43, was booked on charges of shopbreaking and theft, and theft from his employer.

On March 10, 1952, he is alleged to have broken into Stormont cold storage co-op store in Cornwall, and emptied the cash box.

Police said Skinner has been living in Hamilton under an assumed name for about a year.

Dog Bites Twice

BRANTFORD (CP) — A stray dog bit three-year-old Peter Blackey Jr., on the hand last Wednesday. Next day, the same dog bit Peter's mother on both arms. The dog has been quarantined for 14 days. Mother and son were given tetanus shots.

102 Years Old

BARRIE (CP) — Lemuel E. Mills is celebrating his 102nd birthday today. Barrie's oldest citizen, he says longevity is a characteristic of the Mills family — his mother was 100 years old when she died, his father 94.

Johnston Families Resided 125 Years In Monaghan

People who appreciate relevance and appropriateness will approve the substitution of the name "Johnston Drive" for the insignificant Concession St. of some person's feble suggestion.

Johnston Drive extends from the foot of Monaghan Road at Crawford's Grove westerly through the township to the Port Hope highway. It might have been called Crawford Road or Town Hall Road in the first place, but Consession St. was an irritating fumble. The most suitable name of all from its local connection and the long association of the family with the affairs of North Monaghan is the new name of Johnston Drive.

Bruce Johnston, clerk of North Monaghan for years, lives on the township side of that street, and there are at least five other Johnston families along its stretch from the river to the CNR.

The Johnston family has been established in that section of the township from the time of the early settlers.

IRISH PARENTS

First of the family was John A. Johnston who was born at Cataraqui, Kingston, in the 1820's when his parents had newly come from Ireland.

Three of his sons were John, David and Matthew, eldest son of Matthew was Bruce whose two sons, Kitchener and Ray, also have homes along the Drive.

George Johnston was the only son of David, and sons of George, now property owners on the Drive are Harold who has built up a business in flowers and shrubs and trees, and his brother Eric, and their mother, Mrs. George Johnston.

John A. Johnston's descendants are now in the fourth generation, and his father was the fifth in this country.

Johnstons have been living on that old township road as it once was, and a travelled way in Peterborough longer than a century, in fact nearly a century and a quarter.

OFFER OF GIFT

It was learned that when some new street signs were being ordered for placing in the township, the agent of the firm suggested that he would supply a Johnston Drive sign as a gift to the municipality if it would be accepted and set up.

Another old North Monaghan name that has been chosen is Harper Road, commemorating the late John Harper and his family. His property was at the foot of the long ascent of West Lansdowne St., or No. 7A Highway, ending at No. 28, or the Peterborough-Port Hope Highway.

Harper Road curves from Lansdowne St. out past the Archie Patterson place, crossing the CPR, and passing the area recently used as a city dump. First suggestion was Patterson St., but that would have been a duplication of the Patterson St. in the city, between Park St. and Monaghan Road. So Harper Road was adopted.

It appears that Grove Road was a proposal from some quarter as a change form Concession St., but it lacked significance. A petition for Grove Road was drafted for reference to the city council, but Concession St. was a boundary between the city and the township, and the residents of the south side are in North Monaghan. Hence, a petition should have been properly proposed for consideration of the township council.

Charge Planes Killing Moose

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood said Friday in the Newfoundland legislature that "literally thousands" of Newfoundland moose and caribou have been mowed down by machine guns from airplanes.

He did not elaborate on the statement which came while an amendment to the Wild Life Act was going through second reading.

Opposition members fought against a section of the amendment which requires American servicemen to live in the province 12 months before getting a residence fishing licence. Until now they had to be here only six months.

W. J. Browne, Progressive Conservative member for St. John's West, said American servicemen were here "protecting us and the whole North American continent . . . and I think we owe them a great deal."

Warning Voice From The Air

Today the trout-fishing season opened, and by creeks and streams in thickets and woods in all these Kawartha-Trent counties, fishermen will be trying their luck. Unfortunately, the season opens when the forest fire hazard is becoming high.

* * *

The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests wants fishermen to have good catches and good times; it also wants the valuable public property—the woods and forests—kept secure. A smouldering camp-fire, a cigarette butt thrown carelessly into dry underbrush, a match tossed aside, can cause great damage. So the Department has sent a small aeroplane here. It is equipped with a hooter. It is patrolling the area from Minden to Tweed, on the watch for any danger signs. A couple of fishermen are spotted by a campfire. It will fly down low over them and give them a warning please to be careful with the fire. Another group elsewhere, puffing pipes, may receive advice from the air.

* * *

The flying patrol is in addition to the half-dozen fire towers in the area, which are already manned. The Department of Lands and Forests, mindful of the public good and its responsibility for the heritage of our forests, is doing all it can to ensure that woods will not go up in flames. We commend it on its energy and foresight.

Swallows And Summer

May Day! Hammer and sickle, or maypole and mayflowers? Let Russia have her Red parades; we choose the maypole; and look upon today, despite the showers, as harbinger of summer. Colour is appearing in gardens and wildflowers are budding in the woods. And the first swallow has arrived; more than one, according to the testimony of our readers. So summer is made.

We have been glad to have many responses to our query on the first appearance of swallows. The most exact has been the information given in Mr. A. T. Brown's letter, published Thursday on this page. The first swallow came to Peterborough on April 9th, Mr. Brown carefully noted. His record over the last seven years is interesting. Despite the lateness of the Spring, only once in those seven years has the first swallow come earlier than the ninth; that was last year, when Mr. Brown noted a group on April 8th.

It seems that swallows pay little heed to the warmth or coldness of our Spring, and follow the calendar, rather than the weather. They arrive, according to Mr. Brown's record, between April 8th and April 16th. So perhaps there is neither truth nor falsehood in the old adage that one swallow does not make a summer. They apparently have nothing to do with the matter at all, for if they had they would be less consistent in their timing, and would come when summer temperatures were here, not merely when a particular calendar week had arrived.

This Industrial Province

The concern felt about the encroachment of industry on the rich fruit-growing land of the Niagara Peninsula is not misplaced, The Provincial Government's Ontario Industrial Review, 1953 is an impressive record of the industrialization of Ontario, and, unfortunately, of the concentration of factories in the Toronto-Hamilton-Windsor area. The rate of industrial growth is so great that only peremptory regulation will preserve the vineyards and orchards of Niagara from acres of factory walls and smoke stacks.

Last year was a record for Ontario. The gross value of manufacturing production increased from $8,398 billion to $8,867 billion. The number of employees in manufacturing was 635,000, an increase of 35,000 during the year. New capital investment in manufacturing reached a total of $475 million, and 136 new industries came to the Province, while 450 established ones increased their plants or built new branches.

Since Ontario's economy is now geared to industry, these figures reflect a satisfactory state of affairs, for they spell increased wealth and employment for the people of Ontario. Within this reference, there is one cause for uneasiness. Too much of the industry is concentrated on the Toronto-Hamilton axis, and like flies to a honey-pot, new industries are establishing themselves there, rather than outside its klieg lights. (That is a reason for Niagara growers' concern for their pleasant acres.) Despite the impressive array of place names in the Ontario Industrial Review's catalogue of new industries and expansion of factories, "Metropolitan Toronto" gobbled up nearly half of them; and a good many of the others went to Niagara Falls, Burlington and neighbouring places. This city received no new industry at all during 1953.

Ontario is becoming lop-sided. This is unfortunate. It is a dangerous industrial concentration should war touch Canada (moreover, almost half the manufacturing done in Canada is by Ontario industries.) This industrial mammoth from Toronto to Windsor is, in terms of modern social ideas, unhealthy. It tends to create an industrial blackness over the area and upon the lives of the people who work and live in it; sprawling suburbs, slums in the heart of the city, congestion, noise, little contact with the earth itself, and a horizon of walls rather than trees and hills.

What has happened to the theory of de-centralization so fondly preached as economically good, socially desirable and militarily necessary? The Industrial Review says this with a hint of pride:

> The large industrial cities, Toronto, Hamilton, Windsor and the rest, have received a generous portion of this growth but each year a greater proportion of the new factories are built in the smaller centres whose advantages are highly esteemed by many foresighted manufacturers. This accelerating trend towards decentralization of industry is also gaining momentum as a result of the aggressive campaigns being waged by the municipalities of Ontario to attract new industries. Today the municipalities are aware of the necessity of a 50 per cent. industrial assessment and are vigorously promoting their own industrial growth or are employing a new strategy, that of joining forces with other nearby municipalities and making a concerted effort to further industrialize their particular area. By this means they are able to offer a larger pool of labour, a wider choice of sites, buildings and so on.

We are afraid that the authors of that paragraph are seeing the industrial scene through rose-coloured glasses. True, many new industries have established themselves in smaller cities and towns, but in the main, these have been small plants. The biggest go where the rest are. One has only to drive into Toronto along its "Golden Mile" of big new factories to see the proof. We suggest that the Trades and Industry Branch of the Department of Planning and Development could do more to promote the desirable dispersal of industry, and to encourage new plants to set up elsewhere than along Golden Miles and golden acres of the great Toronto-Hamilton-Niagara metropolis.

Air Safety

The aeroplane collision over Moose Jaw in which so many passengers in the transcontinental plane lost their lives has put air safety in the forefront of the public mind. It has been a deep concern of Federal authorities for years, and a case in Quebec indicates how concerned they are.

A former R.C.A.F. flier flew recently from Lancaster (Ontario) to St. Vincent de Paul, near Montreal. It was an unlicensed flight; in other words, he did not have the required permission nor charted route and elevation. A special Federal prosecutor obtained a court summons requiring the flier to appear for trial next week. No accident resulted from the unlicensed flight, but a collision could have occurred because pilots of other planes, following routes authorized and known, had no information of the small plane's presence in the air and over their routes.

The Department of Transport is conducting a campaign to enforce the regulations. The sky is no more free than a highway. For the public safety, traffic laws in the air must be obeyed. A flier convicted of making an unlicensed flight can be given a fine of $1,000.

As the Moose Jaw accident showed, military fliers must also be under strict regulations and the R.C.A.F. has as much responsibility as a private flier to ensure that its planes adhere to civilian traffic rules of the air. The R.C.A.F. is not cock of the air-walk; the Department of Transport is.

Television Bottle

A year ago brewery warehouse people told us, snooping into the state of Peterborough customs, that quart bottles of beer were on the way out. Few were sold: they were a nuisance to stock. And so on. This alarmed us; for economic reasons we prefer quart bottles of beer; they are cheaper than two pints. In the course of another annual visit yesterday we inquired about quarts. Now the story is different. Sales of quart bottles are increasing. No, it is not because there is less money around and more people are realizing that one quart is cheaper than two pints. Television has wrought the change. Quart bottles of beer last longer. No need to make trips to the 'fridge while a good program is on. In fact, the brewery warehouse men refer touchingly to quarts as "our TV bottles". That is what some of their customers call them, too.

The Case Of Patrascanu

By DANIEL NORMAN

DESPITE earlier contradictory reports, there is now no doubt that the chief defendant in the recent secret trial (lasting eight days from April 6 to 14) before the Rumanian Supreme Military Court was Lucretiu Patrascanu, the former secretary of the Rumanian Communist Party and former Minister of Justice who was dismissed on February 24, 1948 and subsequently imprisoned. The confusion had been caused by two contradictory telegrams and some mistakes of dates they contained, and by the existence of an official in the Rumanian Government bearing the same name as the former Minister of Justice. But the charges brought against the man "sentenced to death and executed" in Bucharest and the names of the co-defendants quoted in the official communique, show beyond doubt that the "leader of the group of spies and plotters" was the well-known former Communist leader. Most of the other people tried with him were personal friends of his or of his wife, who is a gifted painter.

FOR INSTANCE, in 1943 Patrascanu was "interned" in a concentration camp "at Targu-Jui" but this was not a comedy arranged by him and the chief of the police as the prosecution at the trial pretended. It is also well-known that he "went to Paris in 1947"—as the Communist member of the delegation who signed the peace treaty for Rumania—but not to "meet an American spy"—which he could have done whenever he wished in Bucharest. But more important than an analysis of such allegations is to examine why this trial was held and why it was held so late. (Patrascanu and most of the "accomplices" having been in prison for six years.)

The answers are to be found in the secret character of the trial and the personality of the only two of the defendants who had important political responsibilities, namely Patrascanu and Zilber, both leading communists of long standing.

H. ZILBER, better known as Relu Zilber, was the son of a Jewish doctor and joined the Communist Party when he was very young in the late 'twenties. A brilliant economist, he was after the war adviser to Gheorghiu Dej, the present Rumanian Communist Prime Minister. As such he acquired a first-hand knowledge of Russian methods of economic administration and exploitation, of which after a couple of years he had the lowest possible opinion.

Unfortunately he was only an apprentice in the Machiavellian methods of the Cominform and his tongue betrayed him on more than one occasion.

It is very doubtful if Zilber was in the dock at the recent Bucharest trial. Just before he was arrested and imprisoned he had a severe attack of tuberculosis from which he had suffered for many years and the doctors did not give him long to live, even in normal conditions. According to reliable sources, he in fact committed suicide in prison two years ago, but even if this were not so, it would have been a real miracle if he had survived six years in the inhuman Rumanian prisons.

THE CASE of Patrascanu is even more illuminating. There is no proof either that he was present at the trial, as, according to reliable Rumanian sources, he went mad in prison as a result of long years of complete isolation and the tortures inflicted on him in Rumania and in Russia since his arrest in 1948.

Patrascanu was born in 1903, the son of a well-known Rumanian writer and professor at the University of Jassy. He was, with Ana Pauker (the former Foreign Minister) one of the founders of the Rumanian Communist Party. During the long years of underground activity—until the end of the last war—he was the official spokesman for the Party in all its legal manifestation. He represented the Party on the Rumanian delegation which signed the armistice in Moscow, and the Peace Treaty in Paris.

✧ ✧ ✧

HE and Ana Pauker were the only Communists known inside as well as outside Rumania, but, unlike Ana Pauker, Patrascanu was genuinely popular. His Communist comrades could never forgive him for this popularity nor for the prestige he enjoyed even among the Party's political opponents. But their hatred was also nourished by the fact that his mild Moldavian accent, his intelligence, his wit, his civilised manners, his rich culture and his outspokenness provided a permanent contrast with and indictment of their own obsequiousness, crudeness and parrot-like behaviour.

Patrascanu combined a real attachment to the workers' cause with faithfulness to his country. In 1945, for instance, at an open-air meeting at Cluy protesting against the exceptionally favourable conditions given to the Hungarian Fascist officials sent to Transylvania by Horthy (the Hungarian ruler) he reminded his audience that he was "Rumanian before being a Communist." Similarly, in Paris, in 1946, when the worried Rumanian delegation was meeting late into the night because the Russians had decided to help the Hungarians to obtain some adjustments of the Translyvanian frontier, Patrascanu left the room after midnight and went to see Manuilsky, then a Soviet delegate. When he came back at about four a.m. he announced happily to his colleagues that the Russians, confronted with the possibility of an open break, had given in. It is thus chiefly through Patrascanu that the Rumanians obtained the whole of Transylvania after the war.

IT IS CLEAR that Patrascuna was a "Titoist" before Tito himself. As time went on his popularity was growing in Rumania and his arrest merely made it even greater. In fact, he represented for many Russians the hope of a change. Thus, although Patrascanu was arrested in 1948, the growing myth of a Patrascanu alive and able one day to save the country from the present regime of terror was killed only two weeks ago at the Bucharest trial.

When I last saw Patrascanu, in Paris in 1946, he was aware of the dangers of his position, but he went back to his country with the hope that the Peace Treaty he had signed for his country would be respected and that the Russian troops would soon leave Rumania. Because of his attitude the Russians and his Communist colleagues did not keep him in their confidence: he did not know what was in store for the world and he could not foresee that in 1954 the Austrian State Treaty would still not be signed (thus giving the Russians an excuse for retaining troops in Rumania) and that he would have to pay so dearly for his patriotism. But to try him the Rumanian Government had to wait until the new method of secret trials had come into practice in the satellite world.

SUGGESTION ABOUT JUBILEE POINT

SIR: In reading about your editorial remarks about the pleasure boats that used to sail the "Otonabee River," the "Stoney Lake" and "Geneva," through the canals and lakes, and then a ride back home from Lindsay on the train to Peterborough were nice days sailing. Then I used to take the trips to "Jubilee Point" and "Gore's Landing." Lovely trips on the river were enjoyed.

When I was at Jubilee Point one day, I could not help thinking what a swell place they could make of it. They could make a regular resort and say a couple of boats, two decks, made to move by propellers and not side paddles. Make the boat wooden, flat bottoms, so they would get through shallow places and pick up people at all points on the river and take them to Jubilee Point. Here all kinds of things, such as swings and merry go-rounds, ferris wheels and shooting galleries; all the fun of the fair as they say.

In the summer months they could be open all the time and weekends and holidays it would be crowded. A good place for picnics, clubs, and Sunday schools.

You could give the place a new name, say (Rogerville Gardens), the place to spend a ("happy day") on the river, like it is in the Old Country on the River Thames. With Peterborough growing like it is, it would not be long before it would be well known and make it a paying concern.

I'm sure it would be enjoyed by all.

I am,

Yours truly,
A. C.

UNDIES AND BASIC MORALS

SIR: I have viewed with mingled sentiments the replies to my letter which decried the unnecessary exhibition of ladies' underclothing in certain Peterborough shop-windows. It is my belief that in an intelligent argument, it is always best to avoid the introduction of personalities; that is, if one's platform is not sufficient in itself to defeat the claims of one's opponents, then it is simply childish and futile to attempt to discredit him by calling him names, and making wild charges against him, while not attempting to prove the truth of these condemning statements. I believe that this sort of tactic is called a "smear campaign."

Now, some of my worthy correspondents have insulted my intelligence, called me a "crank" and a "Victorian prude," and have pompously inflated their own egos by clearly implying that they are responsible for the present state of world affairs, and that they are certainly the cream of the crop as far as intellectual ability is concerned. May I ask, honourable opponents, for precisely what great advance is humanity eternally indebted to you? Your attitude is reminiscent of that of children who call their parents "dumb" and "old-fashioned."

One writer was so hard-pressed for some acid comment upon my position that he resurrected the old saw concerning the use of pen names, and said that these are employed only when the author wishes to expound a view of which he is ashamed. Naturally, we can expect this sort of perverted logic from one who favours the open display of ladies' panties. However, I am certain that such pseudonyms as "Mark Twain" and "Samuel Marchbanks" have not been used because their creators were ashamed of the literary works which bore these signatures. I have an excellent reason for concealing my identity, and I assure you, Sir, it is not I who should feel shame for my part in this debate.

It seems strange that whenever a subject touching on morality comes under discussion, someone begins to shout about progress. It is contended that the moral laws must be disgarded, aye, and their very existence denied in order that one be 'progressive, or modern. This world of ours, with which my opponents are so satisfied, is full of these self-styled "modernists." They practice divorce, birth control, and other offences against both divine and natural law. Is this progress? If so, then I want to be the most retarded person in Canada.

Someone suggested that I am foolishly ashamed of the marvellous mechanism which is the human body. Zounds, no! But just as the fact that we are not ashamed of our bodies does not mean that we should walk around nude, neither does the fact that women are not ashamed of their "undies" mean that these items should be displayed to the public gaze.

Finally, I should like to reply to the statement, made by one particularly macrostomatous gentleman, that my views are Victorian. In a sense, I suppose that this is true. Do not mistake me; I am not one to bemoan the passing of the "good old days," but I seriously doubt whether basic morals can ever be altered. Certainly the virtue of modesty will never be out-dated.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,

Yours very truly,
"NOSRET SAM."

The Lord is good unto them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him. It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord... A BRITISH OPINION

"Now, boys, we'll try not to disturb the gentleman while he's painting."

Not The Quantity Of Drink But Quality Of Drinking Which Is Sign Of Alcoholism

By AN ALCOHOLIC ARTICLE III

It's the quality of one's drinking, not so much the quantity consumed, which is important in detecting alcoholics, or those in danger of becoming such. The quality of the drinker's reaction to alcohol indicates how far he has travelled over the alcoholic route. The farther one progresses the harder it is to halt the increasing drive from bad to worse.

All alcoholics, men and women, arrive at the same unhappy destination by routes of varied lengths. some getting there quickly while others may take from ten to fifteen years to acquire the alcoholic label. It is conservatively estimated that at least one out of every four alcoholics is a woman. This figure would undoubtedly be much higher were it not for the customary shielding extended to women victims — shielding which, in all too many cases, helps to make bad conditions worse. There should be no more blame attached to the woman than there is to a man. Illness, regardless of sex, never merits moral branding.

DETECTING POTENTIAL VICTIMS

From the case histories of thouands of recovered alcoholics, men and women, much has been learned to aid us in detecting potential victims of alcoholism. There are certain alcoholic trademarks which crop up in a drinker's behavior which can be used to spot uncontrolled drinkers. The following drinking habits can be considered as general patterns of threatening alcoholism. They are the red lights on the alcoholic route.

Somewhere along the line of so-called moderate, social drinking, drunkenness may occur from time to time. Of course any person will become drunk if he or she drinks enough. The capacity for alcohol varies from person to person. No two people will ever react the same to like quantities and quality of alcohol on different occasions. This bears out the highly involved nature of the alcoholic problem. It is, indeed, an individual problem, for each drinker has his own barometer to indicate drinking difficulties. Intoxication can never be considered social drinking.

It is well to remember that the reasons behind excessive drinking are more often than not counterfeit excuses for getting drunk, and the objective sought through drunkenness seldom, if ever, begets anything other than added trouble. As the occasions of intoxication increase, the greater the danger of alcohol controlling the individual instead of the individual controlling alcohol.

Sneaking drinks, gulping drinks, big-shot exhibitions by otherwise insecure people while under the influence of alcohol, getting drunk every time one takes a drink and blackouts—when one does not remember where he has been, or what he has said or done —are all symptoms of growing drinking trouble.

DRINK IN MORNING

The need for a drink in the morning is, indeed, one of the glaring signs of absolute need for alcohol. This need is the seed of compulsion, and the alcoholic is a compulsive drinker. The morning drink habit is the first step to a growing urge for drinks throughout the day, resulting in serious interference with one's routine duties, work, and responsibilities.

If a person becomes more or less intoxicated every time he takes a drink, he has certainly lost control over his drinking. If he intends to have but a "couple" of drinks and consistently winds up drunk, he has lost control over the drinking situation. When quantities of alcohol, time and place for drinking, and responsibilities cannot be regulated by the drinker, alcoholism is at hand and the individual is in dire need of help with a serious problem.

As the compulsion to drink becomes greater, drinkers may start off on benders lasting anywhere from a few days to weeks. For such people, alcohol has become the most important factor in their lives. Whether they admit it or not, they will sacrifice everyhing near and dear to then to remain in alcoholic unreality. These drinkers are in desperate need of help, in spite of their own opinions to the contrary. However, they will invariably resent any criticism of their drinking, lie about it, and attempt to dismiss the obvious seriousness of the problem confronting them.

By this time, solitary drinking has undoubtedly become a pattern. The victim withdraws from his family and friends with feelings of guilt and remorse. He may even hate himself for drinking as he does. So, in his terrifying loneliness, he drinks to forget, but never forgets to drink.

When it is discovered that a drinker is hiding and protecting his supply of liquor, it can be safely assumed that he is ensnared in the alcoholic trap.

CHANGE DRINKING WAYS

Most problem drinkers try to change their drinking ways at one time or another, particularly when some outside pressure finds its mark. They may go on the "wagon" or try some form of controlled drinking such as using a limited amount of beer or light wine. However, whatever the plan, it is usually one of the drinker's own design and of bogus sincerity. It represents a final, desparate measure to find a way to continue drinking without the disasters of the past. This is alcoholic folly. The alcoholic can never become a controlled drinker. Sooner or later the explosion takes place.

As the victim's condition grows worse, he will show a marked disregard for moral and ethical codes. He will conveniently forget that his rights end where his neighbor's begin. Outrageous actions will be committed with the most innocent of intentions. His promises of amendment will come a dime a dozen in abundance, but without quality. The whole structure of his personality falls apart.

Even when not drinking, the alcoholic's moods swing rapidly from one extreme to the other. He is unpredictable, unreliable, and irresponsible in his association with others. His feeling of not belonging anywhere or to anyone drives the victim to an exile which demands relief through more and more drinking.

Sideline Becomes Leading Industry

Five years ago chickens filled an old chicken coop and tractors, wagons, and plows were in an ancient implement barn in a Millbrook barnyard.

Today tucked in the same chicken coop and the same implement barn is Canada's leading manufacturer of handmade aluminum serving trays.

Wishing to find a sideline which would fill in idle time and also make money, an ambitious CGE superintendent, G. Alf. Spicer, found what he wanted in 1949. He bought the aluminum tray business from the Oakville General Stampings.

Mr. Spicer admittedly didn't know much about this business, but he worked on the theory that if one's efficient it doesn't matter what you do, you'll make money. He took over. Mr. Spicer is efficient; therefore his business is thriving and he's making money.

In fact, the business has developed so that it's known as the leading company in its line. In fact, his only opposition is from larger firms, one in Montreal, and from the United States.

His realization of the importance of quality and originality, both learned from his years with the CGE, has enabled Mr. Spicer's project to become successful.

Designing most of his trays, ice buckets, candy dishes, lazy susans and relishes, Mr. Spicer has always an eye open for new ideas. He demands these inspirations be original and appealing.

In his work of designing Mr. Spicer has found his competition to be copying. This is the sincerest form of flattery.

His patterns for the various trays are also the most popular in the market today. Credit for these must go to Miss June Fraser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon K. Fraser. Her knowledge of flowers has resulted in pleasing, eye-catching flower patterns.

The simple pansy design is currently the rage of the trade. In fact Mr. Spicer credits Miss Fraser's pattern for much of the 16 per cent. increase in business this year.

But the quality basically results from the workmanship within the chicken coop and the implement barn. At present Bert Bell and Bert Gardiner shear the aluminum to size, punch the patterns, form the declicate edges and hammer the impressions about the flower patterns. The finishing touches are left to Clayton Thexton in the implement barn where he buffs and polishes to a satin or high gloss finish.

The present season is rather slow and only the three are required to turn out some 40 trays a day. But in the busy time, from August to Christmas, the little buildings buzz with activity, some nine men making 100 trays a day.

Mr. Spicer has a full-time salesman travelling the province, drumming up business, generally among the jewellery trade or general gift stores.

All this started to fill in idle moments, but it will also serve a second purpose, providing Mr. Spicer with a full-time job when he retires from the CGE's ordnance department in three years.

A-F-I-E-L-D with NICK NICKELS

OUR MANY TROUT-FISHING FRIENDS do not fall in the Simonpure class. But to see them in district streams this morning, on bended knee before some placid pool, reverently examining the incubation progress of fly and waterbug hatches, scowling at their fellows who break the silence of Nature, we begin to wonder if they are just about as close to the Infinite as men can be. Alas, they are but engaged in the greatest of fishing techniques, Trout fishin'.

SOME STRANGE VIRUS starts working in their winter-thinned bloodstreams about mid-April. They have dreamed about their favorite hobby all through the winter. They have handtied dozens of wet and dry flies at basement hobby benches. They have overhauled waders, creels and flyrods. And days before May 1 they doodle abstract designs during important business phone conversations and turn the cold eye on home chores that are pressing at this season of the year.

Wives who have resorted to hints and threats about removing and cleaning storm windows, putting on screens, digging in the garden find they are up against a mental stone wall. They sigh in resignation or resort to grim-faced foot-tapping. Nothing matters to the head of the house while this madness eats into his brain, except that he gets away, with his pals, to their favorite trout streams, to work this sickness from their systems.

THEY ARE OFF shortly after midnight. They find a dozen other carloads of brethren at streamside busily engaged in rigging rods and general gear by car and flashlights. It may be heavy with fog, streaming with rain, snowflakes in the air or promise of a fine dawn. Nothing, but nothing, dampens their enthusiasm.

Trout fishermen seldom take their limits on opening day—one and an additional 14 fish, providing the additional 14 do not weigh more than 10 pounds—but they are in there trying.

SPECKLED TROUT will have the darndest bait menu tossed to them; there could be several varieties of those tied parcels of feathers representing every type of insect, nymph or minnow. There could also be worms, minnows, crawfish, grasshoppers, plugs, bugs and spinners.

Purist Trout fishermen will cuss pickerel amateurs who, as keen to wet a line as anyone, will elephant-tramp stream banks and splash merrily in the water. The old argument will come up again that the opening of both trout and pickerel season should start on the same day and let each group of cobblers stick to their lasts. And the wisest fishermen of the whole mad crew will stay at home for about three days until the great heat is off.

The opening day of trout fishing is chaotic but it's the best fun in the world.

* * * *

A news item in the Examiner by someone who was slightly off the beam suggested that we go ahead and haul out all the suckers from district waters, that suckers ate gamefish spawn. 'Tisn't so. Actually, sucker fry supply the bulk of live food for gamefish which, if suckers weren't here, would have our fish turning cannibal, which occurs in lunge to some extent, as it is.

* * * *

Surprising the trout men that go to their favourite streams today loaded down with all the wet and dry flies in the book. Because they made them, we suppose they think their unlimited supply is bound to catch something. Why they don't grade down their assortment and take out the duplicate patterns, we shall never know. But you can't tell what goes on in the minds of fishermen on opening day and there is little use expecting them to use much logic at this time.

Department of lands and forests are going all out to prevent weekend fishermen from burning out their favourite fishing ground through carelessness.

A seaplane is ranging between Minden and Tweed and pilot "Happy" Hoare, equipped with a loud-hailer, will come close in to congregations of fishermen and prospectors to warn them about attending their campfires properly and to watch their smoking habits.

All this fishing exuberance does not come from pent-up feelings and love of the Great Outdoors, you know. There is considerable imbibing along with the sport and a few snorts now and then makes the most careful fisherman a bit careless, a cigaret flicked into the bush, a teapail fire not quite soused

This is not a temperance tirade but we have gone over the department's district for statistics with the Boss man and found that 75 per cent of the 19 fires in Lindsay district last year were caused by carelessness and likewise 65 per cent of Tweed's 25 fires.

Shouldn't be surprised that the fire hazard will stand at HIGH today and it just took the last two days of warm winds to bring it out of the MEDIUM category.

Fire towers in Peterborough, Hastings, Haliburton and Victoria are fully manned and binoculars are poised.

Our American friends have a slogan about a "Safe and Sane Fourth" (of July). Let the same thought apply here. It is a good one, especially if we want to go on fishing in our favourite streams.

'Lunge stripping and migrating geese go hand in hand every season. The former is in full swing and hundreds of geese are going overhead each hour, on some days this week.

Your Garden:

The Old Gardener Compiles A Dictionary Of Definitions For Your Use

BY HENRY PREE (NEA)

It is hard to believe, but few home libraries seen to include a dictionary of any sort. At least so it appears to the Old Gardener, who spends much time providing definitions of words commonly used by gardeners.

The word EVERGREEN to many seem to spell "PINE" while the word "deciduous" just does not explain a thing to others. Failure to call plants by their botanical names is most understandable but when a gardener who has reached voting age does not know an annual from a perennial—then he should invest in a garden dictionary.

While gardeners may be said to speak a language of their own, many of the words which seem confusing are, or should be, self-explanatory to anyone who understands the English language.

Here are a few words which are commonly used in all garden literature. The definitions are from a well-known garden encyclopedia.

ANNUAL: Plants which grow from seed, attain their growth, flower and produce seed in one year (or less), then die; having oompleted their life cycle. Annual is derived from the Latin word meaning a year, and is, of course, used as an adjective as well as a noun. Example: Zinnia.

BIENNIAL: A plant which, started from seed, requires two seasons to come to maturity. The first year it makes too growth and usually a fleshy root. The second year it makes top growth and usually a fleshy root. The second year it produces flowers and seed, living on the food stored up in the root and then dying. Example: Hollyhock.

PERENNIAL: Plants which live live more than two years are known as perennials, as distinguished from annuals and biennials. Though trees and shrubs are perennial in habit, the term is generally applied to herbaceous rather than woody plants: Example: Peony.

HERBACEOUS: Properly this means any plant with soft green stems and foliage which dies to the ground and comes up again the following year, as distin-

Canadian championships seem to be the rage now among Peterborough sporting teams. With the lacrosse and football hitting the starry heights, other teams are climbing on the band wagon.

This time it's two YMCA volleyball teams, composed mostly of players who have developed in the Lillico league, the oldest volleyball league in Canada.

The Y intermediate club, including Bill Edger, Joe Stewart, Roy Westropp, Barney Dundas, Dave Walks, Bill Prest and Fraser Wade, are trying for a qualifying place in the Canadian open play today. If successful they'll be playing teams from Toronto, Winnipeg and Montreal.

The Y's hopes are high for a championship for the veterans' team which plays Montreal and Ottawa. Anyone who has seen such volleyballers as Cliff Cadd, Howard David, Ken Kingston, Jim McClenaghan, Ab Dryland, Errol Hanbidge, Jack Wolstenholme and Nels Stanger, delivering, setting up and spiking, will realize the vets have a potent team.

The fact that two Y teams are representing the city in Canadian play indicates volleyball has become much stronger of late around the Y gym.

Gift To Swimmers

Gee, it must be great to have money. It's great that the Vancouver philanthropist and former Peterborough boy, Rufus Gibbs, has money. This generous gent certainly paved the Peterborough Ornamental Swimingm Club's trip west with his $3,500 donation.

The swimming girls, under Mrs. Pansy Forbes, have been working hard since early January at various money-raising projects. But like other sporting groups were meeting with only fair results.

Now with the former CGE toolmaker's donation, the club's team is assured the western jaunt to the Canadian synchronized swimming championships and the British Empire Games, all in Vancouver in late July and early August.

What will be done with the money already collected and to be collected by future projects, you ask? Well, Mr. Gibbs, who's well acquainted with money, has suggested the money be placed in a travelling fund.

Travelling where, you ask? Well again it's our Mr. Gibbs. He has pointed out that if the girls win the Canadian title, they'll be going to the Pan-American Games next March in Mexico. The travelling fund money will serve for that purpose.

But the girls still have a large step to climb before heading towards Mexico. They're going to have stiff opposition from Toronto, Montreal, Quebec City, Edmonton, and from several clubs representing British Columbia, in the nationals.

Pansy's lasses had stiff opposition in the United States last summer, but they still brought back the US senior women's team championship, the first time it had been taken out of the States. They can easily repeat this summer in the Canadian finals.

Golfers Flocking

Golf balls are a little harder than potatoes but many today prefer golf balls on the bright, sunny weekends.

The golf enthusiasts are flocking to the courses and have prompted the Kawartha Open committee to start thinking about their August tournament, the largest amateur tourney in Canada.

Lionel Browne, Gord White, Dick Oulmet, Arn Sanderson, Alex McGregor, Don Meredith and others will meet early next week to plan this year's tourney which will have no less than $3,000 in prizes.

This tournament increases in popularity annually both with the top amateur golfers in the province and the average fellow who swings a club. This popularity has resulted in the prizes increasing in value annually. The tournament started off at $300 and has leaped ahead since.

The galleries will miss Kitchener's Gerry Kesselring, who is now hitting the pro circuit, but they'll see good golfing from Nick Weslock, Ernie Bentley, comical Moe Norman and others.

The Alpha Boxing Club unveiled several promising fighters last Monday on the bi-monthly card and it appears the Alex Cross enterprise is going to be successful.

Local fistic fans seem to be souring on the Bagnato fighters from Toronto, especially after Bill Twomey and Emmett Crough decisively won against Charlie's boys. Therefore Alex is attempting to line-up an RCAF-Alpha Club fight night, probably May 11.

You'll hear quite a roar coming from the Duffus bowling alleys today, but inside the bowlers won't be hearing a thing. It's the 15th annual tournament of the Ontario Bowling Association of the Deaf.

Despite their handicap, these bowlers can really tumble the pins. For instance, Brantford's Daniels set the tournament high triple record last year with scores of 254, 287, and 269.

Of interest to city bowlers is a former Peterborough man, John Crough, now of Windsor, who is the tournament's oldest active bowler at 74. He proved last year that he still has what it takes to knock down the pins.

A Toronto informant passes this hopeful message along to us and if it's anywhere near the truth, it'll mean rough opposition this fall for the Peterborough Orfuns.

Endeavoring to keep intermediate football alive in Central Ontario, it apepars that some top brass hope to bring better opposition into this district for Cobourg, Oshawa and the Orfuns. Rumor has it that Oakville and Hamilton, top teams in the western section, may be grouped this way in the fall.

Revolver Marksmen

The Peterborough Revolver and Pistol Club has grown considerably this year. It now numbers 33 men who compete weekly Wednesday nights in slow, timed and rapid fire action in the armoury range.

In fact, with the exception of Toronto and Hamilton clubs, the Peterborough group is rated one of the most active in the province.

They have a number, such as Jack Connelly, Bert McClennan, Kay Bleakley, Murray Metcalfe, John Wolff (club president), Bill Aggas, who hit the bull's eye regularly.

Cal Kilgore, rated within the top three in Canada and possibly about seventh in North America, is now once more in Toronto. During his brief time in Peterborough he brought the city a fair amount of publicity with his shooting.

By '55 the club hopes to build its own range, similar to those in Toronto and the U.S.A.

Familiar Names 1924 Pictures Local Ball Teams

While Peterborough is rounding up a team and a league for the coming baseball season, a flash-back to 1924 is suggested from a copy of the Canadian edition of Spalding's Baseball Guide published in 1925.

Considerable space was allotted to city leagues up and down the country, and Don Loucks, then secretary of the Peterborough group contributed to the summary of that year here with three pictures of the Lakeview Junior OBAA champions of 1924; the Curve Lake Club of the East Peterborough League and the Sacred Heart junior midget champions of the city league.

"Peterborough had entries in all six of the OBAA series, and although not quite as successful in capturing Ontario championships as during the 1923 season, yet the showing made by the teams of the Peterborough leagues is a cause for much satisfaction.

LAKEVIEW CHAMPIONS

In 1924 only the Lakeview juniors succeeded in annexing an OBAA championship. However, the juvenile, midget, and bantam teams all went as far as winning Eastern Ontario division titles, but were defeated in the semi-finals for the provincial honors by Toronto teams.

The members of that Lakeview team were: Don T. McIntyre, Harry H. Whitlow, Alf Griffin, Fred Ash, Lou J. Lebarr, captain, J. H. Johnston, Johnny A. Marchen, Harry A. Halliday, Lou W. LeBarr, manager, Fred Craig, president, Frank Whitehouse, Walter A. Jackson, coach, Hary Cheu, Wilfrid LeBarr, mascot, Don Cameron.

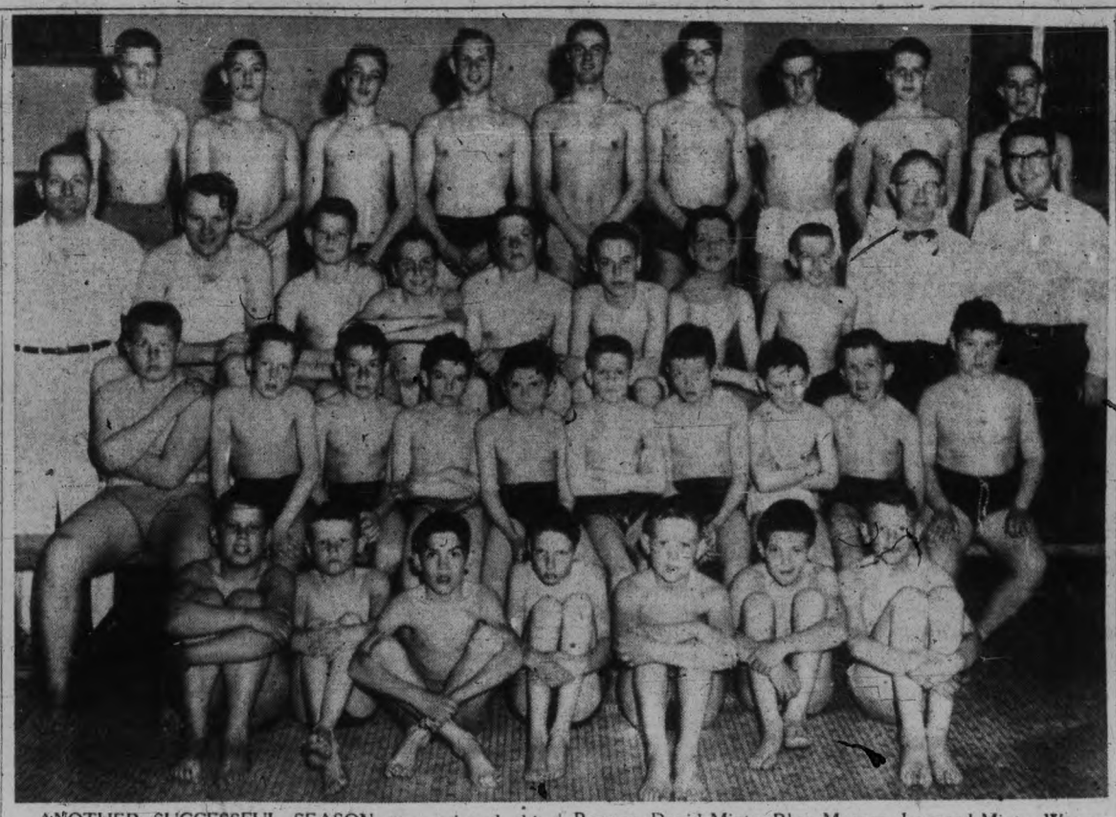
WHITEHOUSE STAR

Frank Whitehouse, the Lakeview's pitching ace was awarded a medal at the close of the season for being the most popular player in the league.

City league officers were: John E. Sullivan, president; J. E. Munro, vice-president; Don Loucks, secretary; Bill Prindible, assistant secretary.

The boys of the Sacred Heart midget champions were: Leo Rishea; Alphonse Brioux, coach; C. Grant; W. Prindible, manager; L. Masterson; V. Grady; R. Walton; Vince O'Connell, secretary; O. Bannon; M. Starr; G. Solmes, B. Jones; H. Masterson, mascot; W. Ausitn and C. Kenealley.

The Curve Lake winners of the East Peterborough League: Sam Taylor, umpire; Bill McCue; Merritt Taylor; Bert Williams; Dow Taylor; James Taylor; George Coppaway, manager; Dave Jacob; Sil Sawyer; Austin McCue; James Jacob; Leslie McCue; Reg Muskrat.



ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL SEASON was enjoyed this year by the Peterborough YMCA Swimming Club under its coach, Gord Minty. Many promising swimmers were developed and prospects for next season seem good. The swimmers will officially wind up the season with a father-lad night Monday night. This year the club included (left to right): front row, John Gordon, Bill Oliphant, Glen Walker, Kim Salonius, David Wilson, Roger Finnamore and Ken Stickle; second row, Robert Stickle, Edgar Scrutton, Bill Bonney, David Minty, Rhys Morgan, Leonard Minty, Wayne Ash, Wayne Atchison, Donald Ebbs, and Robert Duder; third row, Coach Gordon Minty, Fraser Wade, physical director, Gary McInroy, Michael Triggs, Pete Salonius, Gary Rishor, John Elliott, Douglas Townsend, James McClenaghan, general secretary, Bill McFarlane, boys' work secretary; back row, Donald Gibson, Barry Baker, Ross Dobbin, Terry Northrop, Wilton Tranter, Lorne Hale, David Pryde, Stuart Lamers and David Ross.

No Excuse For Memorial Cup Delay: Parry

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—J. Harper Parry says "there's no excuse for the delay" in declaring an eastern Memorial Cup contender.

Parry, secretary-manager of the Western Junior Hockey League, said Friday night it was all very well for CAHA president W. G. George of Kemptville, Ont., to say the delay was "regrettable but little can be done about it."

"There's no excuse for the delay," said Parry. He protested to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. The reply he received from George said: "We are scheduling the games as soon as we can get them scheduled, but rinks in which the games must be played have previous commitments."

St. Catharines leads Quebec 2-1 in the best-of-seven eastern final with the fourth game slated for Toronto Sunday. Meanwhile, the western champion Edmonton Oil Kings have been idle for 10 days since eliminating Fort William Canadiens.

BEAT DEADLINE

According to the CAHA constitution, the eastern and western finalists were to have been declared by April 26 or 27. Oil Kings won the western title April 22, well in advance of the deadline.

"The East knew the dates for a winner to be declared," said Parry, "and they should have made arrangements to have rinks available for games."

He added that in past years the Western Junior League encountered rink problems in playoffs but switched games to other arenas in order that the series could be completed on time.

"We have done it many times," he said, "and the East should have done the same thing. It is absolutely ridiculous to make a team wait around two weeks before starting a series. And in this case it is all the more ridiculous because it is the Memorial Cup final.

GREATER DISTANCES

"I would also like to point out that teams in the West have much greater travelling distances to consider than in the East. Their trips are not half as long and for the life of me I cannot see how they could gum a thing up to the extent that the Memorial Cup final is going to be two weeks late in starting.

"In fact, it might be even later than that."

Kings are scheduled to leave for Toronto today by train for the final.

They downed an all-star professional team at Edmonton Thursday night in an effort to keep in top shape for the cup final but once they arrive in the East they will have to rely on practices to keep in trim.

Young Canadian Introduces Baseball To Dutch People

UTRECHT, The Netherlands (CP)—Baseball is booming in Holland, thanks partly to the efforts of a young Canadian who came as a soldier and stayed as a citizen.

Les Myers, 32-year-old son of a Pictou, N.S., steelworker, is coaching one team in each of four local leagues for the Utrechtse Voetbal Vereniging, a Dutch soccer club.

"Baseball is attracting more and more interest in Holland," said Myers. "At the moment there are more than 200 clubs in Holland and the number is increasing by almost 20 per cent each year."

Since regular diamonds are not available, games are played on soccer fields.

Myers lives in the nearby town of Zeist with his Dutch wife, Coby, his five-year-old son, Howard, and baby daughter, Diana.

He first saw Zeist May 7, 1945, as a military policeman with the Canadian Army. The streets that day were lined with cheering citizens — Germany's surrender had been announced.

"One girl out of the crowd," Myers recalls, "wanted to jump on my motorcycle. She's still hanging on."

Coby and Les were married six months later.

18 Colts Ready For Derby Race

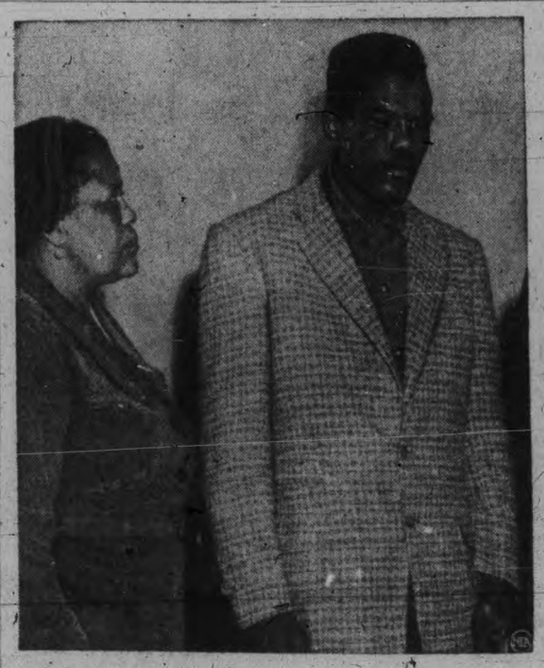
By ORLO ROBERTSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Derby, premier American horse race, will be run for the 80th time at sprawling Churchill Downs late today with five outstanding contenders for the richest winner's purse in history and 13 other three-year-olds apparently just out for the ride.

The 18 colts, whose names were dropped into the entry box Friday are survivors of an original field of 137 nominated for this $100,000-added glamor race starting at 5:30 p.m. EDT.

The others, including two of the future-book choices, dropped by the wayside either through injuries or failure to show the speed and endurance necessary to be a serious contender at the mile-and-a-quarter Derby distance.

Heading the field are Correlation, owned by Los Angeles oil man R. S. Lytle; Goyamo, representing the Woodvale Farm of Royce G. Martin at Toledo, Ohio, and Mrs. W. Alton Jones, wife of an oil company executive, Hasty Road, pride of A. E. Reuben's Hasty House Farm of Toledo; Determine, from the stable of automobile dealer A. J. Crevolin of Alhambra, Calif.; and C. V. Whitney's scrappy little Fishermen from New York.



MAMA KNOWS BEST—Mrs. Georgia Jackson and her son were called before the New York Boxing Commission because the Rockaway Beach heavyweight said he told his mother he was going to lose to Jimmy Slade and was glad he did. Mama treated him like a baby, the fighter said, wouldn't even let him have a girl friend. He apologized and was suspended for 30 days because of a swelling of the right forearm caused by a blood clot.

Fast White Sox Whip Boston 5-0 For 9th Victory

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

If big Bob Trice can keep up his fast start he may make the jump from International League rookie-of-the-year to the same title in the American League in one season.

The Georgia-born Negro, first of his race to play baseball for Philodelphia Athletics, has started, finished and won three games. And each time he's pitched he's been better.

Trice joined the A's last September and posted a 2-1 record after winning 21 for Ottawa in the International League.

Against Baltimore Orioles Friday night he had a one-hit shutout going for eight innings, and wound up with a 5-1 three-hitter.

PLAYED IN QUEBEC

Trice, 25, won 16 and lost three for St. Hyacinthe in the Quebec Provincial League in 1952.

Trice's fine pitching pushed the Athletics into third place in the American League, a game and a half behind the fast-moving Chicago White Sox, who whipped Boston 5-0 for their ninth victory in 11 games.

Detroit outlasted Washington 2-1 in 12 innings and Cleveland Indians thumped the Yankees 9-4 with a five-run explosion in the 10th inning at New York.

In the National League, Brooklyn took over first place from Cincinnati by beating the Redlegs 6-3. New York Giants shaded Chicago Cubs 4-2 in 14 innings on Willie Mays' home run and Philadelphia Phillies defeated Milwaukee 5-2. Pittsburgh was rained out at St. Louis.

Bob Keegan scattered nine hits for his third straight success for the White Sox. He's won eight in a row over two seasons.

FOUND RANGE

The Indians found the range in the 10th against Whitey Ford, battering the Yankee relief pitcher for a triple, three singles and a walk good for five runs.

Sal Maglie, written off as a has-been in the late stages of the 1953 campaign, became the first pitcher in either league to win four games. To do it he had to pitch the longest game of his career.

Brooklyn and Cincinnati sprayed 24 hits over Cincinnati's Crosley Field, but the Dodgers used theirs to better advantage. Two of the 13 Brooklyn safeties were home runs by Duke Snider and Pee Wee Reese.

Hockey Teams Have Armistice

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Quebec Frontenacs and St. Catharines Tee-Pees observed an armistice in their ice warfare for the eastern Canada junior hockey championship with a communal dinner here Friday night.

Senator Gerald Martineau, honorary president of the Frontenacs who was one of the speakers at the dinner, suggested that the tail might be wagging the dog when it comes to arranging playoffs.

"We only pay the expenses and salaries," he said. "The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, which hasn't invested a cent, tells us when and where to play."

Phil Watson, coach of the Frontenacs, predicted that the team that wins the third game of the series in Toronto Sunday will win the Memorial Cup.

TeePees lead the best-of-seven eastern final 2-1.

Simcoe Will Play Without Gord Astles

SIMCOE (CP)—Simcoe Gunners, now in the midst of an Ontario Hockey Association senior B championship series with Oshawa Truckmen, learned Friday that defenceman Gord Astles will be out of play for the rest of the season.

He suffered a recurrence of an old shoulder separation in a game with Oshawa Thursday night. Coach Hank Blade is expected to move right winger George Etanuts into Astles' spot.

Oshawa leads the best-of-seven series 2-1 with one game.

PICK-OFF PLAY FAILS—Billy Goodman of the Boston Red Sox is called safe by umpire Joe Paparella as an attempted pick-off play by catcher Jim Hogan of the Cleveland Indians to Cleveland first baseman Al Rosen fails. The game, played at Boston, was won by Cleveland 6-3.

Ottawa Clips Buffalo In 9-5 Upset

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The International League is following the modern baseball trend and now putting the tape measure to home runs.

Home-in-one blows figured prominently in tightening the young race Friday, and their power was duly recorded in the matter of distance.

Second-baseman Tom Giordano of Ottawa put the wood to two homers which helped snap the league-leading Buffalo Bisons' five-game winning streak, 9-5, and the Athletics' losing streak of the same duration.

Giordano's home runs came in the second and fourth innings and were measured at 370 and 350 feet respectively. Joe Taylor added a 375-foot homer for Ottawa in the ninth and Buffalo's John Bucha knocked one 350 feet over the same fence in the second.

In the only other two games played, Toronto Maple Leafs turned back Havana 4-3 and Montreal edged Syracuse 2-1.

In the Toronto game, Clint Hartung of Havana, the former New York Giant, hit the day's biggest whopper, although it didn't do his mates much good. He poled an eighth-inning homer that sailed 400 feet.

At Montreal, righthander Ed Roebuck won a pitching duel with Syracuse's southpaw ace, Jack Spring, although each gave up only six hits.

Cycling Entrants Need More Money

MELBOURNE (AP)— Members of the cycling team chosen to represent Australia at the Vancouver Empire Games, may have to withdraw from the team. They were told Friday they will have to find £120 each towards their expenses.

"I will have to withdraw from the team," said Dick Ploog. "I earn only £6 a week and cannot possibly find the money."

All amateur sporting bodies have been told the Australian British Empire Games Association can guarantee only £400 of the £520 needed to send each "fully paid" member of the national team to Vancouver.

Remember When—

The longest game in the major leagues was the 26-inning battle between Brooklyn and Boston of the National League, 34 years ago today, which ended in a 1-1 tie as play was called on account of darkness. Leon Cadore of Brooklyn and Joseph Oeschger for Boston pitched the entire game, which took three hours and 50 minutes of play.

SLAUGHTER THE YANKEE REGULAR — After 13 seasons with the Cardinals, with three years out for military service, Enos Slaughter took his place as a regular in the Yankees outfield and batting order. The catcher was Sherman Lollar of the White Sox with Ed Runge calling balls and strikes.

President Moore Preacher At St. Andrew's

St. Andrew's United church celebrates its 121st anniversary on Sunday. The roots of St. Andrew's are firmly interwoven with the city and county of Peterborough. John Edmison one of five young men who crossed Rice lake in the month of May 1818 was a leading spirit in the formation of St. Andrew's church. His great grandson, Alex Edmison Q.C. of Queen's University will be the guest speaker at the evening service on Sunday.

Mr. Edmison is a writer and speaker on penology and criminology and is past president of the Canadian penal association. He is chairman of national advisory committee, Canadian citizen's forum radio program. He is flying from Newfoundland tonight in order to be present in St. Andrew's Sunday evening.

President A. B. B. Moore B.A., B.D., D.D., of Victoria University will be the morning preacher.

The soloist for the day is James Milligan, winner of the Top Award for the Singing Stars this year. Mr. Milligan has been in New York this week singing along with Lois Marshall and other soloists in Carnegie Hall. St. Andrew's considers itself very fortunate to be able to bring such an outstanding soloist as Mr. Milligan to Peterborough. The services are at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. The congregation of Trinity United is joining with St. Andrew's for the evening service. Social hour and refreshments following the evening service.

408-Pound Giant Denies Wheel Theft

MONTREAL (CP)—A 408-pound strong man denied Friday that he helped steal the wheels from an automobile by lifting the car off the ground while an accomplice pulled off the rims and tires.

Jean Paul Leblanc, 26-year-old giant from near Ile Bizard who is too big to fit in a single jail cell, pleaded not guilty to the theft charge when arraigned in court. He did plead guilty, however, to charges of speeding and having no car registration and was fined $100.

Martial Belanger, 22, of suburban Ville St. Laurent, the alleged accomplice in the theft, pleaded guilty and was remanded to May 7 for sentence.

Tax Provides Extra Grants For Hospitals

QUEBEC (CP) — Education and hospitals in Quebec province soon will receive the first fruits of the new provincial income tax in the form of $16,000,000 in grants.

Premier Duplessis announced Friday hospitals will benefit from $10,000,000 in increased grants to public charities while universities, classical colleges and other educational institutions will share $4,000,000.

Laval University here will get half of all the as-yet-announced grants for education. It will receive $1,000,000, through two $500,000 grants for the 1952-53 and 1953-54 school terms, and a straight $2,000,000 for its new school of medicine, to be built on the site of a university centre now under construction.

DETAILS LATER

Details of division of the other $3,000,000 among the universities and colleges throughout the province will be announced at a later date, Mr. Duplessis said.

The premier said the government contributions are being financed out of anticipated revenues from the 15-per-cent tax on personal income. The income tax act provides that money may be taken out of ordinary revenue when such returns, expected to net about $22,000,000, are completed next April.

The grants to hospitals — covering sanatoriums, convalescent homes and orphanages — will be in the form of increased daily payments toward hospital costs of poor patients. The increases will range from $54 to $60 monthly per patient.

Mr. Duplessis said the grants would bring the total of contributions to about $50,000,000 annually, compared with $8,770,000 in 1945.

U.S. Business Men Hope Economy Will Regain Lost Ground During May

CHICAGO (AP)—April threw a roadblock in the path of the recession. Business men are hoping that in May the economy will regain a little of the lost ground.

For many industries—like steel—April saw a slowing of the rate of decline which started about a year ago. For others—like autos—April brought a revival of business, as expected in the spring. A few—like textiles—found the going rougher and production and employment declining.

Merchants are counting on a fairly steady stream of consumer dollars during May. Despite the loss of overtime by most workers, shorter work weeks for many, and even unemployment for a sizable number, store sales on a national basis have held close to a year ago.

Consumers as a whole have been paying off their old debts faster than they've been taking on new ones. Interest rates in general are easing and May should see more idle money waiting for borrowers. The total of savings has risen despite the business dip. Merchants and manufacturers hope that means there's plenty of money to be spent—when consumers get around to tapping it.

BUILDING HOLDS UP

Building plans indicate May should be a good month. Home starts are running around the year-ago mark. Business men list their plant and equipment expansion plans as around last year's level. Yet contracts for heavy construction are lower than a year ago, indicating that labor-saving tools and machinery rather than new factories are getting the big play now.

And some of the giant companies with big plans for building are leaning toward plants for producing their own supplies, thus cutting off markets for their former suppliers. It could be as much a shift in the economy as a growth.

Army Masses Firepower In Joint RCAF Exercise

By DAVE STOCKAND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CAMP SHILO, Man. (CP)—A target area just a patch in Camp Shilo's 200 square miles was shelled and mortared, strafed and scorched Friday as the army and air force opened fire in "Exercise Prairie Blue Grass."

As the shells burst, a running commentary went out to the military men watching the fire-power demonstration from a grandstand perched on a rise of the prairies.

The 150 staff college visitors and officers from various Prairie command units were bundled in parkas against a cold wind and snow.

The army said the exercise differed in one major respect from a shooting war barrage: The batteries weren't as far apart as is advisable in an age of atomic weapons.

Shells screamed into the target area from three batteries of 25 pounders manned by the 1st Regiment of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery. These were followed by RCHA mortars.

LOW-LEVEL BOMBING

Twin-engined Mitchell medium bombers followed up with a para-frag raid—fragment bombs showered at low levels on troop concentrations.

Mustang fighters zipped salvo rockets into the wooden targets and blanketed them with napalm fire bombs. Sabre jets dropped in for the strafing runs while CF-100 jet pilots gave the visitors some aerobatics.

The program listed a "demonstration of the latest weapon of the RCA by Capt. R. J. Middleditch, Royal Canadian School of Artillery, and a detachment from the 1st regiment, RCHA."

A squad in scarlet uniform wheeled an 1885 field piece into firing position and touched it with a torch. A thundering explosion in the distance sent a mushroom cloud of smoke high into the air.

The trick lay in a hidden detonator and powder charge.

May Attempt To Shorten Army-McCarthy Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Karl Mundt (Rep. S.D.) said today that an attempt may soon be made to shorten the public inquiry into the dispute between Senator McCarthy and high military officials.

Mundt, chairman of the Senate investigations sub-committee during the televised inquiry, said the hour may shortly be at hand for efforts to narrow the issues that have been pitted before the senators in seven days of under-oath hearings without signs of let-up.

Army Secretary Stevens, who first took the witness stand opening day, April 22, was still there when the group recessed Friday for the week-end, although several others have testified for briefer interludes. Stevens is listed for another appearance Monday.

As the hearings closed Friday, Ray H. Jenkins, special sub-committee counsel, drew from Stevens an acknowledgment that when the army secretary was thinking of relieving Maj.-Gen. Kirke B. Lawton from command at Fort Monmouth, N.J., he so informed the Wisconsin Republican senator "to find out how Senator McCarthy felt about it."

INVESTIGATION TARGET

Fort Monmouth, a radar research centre, was then a target in McCarthy's hunt for alleged espionage.

Stevens, under stiff questioning, said that McCarthy wanted Lawton continued in command because the general was "co-operating fully" with McCarthy's investigation, and that in fact Lawton was left in command at Fort Monmouth and still is.

But the secretary said he was not "afraid" of a McCarthy reprisal if Lawton were removed, that he gave McCarthy the information on Lawton as part of his own policy of co-operating with the Senate probe, and that he decided to retain Lawton strictly "on the merits" of his case.

In Milwaukee, Wis., Friday night where he flew after the hearings recessed, McCarthy said Lawton will be called to testify as a witness for his side in the hearings.

FAVORITISM CHARGED

Stevens has charged McCarthy and his associated with seeking favored army treatment for Pte. G. David Schine, a former McCarthy committee non - salaried consultant. McCarthy has accused Stevens and his aides of attempting to stop his investigation of alleged Communists at Fort Monmouth.

Mundt said the inquiry group discussed in a closed session Friday the possibility that opposing counsel get together to narrow some of the issues in dispute.

Asked about the possibility of some compromise, McCarthy said before he left for week-end speaking engagements in Wisconsin that "offhand, I wouldn't know of any way it could be done." Army counsel were unavailable for comment.

TV NEWS TV

By Ken McCannan

We came across some figures in one of the TV trade journals the other day that surely are positive proof that television today is a MUST to millions upon millions of households in our country and the United States.

This startling bit of information is that TV sets actually OUTNUMBER telephones in many leading cities. The figures are tabulated for the U.S. only but it's safe to assume that Canada will not be too far behind. A few of the cities listed are Cleveland, Los Angeles, Baltimore and Boston.

If you think about it for a minute though it's not so startling. Mr. Average Citizen who normally has to consult the state of his pocketbook before venturing out on the town for entertainment now has the world's best shows coming right into his living room. And all for free after the initial price of his set.

If you're missing out on the wonderful things that are happening today on television then you're needlessly cheating yourself and your family of thousands of hours of pleasure that could easily be yours. Drop into our store and let us show you our large stock of 1954 models, every one of which will provide you with a clear, bright view of the best shows on the air. An easy payment plan is available if you wish to finance your purchase and we handle our own installations to assure you of the best in service. SEE US TODAY FOR THE BEST BUYS IN TV.

Toronto Market Continues Strongly During Week

By GEORGE LINTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Utilities, papers, banks, base metals, steels and aircrafts climbed in this week's stock market activity.

Toronto continued strongly from a bullish opening, Montreal sessions were generally strong with a few weak spots, and New York gained strength from a hesitant start.

Papers dominated the Toronto market, International Paper leading with a $3.25 gain. Powell River gained $2 and Abitibi $1.37½. Anglo-Newfoundland was an exception, dropping $1.12½.

Papers' leadership was contested Wednesday when utilities jumped on announcement of Brazilian Traction's long-awaited cash dividend. The company's stock added $1.37½.

Shawinigan jumped $5.50 on Thursday's announcement that the company developed a practical method of refining titanium.

Dominion Bank and Bank of Montreal were stronger, following Bank of Nova Scotia's $1.50 lead.

Several base metals showed individual strength with Quemont's Friday gain of $1 outstanding. Noranda added $2 on the week in a less spectacular but steady gain.

OILS, GOLDS MIXED

Western oils and golds were irregular all week. Some uraniums added pennies but the group was quiet. Weekly index comparisons showed industrials up 4.59 to 341.61, golds up .64 to 74.06, base metals up 1.23 to 149.65, and western oils up .06 at 98.79.

In New York, steels and aircrafts led a strong market. Railroads were steady with some midweek strength. Other groups were irregular.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks climbed $1.90 to $121.70 —highest since April 26, 1930.

Strong papers led Montreal higher in wide - range trading. Banks and utilities were up a little and other issues were irregular. The week's averages showed banks up .31 at 38.58; utilities up 2.7 at 105.4; industrials up 1.6 at 197.5; combined up 1.9 at 166.8; papers up 13.47 at 908.34; and golds off .69 at 57.41.

HOW TO BUILD A GOOD HOUSE WITHIN YOUR BUDGET WITH LESS BOTHER

The perfection of man's most comforting possession — his HOME — has been the lifelong search of generations of keen minds. "Know How" handed down, "Know How" got through practice, the constant addition of new ideas, combine to make the 1954 home beautiful, useable, comfortable — a joy to possess.

Since 1840 the P.L. has been growing up with the building trades, providing services, materials, gaining knowledge, passing on experience. Their job is to make your job easier. You relax — they do the hurrying and scurrying.

USE THESE P.L. SERVICES — THEY MEAN LESS BOTHER, GREATER VALUE

PLANNING SERVICE

It takes a heap o' plannin' to make a house a home, and the results of specialized research can be a big help. The P.L. house planning service has many informative books and pamphlets setting out not only house designs, but the characteristics and uses of hundreds of building products. A P.L. representative will spend hours going over your blueprint, listing material requirements, and then spend other hours sitting down with you discussing every phase of the building in detail. The plan, methods and materials are analyzed, weighed as to suitability and cost — accepted or rejected. P.L. can also direct you to responsible contractors. All of these things result in a home expressing personality, avoiding errors, forestalling later alterations, providing future expansion, avoiding unforeseen expenses. Your ideas and your budget control the final decisions.

DISPLAY SERVICE

In the showroom you will find a display of building materials used just as you would use them in your home. There's no guesswork as to what an article is going to look like. You can see it, feel it. A giant selector sample board shows you all the kinds of lumber and wood trim used in house construction. Along the walls are plywoods, knotty pine panelling, wallboards, wall tile, sample wall constructions. On the ceiling is dry wall construction. On the floor and arranged in special displays are all the floor tiles—asphalt, rubber, vinyl plastic, linoleum. Doors are arranged for easy comparison, swinging freely. Hardware, paint and everything that goes into the building of a house—is arranged in the large basement and on display islands on the main floor. Carpenter tools—power and hand—are a specialty.

Prices are clearly marked. You are greeted by a friendly staff who know their job.

The displays, all arranged under one roof, are on a par with any in Canada. You're always welcome, and you'll find your visits enjoyable and profitable.

Warehouse Service

Not many people believe in investing large sums of money in warehousing for customer convenience. But we do—and here you will find thousands of doors—piles of Canada cement—roofing by Johns-Manville—Building Products by Barrett's. Sheathing of Ten/Test, Gyproc, Insul-Board. Insulation of Fibreglass, Spintex Mineral Wool. Hardwood Flooring by Seaman-Kent and Knight's. Thousands of items by the best people in the business, all assembled and ready to save you delays.

BARGAIN ANNEX

Especially attractive to summer cottage builders is the Bargain Annex. Here you will find window frames, window sash, flower boxes, doors, asbestos siding, arborite and plywood cuttings and many items constantly being added from regular stock. These are quality materials of remnants, discontinued colours and designs that are marked plainly with the regular price, the Bargain Price, and the amount of your saving.

LUMBER SERVICE

Every grade of lumber is designed to meet certain requirements. Each piece has a function to perform. Herein lies the key to economical construction, and here is where P.L. can guide you to lower costs. At the P.L. yard on Monaghan Road are piled millions of feet of graded lumber. Lumber that has been properly graded after it has been DRIED and DRESSED. You can see it BEFORE it goes on the job. P.L. is familiar with building standards. They can advise you as to grades and dryness that will meet these regulations. Dry lumber has reached the maximum strength of the wood.

Green lumber is no bargain, no matter what the cost. Green lumber can cause plaster cracks, floors to settle, can transfer moisture to hardwood floors causing swelling and open joints—costly repairs. There's no gamble when P.L. lumber is supplied. Satisfaction is guaranteed.

DELIVERY SERVICE

To get what you want, where you want it, and when you want it, is the essence of the P.L. delivery service. Truck lots are arranged in advance with you. Small lots are delivered on a regular route twice daily and are got out just as rapidly as possible. Stock items within 24 hours. You can see that there are no expensive waits, no extra costs on small lot deliveries. The P.L. dispatcher and truck drivers are men of long experience, all working in the P.L. way for customer satisfaction.

MILL SERVICE

The wood working plant and dry kilns exist to give builders quality millwork, quickly, to personal specifications. Main stairs are measured out on the job, constructed to detail, and sent out ready for assembly. Various woods—Oak, Birch, Fir, Pine—all can be used to suit your taste. Trim and mouldings of kiln dried Basswood or Fir carefully selected are constantly being stock-piled for quick service. Windows not already in stock are manufactured of kiln dried Pine. Plywoods, Arborite, Masonite are cut to size. Cupboard doors, drawers, Lazy Susans, cutting boards, are measured on the job and made to size. Artistic frieze boards, shutters, screens—designed to your ideas and executed skilfully.

All these things, and many more, are the functions of the P.L. Wood Working Plant. This mill rounds out a complete one-stop service to the builder, a service that carries the load.

Modern Lighting Takes Up Where The Sun Leaves Off

With the advances which are constantly being made in indoor lighting, there is no longer any need for the colors in a home to dim and lose their glow at sundown or on drab days. Modern artificial illumination takes up where the sun leaves off and keeps color "alive". However, if the glow of light on color is to be fully appreciated, the colors must be clean and bright and the surfaces must have a reasonably good reflective power.

There are several important things to know about the relationship of color and light. One is that the velvety surface obtained with flat paint applied to walls and ceiling provides superior light diffusion. Too high a gloss produces glare rather than good light. Then, it is well to recognize the fact that certain colors have a higher light reflection than others. So that color can be employed as a definite visual aid, this factor must be considered in planning home decorating and lighting. The majority of side walls reflect from 50 to 60 per cent of the light reaching them. White and ivory give the highest light reflection, as much as 85 per cent and 75 per cent respectively. Pink, yellow, tan, gray and light blue come next with 55 per cent to 65 per cent, followed by light green and apricot with 55 per cent and 50 per cent respectively. Dark colors trail with only 5 per cent and 10 per cent.

SECONDARY NOVICES

Floors and rugs, along with furniture, are classifed as important secondary light sources and merit close attention. The light they reflect is in direct proportion to the lightness of their color.

Lighting as a decorative device used to be confined to the Christmas tree, but today it's accepted as an important part of interior decoration. While lamps and other types of auxiliary lighting come under the heading of decoration, decorative lighting may provide some of the general illumination, as well. One example is cornice lighting which sends an even flow of light over one or more walls, illuminating the room and pointing up the color scheme. Cornice or cove lighting is particularly effective in creating the illusion of additional window space in a room with poor window distribution. At the window itself, a fluorescent strip concealed behind a valance suggests daylight filtering through the draperies.

Another clever way of illuminating walls is to build frosted glass sections in the tops of low wall cabinets, thus allowing hidden light to escape upward through the frosted glass. This same principle may be utilized in a mantel, with the upward flood of light spotlighting a favorite painting. Books can double as decorative factors, if a light is hidden inside the bookcase. This trick is especially eye-catching when the inside of the bookcase is painted to match one of the secondary colors in the room. Wall cupboards or corner shelves respond well to this same treatment and provide for an effective display of art treasures, a cup collection or some distinctive glassware.

Light and color, in the form of paint, can bring new beauty to your home—not only for the holidays, but for every day in the year.

HOUSE No. 64-8—Generous use of glass area provides the owner of this home with a more than usual bright interior—and a view, particularly to the rear which overlooks Lake Ontario, second to none. Notice how open planning has added unusual flexibility to the plan. Although no room is really large, there is no feeling of "boxiness", so common in many homes which contain under 10,000 cubic feet, as this one does. A basement is not required in this modern-styled home, since laundry, heating and storage facilities are located on the first floor. House is planned for addition of carport and side porch at a later date. Contains 9,360 cubic feet without carport. Blueprints available at $8.50 set—material lists at $1.25, from Home Building In Canada, 2842 Bloor St. W., Toronto.

Suggests Joint Air Defence Pact Quickly

NEW YORK (AP) — Representative W. Sterling Cole (Rep. N.Y.) asserting the Russians soon could launch a "saturday attack against our nation," called Thursday for an American-Canadian air defence pact to hasten the erection of outflung defences.

Cole, chairman of the joint congressional atomic energy committee, said American scientists "have devised radical new weapons and electronic devices," including atomic warheads, which promise "hitherto unattainable degrees of success" in intercepting enemy planes.

But, he added in a speech prepared for a Colgate University banquet that adequate defence depends upon correlation of weapons and sufficient warning time.

INTERDEPENDENT DEFENCE

Cole said Canada's defence is interdependent with that of the United States and he proposed:

"That our government, as speedily as possible, enter into a mutual continental defence pact with Canada, under the authority of the United Nations, comparable in purpose, scope and organization with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

He said this should create a North American continental defence organization, under a supreme commander, with American and Canadian land, sea and air forces assigned to it.

Conceding that such a North American defence organization would be "radical and unprecedented," Cole said it would be no more so "than the threat we now face from the Soviet Union."

Gardening Questions

Q—What are the cultural requirements for Shasta daisies?

A—They should be planted in full sun, in a well-drained, friable and moderately rich soil. Clumps should be divided every third year and three of the better outside divisions reset about one foot apart, discarding the old center.

Q—Which floribunda roses are best for a flowering hedge and for foundation planting?

A—For a four-foot-tall hedge use Anna Foulsen. For a lower hedge choose from Vogue, Fashion, Lillibet, Ma Perkins World's Fair, Betty Prior, and/or Summer Snow.

Q—I would like to know what is the value of chicken manure in garden soil.

A—Rich in nitrogen, phosphorous, it is recognized as being the richest of all farm manures.

Q—We are planning a kitchen-dooryard herb garden. Please suggest the basic herbs.

A—Good background herbs are: dill, fennel, angelica, borage, and hollyhocks. Ground covers: creeping thyme, chamomille, violets and sweet woodruff. Partial shade: Chervil, lemon balm, parsley, sweet cicily, and penny royal. Low hedges: Rue, santolina, hyssop, and rosemary.

Q—What is the difference between a standard and a patented rose?

A—A standard rose either dates back many years, before patents were issued, or does not conform to patent restrictions. A patented rose is one which the U. S. Patent Office has licensed to its originator for a period of 17 years.

The originator receives royalties from all who grow the rose for reseale or in any way commercially propagate the plant. This restriction does not apply to the home gardener who enjoys the fun of making rose cuttings.

Discuss Home For Ministers

KITCHENER (CP) — Preliminary plans for a home for retired United Church ministers and their wives were outlined Friday at the sixth annual meeting of Hamilton conference of the woman's association.

Dr. H. G. Tuttle, secretary of department of pensions of the United Church of Canada, said a property is available in Beamsville, consisting of 19 acres and a home.

The plans call for a central lodge containing individual rooms and possibly some small apartments, a common dining room, living room, recreation room and chapel.

Money now is on hand to build 12 cottages which would be occupied by retired ministers and their wives.

One hundred women registered representing the presbyteries of Brantford, Bruce, Guelph, Haldimand-Norfolk, Halton, Hamilton, Niagara and Sudbury.

RCMP Investigating Ipperwash Losses

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP is investigating discrepancies in accounts at the army's Camp Ipperwash in Ontario's Lambton county, Associate Defence Minister Campney said Friday.

Mr. Campney indicated in the Commons there have been some thefts but he said investigations to date indicate losses are "substantially less" than $15,000 mentioned in some press reports.

Mr. Campney said the defence department does not intend to institute an independent investigation apart from that being conducted by the RCMP.

Not The Quantity

Resentments crowd the lives of all alcoholics. When they can't get what they want when they want it, it is usually a quick retreat to the bottle. Confusion and chaos are everywhere. But, the trouble is not so much the contents of the bottle as it is within themselves. The bottle provides added fuel for the conflicts already raging within.

The alcoholic is inclined to be a dreamer and a perfectionist. He has lofty ambitions, but does little or nothing to realize them. He feels entitled to all he surveys and wants. Failure is something he cannot endure, and he switches from neverending worry while sober to a drinking attitude of "to hell with it!"

WHEN OFFERS NO RELIEF

The victim reaches his low ebb when his condition becomes so bad that drinking itself offers no relief to his miserable existence. Though bankrupt in practically every respect, he is not beyond salvage, even if one may rightly wonder if there is anything worthwhile left to salvage.

If we can successfully interrupt a drinker's obvious progress toward disordered drinking and living, we will spare him or her untold misery, to say nothing of the misery of countless others. But, it must be done early and intelligently. Up to a certain point on the alcoholic route, one's undamaged will power can be effectively used to stop disordered drinking. But, for the alcoholic, will power alone isn't enough to fight compulsions.

Pope Issues Encyclical On Celibacy

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Pius, in his first encyclical to Roman Catholic bishops in many months, points out what he describes as "errors" propagated in recent years on the subject of priestly celibacy and religious chastity.

The encyclical, made public today, is dated March 25, feast of the Annunciation of the Virgin Mary.

Its title is "Holy Virginity."

An official summary issued by the Vatican press office said virginity is understood in its traditional sense, and means not only physical integrity in sexual matters but "also and especially" the state of chastity of religious men and women, secular priests and persons consecrated to works of charity in the world.

The Pope warned that the Roman Catholic church's doctrine is "sometimes forgotten or even altered." He expressed disapproval of the importance which some give to the role of sexual life in "human equilibrium."

CHASTITY PRAISED

The Pope said in his opening words:

"Sacred virginity and perfect chastity, consecrated to the service of God, certainly is for the church one of the most precious treasures that its Author has left to it as a heredity."

The number of faithful who thus have been consecrated to God from the beginning of the church to present day is incalculabe, he added

The Pope said the nobility of its motives should inspire preference for the state of virginity to that of marriage.

However, he said, one should not abstain from marriage for reasons of self-interest, nor from fear of assuming its responsibilities, nor because of false pride in the integrity of the body, but in order to consecrate one's self more freely and fully to the service of God and neighbor.

The Pope's encyclical praised the good accomplished by married people in the field of the apostolate. But, he said, the majority of the great works of the church have been founded and directed by men and women of religious orders.

Such a prodigious activity, he said, would be rendered practically impossible by solicitude for a home and the cares of a family.

The Pope warned against what he described as a new concept for the training of young clergy—that of exposing them to temptations.

Think Immigrants Need More Data About Canada

QUEBEC (CP)—Three European tradesmen, who sailed for home Thursday night after a fruitless hunt for suitable jobs in their respective lines, think prospective immigrants should be better informed of Canada.

[illegible]keu of Germany, an elec[illegible] Sipke Venema of Holland, a gardener, and an unidentified tailor from The Netherlands said their stay in Canada consisted mainly of long waiting in employment and immigration offices.

Croinkeu said he thought of returning home when he found even Canadians in his line unemployed. In Canada more than two years, he said he held jobs in Montreal and Windsor for short periods until laid off.

SEARCHED MONTHS

Venema said he searched for 11 months in Ontario and British Columbia for an opening as a gardener and finally worked loading trucks in Sarnia.

All agreed that because of Canada's vastness Europeans interested in farming would do well to come here.

The latter view was backed up by a Dutch couple who successfully ran their own dairy farms near Prescott, Ont., for two years before selling out and returning to Holland to help a relative in business.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter van Gerwen said they hope to return to eastern Ontario some day.

Close Consulate

GIBRALTAR (Reuters) — The Spanish consulate here was closed Friday to "avoid discourtesy" to Queen Elizabeth when she visits Gibraltar May 10. Spain contends Gibraltar is Spanish territory.

Casey Upsets South Korea

SEOUL (AP)—South Korea Friday sharply criticized an Australian suggestion at Geneva that serious consideration be given a Communist proposal for unifying Korea.

An official government spokesman, Dr. Karl Hong Ki, said the suggestion of Richard Casey, Australian external affairs minister, that separate elections be held in North and South Korea, if necessary, is "especially alarming."

"Also dangerous is Mr. Casey's provision that the Korean question must be solved peacefully," Karl added.

The government spokesman said South Korea always has maintained that a peaceful solution is preferable but this does not mean "we can accept a solution at any price."

Karl reiterated the South Korean stand that unification can be achieved only by elections in North Korea to fill 100 national assembly seats. South Korea elects 203 national assemblymen.

Campaign To Win Back Ducks Beginning To Pay Off

By JACK ENEFER

EDMONTON (CP) — A 16-year campaign by Ducks Unlimited to restore the balance of nature at Ministik lake sanctuary, 33 miles east of Edmonton is starting to pay off.

Warden Francis Williams reports that recent warm weather has seen masses of ducks land at the 27,000-acre sanctuary on their flight north to summer feeding grounds.

Time was when there weren't many ducks in the area and there was a danger they would grow fewer each year.

BEAVER SLAUGHTER

The story goes back to the 1870s when trappers moved into the district in search of beaver. It proved a rich hunting-ground and soon there were no beaver left.

Old beaver dams crumbled. Ponds and sloughs, where the dams had held back the water, dried up. Lake levels dropped as much as 10 feet.

Waterfowl continued to use the district en route north but their numbers reduced in ratio to the drying-up of the area.

In 1925 the federal government declared the Ministik lake district a federal sanctuary. In 1938, Ducks Unlimited, furthering its cause of wildlife conservation, decided to do something about the situation. A full-time warden was appointed and conditions began to improve.

Four years ago, Ducks Unlimited constructed 11 dams at strategic points, eight of them where, many years before, the original beaver-built dams were located. The dams created a pond and stream system favorable to the re-establishment of the animals.

Rennie Harley, western manager of Ducks Unlimited, requested beaver from the Alberta game branch. Eight adult beaver were released in the creeks and streams.

BUSY WORKERS

Today, at least three pairs of beaver are known to be fully established. One pair has raised the water level by 18 inches in one of the ponds created by a dam. Another pair has created a private pond on the same creek by damming further upstream.

Mr. Harley says the latter pond has proved attractive to ducks. This year, several dozen teal, shovellers and gadwall have been seen in the 10-acre plot.

Ducks Unlimited will rely on natural propagation to gradually re-stock the area.

Warden Williams says there are many other suitable locations for dams on the two creeks connected to the Ducks Unlimited dams. The beaver could, if not distributed, double the amount of impounded water in the area in a comparatively short time.

The rising water table, he adds, could affect the whole project and considerably improve it as a duck-breeding area.

Lecturer Honored By University

COLDSPRINGS (ENS)—At a recent meeting, the Senate of the University of Toronto gave reading to a Statute instituting the Hugh Alexander Hoskin award in the Faculty of Dentistry at the University of Toronto.

Since retirement, Dr. Hoskin has been living at Coldsprings.

This award, which has been made possible through the generous donations of Dr. Hoskin's former students and faculty colleagues, will be made annually to the student in the final year, who shows greatest proficiency in the field of dental diagnosis.

The award will be valued at $100, and will be made in perpetuity. The generous nature of the contributions have made such a course possible without enroaching upon the principle sum.

This spontaneous and enthusiastic recognition of the contributions that Dr. Hoskin made to his profession and University, is a fitting tribute to his fine personal qualities and professional integrity.

At the time of his retirement he also received a gift from his faculty confreres in the form of a walnut desk plaque, upon which were mounted the keys to the offices where he had served for more than thirty years. The plaque, bore an engraved plate bearing the inscription, "These keys, which symbolize many years of faithful and loyal service, were presented to Dr. Hugh Alexander Hoskin upon his retirement from the Faculty of Dentistry, June 30, 1951."

The plaque was accompanied by an illuminated address, tashtefully bound in Morocco leather in the faculty, colors, and bearing the signatures of all his faculty confreres.

Says Eastern Farmers Just Poor Cousins

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ontario farmer Friday night in the Commons described eastern farmers as poor cousins of western producers.

L. Elston Cardiff (PC—Huron) said: "We in the East are not getting as much consideration as farmers in the West. We do not make as much money and we work harder for it."

Agriculture Minister Gardiner: "That is why more income tax is paid by western farmers."

Mr. Cardiff said few farmers in the East made enough money to pay income tax. Despite the low incomes, tax collectors were making an effort to increase collections.

Plaque For Peron

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Juan D. Peron's May Day present from the politically powerful General Labor Confederation will be a plaque made of gold and platinum and encrusted with precious stones.

Predicts UN To Disintegrate

OTTAWA (CP) — John Blackmore (SC — Lethbridge) Friday forecast the early disintegration of the United Nations.

He made the prediction in the Commons as he urged Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States to work together to increase production of goods and services.

Mr. Blackmore also said that enemy bombers would have no trouble blowing up stored grain at the Lakehead and on the Prairies.

He urged that all non-perishable foods be stored on farms as a security measure.

There was too much danger in the world to have grain stored at places such as Fort William. A lucky bomb could destroy a season's supplies.

The grain elevators at the Lakehead were white and could be located easily by hostile aircraft and it was just as easy to detect grain elevators on the Prairies.

CDNA Members Plan Tour Hydro Plant

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Daily Newspapers Association members will tour the Ontario hydro electric power commission's huge new Sir Adam Beck-Niagara generating station No. 2 today.

The association, now holding its annual meeting here, will lunch in one of the Niagara construction camp cafeterias before starting the tour.

The plant will be opened officially Aug. 30 by the Duchess of Kent.

Earl's Twin Sons Heading For Canada

LIVERPOOL, England (CP)—The twin sons of the Earl of Moray, Charles and James Stuart, sailed Friday for Canada to make their living in "the country most like Scotland."

The 21-year-old identical twins, descended from Scottish kings, said they probably will settle in British Columbia and take degrees at the university of British Columbia, Vancouver.

The Earl of Moray, 19th since the title was created in 1561, has been a farmer in Bechuanaland, Africa, since 1923.

Patching Cracks In Concrete, Masonry

By MR. FIX (NEA)

Concrete and masonry exposed to seasonal temperature changes are likely to be the worse for weather wear. Cracking and crumbling are common problems. Stains often appear. So—don't put off masonry maintenance another year. Do it this spring.

Cracks are best patched by first enlarging them. Then under-cut (make cracks wider at the bottom than on the surface) with hammer and cold chisel. Brush out dirt and concrete "crumbs" with a stiff whisk broom or wire brush.

Moisten the crack and surface in its immediate area with water. If the crack is large, brush a thin coating of grout (Portland cement and water mixed to a creamy consistency) over sides and bottom of crack. Follow this with patching mortar made of one part cement, three parts sand and water to make a stiff paste.

Trowel patching cement into crack, building it up slightly higher than surface. After allowing patch to set for a few hours, tamp it level with surface.

Much the same procedure is followed in repairing crumbling concrete. Crumbling mortar in masonry work calls for tuck pointing which you can easily do yourself if the damage isn't too extensive. Frequently, defects in masonry are not noticeable on a casual check, but are uncovered on closer examination.

Probe mortar joints with a cold chisel, chipping out loose mortar, then use a wire brush. Where a brick is loose, chip out surrounding mortar until brick comes out. Remove old mortar, wet brick thoroughly, coat it with mortar and press it back into its niche.

When all joints have been scraped and cleaned, wet down masonry with water from garden hose, and trowel 3-1 mortar mixture into joints. Finish joints by tooling with a short length of half-inch pipe.

Pay particular attention to chimneys and chimney caps. Water can leak into attics through cracks in chimney caps and brickwork.

To clean light smoke and soot stains from chimneys and other masonry, scrub the discolored areas with a solution made of one-half pound of trisodium phosphate in a gallon of water. Rinse heavily, using a garden hose. This treatment will improve even heavily stained areas.

Often masonry becomes coated with a white, powdery substance called efflorescence. The stain can be removed with a solution of one part hydrochloric acid added to 10 parts of water, scrubbed over surface with fiber brush. Wear rubber gloves and goggles. Don't use solution in metal container. Again, rinse the surface heavily, or acid will attack mortar joints.

To remove fresh paint stains from brick or concrete, use commercial paint remover. When paint is softened, scrape it up with putty knife, then wire brush the area. Wash with turpentine or water. Older paint stains may not succumb to this treatment, and if not, wire brush, scraper and elbow grease are called for.

In any case, it pays to attack cracks and stains in and on masonry when they first appear — to keep them from spreading and to simplify repair or removal.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q—Our copper window screens are staining the side of the house. What is the solution?—M. B.

A—Remove edge-molding from screens and brush them. Apply a coating of spar varnish to both sides.

TUCK POINTING OF MASONRY and patching of cracks in concrete each year will save you needless expense in the long run.

RECEIVES L.TH.

The Rev. L. R. Pocock, rector of Cavan parish, was one of 12 Church of England clergy to receive his licentiate in theology (L.Th.) at the annual convention this week in Wycliffe College, Toronto. Mr. Pocock came to the Cavan parish last May.

DISTRICT MANAGER

Leslie Reichardt, formerly supervisor of the Great-West Life Assurance Co., has been named Peterborough district manager. Mr. Reichardt joined the Company as an agent in the Peterborough branch in 1948, and was appointed supervisor in 1951. In his new post, Mr. Reichardt will be associated with A. J. Marling, CLU, of Kingston, manager for southeastern Ontario.

Manufacturers Revive Association

A Peterborough branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was revived at a meeting of representatives of 12 leading industries in the city at the Kawartha club on Thursday.

The association, which has not been active for the last five years, re-elected James E. Girven president; Herb Cranford, vice-president; and James Fraser, secretary.

The association decided to send a delegation to the 35th convention of of the Canadian association May 5.

The Peterborough branch will meet monthly to discuss problems and pass on information of interest. With an active association in the city again, Peterborough manufacturers will have a voice once more in the dominion organization and will be able to receive help and ideas from the parent body.

Another reason for the association being revived in the city is that it will give manufacturers a point of contact with the citizens of Peterborough through which information, suggestions and other matters of common interest can be exchanged.

Tenders Called To Start Reformatory

The Ontario department of public works has called for tenders for construction of the new reformatory for hard-to-manage prisoners in Millbrook.

The building, with a capacity of 250 prisoners, will cost an estimated $2,500,000, Major John Foote, VC, Minister of Reform Institutions, told the Millbrook Chamber of Commerce on March 26.

The minister said at that time that plans for locating the reformatory in Millbrook had been discussed for two years since the riots of August, 1952, in the Guelph reformatory had shown the need for an institution for less tractable prisoners.

The new reformatory will be operated on a maximum security risk basis, Mr. Foote said. Although some occupational activities will be developed among the prisoners, the entire 50 acres of ground will be walled in to provide the greatest possible security for district residents.

The public works department has called for separate tenders on: 1, construction; 2, plumbing, drainage and water supply; 3, heating, ventilating and refrigeration; and 4, electrical work.

A bid bond, made payable to the provincial treasurer must accompany each tender. The amount of the bond is $100,000 for construction tenders; $20,000 for plumbing, drainage and water supply; and $25,000 for heating, ventilating and refrigeration and for electrical work.

A deposit will be required for each set of tender documents taken out. The amount of the deposit is $50 for the construction tender documents and $30 in each of the other three cases. This amount will be refunded if the documents are returned in good condition.

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

Recreation Least Expensive In Cities Like Peterborough

The per capita cost of recreation in 150 Ontario communities is $1.09. Least expensive recreation in proportion is found in cities the size of Peterborough, where per capita costs are 87 cents. Villages from 500 to 2,000, however, with a more direct stake in community recreation have recreation programs costing an average of $2.11 a head.

These statistics were brought out by D. A. Garvie, Niagara representative of the department of education's community programs branch at a symposium at the ninth Ontario Recreation Association conference Friday. Although he warned that his speech would be "hopelessly dry" delegates were more interested in his than in most of the others.

The 150 municipalities chosen in Mr. Garvie's survey themselves contributed 78 cents of each $1.09.

Donations averaged eight cents, fees and admissions 14 cents and provincial grants nine cents.

On the debit side of each $1.09, salaries and maintenance each take 31 cents, program expenses average 38 cents while nine cents is put down to sundries.

Translating these ratios into cash, Mr. Garvie pointed out that more than $3,000,000 is spent annually on recreation in Ontario. Thus the nine cents for "sundries" works out to better than $167,000 while municipal grants amount to about $2,000,000.

Recreation is subdivided into social, physical, intellectual and artistic pursuits, William Pillsworth, assistant recreation director in London, Ont. told the symposium. These activities are further classified according to six age groups—pre-school, children, adolescents, young adults, adults and older people.

On this basis, "what we have does not compare too well with what we can do," said Mr. Pillsworth. Adult programs are generally "good" but organization in other age groups ranges from "fair" to "very poor." He felt that recreation at the pre-school and old-folk levels was particularly inadequate.

IMMIGRANTS

After Mr. Pillsworth's account, the moderator of the symposium, K. L. Young, acting director of the community programs branch, suggested that immigration had had and will have a significant effect on recreation programming. He suggested that new Canadians had sometimes been overlooked and said these must receive "some consideration."

One of the most difficult chores of the afternoon was given to

GET PITTED WINDSHIELD

The rash of mysterious windshield pittings (cracks, breaks, pock-marks, or what-have-you) that has kept the country in a tizzy these last few weeks, claimed another Peterborough victim Friday night, Mr. and Mrs. Sandford Gilmour of 80 Maple St. were driving east along King St., between George and Aylmer Sts., when "bang"! something struck the outside of the windshield in front of Mr. Gilmour. A pock-mark formed in the glass with lines radiating from the pock-mark, indicating a break. At first the Gilmours thought it was a young brave firing a B-B gun, but there was nobody about; the street was deserted. Police thought it was a stone, but the road there is paved. Chalk up another one to the mystery missiles.

Would Retain Natural Beauty Spots

Protest Industry On River

Probably the strongest protest registered against the proposed zoning plan so far concerns heavy industrial allocations stipulated on the plan along the Otonabee river north of Parkhill Rd., on the east side, a small section on the north-west side and between London St. and the CPR bridge on the west side.

Although much of the latter area already has been developed, the general opinion of the groups and individuals protesting is that any further industrial development should be halted. Mrs. John A. Nornabell, representing the Otonabee Valley conservation committee, appealed to planning consultant Gordon Culham Friday at the third public meeting at city hall, on the grounds that these areas, particularly sections above Parkhill Rd., were two of the natural beauty spots of the city, and should be retained as such.

PARK LANDS

It was further implied that these areas be developed as park lands, with possibly some R1 residential areas. "Should this area be developed further industrially, it will be a backward step affecting this this for all time," said Mrs. Nornabell. Other complaints supporting this protest included the question of water pollution which would "undoubtedly" stem from the potential industries.

Mr. Culham suggested that much of the land in question, in many respects, was very suitable for industrial development. A large portion of it is already owned by industry and is thereby not under the control of the proposed zoning bylaw. Railway lines have been laid throughout these stretches at a great deal of expense to the railway and the companies involved. He said that the planning board must fairly view both sides of the problem and consider the rights of the property owner and the future development of the city.

"A railway cannot operate in a sterile land. It must be able to pick up and export produce, and to zone these areas out would be to cut the arteries a city lives by. It is too bad that here, as well as many other cities, such development has located around rivers and natural beauty spots, but these things are difficult to solve."

On the question of pollution, Mr. Culham said this was a problem for city council, not the planning board, but the block to better sewerage disposal was money and was something to be resolved only through time. It was explained that no action could be undertaken immediately, but that further investigation would resume. He asked that delegates from the various protesting groups share in the investigation and possibly devise some solution.

Actually, these public meetings are not designed to accommodate immediate amending of the plan, but merely to hear individual complaints, assess their validity, and from them determine the best restrictions to accommodate the majority.

LIMITING BOARDERS

Another protest initiated by Cyril O'Donnell, representing a number of landowners located in the area bounded by Parkhill Rd., Benson, Bennett and Aylmer Sts., presently allocated as an R1 residential section, was the limitation on the number of boarders, landlords in this area could accept. Mr. O'Donnell said a number of people depended for a large amount of their income on boarding students from the Peterborough Teachers' College, and under the present zoning, they were limited to two boarders.

Mr. Culham replied that the planning board had zoned this area R1 because of a former bylaw initiated by the residents in the area from south of O'Carrol Ave. to Parkhill road, to this effect. He said that the planning board had no opposition to classifying the area as an R2 district, which allows two family dwellings, or one family and a maximum of four boarders, if the major opinion is so inclined.

"The R1 district is the most difficult zone to control," said Mr. Culham, and advised Mr. O'Donnel to gather a consensus of opinion and present it before the board.

A few queries as to the limit of frontage required to operate a boarding house or apartment were discussed. Although individual cases, wherein long established homes built on lots with less than 40 feet of frontage, whose owners wish to convert into apartment buildings, may be heard and

6 Men Hurt As Cars Hit Head-On

Early Morning Crash At City Intersection Sends 2 to Hospital

Six men were injured, two hospitalized, in a head-on collision which occurred at Parkhill Rd. and Reid St. about 2 a.m. today. The front ends of both cars were extensively damaged.

Leonard Beach, 26, of Uxbridge, was driver of the car proceeding south on Reid St. One of the passengers, Norman Beach, 28, RR 7, Peterborough, suffered head injuries and lacerations to the face, hands and legs. He was taken to the Civic Hospital, and his condition today was described as being "only fair."

Three other passengers in the car were Melbourne Wilson, 25, of 768 Chamberlain St., Barton Woods, 27, of 368 Chamberlain St. and Donald McAdam, 26, of 227 Sherbrooke St. These men, together with the driver, suffered only minor injuries and did not require hospital treatment.

Driver, and lone occupant of the other car was John Higgins, 24, Chemong Park, who was driving east along Parkhill Rd. He suffered lacerations to the forehead, with neck and leg injuries. He was also admitted to the Civic Hospital and today his condition was "only fair."

Sergeant Reg. McMillan and constable Edward Niziol investigated at the scene of the accident.

School Heating Bill May Hit $31,967

Bills for coal and oil to heat 18 board of education buildings will probably come to $31,967 this year.

The board's property committee considered tenders from the fuel companies Thursday night and decided where they will buy their fuel.

H. B. Taylor received the contract for 533 tons of steam coal at a price of $14 a ton; also 280 tons of screenings at $10 a ton.

J. E. A. Fitzgerald received the contract for 33,500 gallons of No. 5 fuel oil at 14.2 cents a gallon.

Canadian oil received the contract for 22,100 gallons of domestic oil at 16.0 cents a gallon.

Altogether in 1954 the school system expects to consume 1,428 tons of coal and 55,600 gallons of fuel oil.

PROPAGANDA AT CIRCUS—A barrage of Communist propaganda colors the views about Western countries held by citizens of the Soviet Union. At this circus in Samarkand, Soviet Central Asia, the barker pulled in the crowd shouting "The show's going to start in three minutes, comrades." But the three minutes dragged out to half an hour. A middle-aged blonde lectured: "Our party provides entertainment like the circus, as well as giving men and women equal rights to work, education, medical care and culture." (CP Photo)

Finds Russians Feel Sorry For People Of Canada

Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer, has just returned to Canada after five months in the Soviet Union. In this story, one of a series, he tells what Russians think of Canada. All they know about this country is the slanted picture published in the controlled press.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Russians are sorry for Canadians.

They say we are exploited by our government and "the monopolists." They say their system is superior because it has abolished man's ability to get rich by the fruits of someone else's labor.

A few concede our system enables working men to live fuller lives than Russians.

CONVINCED OF FUTURE

"But 20 years from now," said one woman with whom I used to have long conversations, "our Soviet system will have left your behind.

"We are content to get on with future."

Russians I met in railway stations, on trains, in restaurants, were far more interested in the comforts of our life than in our politics.

What the Russian regime thinks, as stated by its officials and the controlled Communist press, is less clear-cut. On one hand are repeated professions of friendship for the Canadian people. On the other are expressions of astonishment, verging on annoyance, that our government should participate —"contrary to the will of the Canadian people"—in American "aggressive preparations aimed at the Soviet Union."

"We always draw a distinction between the people and the ruling circles," one official said.

OFFICIAL LINE

Soviet newspapers carry only occasional articles about Canada. The line at present is that Canada is being sold down the river to the United States and is really an economic vassal of America. The Canadian Tribune, Toronto Communist newspaper, is often quoted.

As I left Moscow, Izvestia, the Red army newspaper, printed a long story by Simeon Shcherbatykh, former Tass (Russian news agency) correspondent in Ottawa who since his return to Moscow has specialized in misrepresenting Canada to his Soviet readers. He said the U.S. is "transforming Canada into a springboard for aggression against the Soviet Union and the countries of people's democracy at an increased tempo."

Soviet newspapers insist the "low standard of living" of many Canadians is due to high taxes needed for the arms race.

FAMILIAR THEME

The working class in Canada is pictured as living in poverty while a few rich men who exploit the workers live in luxury. This, for instance, is part of a long description of life in Montreal published in Trud, the Russian trade-union paper:

"On the slopes of the mountain are aristocratic quarters. Luxurious private residences are buried in the dense verdure of gardens. Comfortable cars of the latest type are at the gates. The owners enjoy all the benefits of life.

"Closer to the port and in the suburbs the picture is completely different. Squalid little houses huddle close against one another. In the dark and narrow streets there are puddles which never dry.

"A new brick building stands there, but how strange the vivid color of the bricks looks! To conceal cracks in the walls, the landlord pastes them over with roofing paper with tiles drawn on it. Inside the building this disguise alters nothing. . . .

"If a person does not know, or speaks bad English, he is doomed to low-paid physical labor."

DISTORTED VIEW

Most students I met know where Canada is, but their idea of its status is conditioned by the party line.

"The Dominion of Canada—that means you are a British colony," they say.

Or:

"Canada is a country being exploited by America and exposed to American culture."

"Canada is a NATO country and joining with America in building bases around the Soviet Union for aggression in a new war."

They cannot understand that a free people without aggressive intentions would be in NATO or the European Defence Community. Any suggestion the USSR might have been even in part responsible for their development is stupefying to them.

On a train trip in Soviet central Asia, I met a lieutenant in the Red army, a university graduate. We talked about Canada and Russia. He said life in Canada sounded good.

"We would have by now all that you describe if there had been no war. And now you want to have another one. Or do the people of Canada and the United States want war?"

"Of course not," I said.

"Then it's just your leaders?"

"They don't either."

"Then why are you building bases around the Soviet Union? And what about Korea? Why did the Americans attack there?"

"LEADERS KNOW BEST"

Later he said:

"Another war would be terrible. There is no need for another war. Nobody wants it. Would Canada use the atom bomb? Our newspapers tell us Canada is an important country in atomic research."

I said Canada is not making atomic weapons; that Canadian research is entirely peaceful.

"Why don't our newspapers tell us that?" he mused. Finally he ended our conversation.

"There must be an answer somewhere," he said. "But our leaders must know best. We Russians are just little people after all. Only the Kremlin knows."

SORRY FOR CANADIANS—Bill Boss of The Canadian Press, who spent five months in the Soviet Union, says Russians are sorry for Canadians. They say we are exploited by our government and by monopolists. Some concede that working men have fuller lives in Canada, as this photo Boss took on a station platform in Soviet Central Asia seems to prove. One reason for the Russians' belief in their own system of government is that their knowledge of other countries comes through controlled press and radio which carry only what the Communist regime wants the people to know. Diplomats In Moscow Live In Fishbowl; Life Moves In Narrow Circle

Bill Boss, Canadian Press Staff Writer just back from five months in the Soviet Union, speaks Russian. During his assignment it was an advantage that most diplmoats in Moscow lack. This story, last of a series, describes the narrow life the diplomatic corps—especially Westerners—must lead there.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Diplomats in Moscow live in a fishbowl. They have nobody else to talk to, so they see too much of one another, and pick too much from one another's brains.

What goes into the brains is only what the Soviet government thinks they and 210,000,000 Soviet citizens should know about what goes on. And that's not much.

Diplomatic activity in Moscow is like solving "whodunits." First, second and third secretaries, mysterious people with diplomatic status called "archivists" and all varieties of attaches try to read between the lines of translation from the Soviet press—because most of them neither read nor speak Russian.

CANADIANS KNOW LANGUAGE

Canadian embassy heads, however, have had a language advantage over most of their diplomatic colleagues. L. Dana Wilgress, first ambassador; John B.C. Watkins, the present one; and Robert Ford, charge d'affaires until March, all speak fluent Russian.

Wilgress picked up Russian during First World War service in Siberia and subsequently married a Russian wife. The other two mastered it through study.

Because diplomats can't drop in on an official who can give them the hard facts, as they do in other countries, most speculate among themselves.

A typical conversation:

"Pravda says Popov, the party's second secretary at Omsk, has been relieved."

"Yes, interesting, isn't it? And third secretary Sherbokov has replaced him. Doesn't say where Popov's gone. Is he on ice?"

"Don't know. Is Sherbokov a Ukrainian, do you know? Seems to me Kustshev's been pulling a fast one on the party lately, getting a lot of old pals from the Ukraine into party positions."

Fitting minor personalities into the big jig-saw is fascinating parlor piffle, but it doesn't help the diplomats convey the big picture to their governments. It's not their fault. The Russians don't make it possible.

The real job on Moscow is done by a very few experts at a few embassies. One important Western ambassador told me frankly he doubted the return justified the expense of running the embassy.

Socially the glamor of the Bolshoi, the splendor of the opera and ballet, are poor compensation for the inhumanity of living in a small colony of people, with not much in common, in the unfriendly atmosphere of Moscow.

Diplomatic parties are frequent because they are almost the only distraction possible where foreigners are isolated from the people.

PARTIES ARE FACTOR

The Canadian embassy does not often entertain, but when it does invitations are prized. A three-piece dance orchestra can cost Western diplomats hesitate to con-2,000 rubles ($500 at the official exchange rate) for one evening. In return it plays excellent Western dance music. Most frequent hosts are the Argentines, who throw fabulous dinners three and four times a week.

Much prestige is acquired among the corps by the number and rank of Soviet personalities who attend embassy functions on their own national holidays. Leaders when I left were the Indians, who drew a large group of Russian Communist leaders and cultural figures. They out-drew even the satellite Hungarians whose party earlier this month was the last I attended.

World politics are reflected even in these gatherings.

Pro-Western diplomats hover around U.S. Ambassador Bohlen as attentively as Communist country's ambassadors flutter around Foreign Minister Molotov or Deputy Foreign Minister Gromyko. Those who mix with everybody are from the "neutral" powers, such as India, Mexico, Iran and the like. Even they have tough going with representatives of the "peoples' democracies," but they try.

Stalin fostered Russian distrust of diplomats to the point of their present isolation. However, the diplomatic corps now have lost their Russian "shadows." The only foreigners regularly shadowed are the military attaches.

Whether or not buildings are wired with microphones is a matter of conjecture. Certainly mails are opened and telephones tapped. duct even the most innocuous conversations by telephone. I was ticked off in friendly fashion by secretaries at the Canadian embassy when I telephoned for information that wouldn't have added a nickel's worth to Soviet intelligence.

DIFFICULT TO MEET PEOPLE—These people, walking down broad Navoi street in Tashkent, Soviet Central Asia, are typical of the common people in that part of the Soviet Union. Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer just home after five months in the Soviet Union, says he had almost no opportunity to meet the people. And he says Western diplomats in Moscow suffer from the same problem—that their contacts with citizens of the Soviet Union are extremely restricted. (CP Photo)

Plans To Build Up Mobile Reserve

LONDON (Reuters) — Field Marshal Earl Alexander, Britain's defence minister Friday said he plans to build up a mobile military reserve in Britain to meet any emergency.

Addressing an ex-servicemen's group, he said there now are no regular military formations in Britain, due to heavy world-wide commitments.

"From a military point of view this is a highly unsatisfactory state of affairs. It is my aim therefore to build up a mobile strategic reserve in this country available and ready to deal with any emergency which may arise."

The active strength of Britain's armed forces is about 845,000 men —one in 60 of the population. About 500,000 are regular soldiers.

Two Men Arrested For Bad Eggs

TORONTO (CP)—David Tusher, 67, and his son-in-law Alex Bornstein, 37, were sentenced Friday for selling eggs and egg melange unfit for human consumption.

Tusher was sentenced to two years less a day in reformatory and Bornstein to one year. It was Tusher's second offence.

The eggs were bought by the two Toronto men at five to eight cents a dozen in different parts of the province and sold to local bakeries for making cakes.

Witnesses testified that samples taken from the seized melange had "astronomical" bacterial counts.

Studio Visit Can Prove Disappointing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — So you want to see Hollywood on your vacation?

You're liable to be disappointed. You probably want to watch them make movies. Unless you're a VIP you won't be permitted on a movie set.

And Hollywood itself is likely to be a disappointment. The studios, which are spread out in five communities besides Hollywood, look much like any other kind of factory from the outside. Hollywood boulevard is the same as most other main drags in medium-sized cities.

I don't mean that Hollywood isn't worth seeing. But you have to realize that you won't be dazzled by the glamor you have read about all these years.

You can get inside the studios if you'll pay for one of the bus tours. At least two of the studios have a deal with sight-seeing outfits whereby tourists can be driven through the lots. But you'll just see the buildings and some outdoor sets. You won't be allowed off the bus.

HAWKERS HERE TOO

There are also some tours conducted to the stars' homes. Or, if you have your own car, you can buy a map from hawkers on Sunset boulevard. It directs you to the homes of 300 stars.

If you want to see the actors at feeding time you could attend such bistros as Ciro's, Mocambo, Brown Derby, Romanoff's, Chasen's, Larue, Lucey's, etc. That is, if the maitre d' will give you a seat—and if you can afford the prices, which range from fantastic to outrageous.

If you are alert and ambitious, you can see the stars at other places—in the swank stores and book shops of Beverly Hills, outside radio, TV and film studios, at theatre openings, charity shows, the better hotels, etc.

You'll probably want to match your feet in the footprints of the stars at the Grauman's Chinese theatre. The summer concerts at the Hollywood Bowl are an experience you'll enjoy. Take a ride on the Hollywood freeway, if you dare compete with Los Angeles drivers, the most fearless in the world. Then drive up to the Hollywood hills and take a look at the sprawling metropolis. It's a sight you'll remember.

Drives Too Close Fined $15

LINDSAY (ENS)—A conviction of careless driving against Peter McNevin, 16, of Cameron, was registered in Lindsay magistrate's court today. McNevin pleaded not guilty to the charge and was defended by D. M. Thomson, of Lindsay.

Evidence showed McNevin had been following another car driven by Peter Underhill, also of Cameron, on Highway 35, near Fenelon Falls, April 18. Underhill told the court he heard a squeal of brakes behind him and after pulling over to the side of the road saw McNevin's car skid by him into a service station lot where it struck two other cars and a tractor before coming to rest.

McNevin told the court he had been following Underhill when the latter slowed down suddenly. McNevin's action in braking his car suddenly threw it out of control he said and he could not stop it when it travelled into the lot.

Constable Morris Baker said Underhill's brake lights were not working at the time of the accident and Underhill in cross-examination admitted he might have turned into the station had he not heard the brakes behind him.

McNevin's attorney D. M. Thomson argued that Underhill had placed McNevin in an emergency and that his client had done the best he could under the circumstances.

Magistrate Moore found McNevin guilty of following a car ahead too closely at too great a speed and fined accused $15 and $10.70 costs.

Criticizes Freezing Of Education Budget

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario CCF leader David MacDonald Friday criticized the provincial government's freezing of the educational budget in the face of increasing school population and costs.

The number of pupils in Ontario schools is increasing by about 60,000 a year, Mr. MacDonald said, speaking over a CBC provincial network in a free-time political series broadcast. With municipal school taxes already at a high level, more and more assistance must come from the government to prevent a crushing load on farm lands and homes.

Yet the provincial government is budgeting to spend $2,500,000 less this year than last, he said. The year before last, the province spent $76,000,000; last year, almost $82,000,000; but this year the budget calls for a reduction to $79,000,000.

New Insurance Plan Given Civil Servants

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government is setting up a new insurance system for civil servants and the armed forces.

The new plan will replace individual insurance contracts made under the Civil Service Insurance Act and will extend it to all on a compulsory basis.

Such insurance up to now was voluntary and covered only the 120,000 civil service employees classified as permanent. The insurance will be extended to another 50,000 temporary government workers and to armed services personnel totalling around 100,000.

Prime Minister St. Laurent and Finance Minister Abbott made general announcements of the plan Friday.

The basic premium, it was understood, will be 40 cents a month per $1,000 deducted from pay cheques. Insurance up to $5,000 will be purchasable, without physical examination.

Guthrie Comedy Has Premiere In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Tyrone Guthrie, internationally - known stage director, has given world premiere rights of his new comedy, "Haste to the Wedding," to the recently-founded Crest Theatre, a fortnightly Toronto repertory company.

Described as "Guthrie in a light, fantastic mood," the play is a satire "with gusto" of modern-day English aristocracy, set in the style of an 18th century comedy of manners. It opens here Tuesday.

A cast of Canadian and English-import actors will be directed by John Blatchley, formerly of London's Old Vic.

Premiere rights were obtained by Donald Davis, one of the actor-executives of the Crest, when he was in London last year.

"Mr. Guthrie has been interested in Canadian theatre for the last couple of years since he agreed to direct the Shakespearian Festival at Stratford," Mr. Davis said.

It is not known yet whether Guthrie, due to start the Stratford festival rehearsals May 17, will be able to attend the Crest production.

Church's Women Workers

By REV. A. C. FORREST

Back in the days of depression and drought in Western Canada, I served for a time as a student missionary in Northern Saskatchewan. Ninety per cent of my people were homsteaders who had been dried out of their prairie farms, and had started over again in the north.

Land covered with poplar woods was worth $10 far 160 acres, and war veterans could get an extra quarter section. School-teachers in that community got $300 a year; two hundred was a government grant and the other hundred came from the tax payers if they could collect.

The nearest church was some 20 miles away; there were only two or three radios in the community and their owners usually could not afford the price of batteries. Most of the people were on relief. Some were actually suspected of starting forest fires in order to collect the small pay the government doled out to fight them.

That summer, I learned to have a high respect for the women workers of the church. The Anglican Church had sent its caravan through the area and many children who had never been to a real church or Sunday school had an opportunity to get a little religious education. The girls of the caravan had visited the homes, left literature, taught the children, and established a sort of Sunday school by mail. Mail came only once a week, and there were times of the year when it didn't get through, but even then many children profited greatly by the work of the caravan girls.

Some time later I served on another mission in the foothills of the Rockies away back among the ranches 40 miles or so from the nearest resident minister. There I discovered that the Nazarene Church had sent out two women missionaries who lived in a little log cottage, and served the people. The Nazarene girls didn't care much for me, for they thought I was a modernist or something, but I was glad that their church kept them there to minister to the ranch and farm folk.

I thought of these women the other day when I saw a picture in the paper of the graduating class of Deaconesses of the Presbyterian Church. Last week, too, I received an invitation to attend the corner-stone laying of the new United Church Training School on the campus of the University of Toronto. The mail also brought me a letter from Mrs. J. R. MacGregor of Ottawa, who told me something of what the building of the Training School means to the women of the United Church.

All of the churches, it seems, use the full - time services of devoted women in one way and another. Historically, the sisters and nuns of the older churches have contributed sacrificially to church work. In modern days the young graduates, sometimes with a uniform, more often in simple civilian clothing go about their work as leaders in Christian Education, assistants to the ministers, parish visitors and so on.

The work has been especially important since the severe shortage of ministers in the protestant churches has developed. There was a time when a city church didn't seem properly staffed without a young assistant minister. Today, assistant ministers are few in number, and the girls have been providing assistance to the ministers in visiting, and organization and administration of youth and children's work.

This new Training School will become the centre of training for the United Church workers, and the money, $600,000—has been raised across Canada by the women of the church. Mrs. MacGregor writes that many women didn't even know there was a training school until they were asked to raise money, and now they have become enthusiastic. Like most other buildings, the school is going to cost more than expected, but the church ladies will probably get it raised. Enrolment for next year is going to set a record, and the publicity given through the campaign has been instrumental in bringing to the attention of young women the opportunities church work offers to them.

The Presbyterian girls have a three-year course following matriculation, and a special one-year course for girls with a university degree. The United Church requires a university degree or a course in nursing, or some business training and experience or the equivalent, and then a two-year course at the Training School. The Anglican course is three years.

Some think it is unfortunate that the working ranks of the Deaconesses and others get so depleted because so many girls end up marrying preachers or missionaries. Others think, though, that the training won't go amiss in parsonage, manse or missionary compound. But even those who may still carry a little prejudice against a woman minister in the pulpit, (and there is a lot of such prejudice) are aware that there are many fields in church work where the smart and idealistic Christian woman can do a job often better than a man.

Doubts U.S. Continues As Good Market

OTTAWA (CP)—The Opposition's agriculture expert said Friday he doubts that the United States will continue to be a lucrative market for Canadian farm products.

John A. Charlton (PC—Brant-Haldimand) made the statement as he criticized the government for ignoring the United Kingdom and favoring the United States in its trade policies.

"It is true that the market in the United States has given us a little better price," he said. "But while the price is better, I contend that the United States market has been so unstable that the average position is poorer than it would have been if we had taken a little less money and sold in the market we were sure of."

Would it not have been better to face the price factor involved in trading with the United Kingdom than to be subject to the unpredictable quotas of the U.S.?" he asked.

Anxiety In Britain's Shipyards As Building Activity Declines

By SUSAN STRANGE

LONDON (OFNS)—While there are boom conditions in the German, Norwegian and other European shipbuilding industries, there is declining activity in American and British shipyards, acording to the annual report of Lloyd's Register of Shipping published here.

Acording to the Register, German shipyards last year increased their output by nearly three hundred thousand tons, an amount equal to almost one-tenth of the shipping added to the world's mercantile fleets during the year.

The Register estimates the total tonnage of world shipping at a record 93.4 million tons, compared with about eighty million tons in 1948. The biggest cause of this steady post-war increase in tonnage has been the demand for new oil tankers, which now make up almost one in four of all merchant ships, and provide shipyards with the only steady stream of new orders.

TOO MANY OLD SHIPS

Of the dry cargo ships now on the high seas, about one in seven was built before 1929 and is more than twenty-five years old. A high proportion of these old ships fly the British flag, and it is clear that the decline in Britains' dry cargo merchant fleet has been masked in recent years by the heavy increase in tanker tonnage. Even so, Britain today has only twenty per cent. of the world merchant fleet compared with fifty per cent in 1905.

These unpalatable long-term facts and trends, underlined by a falling-off over the past two years in new orders placed with British shipyards, have given rise to anxiety for the future of shipbuilding in Britain—still one of the country's staple industries, and a most valuable source of foreign exchange.

The ageing of Britain's merchant fleet—half the ships are now more than ten years old—combined with the rapid increase in the cost of replacing old ships with new, is itself a reason why shipowners in Britain have recently been cancelling or deferring orders. It is seldom realised that a new ship today costs some four times what it would have cost in 1939, and twice what it would have cost immediately after the war. It has been estimated that it would cost the Union Castle company, operating ships mainly on the British-South Africa run, some $250,000,000 to replace a fleet whose original cost was about $100,000,000. And under heavy taxation, few shipping companies have been able to set aside enough out of profits after tax to buy new ships as replacements.

The situation may be somewhat eased by the new investment allowances announced by Mr. R. A. Butler, Britains Chancellor of the Exchequer, in his recent budget. Indeed, there are signs that the new scheme was largely inspired by the tale of woe carried to the government by British shipowners. The allowances mean that on a ship costing $3,000,000 the government will remit nine and a half per cent., in tax to the purchaser.

This new measure, combined with the fact that the more successful shipbuilders such as Cammell Laird, are turning, under pressure of foreign competition, more to the still-expanding market for specialised and refrigerated ships, may well help to reverse—or at least delay—the downward trend in British yards. Meanwhile, the German government in its budget a few weeks earlier announced that it would turn over to private hands the financing of capital investment in shipbuilding. And it may be that with world demand for new ships levelling off, the spectre of German competition which today haunts the dreams of practically every British industry engaged in export business may in future be less grim and threatening than it now appears on Clydeside, the Tyne and other centres of British shipbuilding.

The Ontario police said Belair is wanted on a charge of breaking and entering the Carp, Ont., postoffice March 29 and stealing $100 from the safe.

Belair, a witness in the case of Lucien Gagnon, Montreal city councillor and lawyer, had been held without charge since he was located in Plattsburgh, N.Y., last Saturday. Gagnon is awaiting trial on a charge of receiving $21,000 in stolen stamps.

I Was Too Secure To Need A Savior

An awful lot of people are looking for an intangible thing called security. Some look for it in stocks and bonds, and some in real estate, some in a lovely home and a thriving business. Some seek the same things in friends who will weather the storms of adversity and some even seek security in escapes from reality. I tried many of these avenues but failed to find one that really was a thoroughfare to security.

True security is not found in material things. Unless the soul is secure, life and possessions are built on sand which can shift at any time. The greatest need in life is security of the soul. How glad I am that although I thought I was secure in my possessions, my family, and my home, I have learned to be secure in Christ, the rock of the soul. Since I have come to know Christ as my Savior from sin, my soul is at peace with God. In this I have the basic security of life.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The bureau of employment security says unemployment among the 36,000,000 workers in the United States insured for unemployment compensation increased by 55,700 to 2,206,200 during the week ended April 17. The bureau says the increase was due mainly to new wage credits becoming available to previously unemployed workers in many states, making them again eligible for benefits.

Fabulous Canadian

'Two-Gun' Cohen Appears At Geneva Conference

By ALAN HARVEY

GENEVA (CP)—A small, broad-shouldered man in an expensive grey suit turned up in Geneva Friday, seeking to renew acquaintance with some old China hands.

He is Gen. Morris Abraham Cohen—better known as "Two-Gun" Cohen the fabulous Canadian who was once right-hand man to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese Nationalist leader.

Cohen still is an elder of the Kuomintang, Chinese Nationalist party, and says he has paid his dues up to date. He was in Southern Rhodesia recently visiting a sister, but when he read there would be 200 delegates from Communist China attending the Geneva conference he couldn't resist coming here.

Cohen, born in Stepney, East London, 66 years ago, was sent to Canada in 1902 by his father, farmed in Alberta for a time and picked up a smattering of Chinese dialect among the Chinese colony around Edmonton and Calgary.

Later he went to China on the request of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of modern China, and became the close friend of many famous Chinese personalities.

Gen. Cohen's wife, Judith, lives in Montreal. One of the general's recent activities is believed to have involved intervention some three years ago in the case of six Canadian nuns charged with maltreating babies in a convent in China. Gen. Cohen's plea on behalf of the nuns is thought to have resulted in lenient treatment for them.

Plan To Give Judges New Pay Increase

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is expected to introduce legislation at the current session of Parliament to give Canadian judges another boost in pay.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said Friday in the Commons that the government plans to amend the Judges Act, but he did not elaborate.

However, it is understood that legislation will provide for pay increases. They are expected to run as high as 25 per cent.

Mr. St. Laurent said the bill will be among at least 12 additional items of legislation to be introduced at the present session. He announced Thursday that the government's emergency powers legislation would not be extended beyond May 31.

The salaries of Canadian judges were increased 33.3 per cent in 1948 and by a similar percentage in 1951.

CHIEF JUSTICE

The salary of the chief justice of Canada is expected to be increased to $31,250 from $25,000. The salaries of the eight puisne judges of the court are expected to be boosted to $25,000 from $20,000.

Other salary increases anticipated: Chief justices of provincial Supreme Courts, also called Superior Courts or Courts of Queen's Bench, to $20,000 from $16,000; puisne judges of provincial courts, both appeal and trial divisions, to $18,000 from $14,000; county and district court judges, to $10,000 from $8,000.

Says Roosevelt Feared U.S. Revolution

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The late Harold L. Ickes wrote in 1938 that President Franklin D. Roosevelt feared a possible revolution in the United States if he followed "conservative" advice in his Democratic party to halt relief spending and farm aid in an effort to balance the budget.

Ickes, secretary of the interior for 13 years in the cabinets of Roosevelt and President Truman, told of this in the second volume of his diary, covering the period from Roosevelt's second election in November, 1936, to Hitler's invasion of Poland in September, 1939.

The 335,000-word volume, "The Inside Struggle," is being published May 4 by Simon and Schuster.

"The Inside Struggle" traces the happenings of Roosevelt's second term and tells of the "New Deal" president's unsuccessful battle to add six justices to the Supreme Court, of Roosevelt's ill-fate attempt to purge anti-New Deal Democrats in 1938, and of behind-the-scenes White House social doings.

Ickes, the self-styled "old curmudgeon," registered strong criticism of his fellow cabinet officers and of Democratic congressional leaders in this portion of his dairy, which ultimately will run to 6,000,000 words.

CUT RELIEF PROJECTS

Ickes related that Roosevelt told him two "conservative party leaders" argued that the way to preserve party solidarity was to balance the budget by dropping all federal spending for relief and public works, except for $800,000,000 to match state and local funds, and by stopping all farm benefits. The two leaders also were quoted as urging against a tax increase.

"The president remarked," Ickes' diary said, "that this would mean calling out the troops to preserve order. It might even mean a revolution, or an attempted revolution."

Ickes also wrote in 1938 that he felt it not unlikely that as a result of the then-current Dies committee investigation, a "Communist scare" would be "fomented and kept fanned in this country" and that the end result would be fascism.

Cadi Suggests German Youth Be Deported

LINDSAY (ENS). — A young German immigrant was jailed for three months in magistrate's court here Friday, and Magistrate R. I. Moore made a recommendation in his sentence that the 19-year-old accused be deported when his term expires after his trial on a charge of forging a cheque.

The accused, Philip Detrick, 19, who has been in Canada only 10 months, pleaded guilty to the charge of passing a forged cheque at an Argyle store on April 11, and said he wished to pay back the money. Detrick is working on a farm near Lorneville, some 20 miles northwest of Lindsay.

The storekeeper, Albert Fleming, of Argyle, said it was the first cheque the accused had ever presented for payment at his store. He pointed out that though the cheque was made out to one, Joseph Obermeyer, Detrick signed the proper endorsation name to the cheque.

Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan at the end of the case read from records three previous convictions against Detrick of forgery and uttering. He also stated that the immigration office at Peterborough was interested in accused.

Magistrate Moore, in imposing a three months' sentence, recommended deportation for Detrick. "We don't want your kind here," he said. "You'd better go back to your own country and grow up."

Russians Not Race Conscious, Mingle With Chinese, North Koreans, Many Foreign Students At Universities

Note: When Bill Boss of The Canadian Press left Moscow after five months in the Soviet Union, his notebooks were full of sidelights on life behind the Iron Curtain. Here are some of them —including items the Moscow censor wouldn't pass for cable or mail transmission to Canada.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Russians are not race conscious. It is not a Communist accomplishment but the result of hundreds of years of geographic conditioning, through being spread over one-sixth of the land area of the world.

But it is a characteristic which has important political significance when associated with the Soviet Union's tie-up with Communist China and its assistance programs for North Korea and the Communists in Indo-China.

Soviet universities and other institutions of higher learning, not only in Moscow but throughout the union, have many Oriental and Asiatic students. There are an estimated 10,000 North Koreans in the U.S.S.R. and the other "peoples' democracies," being trained as doctors, scientists, engineers, and even musicians and ballerinas.

TOP GRADUATE CHINESE

Top graduate of the first Moscow medical institute last year was Chinese. A top graduate of the Bolshoi's ballet school this year is a Korean girl.

In Moscow's Metropole hotel, where I lived, a large banquet room had been converted into a dormitory and study hall for 35 North Koreans.

It is common to see Chinese, Koreans and Russians dancing together in Moscow night spots.

CHINESE LARGEST

The Chinese Communist embassy in Moscow is one of the largest in the Soviet Union. Unlike the British and American embassies whose large staffs must sieve the Soviet press for small facts that add up to a partial understanding of the Soviet system, the Chinese seem to receive full co-operation from the Russian government.

But I got the impression that the embassies of Russian satellite governments in Europe receive orders or "suggestions," rather than the assistance China gets.

TRAVEL RESTRICTIONS

A Westerner may travel through considerable parts of the Soviet Union without escort after going through the formality of obtaining permission. But this does not apply to frontier zones and certain large "security" areas.

Train and plane tickets can not be bought until the permission is inscribed on your documents.

The travel authority usually means you may go anywhere in the city you are visiting. In Baku, however, I received strict orders. I could not turn right on leaving the hotel. That would have taken me to a height where I would have a panoramic view of the city. Nor was I to walk more than three blocks uphill behind the hotel for the same reason. In fact, I walked 10 without trouble.

FORBIDDEN GROUND

In Tashkent, capital of the Soviet central Asia republic of Uzbekistan, I found a taxi-driver more co-operative than most and decided to try to pass the city barrier.

In that part of the Soviet Union, only the capitals and certain large cities are accessible to visitors. Rural areas are forbidden ground. Apparently that goes for Soviet citizens, too, unless they have special permission, for the barriers on main roads out of the cities are manned by militia men who scrutinize all documents.

The driver knew I was a Canadian reporter but at the gate he said nothing.

An armed militia man asked: "Who is this man, comrade?"

"I don't know."

"You don't? Let me see your papers."

The driver handed them over, saying: "As far as I know he is a foreigner who wants to see the collective farms."

We were turned back.

STIFF DRIVING TESTS

Russian driving tests are stiff—but it's not too important, few Russians have cars anyway.

I know two foreigners who drive in the Soviet Union. Neither has a licence. One did have but it was picked up for a traffic violation. So far neither has been in trouble for unlicensed motoring.

Other foreigners with automobiles hire Russian drivers.

Moscow traffic regulations alone are enough to stump the foreigner who can't read Russian. The broad thoroughfares and boulevards are laid out for traffic volume not likely to be seen for 20 years.

One-way streets, right-turn-only intersections and other complications peculiar to Moscow are not the only hurdle at driving tests. The examiner may want an explanation of the mechanism of the engine, the function of the carburetor, or the operation of turn indicators.

Secret Order Will Expire

OTTAWA (CP)—A secret order-in-council of the federal cabinet, dealing with national security, will be allowed to expire with the end of the Emergency Powers Act on May 31.

Prime Minister St. Laurent gave this information to the Commons Friday under questioning on the government's legislative program for the remainder of the parliamentary session.

The order, contents of which never have been disclosed, was passed by cabinet about two years ago under the emergency powers measure adopted in 1951 and giving sweeping authority to the government in the interests of security.

In passing the order, the cabinet also gave itself power to refrain from making its nature public.

Mr. St. Laurent said recently in the house that the Criminal Code or the Official Secrets Act may provide sufficient safeguards in connection with the circumstances envisaged in the secret order.

First of May No Longer Traditional Moving Day

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The First of May once was Canada's traditional moving day but now it's just another day to the average Canadian. As far as housing accommodation is concerned he's staying put—out of necessity.

It's not that he wouldn't like to find cheaper accommodation, but low rental housing is still very much at a premium across the land and landlords are choosy.

A Canadian Press survey shows that the small dents being made in Canada's drum-tight housing shortage haven't been enough to ease rents. With few exceptions rentals now are double 1939 figures with the fellow in the lower income bracket hardest hit.

Canada started approximately 104,000 housing units in 1953. In 1954 federal authorities expect 125,000 units will be built, particularly with the impetus of recent federal legislation giving the banks the right to get in the mortgage money field.

OTTAWA MOVERS BUSY

Only in Ottawa, Quebec City and Montreal was the traditional May 1 moving day in evidence. In the capital city, where new homes and apartment buildings [illegible] springing up like mu[illegible] but where rents are [illegible] cent above 1939, move [illegible]ked up. One said it was us[illegible]t time in 10 years.

In Toronto, where the demand for low-rental housing is acute, a novel project is under way. At the experimental Regent Park development with 1,289 housing units, rents are based on income. The average is $59.88 a month compared to rents that run from $75 to $140 and up for three and four-room, heated apartments in most parts of the city.

Another low-rental, $15,000,000 housing scheme is planned for the Toronto area.

In the Maritimes the general situation is described as "acute."

In Montreal, higher-rent apartments of $90 and up are available but those with lower rents are hard to find.

In the West, Winnipeg also reports a shortage of housing in the low-income bracket and rents up 30 per cent over last year. Controls were lifted last August.

South Smith WI Holds Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the South Smith Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Brown.

Mrs. Leo Allen, secretary stated the branch, with 22 members, had held 12 meetings with an average attendance of 15 members.

The outstanding meeting of the year, as chosen by the members, was the March meeting when the 4-H girls homemaking club entertained the members of the W.I. Other meetings notable were a flower arrangement demonstration by Miss Florence Hutchinson and a gift-wrapping demonstration by Miss Vera Johnston both of Peterborough.

The treasurer, Miss M. Milburn reported the branch had given $196.51 in donations to the Cancer fund, mental health, and other worthy causes.

Mrs. Henry Sharpe, past-president conducted the election of officers.

Those installed for the coming year were as follows: president, Mrs. Clarence Mann; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Edison Kimball; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Elmer Milburn; secretary, Mrs. Leo Allen, treasurer, Miss M. Milburn; district director, Mrs. Wesley Bell.

No Old Ladies Any More Dress Firm Head Declares

By DOROTHY ROE
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"There are no old ladies any more," says Howard Bloomfield of Cleveland.

This lanky midwesterner heads a firm which has been turning out ladies' ready-to-wear for the last 50 years—longer, he claims, than any other dress firm continuously in business.

Back in 1940 the ideal of womanly beauty was the "perfect 36," and women were not ashamed to be queen-size, says Bloomfield, but nowadays average American women wear size 14 to 16 dresses, and are rapidly reducing to junior sizes 11 or 13.

"I don't know just what has caused all this change," remarks the philosophic dressmaker. "I guess there are a number of causes, from the changing character of immigration to the influence of movies and television.

"Back in the '90s our population was mostly nordic, and the women were big-boned, tall and well-padded in the Gibson girl tradition. Later the tide of immigration came from central and southern Europe, where the women are smaller, though stocky. A second generation has developed with the best features of their mothers and some new ones of their own.

"Today there are more perfect figures among American women than ever before in history. Women are getting smarter, too. Instead of buying a size 40 dress, big women trim down until they can wear an 18. And the woman who used to be proud of being a 'perfect 36' now probably buys her dresses in the junior department and wears a size 13."

"We don't make any 'old lady' dresses any more. There just aren't any old ladies. Look at some of our modern grandmothers, such as Gloria Swanson and Marlene Dietrich. Can you imagine trying to put them into the shapeless kind of dresses that used to be reserved for older women? Their figures are as good as any 16-year-old could boast."

John Grady Reed Married Today In New York City

The marriage of Miss Miriam Wilkes Bell to Lieutenant (Junior Grade) John Grady Reed, U.S.N., took place this afternoon at the Church of Saint Thomas More in New York City. The Ceremony was performed by the Rev. Harry S. Byrne with a reception following at the Cosmopolitan Club.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Dennis Bell of New York. Mr. Reed is the son of the late Mr. John T. S. Reed and the late Mrs. Lilian Grady Reed. His grandfather and grandmother were the late Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Grady of Peterborough, and he is the nephew of Miss May Grady of 583 Water Street.

Dr. Bell gave his daughter in marriage. She wore an ivory taffeta dress made with a fitted waist and a full skirt terminating in a cathedral train. The high neck line and fitted cap were made of heirloom rose point lace which has been worn by the bride's mother and grandmother. A bouquet of amabalis and lilies of the valley was carried.

Miss Lucy Lawrence Worcester of New York was maid of honor. The other attendants were Mrs. Philip W. Bell, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Neil Winton, Mrs. Donald F. Nesbitt and Mrs. Bernard S. Dempsey. They were attired in ballerina gowns of pale blue antique shantung and carried crescent shaped varigated leaves and yellow carnations.

John de St. Phalle of White Plains, N.Y. was best man. The ushers were Evan W. Bell, brother of the bride, C. Oliver Iselin III, W. Wesley Trimpi, Jr. and Thomas A. Lee, Jr.

Mrs. Reed was graduated in 1952 from Mount Holyoke College while her husband became an alumnus of Harvard in 1951. The couple will live at Virginia Beach, Virginia, while Mr. Reed is assigned to the staff of the Commander in Chief Atlantic Command and Atlantic Fleet in Norfolk, Va. They plan to reside in Cambridge, Mass., this fall where the groom will attend the Harvard Law School.

THESE CLOTHES, designed for people who do their own carpentry, wall papering and painting, do away with the old practice of using discarded clothing for such jobs. This girl (above) is ready for all visitors, all emergencies. She wears (left) a trim cobbler's apron in green broadcloth with bright floral embroidery in deep satin stitch on huge front pockets. Cool chambray (centre) is used for culottes with hidden fullness. And chores (right) are best done in denim tunic and shorts combination with striped trim at neck and at cuff of shorts. All of these fashions will take readily to soap and water without shrinkage.

DOROTHY DIX

Happy Young Wife, Mother Ponders Business Course

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 29 years old, happily married and have two children. When my son starts school this fall, I'd like very much to go to work but am handicapped by the fact that I have no business experience. Do you think it would be foolish for me to take a business course or to learn a trade? Mrs. S. F.

✧ ✧ ✧

SPECIAL WORK AT HOME

ANSWER: You would be wise to take some training, and out of the list you suggested, beauty culture would be a particularly good field for you. In time, you could conduct a business in your home, which would eliminate the difficulties of transportation, as well as assuring your presence when the youngsters are home. Typing also provides splendid opportunities for home work; also recommended are dressmaking and cooking—particularly party fare, for which there is much demand.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My 86-year-old mother is becoming a problem—not because she's dependent, but because she's too independent! Five years ago when she was ill, my two sisters and I had her break up her home and live with us, in turns. We don't expect her to do any work, but she insists on taking over practically all household chores, making beds, doing dishes, etc. If we attempt to do these things ourselves, she gets very peeved and threatens to leave. She has a good income and doesn't lack friends, since there are several widows here Mother could rent a small house in town. Do you think things would be better if she did? Mrs. C. O.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: While fully appreciating the diffculties you're having with Mom, I must confess to a great admiration for the gal. She has a mind of her own and a most effective way of asserting it. By all means let her rent the house. If you and your sisters feel that she won't eat properly, make a point of bringing in some food as needed. Your mother has very devoted daughters, and you have certainly done your utmost to do what's right. That you can't turn mother into a docile old lady isn't your fault; she's made of sterner stuff.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: When we became engaged I was given a diamond that had belonged to my fiance's deceased wife. Now, a year later, my husband's brother-in-law wants the ring, claiming it had been promised to a relative. I feel I have been put in a humiliating position and I think my husband was wrong in giving me the ring. D.N.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: When uncomfortable situations like this develop, the best thing to do is give in when necessary, then forget the whole matter—bear no grudges. These things arise out of thoughtlessness, nothing worse. Your husband acted in good faith, anticipating no aftermath to his gift, and that someone else came up with a prior clai mwasn't his fault. Don't let a ring stand in the way of your happiness.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am in love with a man and he doesn't know it. His wife died recently, after being a helpless invalid for four years. During her illness I took care of her. Her husband's devotion and care were so wonderful that I couldn't help loving him. He sent me a beautiful gift for Easter, and I wonder if that's a sign he loves me, too. I haven't worked for him since his wife died. L.T.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The gift, I'm sure, was a token of gratitude for all you had done for his wife, rather than a sign of his love for you. Too short a time has elapsed since his wife's death for him to show interest in anyone else. I'm afraid you have very little on which to pin your hopes right now.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been engaged three times, coming to the realization in each case that I didn't love the boy. Now I am sincerely in love with Bert, but he doesn't believe me. He says I'm fickle. How can I make him understand that this time I know it's the real thing? R.E.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Three engagements certainly provide reasonable grounds for the accusation of fickleness. I guess you'll just have to give Bert time to appreciate the fact that you're a changed woman—if you are!

ATTENTION MRS. H. N.: (who, on my request, mailed me a sample of "Caravan" which she buys at the bakery, and which she would like to have a recipe for.)

ANSWER: I have to alibi a little (and blush too) for I think the recipe I am giving is better than the one the sample you sent is made from. Of course, the sample was stale by the time it reached me so I may not be fair.

YUMMY SQUARES

One-half cup shortening, 1 cup brown sugar (or ½ cup each brown sugar and white), 2 well-beaten eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1½ cups sifted cake flour, ½ teaspoon each salt and cinnamon, 1 teaspoon baking powder. Cream the shortening until light and fluffy then gradually cream the sugar into it until light. Beat in eggs, then vanilla. Measure the sifted flour then sift it with the salt, baking powder and cinnamon and stir in. Spread in greased shallow pan about 13 x 9 x 2 inches. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 25 minutes. Cool. Spread with plain Butter Icing OR do what I do —spread BEFORE PUTTING IN TO BAKE with this mixture: Beat 1 egg white until stiff, then add 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar to it while continuing to beat until stiff, then fold in ½ cup chopped nuts. Spread on unbaked batter and bake as above. Cut into 2-inch squares while still warm.

QUESTION: When I threaten to cut your recipes out of the paper first you should hear the howl if I happen to cut through Major Hoople or the hockey scores! . . . I am interested in your recipes and menus for church suppers . . . you gave some some time ago and I would be interested in receiving a copy . . . we will be catering for around 30 men . . . and we hope to do it for around 75c. We thought casserole dishes with dessert and tea. Our members can do these at home. I don't know about salads for this price but rolls would be included . . . we are looking for wedding reception ideas too . . . I like your idea of heating your milk for cocoa in a double boiler. I am forever boiling milk over . . . I need a pop-up toaster . . . but my family claims I'd still burn the toast . . . I have 3 boys, 22, 20 (Airforce) and 15 . . . 1 dog, 1 cat and a Labrador pup . . . every happiness to your daughter . . . Phyllis E. C.

ANSWER: Phew! and I say I'M busy! All I need now is a Labrador pup in my lap to completely jam the works. Thanks for a grand letter. I have mailed you the releases from Feb. 22, 23, and April 2, all of which contain large quantity recipes.

Our WA served a good supper that I think you would do well to consider. It would not cost more than 75c per plate even if you paid for the ingredients for the pies:

Spaghetti in Cheese Sauce with Weiners on Top
Cole Slaw with Parsley
Whole Wheat Rolls
Pumpkins Pies Tea

For he spaghetti dish for 35 three pounds very fine spaghetti is enough. Make 3½ to 4 quarts thin rich cheese sauce. After boiling the spaghetti 15 minutes, drain, then rinse in cold water. Add it to the hot sauce. Apportion into shallow baking pans. Cover with halved weiners (9 pounds bought at wholesale), sprinkle with fine grated cheese and bake until bubbling and golden.

LETTER: Have you ever had a mighty yen for raisin pie, only to find there are no lemons in the house? You can use 2 tablespoons jello lemon pie filling as thickening in place of cornstarch, and it also give the lemon tang. I was amazed to find I could use same substitute in Lemon Pudding: Mix 2 tablespoons soft butter, 1½ cups sugar, add ⅓ cup flour and salt to taste. Add ½ cup lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel, 3 egg yolks, 1¼ cups milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake 45 minutes. (Use 2 tablespoons lemon pie filling in place of the flour, juice and peel.) I use less sugar than this recipe calls for for the sake of the family's health. Our country sisters who can't phone the grocer for lemons would appreciate the tip. My son (studying for exams too) landed in hospital for an appendix operation. Only 2 hours elapsed between time they phoned to ask permission to operate and phone call to say it was over.—E.N.

ANSWER: Your whole letter is adorable. Thanks for your good wishes for Marianne. I sure hope that boy of yours is well enough by now to study and pass his exams. Everybody in our house is bleary-eyed from studying. I have to go out to find anybody to talk to.

McKEE HARVESTING SYSTEMS
Why not call on our Field Men to help you plan a Harvesting System for your Farm? We have the experience to assure guaranteed results. Our systems apply to every crop. Grass, silage, hay, grain threshing, and seed harvest. Use McKee Harvester to pick up swathed grain and haul it to your threshing machine. We manufacture special conveyors to elevate it into your thresher. Remember, ONE 25 H.P. Tractor, ONE McKee Harvester and Wagon, and ONE Man can bring in enough grain to keep a threshing machine running continuously. Two Men can do the job which formerly required 7 or 8.
HAVE YOU ORDERER YOUR McKEE HARVESTER?
Did you ever rise early on a quiet June morning to slip off to your favourite fishing spot only to find some one has been there before you? Rather frustrating, isn't it? The man that telephones up in June and expects to get a McKee Harvester could find himself in the same dilemma. Let's face it! We have about 25 in stock, but a carload is scheduled for Kelowna, B.C. Plus a carload for Regina, Sask. We prefer to do business with Ontario farmers, but we certainly can't maintain a manufacturing plant on last minute orders.

TWO LITTLE CHUMS are playing with felt scraps from mother's emergency fun shelf. They are building a picture on a flannel board.

FOR PARENTS ONLY-

Have Emergency Fun Shelf When Weather Is Very Bad

By NANCY CLEAVER

"I never thought of old newspapers as play material, but last Saturday my two little boys had a marvellous time making a newspaper tee-pee with safety-pins and poles and just a little help from their dad," one monther told a friend, "I hang on to bits of cardboard for headbands and crowns for our "small fry". Silver paper off chocolate bars and silver foil tea boxes also come in handy. I have a large carton for scraps which I extract from the garbage and keep in the storeroom as a source of play material." Her friend replied, "I think I'll start an emergency fun shelf!" the first mother said.

NEED NOT BE TOYS

Play material for a child is important but do not think of it just in terms of toys bought in a store. A little youngster should not have to work with too small objects because he finds it easier to use his large muscles than his small ones. Active outdoor play is essential to build sturdy bodies. But on days when the weather is very bad or when a child must be confined to the house, it is a fine thing for a mother to have some new play suggestions.

In almost every home there are articles with which a small boy or girl can have a good time either playing with himself or other children. Here is potential play material—clothes pegs, spools, colored buttons, cardboard (shoe) boxes, orange crates or butter boxes, egg beater and bowl, measuring spoons and measuring cups and empty tin cans of different sizes.

Of course, care must be taken that these playthings such as tin cans have no rough edges, or that harmful paint will not be chewed, or tiny objects like small buttons placed in a little child's mouth and swallowed. Ordinary (not spring) clothes pegs can be sterilized for baby to handle. A boy or girl can have a grand time making a clothes peg house with a clothes peg zig-zag fence around it!

Colored buttons are fun to transfer, one by one, from one container to another. They can also be strung on a blunt needle and thread, or sewn on a card as a face, hands and feet for a little "button-man". The bright colored different size measuring cups are good fun to fit one inside another. The tin cans may be painted and attractive colored illustrations from magazines pasted on them. A "nest" of cans of different sizes can be built into a tower, with a tin which contained baby food on the top and a large size tomato tin at the base.

Making scrap books, using blunt scissors and flour-and-water paste on newspapers spread on the kitchen table can be a lot of fun for little folk. Don't be too fussy about the way they cut out the colored pictures from old journals! Let them chose their own favourites. Perhaps they will ask you to make up a story about a pussy or a dog whose picture appears on the first page. An old mail order catalogue can also provide good times doing "pretend shopping". A whole garden can quickly be planted from seed catalogue plus a little "make believe".

Old felt hats of contrasting colors can be washed and cut up in different small-shaped pieces for flannel board pictures or designs. An attractive home-made board can be made cheaply by cutting a square of flanelette, dying one half green for the grass and the other blue for the sky. These are then sewn together, along the horizon, and a piece of beaverboard or very heavy cardboard is covered with this material. The felt pieces will not drop off when placed on this flanelette surface.

"Mummy, what can I do now?" How many mothers of small children are confronted with this urgent question several times a day. Boys and girls want to be busy, they are eager to experiment with fresh toys. Mothers, knowing how expensive many playthings are, often sigh when their children pursue them for fresh suggestions for interesting activities. Few

French CO Objects To Pessimism

HANOI, Indo-China (Reuters) — A French high command spokesman said today Brig.-Gen. Christian de Castries, commander at Dien Bien Phu, has complained that pessimistic press reports harmed the defenders' morale.

The spokesman — who described the situation at the besieged northern Indo-China garrison as "grave but not hopeless"—said de Castries objected to the reports as being "far too gloomy".

He said de Castries, in a radio-telephone call to Hanoi two days ago, complained that French newspapers parachuted to the defenders harmed morale because the situation was not as bad they painted it.

But de Castries refused to clarify the sitution at Dien Bien Phu for the press, even declining to answer a list of 10 questions which the high command had agreed to send from foreign correspondents here.

The spokesman said it now is 50 days since the rebel besiegers' "first big offensive," and that in that time they had captured only outposts, leaving the main fortress still intact.

The French fortress is stronger today, thanks to a "very satisfactory" supply drop for which available French fighter and bomber planes blasted a way Friday.

The full-scale air strike on rebel anti-aircraft guns cleared the way for the Flying Boxcars to parachute sorely needed food, ammunition and other supplies onto the ground. Flying weather was good for the first time since Tuesday.

SEVEN CONTESTANTS are now among the leaders in the Sunshine Sweepstakes which will end on May 14. Already 3,800,000 votes have been cast and all votes must be in by May 17. The results of the contest, which will entitle the winning sales clerk to a week's holiday in St. Petersburg, Florida, will be announced on May 20 or 21. From left to right, the leading contestants are Shirley Foster of Black's Ladies' Wear, Mrs. Marie Baldwin of Metropolitan Stores, Pearl Hawthorn of Zeller's, Jean Stark of Elliot's Drug Store, Mrs. Helen Bacon of Parkway Pharmacy, Mrs. Myrtle McKay of Kresge's, and Carol Harrison of Peterborough Credit Jewellers. A ballot is printed each day in The Examiner on page 2. This, together with a sales slip from one of the 80 stores, entitles a shopper to 100 votes for his favorite clerk.

Recreation Least

Miss Florence Philpott, executive secretary of the Toronto Welfare Council. Miss Philpott, was assigned to discuss relations between public and private recreation agencies.

Relationships, said Miss Philpott, is a "gobbledygook word" which lends itself to vague and pompous maunderings. She suggested it was in the same class as democracy, unity, co-operation and justice — concepts which everybody is presumably for, but concepts which receive much attention "from people who don't know what they are talking about."

It's difficult to distinguish private from public recreation, said Miss Philpott, since programming and financing both often overlap and "both develop according to the wishes of the people in any case."

On the question of "relationships" Miss Philpott said that nothing would be accomplished by "bleating" about the need for more co-operation. Relationships should be practised, not talked about, and neither public nor private agencies should be jealous on such questions as auspices, prestige and status. Both should remember that they are working for the people.

Earlier the nature of private agencies, generally run by boards of directors and supported largely through such drives as the Community Chests, was outlined by Norman Cragg, Mr. Cragg is recreation director for the Toronto Welfare Council.

The administration set-up in the recreational field was discussed by T. A. Leishman, field personnel supervisor for the community planning branch. Recreation falls into four major classifications, thus: the provincial government, which passes enabling legislation; municipal councils which grant money and administer recreation bylaws; recreation committees which form community policy, and budget expenses according to money available and the paid professional recreation staff plus volunteer workers.

Mr. Leishman mentioned legislation recently passed which enables parks committies, recreation groups and community centre organizations to combine responsibilities under one body. The "great significance" of this was underlined by Mr. Young.

A discussion of facilities ranging from the possibility of refrigerated toboggan slides to the inadequacy of some existing facilities was given by T. W. Thompson, Port Arthur parks superintendent. Mr. Thompson suggested that the facility situation, although steadily improving, leaves much to be desired since many playgrounds are "big dust-bowls lined with a few pieces of equipment."

Do we have a profesion and how can we prove it? Dr. Earle Zeigler, professor of health and recreation education at the University of Western Ontario, asked. He said leadership was the most important aspect of any recreation program, and suggested that recreation directors are now widely regarded as members of a professional class.

There is still a place for the volunteer worker, said Dr. Zeigler. One basis for judging the success or failure of a recreation director might be in the degree to which he attracts volunteer workers to his program.

Talks of all the speakers were summarized by Arnold Ward, young adult secretary of the national council of the YMCA. Mr. Ward also raised a few points of his own, wondering if recreation was adequately serving all skills, and is equally spread over all seasons.

After the symposium, delegates adjourned to more informal discussion groups to decide what aspects of recreation are to be discussed today. Today's discussions will break down under these broad headings: programs, facilities, legislation, youth programs, finances, ORA organization, leadership, recreation in company towns, public relations, private agencies and public relations, area programming.

West Bromwich Albion Defeats Preston For Cup

LONDON (CP)—West Bromwich Albion today won the Football Association Cup by defeating Preston North End 3-2 before 100,000 at Wembley stadium.

Frank Griffin of West Bromwich banged in the winning goal with a minute and a half to go. Until his fine shot the game appeared certain to go into a 30-minute overtime period.

Preston was a slight favorite to win the 73rd cup final—glamorous windup game for the English soccer season.

West Bromwich had led the English league first division almost throughout the season and appeared headed for the distinction of becoming the first league champion and FA cup winner in half a century.

SERIES OF INJURIES

The cinderella team was struck down by a series of injuries last month and Wolverhampton won the league championship.

Today's game was the second FA cup meeting between the two teams. When they met 65 years ago in the final, Preston was also favored to win but dropped a 2-1 decision.

Other West Brom goals today were both by Ronnie Allen. One was on a penalty shot and that tied the count at 2-2. Allen's first goal came in the 22nd minute when he took a fast pass from George Lee and scored on a low, hard kick.

Angus Morrison scored the first goal for Preston—less than one minute after Allen's opener for West Brom. Tom Docherty captured the ball, centred and Morrison headed it into the goal.

Preston went ahead 2-1 when Charlie Wayman scored in the 51st minute. Preston made a smart play which carried the ball downfield and Wayman scored. There was some question that an offside should have been called.

GOALS PROTESTED

West Bromwich protested but the goal stood. Preston led until Allen evened the count on the penalty kick. Docherty and West Brom's Ray Barlow collided in a tackle attempt and the referee pointed to the penalty shot.

Allen kicked the goal without hesitation. Goalie George Thompson got his fingertips on the ball but could not divert it.

Then came the lull in scoring when it appeared the game would go into overtime. But Griffin changed all that and the sentimental favorites, if not betting favorites, won the glamor game of the year.

Queen Mother Elizabeth was introduced to players of both teams before today's game, climax to the British soccer season and culmination of a knockout series which began among 500 teams last fall.

Preston, a Lancashire team, was favored partly because of their skipper, Tom Finney, a left-wing speed man who has been voted England's footballer of the year.

Another factor was the fact that injury-riddled Albion, played without goalie Norman Heath and fullback Stan Rickaby.

Receipts from the game were £49,883 ($139,672.40).

West Brom previously won cup finals, in 1888, 1892 and 1931.

Clothes Catch In Boat Motor

WINDSOR (CP) — With three propeller-blade slashes in his abdomen, Eddie (Bimbo) Kopacz, 27, of Amherstberg, clung to his boat Friday night until rescuers, attracted by his cries, rowed to his aid and gave him a knife with which he was able to cut away his clothes which had been entangled in the outboard motor.

The rescuers "Hy" Dahlka and Fred Headman of Gibraltar, Mich., said there was little more than Kopacz' nose above water when they found the man at 11:30 p.m. They had to go back to shore to get Kopacz a knife, then towed Kopacz' boat to shore with the man clinging to it. Kopacz staggered to land unaided and was taken to hospital where it was reported he is in no immediate danger.

Dahlka and Headman started their search after several Gibraltar residents heard cries for help coming from the river.

Senior NATO Officers End 4-Day Exercise

PARIS (Reuters) — Senior staff officers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization today ended a four-day exercise which is understood to have emphasized the use of tactical atomic weapons and long-range atomic bombing.

Under the direction of Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, one whole day is believed to have been spent on the study of "softening up" prior to a landing on an enemy coastline.

Hees Charges Patronage Used As Threat

TORONTO (CP) — George Hees, national president of the Progressive Conservative party, charged Friday night that Liberal members of the House of Commons are forced to toe the line under the threat that party patronage will be withdrawn.

Speaking to the annual dinner of the Toronto and District Young Progressive Conservatives, he said Liberal members are awakened from slumber by division bells in order to cast their vote on motions about which they haven't a clue.

The member of Parliament for Toronto Broadview described the Liberals as straight-jacketed by party discipline.

OUTLINES FORMUULA

His speech outlined in part the formula for a three-year campaign that he said will sweep the Progressive Conservatives into office.

He said a large body of workers must be recruited by the party and that the party's message must be delivered to the elector's door on a silver platter. First - class candidates who can win must be nominated early in every riding.

"The greatest act of sabotage to the party is to support for nomination someone who hasn't a chance of being elected," he said.

He said the government's action in announcing that the Emergency Powers Act will not be renewed represents a victory for the Progressive Conservatives and gives hope that continued pressure on the government to correct inequities may bring results.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indianapolis, a city of 500,000 population, was without bus and trolley service today as AFL drivers went on strike in a dispute over wages. But a walkout by AFL transit workers in Pittsburgh was called off after 90 minutes.

Other strikes which started in the United States today affected electrical workers, bakery employees and steel workers.

The largest strike involved some 9,500 employees of seven Philco Corp. plants, six in the Philadelphia area and one in Sandusky, Ohio, who are seeking higher wages.

About 1,500 AFL workers in 13 New York City bakeries also walked out today and union officials said the strike would be called at midnight tonight in several adjoining cities. They estimated 4,700 workers will be involved.

In the greater Cincinnati area strikes hit three industrial plants and threatened to spread to a fourth as about 1,200 CIO steel workers walked out at midnight.

Meanwhile, negotiations remained at a stalemate in Boston between the American Woollen Co. and some 3,000 CIO textile workers. Seven American woollen mills have been closed since Monday.

The Note-Wits quartette and chorus of the Peterborough Chapter of SPEBSQSA, under the direction of Mr. Vic. Farrani, delighted everyone with many favorite songs.

The final presentation was a one-act comedy, "Grandma Fixes Things". The Rev. G. J. Weis was the play director, and members of the cast were: Grandma — Miss Justina MacMartin; Mrs. Preston —Mrs. Clinton Young; Lenore Preston—Mrs. Ralph Armstrong; David Preston — James Lynch; Mrs. Baker—Mrs. B. Holland; Mr. Baker—Mr. B. Holland; Brockton Baker—Mr. Frank Keating; Barry Collins—Mr. Jack Ryan.

Recreation Directors Echo Wail of Neglected North

Northern Ontario is a neglected and underpriveleged area. At least this is the view of some delegates to the Ontario Recreation Association conference here, earnestly lobbying for a northern site for the 1955 meeting.

Most active pressure group is from North Bay consisting of recreation director Sam Jacks, commission chairman Art Haley and vice-president Mrs. W. G. Perry. They feel its time the recreation moved north, preferably to North Bay.

As one delegate put it: "If we move to North Bay, it will be that much easier to move on to Sudbury the next year, since Ontario gets better and better the further north you get. Soon we should have a convention at Kapuskasing or Moose Factory."

The debate on sites waxed fast and passionate at several parties held after Friday night's banquet, but the northern delegation was split by some dissension within the ranks. While the North Bay crowd was attempting to lure all to the banks of Lake Nipissing, the city engineer of Sudbury was attempting to work out a packet deal whereby various northern communities work out some alternate arrangements.

NEW PRESIDENT

One man who spent most of his time shaking hands last night was Bob Ballard of Ajax. Mr. Ballard will be installed this weekend as the new president of the ORA, succeeding Mrs. Estelle Hawley of Orillia.

Earlier some members of the North Bay group struck more serious notes. Said recreation director Jacks: "Recreation is the greatest antidote to communism we have."

Mr. Jacks was pleased by the speech from Dr. Earle Zeigler of the University of Western Ontario at Friday afternoon's symposium suggesting that recreation director has achieved professional status. He pointed out, however, that it accentuates the problem of "taking a philosophy and putting it in a more or less mechanical setting."

The fact that people tend to lose their individuality in this modern machine age is "so obvious and logical that people can't see it," said Mr. Jacks. He cited as evidence of the decline of individualism activities of unions in seeking shorter work weeks. The work-week is becoming shorter and shorter "out of necessity" for workers would "go crazy" doing most jobs for more than a limited time.

Recreation has two great aims, Mr. Jacks continued in an interview with the Examiner. It makes a man "feel he's really somebody" and it cuts across class and economic gradations to make democracy more of a fact and less of a word.

Whatever a man's line of business, he is circumscribed by his job, Mr. Jacks continued. He mention a banker coming out to lay cement blocks, a letter carrier becoming an important individual as a square-dance caller, and men and women from all walks of life learning to live together.

HEADACHE TOO

But recreation is a headache too, the North Bay delegation agreed, since the wishes of the public take so many manifestations and since rcereation is a word with innumerable ramifications and since recreation is a is one of only 12 recreation directors now active out of 80 five years ago. New ones have filled the gaps but many fall out due to "ulcers, heart-attacks and blasting phone calls."

The future of recreation in Ontario? Recreation direction, says Mr. Jacks may sometimes be nerve-wracking but it is one of the most important jobs there is. It becomes more and more important with each passing year, as the human race collectively loses a bit more individuality.

Mr. Nacks was wearing a blazer with the Ontario Recreation motto in Latin—famam extendimus factis; by their deeds ye shall know them. He felt this was a fitting motto for the young, growing and significant profession of recreation direction.

Firm Fined $500 For Unfair Practices

TORONTO (CP) — The Daily Commercial News Ltd., was fined a total of $500 and costs Friday on five charges of unfair labor practices laid under provisions of the Ontario Labor Relations Act.

E. J. L. Stinson, the company president, was jointly convicted and given a suspended sentence.

The charges were laid by the Office and Professional Workers' organizing committee (CCL), bargaining agent for the company's editorial and business employees.

Stinson and the company were convicted of altering wage rates without the consent of the union after the union had been legally certified and before a conciliation board had reported. They were also convicted of two attempts to interfere with the administration of the union and of trying to compel employees to resign from the union.

Spain Cuts Off Garbage Collection

LA LINEA, Spain (AP)—Spain took further action against the British in Gibraltar today: They'll have to get rid of their own garbage from now on.

Spanish authorities announced that for sanitary reasons Gibraltar garbage may no longer be brought to Spain. It was believed the move will mainly hurt Spanish garbagemen who made their living collecting it for processing and sale as fertilizer.

Today's move came as the Spanish consulate in Gibraltar closed and moved to San Roque, Spain. This action, like the garbage ban, were believed made in protest over the visit here May 10 of Queen Elizabeth, which the Spanish government has said offends all Spaniards. The Spanish consider Gibraltar their territory, unjustly held by Britain.

Asks For Elephant Boy To Get One

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Five-year-old Peter R. Marmorek of Granby, Que., asked Prime Minister Nehru for an elephant, and so naturally he's getting one.

The lad unselfishly didn't ask one for himself, however—for which his parents undoubtedly are grateful. He wanted an elephant for the Granby zoo. His letter to Nehru last November was followed by a separate appeal from Granby's 8,000 children which was forwarded by the town mayor.

A government spokesman said today instructions have been issued to the Madras state government for sending a baby elephant to Canada as soon as possible, as a present from Nehru to Canadian children.

U.K. Scientist Visits Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Sir Alexander Fleming, discoverer of penicillin, is visiting Canada with his wife. They are guests of Sir Alexander's niece and nephew, the Campbell Smiths of Oakville.

The British scientist visited Niagara Falls Friday with Lady Fleming on a sight-seeing trip.

On the way the Flemings and another couple stopped for lunch at a restaurant at Jordan Harbor near St. Catharines and a waitress from Scotland recognized Sir Alexander.

Mrs. Peggy Kempster, who came to Canada from Scotland six years ago, said later Sir Alexander asked her about her Scottish accent and said he came from her hometown of Darvel in Ayrshire.

"You wouldn't be Sir Alexander Fleming, would you?" she asked him. Surprised, he said he was. Mrs. Kempster said she once heard Sir Alexander make a speech in Darvel.

board, now new dwellings will be allowed on lots with less than 40 foot frontage.

NO EXTERIOR CHANGES

Because this city has so many old homes built on comparatively narrow lots, the board has recommended to allow the conversion into apartments, providing no exterior changes are made, and each living unit contains a minimum of 500 square feet of floor space. This, of course, is restricted to R1 and RM areas.

Most of the other questions presented by some 80 people at the meeting come under the "non-conformers" provision which states in part: "shall not apply to any land, building or structure which, on the day of the passing of this bylaw, is used or erected for any purpose prohibited by the bylaw, so long as it continues to be used for that purpose, nor shall this bylaw apply to any building or structure the plans for which have, prior to the day of the passing of this bylaw, been approved by the municipal architect or building inspector, so long as the building or structure when erected is used for the purpose for which it was erected."

Any enterprise under the preceding limitations may also be sold or rented by the owner, providing the policy and size remain the same.

Civic Disobedience Campaign Fading Out In British Guiana

By SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

GEORGETOWN (OFNS)—The People's Progressive party's civil disobedience campaign, launched over two weeks ago by the deposed Premier, Dr. Cheddi Jagan, has lost momentum and appears to be on the verge of collapse as a result of the firmness of the British Guiana administration in dealing with the situation.

But for isolated acts of vandalism by youthful members of this Communist-influenced party, the country has again lapsed into a guarded quiet after a brief period of confused strikes and demonstrations in protest against the arrest of the party leaders. Attempted defiance, stirred up by PPP agitators, has been effectively squashed by use of of tear-smoke on demonstrators in the capital and at the PPP stronghold, the Port Mourant sugar estate on the Corentyne coast.

For breaking an order by the Governor in council, restricting his movements to Georgetown, Jagan is now serving a six-months sentence. For inciting and taking part in unauthorized demonstrations while the colony is in a state of emergency, fines have been imposed on other party leaders, including the party secretary, Janet Jagan, and the vice-chairman, Rory Westmaas, who was named in a British government white paper as organiser of the Communist movement here. Fifty-one other demonstrators, mainly youths, are awaiting trial.

But for a half-hearted response at its nerve-centre, Port Mourant, the party's call for country-wide strikes has flopped. An attempt to hold up loading and unloading of ships was defeated when, after a shift of stevedores dominated by PPP men refused to work, other waterfront workers flocked to take their places. Sugar estates where workers had gone on strike at the party's command are back to normal. Unlike the period just before the suspension of the colony's new constitution, the trade union movement is taking no active part in PPP-sponsored activities.

Following security police raids and confiscations of subsversive literature, the party has shifted its headquarters from the centre of Georgetown to a slum district on the outskirts of the city, which is due to be cleared in a current rehousing plan for slum dwellers. The activities of party agitators in the city are now limited to chalking anti-government slogans on roads and walls. The impression gained from all this has been that the party sprung its disobedience campaign prematurely.

On the brighter side, the finance committee of the interim legislature is rapidly pushing ahead with the United Kingdom-aided development budget and has approved expenditure on various schemes for housing drainage and irrigation. A social security expert from the United Kingdom is here, examining the possibilities of putting into effect several "welfare state" schemes. Hundreds of applicants are being interviewed by officials of the Credit Corporation (which has not yet been officially put into operation) while the corporation's chairman-designate, Dr. Norman Duthie is in London briefing the Colonial Office on progress so far.

With the collapse of the PPP efforts at sabotage, there is some progress to report.

CO Apologizes For Manhandling Photographers

VANCOUVER (CP) — A CBC spokesman denied Friday that a television truck had been admitted to the scene of a $2,000,000 RCAF hangar fire here while other newspaper men were held back.

The spokesman said the only vehicle connected with the CBC at the fire Thursday night was a private car operated by a free lance motion picture camera man assigned by the corporation to cover the fire.

It was not stopped, he said, but added that no prior arrangement had been made for its admission.

The spokesman said the automobile was inscribed "CBC-NBC" on the back.

OPENS INVESTIGATION

The statement came as Wing Cmdr. Donald MacDonald, officer commanding the Sea island base, opened a personal investigation into alleged manhandling of newspaper men by service police.

Two newspapers, the Vancouver Sun and the News-Herald, complained their photographers were mistreated.

Wing Cmdr. MacDonald later called a midnight press conference to apologize on behalf of his men and turned over RCAF photographers' negatives to the newspapers.

RCAF Denies Centre To Cost $6,000,000

OTTAWA (CP)—The air force agrees its new Cold Lake weapons range in northern Alberta will have an attractive recreation centre, but says it will cost nothing like $6,000,000.

An RCAF spokesman said Friday night the building is almost complete. It had cost $733,000 to date and the maximum cost probably would be $735,000.

The spokesman was commenting on a Canadian Press report about the Cold Lake base, 150 miles northeast of Edmonton, describing a "$6,000,000 recreational centre."

He said the discrepancy probably arose over the fact that the contractor building the centre had a $6,000,000 contract which also included several other buildings.

Fishermen Busy As Trout Season Opens

- By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The "gone fishin'" sign makes its first 1954 appearance today in Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia as the trout season opens. Thousands of fishermen are expected to head for the running streams and the open lakes to try for the big ones that got away last year.

A Canadian Press survey today shows that in five other provinces fishermen started earlier to wet their lines.

New Brunswick got trout anglers off to an early opening April 1. Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and Manitoba followed April 15 and Quebec April 21.

HAVE TO WAIT'

Newfoundland and Saskatchewan will keep eager fishermen away from pools and streams until May 15.

Only feathered lures may be used on Newfoundland's salmon rivers. Alberta prohibits spear fishing, as does British Columbia which rules out "frog man" fishing with diving helmets and spear guns. Use of minnows as bait is unlawful in Quebec waters in which speckled, grey or Quebec red trout are found, except when such minnows were taken in the same waters.

Opening with the speckled trout season in Ontario today are the seasons for brown and rainbow trout. Black bass season in most areas runs from July 1 to Oct. 15.

Rail Unions Hint Next Move May Be Strike Vote

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for unions representing non-operating employees of Canada's major railways said today a conciliation board appointed to study a current dispute had failed to make a proper report. He intimated the next move may be for the unions to call a strike vote.

Frank H. Hall, chairman of a union committee representing 145,000 railway workers, said the unions could not accept the opinions of conciliation board members as representing a proper report under law.

Findings of the three-member federal conciliation board were made public in Ottawa Thursday. The union committee has been studying the three separate reports by the board members since Thursday.

WILL TALK ANY TIME

Asked if the unions would resume negotiations with the railways if requested to do so by the federal government, Mr. Hall said: "We'll discuss anything with anyone at any time."

He said the union's negotiating committee is remaining in session here.

Th board largely turned down proposals by the unions, seeking a variety of fringe benefits but no general wage increases. The railways have estimated the fringe benefits would cost them approximately $60,000,000 a year.

TWO AGREE IN PART

The nominee of the companies on the board recommended all union proposals be turned down outright. The chairman—Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock—and the labor representative went together some of the way—but in differing degrees—on two union demands.

In relaying the board's findings to the unions, Labor Minister Gregg said the recommendations of Mr. Justice Kellock together with those of A. J. Wickens—the employees' representative—constituted the board's report to the extent that their recommendations coincided.

In a letter to M. M. MacLean, director of industrial relations in the labor department, Mr. Hall said the opinions of the two members of the board could not be accepted as constituting a report as contemplated by law.

RAPS LONG DELAY

In releasing the letter, Mr. Hall said there was no purpose in discussing the various opinions.

He said proceedings now have taken six months.

They have, he said, "accomplished nothing." The unions could not tolerate further delay.

"That the conciliation board failed to carry out its responsibilities," he said, "is most regrettable, and has given rise to profound dissatisfaction among the employees."

Asked if a strike vote would be the next move, Mr. Hall said the matter has been considered.

Heavy Losses Forced Rebels Halt Attack

HANOI (CP) — The French high command said tonight "extremely heavy losses" suffered by the Vietminh forced the Communist - led rebels to break off their massive infantry assault on Dien Bien Phu.

The Vietminh made their third major attack on the surrounded fortress Saturday night and early Sunday.

Their action in breaking off the assault came as something of a surprise because previous reports had indicated the Vietminh could probably overrun the besieged French position whenever they threw their much greater numbers into the charge.

The French high command said the explanation was the "extremely heavy losses" inflicted by the defenders.

A comparative lull, broken only by sporadic artillery and mortar fire, today replaced the grim fighting that had ranged around the fortress.

SUPPLIES DELIVERED

The French took advantage of the respite to parachute tons of ammunition and supplies. The defenders also moved forward at several points, closing gaps in their lines left after Saturday's assault.

The Vietminh had launched their third wave-on-wave infantry assault on the fortress Saturday night.

Before they broke off their wild charges from all sides of the shrunken French perimeter, the rebels had choked off three more of the strongpoints guarding the bunkered command headquarters of Brig.-Gen. Christian de Castries and also overrun "Isabelle," an isolated outpost three miles south of the main fortress defences.

SAY OUTPOST REGAINED

A later French announcement said the defenders in a violent counter-attack had recaptured Isabelle.

The battle raged at close range for hours Saturday night and Sunday as the garrison force, outnumbered about six to one and squeezed into a trap less than a mile across, fought for their lives with bayonets, knives and hand grenades.

The French high command said its losses were heavy, but claimed the enemy toll was "extremely" high.

Pair In Car Fire At Police Constable

HAMILTON (CP) — Police constable John Brown escaped injury Sunday when a bullet fired by one of two men in a speeding auto shattered the no-draft window of his police cruiser during a chase near the western entrance to the city.

He fired two shots at the speeding car which was travelling in the opposite direction, but his cruiser slipped into the ditch as he tried to swing round to follow the car.

Earlier, constable Brown attempted to check an auto without a rear licence plate, but the driver sped away.

The constable continued after it towards Waterdown for about a mile, then noticed a car similar to the one he had been chasing travelling towards him at a high rate of speed. The shot came as he swung the cruiser around.

Police have not located the auto.

Have First Plan For Expressway

TORONTO (CP) — Preliminary plans are ready for a $50,000,000 expressway to speed 100,000 cars and trucks a day across the Toronto waterfront, the metropolitan Toronto government announced today.

Running from the east end to the Humber river on the west, the expressway is expected to be elevated through the central downtown section and to swing into Lake Ontario on bridgework to get past the Canadian National Exhibition grounds.

The plans have yet to be considered by the metropolitan council's committees and by the council itself.

1,500,000,000 More People

Fear World Can't Support Big Population Increase

UNITED NATIONS, N Y. (CP) The world's population will rise by 1,500,000,000 in the next 30 years—with dubious prospect of world production to support such an increase—United Nations experts say.

In a 400-page report on population published Sunday, the UN forecasts that rising birth rates and lowered death rates may increase the present figure of 2,500,000,000 to 4,000,000,000 in a generation. And while the potentiality exists to sustain such an increase, the report finds, "ignorance, greed, strife, superstition and blind adherence to tradition" will prevent mankind from accomplishing works that are in his power.

Production of the necessities of life will not keep pace with the expansion of population, and living standards will be depressed, says the report, which was in preparation several years. It was prepared by the UN's department of social affairs.

RAPID RISE SEEN

The report finds that the highest fertility rates are in the lowest regions of industrial development. And medical advances over the last few years are reflected in the gradual extension of life expectancy, even in under-developed areas.

"Barring catastrophes such as major wars," says the report, "rapid increases during the next few decades seem almost inevitable."

Suggested steps toward a solution are easing of restrictions on international trade and migration, merging of countries in larger economic, if not political, units, and the intensification of international co-operation, especially in provision of capital to the underdeveloped countries that need it most.

Peace Talk Agreement Now Reached

East-West Manage To Smooth Out Indo-China Issue

GENEVA (AP)— East and West reached virtual agreement today on the setting up of a peace conference to end the bloody fighting in Indo-China.

The Soviet Union agreed, French sources said, to a Western proposal that Communist-led Vietminh representatives be invited to the conference by the Soviet Union instead of Red China.

The Western Big Three and Foreign Minister Nguyen Quoc Dinh of Viet Nam formally agreed to admit Vietminh representatives with the understanding that this would not imply recognition of the Vietminh regime as a state.

The Russians and the West already had agreed that nine parties would attend the conference, the Big Four, the Chinese Reds, the Vietminh, and the three associated states of Indo-China, Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

Smoothing out of the issue of Vietminh status came as the Korean deadlock showed no signs of a break at the Far East conference and some of the Western foreign ministers began heading for home.

DULLES GOES HOME

State Undersecretary Walter Bedell Smith, who will take over the U.S. delegation, attended today's talk on Indo-China with Britain's foreign secretary Eden and France's foreign minister Bidault. State Secretary Dulles had planned to attend but was prevented by last-minute preparations for his departure for Washington.

Richard G. Casey, Australian external affairs minister, also left today, expressing "restrained optimism" on the outcome of the conference. His country is holding a general election May 29 and he is going home to take part in the campaign.

Several other foreign ministers are expected to leave in the next week or two, but Russia's foreign minister Molotov is understood to have said he will stay two more weeks.

North Korea's Pyongyang radio said Dulles' desparture for home "proves how the United States is insincere for solution of the Korean problems." The broadcast said North Korea would accept no other plan for Korean unification except foreign minister Nam Il's declaration to the conference that all foreign troops must withdraw from the peninsula, and that Korea-

The RCAF's C-5 aircraft which carried the party was scheduled to arrive at the U. S. capital at 4 p. m. EDT.

Accompanying the party were Mrs. Claxton, Mrs. Stuart, Lionel Massey, the governor - general's secretary, and Mrs. Lionel Massey. A group of newspapermen and representatives of the CBC and the National Film Board also were aboard.

Report Britain Has New Kind H-Bomb

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Express says today Britain has developed a new type of hydrogen bomb "far simpler and cheaper to produce" than the one devised by U. S. scientists.

It is described as "a sensational discovery of which the Russians and Americans are believed to know nothing."

Chapman Pincher, Express science writer, says the British weapon "does not involve the use of large quantities of expensive heavy hydrogen as the ordinary H-bomb does."

Pincher, who does not cite the source of his information, says the new bomb was successfully tested at the Woomera weapons range in Australia Oct. 26.

Fines, Jail Terms Ordered In Spy Inquiry

MELBOURNE (CP) — Prime Minister Robert Menzies today announced a new system of fines and jail terms directed against anyone obstructing a forthcoming probe into Russia's spy system in Australia.

Wide and unprecedented powers will be granted a royal commission due to open the investigation soon. The probe was set off by evidence given to authorities last month by Vladimar Petrov, third secretary at the Soviet embassy, who broke with communism and was granted political asylum, along with his wife.

Menzies said a fine of up to $1,100 will be imposed on a witness who fails to answer a summons to appear for questioning or refuses to be sworn or answer relevant questions.

Any witness knowingly giving false evidence will be liable to up to five years imprisonment, while anyone destroying books or documents required as evidence will be liable to two years in prison.

THREE JUDGES TO SIT

The commission, which will meet May 17, will consist of three Supreme Court judges. It will inquire into whether any persons or organizations in Australia have given information to Russian agents, and if so, what methods were used.

Petrov turned over sheafs of secret documents to the Australian government, and the commission will first look into these.

It is understood the hearing of detailed evidence likely will not begin until after the May 29 general election because of the time needed to translate the documents.

Deaf Youngster, 8, Missing 5 Days

TORONTO (CP)—Steve Pacholok, eight years old and deaf, disappeared from his east-end home last Thursday. He is still missing.

His mother, Mrs. Joseph Pacholok, said today she and her husband, both Ukrainian-born, met in Austria, were married there and their two sons were born there. She said they recently bought a house and, before the boy vanished, were finding life in Canada "like a wonderful dream."

Said Mrs. Pacholok, fighting to keep back her tears:

"If my Steve is found dead, then I will die too."

Trolley Hits Army Truck 10 Of 14 Soldiers Injured

TORONTO (CP)—A big army truck proceeding across a downtown intersection as part of a police-escorted 10-vehicle convoy, collided with a speeding streetcar and overturned Sunday.

The truck, returning with others from an army exercise at Camp Borden, went into a spin and turned over 75 feet south of the intersection at Queen St. and University Ave., spilling soldiers over the roadway.

Ten of the 14 soldiers in the truck were injured, none seriously. Eight were members of the Toronto Scottish Reserve regiment. The injured were taken to hospital.

Police said the convoy entered the intersection on a green traffic light and five of the trucks had cleared it when the light turned red. The plan was to halt all east-west traffic until the southbound convoy had proceeded through.

POLICEMAN ON DUTY

A motorcycle policeman parked in the middle of the intersection to stop the traffic. He said the light controlling north-south traffic was red at the time the westbound street car came across the intersection "at what seemed full power." Before moving into the intersection the street-car had been stopped at the northeast corner.

"I saw it bearing down on us and I was sure we were going to be hit," said Cpl. E. W. Crook. "I could hear our driver gunning the motor, and then the street-car hit the rear of the truck."

All but one or two of the soldiers were thrown out of the open vehicle as it turned over.

The operator of the street-car was George Offen.

Pearson Decides Defer Speech

GENEVA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson of Canada decided today to defer his scheduled speech on Korea. He will probably speak Tuesday instead.

Earlier, the Canadian minister had been expected to address the sixth plenary session of the Geneva conference after the South Korean speaker, Foreign Minister Pyung Yung-tai.

Pearson and Chester Ronning, Canadian Far Eastern affairs expert, today attended a meeting of 16 United Nations countries to renew discussions on the Allied approach to Korea.

Prison Ball Game Comes To Sudden End When 19 'Fans' Snip Way Through Fence

ATMORE, Ala. (AP) — A ball game between two prison teams ended abruptly in the fourth inning Sunday when 19 of the spectators snipped their way through a steel mesh fence under a sleeping tower guard.

Seventeen escapers from Atmore state prison were rounded up. The search for the two convicts still missing spread out today.

Henry Sawyer, the tower guard who admitted falling asleep, was fired immediately. Three other guards were suspended pending an investigation.

J. M. McCullough, state prison director, said the recaptured men told him they had noticed Sawyer asleep in his tower, and cut their way through the fence almost directly below him.

The other three guards were suspended because "they could have stopped the break if they had been alert," McCullough said. They apparently were so interested in the close game that they didn't see the bleachers emptying.

The team from neighboring Kilby prison at Montgomery was leading Atmore 3-2 in the fourth when the escape ended the game.

Jet Disintegrates In Swamp Crash

BEAVERTON—Falling like a leaf, and then plunging end over end earthward, a jet plane crashed in a swamp near here shortly after noon Sunday, killing its pilot, FO. James A. Purvis, 57 Harris Park Dr., Toronto.

The impact resulted in a crater some 30 feet across. Pieces of the plane were scattered over the farm of Duncan Wallace for a distance of 400 yards.

John Judd of Gamebridge said he first noticed the plane flying high and it seemed to be experiencing engine trouble.

"It fell like a leaf," Judd related. "Then it seemed to straighten out and the engine caught again. But a moment later the plane was coming down end over end."

The Beaverton fire brigade was on the scene in a matter of minutes and doused the wreckage with tons of water, transforming the crater into a pond. The area later was roped off by RCAF personnel.

The plane was from 411 auxiliary squadron stationed at Downsview Airport near Toronto and was on a routine training flight.

Whole Town Locks Up To Take Day's Fishing

SEYMOUR, Tex. (AP) — This whole town locks up shop today and goes fishing.

It's a custom 28 years old. When those first symptoms of spring fever show up and the fish get to jumping in nearby Lake Kemp, they lock up downtown and grab a pole. A proclamation of the mayor says:

". . . and I do further hereby proclaim that on said date each and every citizen shall lay aside his daily pursuits and gird and arm himself with fishing pole, line, hook, and bait, and make his way by the most expeditious means of transportation to the said shores of Lake Kemp and there test his skill, strength, wit and patience against the said wily fish in the time-honored fashion and manner."

BULLETIN

HALIFAX (CP)—An RCAF Sabre jet fighter crashed in Miramichi bay eight miles from its base at Chatham, N.B., today. Search and Rescue here reported, There was no immediate trace of the pilot, whose name was not disclosed.

GENEVA (Reuters)—Chou En Lai, Communist China's premier and foreign minister, told the Geneva conference today that China is willing to join the other states in undertaking to keep out of Korea's internal affairs.

21 Flee Flames In Boarding House Twice In One Night

HAMILTON (CP)—Police and fire department officials said today that two separate fires which broke out in the basement of a private boarding house on Douglas street Sunday appeared to be the work of an arsonist.

Twenty-one persons, including 17 children ranging in age from three weeks to 11 years, narrowly escaped being burned to death as flames crept up through the frame building.

Following a thorough investigation by city detectives, the fire marshal's office was notified and their representative will conduct a further inquiry today.

MORE—

Deputy chief Gerald McAlister said this morning that his men were first called to the boarding house at 305 a. m. Sunday.

"We found smoke pouring from the basement," the chief said "The flames were starting to eat through the walls and had burned out a cupboard at the foot of the stairway leading to the cellar."

"When my men reached the foot of the stairway they found rags covered with some substance piled up at the bottom," Deputy Chief McAlister stated.

GOT CHILDREN OUT

By the time the firefighters arrived, Mrs. Grace Mitchell, who runs the boarding house, and her father, Alvin Badder, had managed to get all the children outside.

"There were children sleeping on each of the three floors," Mrs. Mitchell said. "My first thought was to get them out."

She also awakened Mr. and Mrs. Michael Szafranski and their son Michael, who rent rooms in the home, and they assisted in getting the children out.

Deputy Chief McAlister said that if the fire had had a little more time to get started, it would have spread through the whole building in a flash.

SECOND FIRE BREAKS OUT

The chief said that when he was satisfied that the fire was out, he sent his men back to their stations.

Then, at 4:52 a. m., a second call was received from the Kitchell residence.

New Fraud Charge Against Valdmanis

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Dr. Alfred A. Valdmanis, former right-hand man of Premier Smallwood, was charged Saturday with defrauding a German machine company of $270,000, bringing the total fraud charges against him to $420,000.

Valdmanis, earlier charged with defrauding the Newfoundland government of $150,000, was read the second charge Saturday, involving $360,000, but Solicitor-general Myles Murray, appearing for the crown, reduced the charge by $90,000. No reason was given for the reduction.

Red Espionage Hard Hit By Defection

By BRACK CURRY

BONN (AP)—Western sources reported today that the defection of Soviet Capt. Nikolai Khokhlov set the stage for a widespread roundup of Red agents that turned into one of the major counter intelligence coups since the war.

These sources said the crackdown on unsuspecting Russian agents in Austria, West Germany, Berlin and other West European areas has dealt a hard blow to the Kremlin's far-flung espionage and kidnapping machine.

United States intelligence authorities won time for the operation by keeping Russia's MVD (ministry of interior) secret police in the dark over Khokhlov's defection for almost two months after he deserted to the West, it was said.

In this period, Khokhlov's disclosures on MVD spying activities in the West first were carefully checked. The trap was set and the arrests followed.

Official sources declined to say how many Kremlin agents were nabbed, but said "the Americans alone did very well with the number they arrested."

SENT FAKE REPORTS

After Khokhlov surrendered to U. S. agents in Frankfurt Feb. 20 he continued to send regular—but fake—reports to the MVD in Austria. He stopped only five days before April 22 when he revealed his defection to the West and the plot to kill a Russian resistance leader, the sources said.

Lakehead Has 8 Inches Snow

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—In the wake of flood conditions a swirling blizzard dumped more than eight inches of snow on the Lakehead area since Sunday.

Spring freshets, which caused washouts on district highways and pushed the Neebing and McIntyre rivers over their banks in places, will be further swelled when weekend snows melt.

Traffic on district roads was slowed or disrupted.

Hundreds of city basements were flooded and urban transport transit operated with difficulty.

Rumor Dulles May Resign

British Papers Concerned At Allied Geneva Split

LONDON (AP)—British newspapers voiced concern today over what some of them called a split among the Western Allies in Geneva. This reaction was mixed with expressions of relief that Prime Minister Churchill has taken a firm stand against becoming involved in the Indo-China fighting.

Criticism of U. S. State Secretary Dulles came from several commentators, with one report out of Geneva that he would offer his resignation on returning to Washington this week. Geneva reporters said they could find no comment on this report, nor any substantiation forit.

"CLIMB-DOWN" SEEN

Richard Crossman, left - wing follower of Aneurin Bevan in the House of Commons, wrote in the mass-circulation Sunday Pictorial:

"We have just witnessed one of the most spectacular climb-downs in diplomatic history.

"Ten days ago Washington was still threatening the Chinese Communists with 'united military action' if they did not clear out of Indo-China. Mr. Dulles . . . was denouncing any idea of negotiating a settlement with them as sheer appeasement.

"Now the Americans are sitting down to negotiate at Geneva, and President Eisenhower has informed his weekly news conference that 'he wants some solution that might be acceptable and would stop the fighting.'

"The reason for this climb-down seems to me simple enough. 'United action' was always a gigantic bluff. Now that bluff has been called."

RESIGNATION RUMOR

Lord Beaverbrook's independent Sunday Express said in a Geneva-datelined story that there were reports Dulles would offer his resignation — and explained:

"Reason for the reports . . . are the severe jolts that have hit him in the past two weeks.

"One was the president's policy statement on Indo-China about getting along somehow with the Communists.

"Another jolt has been the British refusal to budge from the policy of non-intervention in Indo-China unless the Geneva conference breaks down utterly.

"A third jolt was Mr. Dulles having to step down from chairmanship of the talks as the price of keeping Chou En-lai, China's prime minister, out of the chair, too."

ORA President Addresses Rotary Club

"In this country it's almost a crime to become old," Bob Ballard, of Ajax, newly-elected president of the Ontario Recreation Association told the Peterborough Rotary club today.

Since older people often "feel neglected and left out" particular emphasis has been put on recreation for this group by the ORA, Mr. Ballard continued. He said that it is one of the age groups which need most attention by professional recreation directors.

"Professional" is an apt word, Mr. Ballard felt. He pointed out that recreation directors must not only win diplomas before they can take their jobs, but must also continue to qualify each year through written examinations. Mr. Ballard mentioned one friend of his now studying for 44 examinations.

Briefly sketching the aims and functions of the ORA, Mr. Ballard paid tribute to the department of education's community programs branch. Government leaders work with professional recreation directors throughout the eleven ORA zones in Ontario.

But the core of the recreation movement is the people themselves, said Mr. Ballard. Sometimes it's difficult to reach these folk, because it is difficult to overcome the objections of "money-conscious city councils who sometimes look upon recreation as a frill."

Mr. Ballard recalled one case where a city council had passed, without comment, an $80,000 appropriation for a new jail but had turned down a request for $1,500 to develop a playground in an underprivileged area.

It is "very hard to put a dollar value on such an intangible thing as recreation." The speaker compared the work of a recreation director to that of a policeman, both public servants whose contributions are "vital but intangible."

Mr. Ballard also made mention of the ORA conference held here over the weekend. Discussing resolutions passed by the conference, reported on another page, he stressed that recreation is "far more than sports." Recreation, he said, includes all intellectual, social, and artistic and physical leisure time activities.

Mr. Ballard, who is Ajax recreation director and area representative of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, was introduced by Dr. Lloyd Thompson. He was thanked by YWCA secretary Jim McCleneghan.

Korean Blasts Asia For Asians Red Policy

GENEVA (AP)—South Korean Foreign Minister Pyung Yung-tai today attacked the Communist program of "Asia for the Asians" and urged the United States to play a greater role in Asia.

Speaking before the Geneva Conference, Pyung delivered a vigorous attack on Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, Red China's Foreign Minister Chou En-lai and North Korean Foreign Minister Nam Il.

SAYS TRUTH DISTORTED

Pyung accused the three Communist diplomats of lying and distorting the truth.

Turning to their demands that the Asians be left to settle their own problems, the South Korean foreign minister said:

"I am sure the Communist delegates are reviving the Japanese sphere of co-prosperity for the Asians with a view to knocking their nascent and bewildered nationalisms behind the Iron Curtain."

Pyun opposed the North Korean proposal for Communist-style elections in Korea, contending they would result in Communist control of the entire Korean peninsula.

Dollar Reserves Higher During April

LONDON (AP) — The sterling area's gold and dollar reserves jumped by $125,000,000 during April —biggest monthly increase in more than two years, the treasury announced today.

The pooled reserves—which are supervised by Britain—stood at $2,820,000,000 on April 30, the announcement said.

A treasury spokesman said the April increase was the biggest since the government began making monthly announcements in January, 1952. Highest previous rise was recorded in November, 1952 when the reserves went up by $128,000,000.

Last month the reserves—lifeblood of Britain's economy—were increased by $102,000,000 as Britain's export drive pushed on.

Sign Agreement For Import Of Natural Gas

CHATHAM (CP) — An agreement has been signed for the importation from the United States of 15,500,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas annually, the Union Gas Company announced today. This is in addition to the 5,500,000,000 cubic feet presently being imported each year.

Union Gas officials said the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Lines Limited, Texas, has agreed to a 20-year contract to supply the natural gas which would be distributed to southwestern Ontario centres after a U. S. federal power commission permit is granted.

The agreement permits the Canadian company to discontinue importation from the U. S. when gas from Alberta arrives in Ontario by the proposed Trans-Canada pipe line.

To carry out the program the Canadian company will build a large-diameter line from its underground storage area in Lambton county to a point east of Oakville. Lateral lines will supply the Hamilton area, Guelph Kitchener, Waterloo, Stratford, St. Mary's and Strathroy.

Officials said if the U. S. federal power commission in Washington grants the Texas Company an export permit in the near future the new line from the Sarnia area may be completed this fall or early next year.

AIRCRAFT PROGRAM CHIEF —Thor Stephenson, 35, of Winnipeg has been appointed to head the defence production department's $400,000,000-a-year aircraft production program. Mr. Stephenson, former deputy director of the aircraft branch, succeeds T. N. Beaupre of Montreal who leaves shortly to take up an executive post with a Montreal chemical corporation. (CP Photo).

Winnipeg Man Heads Aircraft Production Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Production Minister Howe today appointed Thor Stephenson of Winnipeg to head the department's $400,000,000-a-year aircraft production program.

The 35-year-old aeronautical engineer, former deputy director of the aircraft branch, takes over from T. N. Beaupre of Montreal who leaves shortly to take up an executive post with a Montreal chemical corporation.

The defence production department has been undergoing cutting and squeezing to fit it into a peacetime economy geared to a "long haul" defence program, but the aircraft branch is still as busy as ever, concentrating on production of jet fighters, trainers, navy planes and new reconnaissance air wagons for the RCAF.

Mr. Stephenson, graduated from the University of Toronto and the California Institute of Technology, will be pushing ahead with production and modification of the all-Canadian CF-100 jet fighter.

The powerful, twin-engine all-weather jet may eventually be turned into a delta-winged body, shaped for higher supersonic speeds.

OTHER AIR PROGRAMS

Other major aircraft programs include the F-86 Sabre jet fighter, the T-3 jet trainer, the T-34 Beechcraft trainer for the United States, production of United States Grumman anti-submarine planes for the Canadian navy and the purchase of U.S. Banshee fighters for Canada's new aircraft carrier the Bonaventure, now under construction.

Still another program is the modification to Canadian design of Britain's Bristol Britannia, to be produced at Canadair Ltd., Montreal, as a reconnaissance plane for the RCAF.

All these programs are concentrated in the department's aircraft branch, with total costs running about $400,000,000 a year. Mr. Stephenson says spending likely will be stabilized at that figure "for some years."

U.S. BACKS SOUTH KOREA

The U.S. has just as emphatically backed South Korea's insistence that elections for North Korean members of the present South Korea parliament be held under United Nations supervision.

Dulles, who before coming to Geneva had been reported doubtful that any progress would be made on Korea, devoted most of his efforts while here to an attempt at building up the Asian defence alliance he has proposed.

After talks with Eden and Bidault, the U.S. secretary was known to be optimistic about the chances of such a pact coming into effect.

Neither Britain nor France, however, is ready to announce any such alliance while the Geneva conference is on.

Just before leaving, Dulles said in a formal statement that he believes peace in Indo-China "will be more readily obtained if it can be fitted into a framework of collective security."

Dulles said he felt the Korean phase of the conference had made a "good start," despite the deadlock.

Not Wine Bottle Just Ginger Ale Defendants Win

The nigger in the woodpile turned out to be a real white man, in fact three white men, when city detective Dennis Traynor investigated behind a pile of lumber at the end of Simcoe St. on Friday evening.

He spied Joseph Gray, 38, Edward Hummel, 52, and John Whaley, 42, all of Peterborough, doing a bit of steady drinking. However, just at that moment one of the men threw the bottle into the river.

In court to day the three men hotly protested their innocence to charges of consuming liquor in a place other than their residences. On the evidence given under oath by Gray, which Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw just could not believe, the magistrate dismissed the charges against all three men.

He said there was a shadow of doubt in his mind, and with that, he could not enter convictions.

"Two of them will probably be back next week anyhow," he added. All three men admitted fairly lengthy lists of previous liquor offenses.

Detective Traynor said that he thought the men were drinking from a bottle of wine. However, he could not see the label because there were too many hands in the bottle. "Mr. Grady really hung onto the bottle and he pretty near went into the river with it," he said amid laughter.

Mr. Bradshaw: "You mean he didn't like to see it go?"

Detective Traynor: "No sir, he certainly did not."

At this stage Gray asked Gordon H. T. Farquharson to defend his case. So the magistrate sent for Mr. Farquharson and acquainted him with the facts to date.

Mr. Farquharson: "Well, I gather they were'nt cutting wood anyhow."

ALL DRUNK

He asked the detective if he was certain the men were drinking wine. The detective admitted that he could not be certain. However, the men were all intoxicated.

Gray told the court that he and his friends had been told by a friend that there was a partly filled bottle of whisky hidden near the woodpile, and that they could have it. The men purchased a bottle of ginger ale to drink with the whisky.

"We couldn't find the bottle of whisky, so we sat down and drank the ginger ale," continued Gray.

He said that he had protested against the throwing away of the bottle, because "I wanted to return it for a refund."

Mr. Bradshaw: "I suppose you were quite disappointed not to find the whisky?"

Gray: "Yes I was."

Whaley gave evidence that was almost identical with Gray's testimony. He said that he had thrown the ginger ale bottle away "just a split second before I saw the detective."

Summing up Mr. Farquharson maintained that Gray had a reasonable tale to tell, and he doubted if the magistrate could convict the men while there was any doubt in his mind.

Mr. Bradshaw, who was quite frank in his disbelief of Gray's story, said that the magistrate must have a "reasonable robust doubt," before dismissing the case.

However, the magistrate must have had a "reasonable, robust doubt," because he dismissed the charges against all the men.

Khokhlov had been sent to West Germany by the MVD with two East German Communists to kill Georgi Okolovich, leader of an anti-Soviet refugee organization.

In his reports to the MVD from Frankfurt, Khokhlov detailed his plans and difficulties in carrying out this assassination in a city teeming with U. S. soldiers. The completely taken in by these reports.

MVD PURGED

In Vienna, the reports were forwarded to the advanced operations base of the MVD in Baden, near the Austrian capital.

The Russians maintain a radio station at Baden to relay priority intelligence information from southern and central Europe to Moscow, the sources said. All of Khokhlov's phony reports on his plans for the murder mission in Frankfurt were radioed to Moscow, indicating the importance the MVD attached to the Frankfurt assassination plan.

The sources said the Russians apparently have purged the Austrian MVD following Khokhlov's defection. A large number of MVD sources, said the MVD was agents at Baden have disappeared.

Frost Damage 75 Per Cent To Fruit Crop

VANCOUVER (CP)—Clouds and light rain moved in from the Pacific ocean and temperatures rose several degrees Sunday and today to end frost conditions which struck hard at Okanagan valley orchards Friday and Saturday.

Estimates place loss to peach, pear, apricot, plum, prune and cherry crops at 75 per cent. These crops brought growers $17,150,000 last year.

The heavy B.C. snow pack, melting under the higher temperatures, so far has failed to push rivers over their banks, but provincial civil defence officials have 100,000 sand bags ready just in case. Diking Commissioner J. L. MacDonald said 30 to 500 men are ready to patrol Fraser river dikes for 75 miles from Aggassiz to the delta.

The federal government spent $8,000,000 rebuilding these dikes after the 1948 floods which caused damage placed at $20,000,000.

PRAIRIES WARMER

Meanwhile, normal spring weather conditions were returning to the western Prairies after new records for cold weather had been set almost daily during the last half of April.

The eastern Prairies are still worried by flood possibilities. Lake Manitoba is at a high level and water has covered some farm land near Delta, Man. All settlements so far are safe.

Nobleman's Wife Routs 2 Robbers

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The wife of a British nobleman has been credited with a little impromptu fencing here that sent two would-be robbers scurrying empty-handed.

Lady Yvonne Dorine Holmes, wife of Sir Williams George Holmes, former commander of the British 9th Army during the second World War, told police that she used a broken shovel handle to fend off an attempt to loot the cash register at the beer depot she and her husband operate here.

She noticed two men loitering outside the drive-in establishment. When one walked quickly into the office and demanded, "Hand over the money," she grabbed the shovel handle and jabbed him sharply in the groin. He doubled up and ran, with his companion close behind.

Queen, Children Pay Visit To Valletta

VALLETTA, Malta (CP)—Queen Elizabeth sailed into the harbor of the British Mediterranean naval base today with the Duke of Edinburgh and their children under an air escort by British, Australian and New Zealand pilots.

The planes flew out to greet the royal yacht Britannia, which brought the Queen and the duke from Tobruk after Saturday's reunion with Prince Charles and Princess Anne, whom they had not seen since late in November when they started their round-the-world Commonwealth tour.

Three artillery batteries fired 21-gun salutes as the Britannia, escorted also by assault landing craft and naval helicopters, entered Valletta harbor.

The Queen will spend a five-day visit on the island which her father, King George VI, decorated in 1942 with Britain's highest award for civilian courage, the George Cross. Maltese civilians won the medal for their bravery under German bombing.

DECORATIONS LAVISH

Early today people began to line the lavishly decorated streets on the royal route from the customs house steps to the governor's palace.

Nearly all Malta's major monuments are being floodlighted for the royal visit. Vessels in harbor, including a floating dock, will also be illuminated.

At the governor's palace, Prime Minister G. Bord Oliver will read an address of welcome to the Queen. Later the Queen will unveil an air force memorial to some of Malta's wartime defenders in a suburb of Valletta, and hold an investiture in the governor's palace.

Eden Emerging Key Man At Conference

By ALAN HARVEY

GENEVA (CP) — A relaxed and vigorous Anthony Eden, back at the top of his form, is emerging as the key man on the Allied side at the Geneva conference.

Apparently completely recovered from his physical setback of last summer, the 57-year-old British foreign secretary is the "cogwheel" of the conference, acting as chief link between the various delegations.

"Mr. Eden is the indispensable man here," a Canadian observer said. "Without him we would never have made such progress."

LIAISON MAN

He has acted as liaison man not only between the rival blocs, such as the United States and Communist China, but also to a considerable degree between the Americans and the French, the French and the Russians, and so on.

He has also served as leader of the "little Commonwealth." This includes Canada, Australia and New Zealand as well as the United Kingdom. Eden consults his Commonwealth partners before taking any major initiative and briefs them fully on the results.

Eden underwent a serious abdominal operation last year. Since then he has sometimes showed signs of strain. At Geneva he is said to be chipper as a school boy.

The highlight of the convention, was the presentation of the Annual Humanitarian Award, an annual award to some Canadian for his outstanding humanitarian work—and the recipient this year, was Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto. The award was presented by Fred Catzman, QC, of Toronto, followed by an address by Dr. Smith.

Democrat Party Sweeps Vote In Turkey

By FRED ZUSY

ISTANBUL (AP) — Official returns today from Turkey's general election promised Premier Adnan Menderes' Democrat party a smashing victory — possibly 94 per cent of the 541 seats in the National Assembly.

Returns from Sunday's voting showed the Democrats ahead in 55 of the 58 reporting provinces and taking nearly two-thirds of the popular vote.

The Democrats' 1950 landslide victory ended 25 years of one-party rule by the Republican party founded by the late Kemal Ataturk, Turkey's national hero.

SEAT 508 DEPUTIES

Returns today indicated that the Democrats will seat 508 deputies, the Republicans no more than 28, and the small Nation party probably five. In 1950, the Democrats won 386 seats and the Republicans and allies 69.

Observers view the outcome as a vote for continuation of the last four years of prosperity under the Democrats. The United States has poured over $1,000,000,000 in economic and military aid into Turkey since the Truman doctrine was launched in 1947.

Turkey's pro - Western foreign policy was not an issue.

Children Cheer As Kiwanis Holds Circus

COBOURG (ENS) — It was a big day for the kiddies on Friday. A circus, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, presented a show at the recreational centre with a good bill.

Elephants, a good lion act, horses, dogs, clowns and acrobats kept the kiddies delighted at the afternoon performance. It was a good test for the floor in the ice arena.

The floor came through last year's disastrous fire with no apparent harm and the heavy elephants put nary a dent in the surface.

Proceeds of the circus receipts, after expenses, go to help finance community work by the Kiwanis Club.

More than 4,000 Canadian troops launched Exercise High Gear I, first of three tests which will end in two weeks with the Canadian force matching its strength against the 7th British Armored Division. The tests, carried out under the direction of the brigade's Montreal-born commander, Brig. W. A. B. Anderson, are the first conducted at battalion and brigade level since the force arrived in Germany last November.

Special observer at today's exercise was Lt.-Gen. Guy G. Simonds, chief of the Canadian general staff, who arrived in Germany Saturday from Paris.

CORNWAL MAN TOP UMP

Smokes Out Starlings Sets Fire To Roof

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — An eviction notice on a nest of starlings in a chimney was served in the form of a hot fire in a kitchen stove. It resulted in a hole being burned in a shingle roof at a Wallace street house about 9 a.m. Sunday morning.

The birds had built a nest in the chimney at the home of Art Donald, and a fire was started in the kitchen stove to smoke the pests out. Some burning paper landed on the dry shingle roof and started a blaze, but it was soon extinguished by firemen, using a garden hose.

Damage to the roof was minor.

The starlings left for parts unknown.

Russian Ship Fires On Danish Boats

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — A small Russian naval vessel opened fire against Danish and Swedish fishing vessels off the Polish coast last week, a Danish fisherman told authorities today.

The fisherman, Holger Petersen, came back to Bornholm in his vessel Alice this morning. He said about 20 Danish and Swedish cutters were fishing off Poland last Friday when a small Russian warship approached and opened fire without warning.

The cutters left the area immediately.

The Russian ship did not fire again and made no attempt to detain any of the boats, he said.

The cutters were fishing for salmon within the 12-mile limit, as they had done the previous day without Russian or Polish fishery protection vessels objecting.

Say Air Show Lost Money

KTCHENER (CP) — Although about 500 people attended the air show at the Waterloo-Wellington airport on Saturday, organizers of the show claim they lost money.

Don Fairborn of London, president of the 1st Canadian Parachute Jumpers and Riggers Association, said it was "the last show we're going to put on unless we get a sponsor."

He said a government regulation that just went into effect forced the association to take out $25,000 public liability insurance.

The show featured aerial demonstrations by fighter squadrons from London, Hamilton and Centralia.

Several chutists made jumps at the start of the show and one suffered a slightly bruised knee. The main jumping exhibition was cancelled due to high wind.

Drag Man, 65 From Burning Trailer

SMITHS FALLS (CP) — Luke Pachut, 65, was dragged from his blazing trailer home Saturday with his clothes afire by a young housewife, Mrs. George Lackey.

Pachut, an unemployed bachelor, was reported in critical condition in hospital here with extensive burns on his back and head. Mrs. Lackey was uninjured. Firemen put out the blaze.

Jerome Doyle, who tried to douse Pachut with a pail of water as he was led from the trailer, said that Pachut grabbed the pail and tried to throw the water on the trailer.

In 1950, Pachut suffered severe burns in a fire that destroyed a small house he had built.

Army Farm Needs No Plowing Grow 3 Vegetable Crops A Year

By JIM BECKER

TOKYO (AP)—Ever hear of a farm that never needed plowing? The U.S. Army has one in operation near here and gets three crops of garden vegetables a year from it.

The plants are grown on beds of pure gravel. These "hydroponic farms" supply fresh vegetables for mess hall tables in Korea and Japan—6,500,000 pounds last year.

The crops get water and chemical food through an irrigation system. The gravel beds produce lettuce, tomatoes, radishes, cabbage, cucumbers, onions, parsley and chard. Even a confirmed dirt farmer couldn't detect a difference in taste.

The unusual farm was started shortly after the war because the army found many Japanese salad vegetables were grown in soil fertilized with human excrement and contained the eggs of harmful intestinal worms.

STILL EXPERIMENT

It was difficult and expensive to send fresh vegetables here from the United States. Experiments during the war with soil-less farming had been tried in Iwo Jima and elsewhere.

The gravel beds produced their first crop in 1947. The farm was operated on a small, experimental scale until the Korean war broke out. Then the hydroponic farm was tripled—to 80 acres.

The hydroponic farm is still an experiment, says Maj. William Cozad of Leon, Iowa, who runs it. "The method is much too expensive for general use," he says.

Cozad estimates it would cost North American farmers about twice as much as traditional dirt farming to grow vegetables by the hydroponic method.

Cottage Traffic Begins

COBOURG (ENS) — Traffic was heavy during the weekend but accidents were few and minor in nature. Car after car was seen heading east on Saturday with trailers filled with cottage furnishings with here and there some hoes, rakes and shovels sticking out of the load. In past years the summer cottage opening programme was later in May but warm weather prompted an earlier trip this year to fix up cottages for the coming summer.

Says He Ordered Picture Taken

FT. DIX, N. J. (AP)—A U. S. Air Force sergeant said today it was his idea and through his orders that a controversial picture of Army Secretary Robert Stevens and Pte. G. David Schine was taken.

Staff Sgt. Herbert G. Manchester of McGuire air force base here testified at the army-McCarthy hearing in Washington Friday but was not asked whether anyone had requested the photograph.

A dispute has arisen as to whether Stevens asked to have the photograph taken.

PHOTOGRAPHER'S IDEA

Manchester said today taking the picture of Stevens and Schine was his idea. Assigned to the air force public information staff, he said, he had read about Schine in the newspapers and believed a picture of the private and the army secretary would be a good idea.

He said he ordered the picture taken, and an air force photographer snapped a group which included Schine, Stevens and Col. Jack T. Bradley.

Schine and Roy M. Cohn, chief counsel of the McCarthy Senate investigations sub-committee, have testified that Stevens asked that the picture be taken. Stevens has expressed doubt that he did.

22½-Inch Trout Leads Anglers' Opening Day

COBOURG (ENS) — Largest trout caught on opening day in this district was a three-pound, five-ounce speckled by Tom Munroe of Grafton, who was fishing in Shelter Valley Creek. The fish was 22½ inches long. The weather was ideal for the opener. It rained slightly just after daybreak and then cleared into a warm day. The fish were biting well and most of the anglers were lucky.

Lyle Erskine, fishing at Shelter Valley, landed one rainbow weighing one and three-quarter pounds and four smaller ones, for a total of five pounds for the five fish.

Preserving Our Sanity

Mental Health Week began yesterday, and until Saturday next the local Association will take special measures to call the attention of people in this district to a matter of vital importance to all of us. In an editorial which we published in these columns last week we pointed out that Ontario has a very high rate of insanity, and that little of this insanity had its origin in brain disease, or other physical causes; most of it was unbalance, and that suggests that a great part of it was avoidable. How can we, in this favoured part of the world, reduce our disgraceful rate of insanity?

* * *

We have no answer to the problem, and we doubt if any complete answer exists. But we are sure that the cause of at least some of Ontario's insanity, and perhaps the cause of much of it, lies in bad mental habits which are so widespread that they are little heeded. A prolonged discussion of these habits is not possible here, nor do we feel qualified to attempt it, but there is one general observation which we shall make: we think that the prevailing Puritan strain in Ontario leads many of us to take an unduly severe attitude toward ourselves—to expect higher standards from ourselves in matters of conduct and accomplishment than we are capable of living up to—and the obvious disparity between what we think we should be, and what we know ourselves to be, leads us toward a discontent and a despair which can in their turn lead to mental unbalance. We do not suggest a lowering of moral standards in Ontario; we do suggest that a more kindly understanding of the difficulties which lie in the way of achieving those standards and a recognition of what standards actually exist, would ease some of the tension which is everywhere apparent.

* * *

Another suggestion which we offer is that there are great numbers of people who do not spend enough time productively enjoying their own company; surely it is desirable that everybody should have at least one hour of every day which he spends by himself, not in work but in rest, or thought, or some sort of quiet recreation. Most of us talk too much, rush about too much, belong to too many clubs and committees, and generally run ourselves ragged. A man has a duty not only to his fellows, but to himself, and he needs time for the quiet cultivation of his own society.

* * *

A third suggestion which we offer is that everybody ought to do some thinking every day. We are not being foolish; when we say thinking we mean reasoning, according to the rules which would prevail in any well-conducted public debate. With too many people, what passes for thought is really disjointed fantasy, or the indulgence of angry prejudice. Fantasy is pleasant entertainment, but it is not a substitute for thought. What we mean by thought is quite and deliberate progression from ascertained facts to conclusions, as little coloured by emotion as is possible; it is good mental exercise and keeps much nonsense from taking root in one's head. An astonishing number of people never exercise their minds in this way, and an unexercised mind, like an unexercised body, may become ill.

* * *

Finally, we recommend the cultivation of serenity. Now serenity is a much misunderstood word. It does not mean optimism, nor does it mean unfeeling indifference; it means balance toward life, and an acceptance of life. It means the measuring of one's own triumphs and achievements and sorrows and burdens by some standard which is more durable than that of personal emotion; in the fullest sense of the word, it means mental dignity. Now dignity is not to be equated with pomposity; it is not a thing which is assumed from without—it is an inner and organic growth.

* * *

Speaking last Thursday to the Canadian Press, the Prime Minister of Canada spoke very movingly of the serenity which he experienced among many of the wise men of the East, during his recent tour of the world. There, amid so much that was distressing, and so much that demanded immediate reform, he nevertheless found men who had the wisdom to put first things first, and to realise that until they had achieved some mastery over themselves, they could not hope to give wise counsel to others. This quality of serenity, said Mr. St. Laurent, was one which was rarely encountered in the West, in our more favoured part of the world. We, amid our riches, are filled with discontent, with trivial ambitions, with hate and anger and spite—and he might have added that we have more insanity than seems justified by our circumstances. Serenity and self-knowledge are what we must seek, rather than fanaticism and self-disparagement.

* * *

We have barely begun to think coherently about mental health in Canada. The local Association is striving to attack some of the worst and most obvious aspects of the problem, and it deserves the goodwill and support of every citizen. But the real quest for mental health is personal, and every man must make the search and the discovery for himself.

Discipline Does Exist On The Highways

We hear a great deal these days about motor accidents, and the rush and struggle on the highways which is said to cause many of them. Articles are written which deplore the modern craze for speed, and the impatience which drivers display in traffic. Because we think that there is something to be said on the other side, we should like to call attention to an experience we had on Highway Number Two—the Toronto-Montreal Highway—within the past week.

Driving along that route at about midnight we came to a road-block. Several cars and transports were standing in silence in front of us, and there was no oncoming traffic. We made enquiries. Yes, it was an accident some distance up the road. A transport had overturned. The Provincial Police were dealing with the matter. Nobody knew how long it would be before the road was cleared.

Even as we asked our questions, several cars and transports stopped behind us, until there was a traffic halt of at least a quarter of a mile in length. There we waited for forty-five minutes before it was possible to move on. When we were able to count the traffic from the other side of the accident we estimated that at least fifty transports and a somewhat smaller number of passenger cars had been waiting for the road to be cleared.

But this is our point: nobody fussed, nobody blew horns, nobody tried to persuade the police to let them through. Lights were turned off, people stretched their legs and admired the stars, but nobody rushed to the accident to stare or get in the way. It was a display of good-natured discipline and highway decency. And it lasted for forty-five minutes, which was an inconvenient delay for everybody there; one transport driver told us that he had been at work since seven that morning, and had another 75 miles to go before he could call it a day.

We mention this incident because so much is heard on the other side about impatience and bad manners on the roads. We do not think that our experience was uncharacteristic.

Progress Toward Uranium Pool?

With most of the attention in international affairs given to the discussions on Korea and Indo-China at Geneva, a potentially important journey made by a Russian diplomat has attracted little notice. We refer to the departure for Moscow of Georgi N. Zaroubin, Ambassador to the United States. The express purpose of the journey, it is reported in Washington, is to submit a concrete plan for carrying out President Eisenhower's proposal to form an international uranium pool for peacetime uses. The reports also express the belief that genuine progress has been made toward agreement on formation of the pool.

The plan taken by Mr. Zaroubin to Moscow was largely formulated by U.S. Atomic Chairman Lewis Strauss; it was examined and discussed exhaustively by Secretary of State Dulles and Mr. Zaroubin at meetings held over a period of several months. The document is, of course, classified and publication forbidden, but, as in the case of other such documents, it appears that some of its provisions have trickled out in public view. These are as follows:

An international atomic commission would be established under the authority of the United Nations.

The United States, Russia, Britain, France and other nations would contribute fissionable materials to a common pool for peaceful resources.

The United States is prepared to make the largest contribution to this uranium pool.

Location of the international atomic agency in Europe would be approved by the United States, if desired.

It is said that the Russians are particularly impressed by the last two provisions listed above, even to the point of accepting the plan as a basis for formal negotiations. That sounds highly optimistic, but if the real reason for Mr. Zaroubin's trip to Moscow was to present the plan and make a personal report, optimism may be justified. And if it is, the event may prove the first real step taken toward international control of atomic power.

By HAROLD NICOLSON

(A discussion of The Answers of Ernst von Salomon)

THERE come moments when the student of contemporary life and politics must force himself to read a distasteful book. Such a book is The Answers of Ernst Von Salomon. It is intolerably long; it is clumsily constructed; it is unconvincing, and it is written with what the Germans call Hohngelachter, namely a compound of scorn and rancour, far more vindictive than our own mild phrase "derisive laughter." It is unbearable, but important.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN HIS STUDY of the Freikorps, called Die Geachteten and published in 1931, Ernst von Salomon gave a penetrating analysis of the vehmic type of mind. "We were," he wrote, "a band of fighters, drunk with all the passions of the world; full of lust, exultant in action." With deliberate barbarism, with savage nihilism, these lads of 1920 sought to revenge themselves for their own impotence. It was this mood of reckless violence that led to the Kapp Putsch, to the atrocious conduct of the Ehrhardt Brigade in firing as they left upon the unarmed crowd in the Pariser Platz, to the assassination of Rathenau by two former naval officers, Kern and Fischer, and to the endemic intimidation that in the end brought the Weimar Republic to its fall. Die Geachteten was a cruel book, but it rang true. "The Answers," is also a cruel book, rendered all the more horrible by a taint of evasiveness, a taste of vanilla.

✧ ✧ ✧

SALOMON was only nineteen at the time of the Rathenau murder and served a sentence of five years penal servitude as an accomplice in that conspiracy. His present work, which takes the form of endless replies to the items of a questionnaire, or Fragebogen, addressed to him by the Allied Occupation Authorities, cover the period of his life from 1922 to 1949. It is revealing rather than frank, plausible but not convincing.

✧ ✧ ✧

AS Mr. Goronwy Rees remarks in his excellent preface, it is mere effrontery on the part of an avowed member of the Freikorps to disclaim any interest in, or responsibility for, the rise of National Socialism. His was the type of character from which the S.A. and the S.S. were formed. A Prussian of Prussians, he believed, and still believes, in the Hegelian State; to him the term "democracy" is meaningless and hypocritical; he regarded as "abstractions" such concepts as decency, tradition, dignity and individual freedom; and even at the end of his confession he can still suggest that the authoritarian State may contain "a germ of rebirth" which must be encouraged.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE Germans of Herr von Salomon's generation have been much concerned, mainly under the inspiration of Thomas Mann, with the relation between the artist and the man of action. Herr van Salomon now contends that, after his experience of very violent action, he decided to become no more than an observer, and to concentrate upon the life of art. This former terrorist represents himself, in somewhat shoddy colours, as a mere dilettante, a lounger in the Romanischer Cafe, a happy seducer, an indolent hedonist, a man who was not interested in the Nazi movement, was bored by their excesses, but determined always to retain his independance and never to accept the discipline of a dictatorial party. It was doubtless disgusting that the Nazis should beat up harmless Jews or ill-treat the admirable Dr. Luetgebrune, but after all it was no responsibility of his. "Naturally I knew very well," he writes, "what was being done to the Jews, to the Polish intellectuals, to the Russian commissars, to the Czech students, to the German Communists." But what could he do about it all? Surely it was more agreeable to write film-scripts for UFA by the Sands of Sylt or to sport with Magle at St. Jean de Luz? He had "moved away from the spirit of action" and the true artist can be forgiven much.

✧ ✧ ✧

ALL THIS is unconvincing. After all, he was at Munich when Adolph Hitler, in the presence of 60,000 cheering men and women, proclaimed assassins of Rathenau as the martyrs of Germany's destiny. Why did he not join his former associates? Was it solely that he had been unimpressed by Hitler's "greenish grey velour hat" and his harsh Bohemian accent? Was it that he was dissuaded by Captain Ehrhardt who suspected that Hitler was in insane? Was it simply that he had lost all taste for action that "nothing much glowed in my heart save an intractable desire for life"? It was not as if he had grown out of the illusions of his boyhood; it was, he implies, that he no longer wished to put them into practice. Were Herr von Salomon a sensitive artist one could appreciate this repugnance. But he proves by his style that he is an insensitive artist, excellent at dramatic dialogue, but deficient in form and taste.

✧ ✧ ✧

HERR von Salomon has taken some 220,000 words to explain why he did nothing, either one way or the other. We are still left without the answers.

I should add that the book is admirably translated by Constantine Fitzgibbon and that the publisher should be ashamed for giving us no index.

All Changed Now

(Ottawa Journal)

Ottawa old-timers will sympathize with the complaint of the Peterborough Examiner that there are now no passenger steamers running trips on the Otonabee river through the Kawartha Lakes to Lindsay.

Ottawa formerly had three such opportunities for those who enjoy water trips. From a wharf on the canal near the present Confederation Park, steamers the "Rideau Queen" and "Rideau King" left in the afternoon for a 24-hour voyage on the canal through the beautiful Rideau Lakes to Kingston.

From Sussex street the steamer "Empress" sailed daily down the Ottawa river to Grenville. From Britannia the steamer "G. B. Greene" took picnickers up the Ottawa from Britannia to Quyon and on moonlight nights for slow trips (with dancing) up and down Lake Deschenes.

The automobile turned the minds of people to road travel, the operation of passenger ships unprofitable and largely killed the dinghy sailing on Lake Deschenes that used to be so popular.

As the Examiner says, some of the "good old days" were really good.

Letters To The Editor

THE DUKE AND BARTLETT

SIR: I wish to thank "Observer" for his interesting comment on my quotation in the article on Sportsmanship in the "For Parents Only" series. I checked immediately in the standard unabridged "Familiar Quotations" by John Bartlett, published by Little, Brown and Co., 1948, which is on the Reference shelves of the Peterborough Public Library. There were seven outstanding quotations attributed to Arthur Wellesley, Duke of Wellington (1769-1852) and the last of these was "The battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton." There is always a possibility of a mistake in a quotation but this is a reliable book, an authority in this field. I only wish you had made a comment on your reaction to the point of this article . . . the importance of teaching children to be generous winners and good losers. I was delighted to read a recent Examiner editorial on this very subject.

I have lived in five Canadian cities, and have always appreciated the courteous help of those on the staff of the public libraries. But I would like to pay a wholehearted compliment to the exceptionally fine personnel of our Peterborough Public Library in all its departments.

Sincerely,
"NANCY CLEAVER."

DENIES QUEBEC SEEKS REVENGE

SIR: An article appeared a few days ago in the Editorial page of the Examiner, entitled "The Revenege of The Cradle." The writer signed under the pen-name of "Thinker." In it, he comments on an article written in "Le Devoir" of Montreal. I would like "Thinker" to give some details about the date when the said article appeared. I wish to know the year, the month and even the day if possible. Forgive me to check on your saying, Mr. Thinker, but since I noticed quite a few writers of "Letters to the Editor" tell flagrant lies, I do not believe anything of what is said any more, unless I personally check on their sayings or already know sufficiently about the subjects discussed. I suppose you could give an answer by the use of the Letters again.

However, let me make some comments right now on your sayings. You quote from "Le Devoir" as follows: "At a given moment — it will be sometime near the census of 1971— French Canadians will be as numerous as the total of Canadians of British origin and on the way to outstripping them, for then, as now, our mean birthrate will remain, without doubt, relatively high. On that day —many of those who read these lines will see it,—we shall be able to hymn not merely the "revenge" but indeed the victory of our cradles."

Then you go on saying: "May I draw your attention to the word 'revenge.' This theme seems to be a favourite of the French-speaking press, and it only serves to illustrate the problems facing that much talked about phantom, national unity. The ancient struggle for French supremacy is still being waged. It is that spirit which tends to lean towards isolationism and nationalism, and if it had the power, and the correct environment, would not hesitate to erect a separate French-speaking State. Surely, we will have to, in the future, if not now, condemn such an attitude that threatens subjugation, for most of the population does not wish to repeat the experiment of the Middle Ages."

In this here last statement, the "Thinker" shows a vivid imagination. I do not think he should fear such a repetition of what occurred in the Middle Ages. As to the article written in "Le Devoir," I here state that the word "revenge" is not a favourite theme of the French-speaking press. I have lived in Quebec for quite a while and I recall having heard or read about such a word but very little and from the mouth or the pen of only a small group of nationalists.

As to the mentioning of the French-speaking population equalling that of the Canadians of British origin, what wrong is there in saying so, if the author of the article expects it to be such? Wasn't it said often in all Canadian newspapers that more than one million immigrants arrived in Canada since the ending of the war in 1945? And that about one-third of these were from Great Britain? If Canada, because she needed it, favoured such an immigration, should she keep it a secret? Should the different racial origins be kept a secret? Now, when a French-speaking newspaper expects the population of French Canadians to equal that of British Canadians, is it a crime?

The main reason why French Canada has been so prolific in her past history, is their fidelity toward their religion, Roman Catholicism. A look at the other sincerely Catholic countries would corroborate this statement. Let it be mentioned here that the prolificness of Quebec is now far from what it used to be. I suggest Mr. Thinker go investigate in the Montreal area and inquire about the couples married within the last fifteen years, and make a census. The results would undoubtedly urge him into rejoicing. Something similar may be registered in other cities. The greater part of Quebec people is now living in cities and conditions of modern living (housing difficulties prevailing) have rendered the once so noble family life quite difficult. Moreover, for the past few years, the birth rate in Ontario has exceeded the rate in Quebec. So, I doubt very much the census of 1971 will bring the "Thinker" any discomfort.

Tell me the date of the article, Mr. Thinker, so I may check on the shocking crime perpetrated by the bold author who dared write about the victory of the cradles of Quebec.

I end this article saying that, to me, isolationism and nationalism are pure imaginary words, when applied to French Canada. As separation is unfavourable to Canadian ideals taken as a whole, it is also unfavourable to Quebec ideals. I think that Quebec has as much right to the West as the West has to Quebec.

ANOTHER THINKER.

RE-EDUCATE THE WEAK-MINDED

SIR: I notice with digust the unwarranted interest which low-minded people are taking in the vulgar display of female underclothing in this sinful city.

I am quite convinced that these useless, er,—articles are exhibited solely to attract the attention of poor, lewd, weak-minded male creatures who do not have the intelligence to realize that there is much more to a female than these, these — oh well! these stupid and disgusting fripperies.

Let us strive to clean up our city by refusing to allow our fathers, husbands, brothers, sons and young men to even gaze upon such flaunted indelicacy, and lead them instead to such stores as display wholesome female garments like hand-knitted hose, flannel petticoats, elastic-sided boots and chromium-plated corsets. The very sound of these aforementioned wholesome garments comes like a breath of spring to the pure-minded citizen who has for so long been forced to avert his gaze from the average store window.

Yours, etc.,
(MISS) "AMELIA WARTLEHOG."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the Lord God said, It is not good that a man should be alone; I will make him an help meet for him . . . And the Lord caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept; and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof; and the rib which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman, and brought her unto the man.

And Adam said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh; she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man. Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh. (Gen. 2:18, 21-24.)

Young Students Explore Marmora Area

MARMORA.— Rock formations in this oldest mining area of Canada underwent an enthusiastic, if not expert, inspection during the weekend when nearly 100 young members of a Royal Ontario Museum field excursion invaded the district with their families.

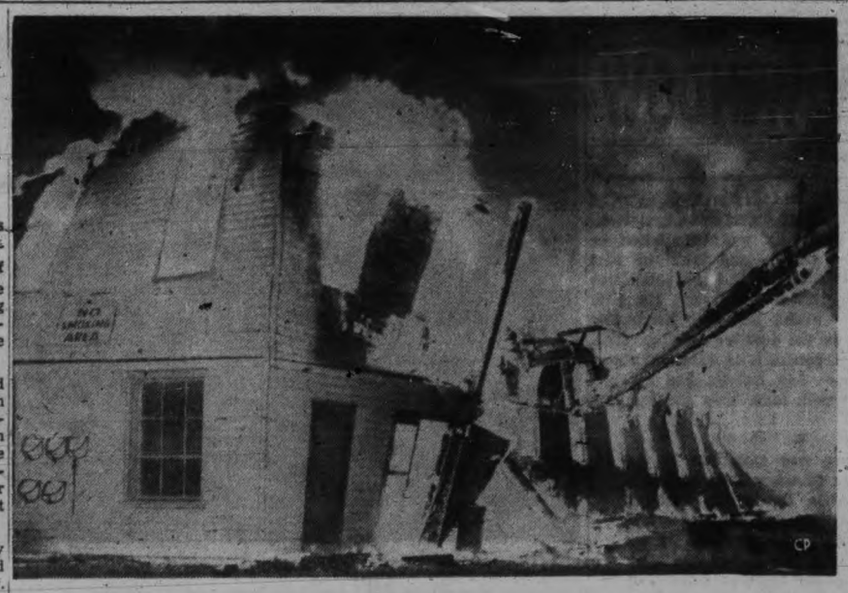
Members of the Junior Field Naturalists Club, which meets in the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, each Saturday between early October and May, the youngsters ranged across a 50-mile area by car, pausing for visits at both new and ancient mine operations.

More than 20 cars, driven by parents, formed a caravan headed by a museum truck driven by Dr. V. Ben Meen, director of the Royal Ontario Museum of Geology and Mineralogy. With him, as counsellors, were members of the museum group which meets with the youngsters every Saturday, Muriel Ward, Walter Tovel, curator of geology, and D. H. Gorman of the department of geological sciences, University of Toronto.

The group which visited here Sunday is just one section of the young naturalists' organization, which is sponsored by the Toronto Field Naturalists Club, an adult body. Children 8 to 18 are enrolled in studies and trips. Those 11 and over who have completed general studies, are in specialty groups such as insect group, bird group, etc., according to special interests. The mineralogy-geology group, nearly one-half girls, was the party visiting here today.

Armed with hammers and cold chisels, the use of which they are taught during the winter, the youngsters crawled, slid scrambled, fell and galloped over the rocky countryside here for hours. They visited the big new Bethlehem Steel iron development; they met Col. C. H. Ackerman of the Ackerman Gold Mines and lunched on that company's properties; they visited a talc mine near Madoc, and they lugged home literally tons of samples which will be poured over and studied for months.

The air was full of technical terms and words. A husky young 11-year-old girl lugged a basket ful of rocks down the road to her parents' car and a bystander commented on its weight. She nodded seriously. "Yeah," she said, "this asenopyrite formation sure weighs heavy."



$2,000,000 HANGAR FIRE — Girders glow white-hot as the walls of a giant hangar collapse in a spectacular $2,000,000 fire which destroyed the hangar and six aircraft at the Sea Island RCAF station at Vancouver. Destroyed in the gasoline-fed fire were two Beechcraft Expediters, a Lancaster bomber, two Otter-type planes and a helicopter. Cause of the fire is not known. An Air Force investigation was ordered. No one was in the hangar at the time. —(CP Photo).

Asia Has Now Become West's Weak Spot

By ALAN HARVEY

GENEVA (CP)—The first week of the Geneva conference may be remembered as the time the Bamboo Curtain finally clamped down beside the iron one to shut out the West.

In the view of many delegates, this is the most significant issue emerging from discussions to date. With Communist China making its first appearance in the council of nations, it has become apparent that the emphasis in world affairs has moved east.

Asia, instead of Europe, now appears to be the West's weak spot.

Lending a nightmare urgency to the talks here is the deteriorating military situation in Indo-China.

The theme in Geneva, as developed in the first week of meetings, is Asia-for-the-Asians. China's Chou Enlai, participating in his first international conference, has made this his chief talking point—and Soviet Russia has backed him up.

LADEN WITH TRAPS

The situation is laden with traps for the West.

Lester Pearson, Canada's minister of external affairs, has repeatedly warned of the dangers of an Allied split in Asia. Geneva shows that is just what the Communists are trying to develop.

Some observers here say the split has already occurred.

The conflict of opinion over Indo-China has left a sense of malaise and misgiving, and there is talk among some Australian and New Zealand delegates that the British-American differences constitute a crisis of the first order in the history of the Anglo-American alliance.

Although Australian external affairs minister Richard Casey describes the quarrel as just a ripple, the phrase "another Munich" is often heard in the conference corridors.

SUPPORTED BRITAIN

Canada has been in the thick of discussions from the start, and strongly supported Britain's decision not to send bombers against the Communist rebels besieging Dien Bien Phu.

The sense of crisis which has been noticeable among the other Commonwealth delegations appears less marked in the case of Canada, perhaps for geographical reasons.

Alarmed by Red military gains in the East, the Australians and New Zealanders are easily moved to visions of first Indo-China, then Malaya and Indonesia falling under Communist sway. At the same time, they feel Britain's decision was certainly the only acceptable one.

UN Visitor Tells Of Experiences

MARMORA (ENS)—Miss Norma Arkles of Belleville, delegate to United Nations last year for the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, was the speaker at the open meeting of Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. held in St. Paul's parish hall on Friday evening. Mrs. J. L. Atchison, regent, presided over an audience of over 50.

Mrs. E. Manchester of Marmora public school staff, introduced Miss Arkles.

Miss Ackles said she could almost say there were no limits to the privileges extended delegates.

She felt the description that it was a workshop for peace well befitted United Nations. There were 60 member nations represented, each wearing the garb of its country and being very busy at the sessions. Miss Arkles said she had previous to her visit thought of United Nations as an instrument for peace, but it was more than that.

She was heartily thanked for her address by the regent.

Two film strips on the United Nations programs were then shown, following which a silver collection was taken for I.O.D.E. funds.

Leaving Judgment To God St. Paul's Congregation Told

St. Paul's Presbyterian church completed 121 years of service in Peterborough on Sunday. To mark the centennial the Rev. J. S. Glen, Ph.D., Th.D., principal of Knox College, Toronto, visited St. Paul's and preached sermons at both the morning and evening worship services.

The services were led by the Rev. Charles G. Boyd assisted in the evening by the Rev. Gilbert D. Smith of St. Giles'. The evening service was also attended by members of Murray St. Baptist church.

"What it means to be oneself", was the text chosen by Dr. Glen, speaking to a near capacity congregation at the morning service.

The minister outlined three points for consideration. (1) To be free from the fear of what other people think of you, (2) To be free from the tyranny of self-judgment and (3) to know what it means that Christ has accepted you just as you are.

No person had the qualifications nor the right to judge himself, said the minister. Realising that, people should not be so ready to judge others.

ONE'S OWN GOD

Self-judgment was almost an attempt to be one's own God. Dr. Glen took the example of the apostle Paul, who refused to be his own judge, or the judge of others. In the church of his day, he had attempted to prove to others that God alone, reserved the right to judge. Knowing that Christ accepted you just as you were could prove a great comfort and the basis for a real understanding of Christianity.

This knowledge could destroy selfishness, which was very seldom self love, but usually just the opposite. A lack of understanding of the individual for himself, led him to regard his fellow men without love and tolerance. In this frame of mind, no man could really begin to love God, as was ordered in the first commandment.

"But we must face the fact that God will love you and accept you just as you are", said Dr. Glen. "Too often do we think of our limitations and we feel that we will not be acceptable in His sight. We do not know ourselves as He knows us, but we can know that His love passes all understanding".

The life and letters of Paul again entered into the theme of Dr. Glen's sermon at the evening service. He considered Paul's letter to the church at Corinth.

At that time the church had been laboring under inappropriate loyalties, members were divided among themselves, there had been rivalry for leadership and the idolatory of man.

DID NOT JUDGE

However, Paul had not passed harsh judgment, but rather had displayed an amazing love and understanding.

"Profoundly concerned with the goings-on in the church, Paul was frank with its members, but he did not reject them", said Dr. Glen.

Paul had known, as we should know today, that the church was not full of saints, believers without doubt, respectable people or victorious Christians. Paul had remembered that Christ was the friend of publicans and sinners.

"We, in our churches, today, sometimes find it hard to accept the fact that we are sinners—people with a past", continued the minister. "But how often are we prepared to accept anyone who is known to have a past. How much patience and love do we show with alcholics and others who need our love and understanding.

"Aren't we rather inclined to shun these people and whisper among ourselves about their pasts and their failings."

Too often people prided themselves on their ability to sum up and judge others at a first meeting. Parents assumed that they knew their children, husbands and wives assumed that they knew each other completely. However, more often people never really got around to understand the problems of others and in helping them bear their burdens.

Christian Church Not Fulfilling God's Vision

HAVELOCK (ENS)— God's Kingdom is delayed because the church has lost its vision said the Rev. A. E. Toombs of Campbellford, Sunday evening, in Havelock United church, when he was the guest speaker at the spring thank-offering service of the WMS.

Mr. Toombs based this statement on Christ's words, "And this gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations: and then shall come the end."

Why all the ill feeling in the world and why do we spend millions on armaments he asked? The church has never seen the vision Christ saw when He said "the gospel shall be preached to all nations and then the end."

We pray "Thy Kingdom come" every day as we repeat the Lord's Prayer, Mr. Toomb said and then we do nothing about it.

Today, he said, we should not only be listening to sermons in our respective places of worship but should be sending the gospel to all nations and if we are not fulfilling this mission we might as well close our doors and go home.

Mr. Toombs wondered how many realize that the purposes of God are world wide. Looking out over the world there is not much to warrant the assumption that the purpose of the church is world wide, he said.

Christ last command contained imperative word "go" with the promise "Lo I am with you always."

Mr. Toombs also gave some interesting incidents of his work as a missionary among the Bhil people of India and showing how all their actions are governed by fear.

The choir sang an anthem "There were ninety and nine."

Billy Rose Plans New Show Spectacle

NEW YORK (AP)—Billy Rose is getting ready to set a new show spectacle before the populace.

"It starts in ancient Athens," Rose explains, "moves to heaven, then hell and back to Athens. Unless I'm a two-bit idiot it's a fine show."

It's a musical, "Orpheus in the Underworld." By current Rose planning it will be one of the early ventures as a new theatre season gets under way next fall.

Rose explained his new show is based on the melodic work of Jacques Offenbach. Three songs will be retained from that 19th-century composer's "Orpheus in the Underworld," but the Rose version will skim musical cream from such other Offenbach fare as "Tales of Hoffman," "la Belle Helene" and "Duchess of Gerolstein."

The book for the show is being done by Ben Hecht. E. Y. Harburg has the commission to prepare the lyrics. Casting is scheduled to start soon.

Reminded that Offenbach is sometimes held in light regard by musical savants, Rose concurs: "Orpheus has not been performed—and quite rightly—in 25 years."

17 Fatalities Reported Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nine different kinds of accidents accounted for the 17 violent deaths in Eastern Canada during the week-end. Traffic mishaps took the highest toll as usual.

A Canadian Press survey showed that seven persons lost their lives in highway accidents. Three were drowned, one was shot and one died in a fire. One died after being hit by a falling board, another after a fall. Another person was strangled. Exposure took one life and a plane crash another.

Ontario was the scene of most of the deaths—10.

L.-Cpl. N. W. Gardiner of Eastview was killed near Kingston when a car, carrying two other soldiers, went out of control and rolled over in a ditch. Eugene Ackerman, 73, was fatally injured near Lindsay when a car in which he was riding collided with another vehicle. Seven-year-old Janice Hess was crushed when her father's truck ran over her at Williamsburg and Joseph Volpe was killed in a head-on collision near Agincourt.

2 DROWNINGS, PLANE CRASH

The two drowning victims in Ontario were Eugene St. Jacques, 28, of Sudbury, drowned while fishing near North Bay and Arnold Boughner, 9, who fell into the Mississippi river near Carleton Place.

Other Ontario deaths were: FO. James A. Purvis of Toronto, killed when his RCAF Vampire jet fighter crashed in a swamp near Beaverton; Edward J. Grozley, 63, of Belleville who fell 35 feet to his death while repairing a chimney which collapsed; Leonard Rose, 32, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., who died of shock and exposure after he shoved his overturned canoe to shore and crawled about 100 yards up a steep bank; and Clare Franklin Williamson, 24, believed to have been strangled at Watford.

NON-ROAD DEATHS IN EAST

George Richardson Jr., 36, died at South Nelson, N. B. after being struck by a falling board in a planing mill.

Alex Bergevin, about 20, was found shot at St. Urbain, Que. Police believe the death was a suicide.

Near Halifax, Arthur William Deal, 22, was drowned while fishing.

A fire took the life of Mrs. Sylvia Frantton, 23, in St. John's, Nfld.

Toronto Bowlers Get OBAD Tourney

Charlie Davey's Toronto trundlers rolled 3265 here Saturday to take top honors in the 15th annual tournament of the Ontario Bowling Association of the Deaf, sponsored by the Peterborough bowling committee. A fair entry of 24 teams competed, from Ottawa to Windsor, but lack of hotel accommodation kept down some entries.

Peterborough Kawarthas rolled 3098 to take ladies' honors. They were captained by Joan Laidlaw. James Cardinal of Ottawa had high single of 343, while Sam Baker of Toronto hit 809 for top three, a point less than last year's 810 record set by Walter Daniels of Brantford. Gertrude McCourt of Kingston led lasses with 713 as Vi Deyell of Toronto led in singles with a 282 effort.

THE OFFICERS

At the election of officers, William Mayfield of Peterborough and Frank Mair of Toronto were returned as president and secretary-treasurer respectively. Walter Daniels is back as first director and Joe Meyette of Peterborough is second director. The site of the next tourney was set for Toronto and the one in 1956 for Brantford. The oldest bowler on hand was Johnny Crough of Windsor, and the next, oldest was Daniel Gerow of Peterborough.

More than 200 bowlers and visitors attended the social evening and dance at the Kawartha Club in the evening, with music provided by the Blue Blazers. A buffet luncheon at midnight concluded the enjoyable evening. Among door prizes were two electric clocks won by Miss Rose Brigham of Ottawa and Mrs. Wm. Mayfield of this city; a tie by Jesse Batstone of Galt; a wallet and lighter by Arnold Fox of Peterborough; chocolates by Rose Brigham of Ottawa, the oldest lady bowler; and a tie for Johnny Crough, as the oldest male bowler.

Queen of the OBAD dance social was Joan Laidlaw of Peterborough, and she was presented with a necklace and corsage.

Cash prizes were awarded at the meeting of captains and officers at Duffus'. This move made for an increased attendance at the meeting.

CGE shop golf league swings into action today on the Kawartha links. The course this year has something brand new, a watered fairways project. It's being surveyed now and installation of the watering system will be started shortly and take the best part of the summer to complete. We understand the committee in charge plans an 11-hole watering system of fairways No. 1 to 11 inclusive on a permanent basis. Frank Buckland heads this committee, which has been working on the deal for months. Club secretary Gord White reports that the course is in excellent shape now and boasts a big membership. Lex Robson has his pro shop in shape and the cry "Fore!" will echo from the bunkers regularly from now on.

An item from down Cobourg way says two of the starry backs of the grid Galloping Ghosts will try out with Annis Stukas' Vancouver Lions in the spring training starting this week in B.C. They are Red Alexander and Jack Reeves, two capable ball-toters who gave our Orfuns plenty of concern in recent campaigns But the item which adds: "Both of them played on the club which last year won the crown again," is something we can't buy. It happens that Peterborough Orfuns have taken the ORFU intermediate "A" title for the past two years to end a rather lengthy reign of the Ghosts. We're just not too sure the Rapid Wraiths will be in action comes next autumn.

Good Luck To Them

Noticed a local piece the other day saying that Tom McArthur was retiring from the CPR freight office and that Tommy Holyman of the same office was being transferred to Toronto. We wish them both well. Tom was long prominent in curling here, and Tommy was senior baseball shortstop for many years with some of the better Petes' COBL clubs. Later he umpired and acted on ball executives, and he was one of the keenest sports fans in the city for a lengthy spell. Our ball and lacrosse crowds will be considerably quieter with the transfer to Toronto of Tommy, an expert grandstand needler and former bench jockey of note. Bet he'll be on deck at Millen Stadium to cheer the Petes when they perform in Viaduct tilts this semester.

* * * * * *

Bunny Morganson advises us that this senior ball circuit will be known as the Viaduct Ontario Baseball League, or VOBL, since it embraces Oakville, Oshawa, Petes and Belleville, as well as two Toronto teams, Hoskings-Burners and Dependable Cleaners. It opens May 15 in Toronto and May 24 in the other centres. All clubs battle for the loop title. The top Toronto teams goes into MTBA city finals. The best final standing between Oshawa and Oakville sends one team into the OBA playdowns, and the same thing goes between Belleville and the Petes. Thus there could be three teams from this league go into provincial playdowns, if these top teams so desire.

Settled on the Site

Chairman E. A. Outram of the Memorial Community Centre site committee reported at a committee meeting Saturday that a site for the auditorium had been selected in Morrow Park. It is in the north-east corner of the big park at Lansdowne and Lock streets. This spot has met the approval of the site committee, the Morrow Trust and the Exhibition Board. All it needs now is the approval of the general committee of the Centre, and that should be forthcoming shortly. Thus, at long last, we have a definite site picked for the project, and members of this site-finding group have done their jobs. They were E. A. Outram, Ald. Stan McBride, Ald. Gord Powell, Mrs. James McClenaghan, Miss Margaret White, Hurrell Dodds, Harold Dormer and John Kitney. Now the building committee can start on plans. Lionel Browne heads this group which includes: Tom Ephgrave, Frank Buckland, Dr. Rodger Chenoweth, Ald. Bob Knox, Alf Barber and Don Bark.

Petes' Trailermen didn't bother to send a delegate to an OLA meeting on Saturday, feeling they were getting the runaround anyway and being pretty much resigned to the fact that St. Catharines would be allowed to keep Ross Powless and Roger Smith. They also know that Nip O'Hearn has moved to Victoria and will play lacrosse there this year. However, Prexy Bob Peirson says the Trailermen will field another strong squad this semester, having most of last year's Mann Cup champs on deck again, plus Denny Peterson, Doug Powell, Bob Allen and Bobby Curtis, with George Masters likely to sign, also. A couple of more players are being contacted, as well. Schedule should be published any day now, and the Petes expect to start outdoor training this week.

Jim Carruthers Keeps Bantam Title

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Australian Jimmy Carruthers narrowly retained his world's bantamweight crown Sunday night in a gruelling bout with Chamrern Songkitrat, the Bangkok police lieutenant who graduated from the drop-kicking Thailand school of fighting.

Australian referee William Heneberry, the only official, gave Carruthers 32½ points and Songkitrat 27½ for the 12-round fight. Bout weighed 117¼.

Carruthers and Songkitrat fought for the title in a torrential downpour that spilled a full inch of rain on the canvas in less than an hour.

By fight time it still was pouring, and there were 50,000 people waiting to see the Bangkok Beagle perform. There was $225,000 in the till. The sponsoring police welfare fund closed its weather eye and the fight was on.

FOUGHT BAREFOOTED

The canvas was so slippery that the fighters fought barefooted.

Songkitrat started fast, but Carruthers found the range and held control in the middle rounds. In the 10th, Songkitrat opened a deep cut over Carruthers' right eye. A rivulet of blood partly blinded the champion and set the Thailanders to screaming for a knockout.

The rugged little Thai pressed hard in the final two rounds but Carruthers' great left rocked him back every time he bore in.

However, Carruthers slipped and fell on his face in the 11th. Referee Heneberry said later he thought the champ had knocked himself out then. Carruthers paled noticeably and seemed to have hurt his left hand. But he recovered quickly and went on to win.

The winners and runners-up who are Canadian citizens will compete in the Canadian championships at Montreal May 28-29.

Allan Cup Tilt Gets Under Way

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — The battle of the amateur giants opens here tonight when Sudbury Wolves, eastern amateur hockey champions, take on Penticton V's, the best in the west.

At stake is the Allan Cup, symbol of senior amateur hockey supremacy in Canada.

Coach Max Silverman, the guiding light of hockey in Sudbury, Ont., for 23 years, is leading the Wolves along the path that could lead to their second such cup in history. They won the battered mug back in 1937.

His formula is work. The Wolves had been in town less than two hours when he had them out adding still more ice time to the 100 league and playoff games they have gone through this season.

The best-of-seven run for the cup promises to be the toughest of a tough season for both clubs.

Penticton V's rolled over all opposition in regular Okanagan Senior Amateur Hockey League play, clinching top spot long before the season ended. Then, in a playoff with Nelson Maple Leafs, Western International Hockey League kingpins, they had to come from behind to take the B.C. title in eight games.

McGill University Tops Swimming Team

MONTREAL (CP)—McGill University, Montreal, topped the 1954 all - Canada college swimming team, taking eight of the 11 first place selections, the Canadian Collegiate Swimming Association announced during the week-end.

A University of Western Ontario swimmer won three first-place selections in the mythical squad which contains performers from six other colleges.

Other universities represented on the all-star team are University of Toronto, Queen's, Laval, Quebec City, Sir George Williams College, Montreal, Royal Military College, Kingston and University of British Columbia.

Decide To Affiliate With OASA Now

BROCKVILLE (CP)—The Eastern Ontario Amateur Softball Association decided at its annual meeting Sunday to affiliate with the Ontario Amateur Softball Association.

The decision was made following a discussion on the advantage of such affiliation by OASA secretary Frank Feaver of Hamilton who attended the meeting. Feaver said the president of the EOASA would be appointed to the executive of OASA and that eastern Ontario will be invited to participate in Ontario playdowns. He added that minor softball groups would receive considerable assistance and encouragement.

HEAD TROUBLE — Ray Gremen (centre, above) of the Canadian Scots had a little head trouble in the opening soccer game with the UE, last year's league champions. Gremen lost his balance after bouncing the ball off his head, then went into a tail-spin to avoid hitting the ground. His soccer effort resulted in the ball bouncing away into UE hands, or perhaps onto the heads. The UE shellacked the Scots 5-0.

Canadian Scots Lost By 5-0 To UEW Team

UEW blanked Canadian Scots 5-0 to open the Eastern Soccer League schedule Saturday afternoon at King Edward Park. A fair-sized crowd viewed the opening fixture under ideal weather conditions and saw some good early-season soccer served up by the rival squads.

Scots faced the sun and breeze the first half and UE quickly cashed in as Briddle, Hoyle and Holroyd early tested the rival goalie. Gremen just missed for Scots on a Ballantyne pass, but UE kept pressing to make the defence of Burnette, Downer and Rice work hard to hold them out.

Ryan scored a nifty one after 30 minutes of play, giving the netminder no chance. It ended 1-0 at the half. Scots tried hard after that to even it, with Jim Gilchrist, Gremen, Boyd and Caldwell all having good tries. Hoyle was upended in the penalty area and Ryan made it 2-0 on a penalty kick. Biddle added another right away. Scots kept fighting with Peters, Daly and Gremen pressing, but UE kept control. Hutchinson made four fine saves and then Payne and Ryan booted home neat counters to wrap up the contest. Teams:

Scots — Hutchinson, Downer, Rice, Daly, Burnette, Peters, Caldwell, Gilchrist, Gremen, Boyd, Ballantyne, West, J. Gilchrist.

UEW — Jones, Davies, Croll, Campbell, Buchan, Dunn, Holroyd, Biddle, Hoyle, Ryan, Strong, Payne, Holt, Gibbons.

Referee, Eric Cotton.

Oshawa Crushes Simcoe 6-3

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — Oshawa Truckmen defeated Simcoe Gunners 6-3 here Saturday night to take a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Senior B championship series. One game was tied. The sixth game will be played here tonight.

Angry fans showered the ice with peanuts, programs and other missiles early in the third period when Simcoe defenceman Jim Mackenzie was rammed head first into the boards and no penalty called. Earlier Simcoe's Ralph Orlando was put out of the game with a match misconduct. Oshawa had a 4-1 lead at the the of the demonstration.

George Samolemko and Jerry Scott scored twice for Oshawa while Frank Hooper and Wally Samanski put in the other two goals. Ron Rohmer, George Stanutz and Val Lucian scored the Simcoe singles.

WINNIPEG (CP)—A joint meeting of Winnipeg sports writers and the executive of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers has been called for next week in connection with a threat to bar a sports writer from the Winnipeg Stadium press box.

Al Vickery, president of the Winnipeg Football Writers and Broadcasters Association, said the club threatened to bar Bob Moir of the Winnipeg Free Press following Bombers' objection to the publication of a story on player negotiations.

Moir reported that Bombers were said to be negotiating with Chuck Conerly, quarterback of New York Giants in the National Football League. Bomber officials objected to the report although they refused to deny its.

YMCA Teams Lose Out In Volleyball

Peterborough "Y" intermediate and veteran volleyball teams lost out in Canadian playoffs at Ottawa over the weekend. Fraser Wade's intermediate team won the first game against Ottawa YMCA but lost the next three in their best-of-five series, and Toronto Central YMCA went on to capture honors in this division.

The veterans' team from Peterborough won four games, taking two in the afternoon over Ottawa and two from Montreal to reach finals, but were beaten by Ottawa opposition in the playoffs in two straight games by scores of 15-10 and 15-12, tiring from their long trip and strenuous afternoon competition. The Ottawa team took the title. Montreal girls won out in their series, Peterborough not being represented in lasses' play. Peterborough players were.

Stan Musial Hits 5 Homers In Day In Doubleheader

By JACK HAND, Associated Press Sports Writer

Now you know why they call Stan Musial, Stan the Man. No other hitter in major league history ever hit five home runs in one day.

Nine days ago Musial was bumping along at .250, gripped by the same slump that tortured him last spring. Now he is hitting .400 with eight homers and seven doubles among his 24 hits. The $80,000-a-year St. Louis Cardinal outfielder leads the majors with 21 runs batted in and shares the home run lead with Chicago's Hank Sauer.

Stan got four for four Sunday in the first game, three home runs and a single off New York Giant pitching. When he added two more homers in the second game to set a record.

Musial's clubhouse comment was typical of a team man: "You can't smile too much when you lose a ball game." The Cards lost that second game 9-7 to the Giants after taking the opener 10-6.

A total of 12 home runs were hit in the two games at Busch Stadium and 21 in all in the National League.

Philadelphia Phillies gained a 4-3 edge over Cincinnati in the first half of a doubleheader. The second game was washed out. Bob Miller's relief pitching and Del Ennis' home run saved the day for the Phils.

Chicago and Pittsburgh also went on a homer spree with eight, three by Hank Sauer as they split a pair. A Sauer homer and single gave Paul Minner a 5-3 first-game decision over Vern Law. The Pirates ripped into the Cubs for eight runs in the first inning of the second game on the way to an 18-10 decision; Darkness halted the slaughter at the end of eight innings.

Brooklyn's game at Milwaukee was rained out.

The American League also had a postponement, the Baltimore at Boston doubleheader.

Cleveland won a pair from Washington 6-4 and 6-3 in 10 innings, while the other American League clubs split. Chicago won its third straight shutout 4-0 at Philadelphia with Don Johnson throwing a two-hitter but lost the second game 2-1 on Elmer Valo's pinch single in the ninth.

New York Yankees broke loose with their biggest inning, six runs in the third, to smother Detroit 12-4 but were shut out 4-0 with one hit by Billy Hoeft in the second game, cut to five innings by darkness.

Wally Westlake's double in the 10th gave Cleveland its double score over Washington after the Indians tied the score in the ninth.

Four homers were hit in the American League but two of them by rookie Bill Wilson and Chico Carrasquel provided Johnson's cushion for Chicago's first game verdict over Philadelphia.

Decide Gregg To Be OHA Representative

TORONTO (CP)—At a special session here Saturday the Ontario Hockey Association executive decided that president Tory Gregg of Wingham will be its special representative at the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association in Vancouver May 9-13.

Gregg will also be the OHA's nominee for the position of CAHA second vice-president if that position is vacated by Wilf Duranceau of Montreal. It is reported that Duranceau, ill for the last few weeks, will resign.

Gregg's endorsement brought a mild rebuke from Jack Roxburgh, immediate past president of the OHA. He said he thought he should have been the OHA member to contest the position if it is vacated by Duranceau.

Two years ago when the CAHA had an election of officers, Roxburgh, then OHA president, lost out in the voting to Duranceau.

MATTER OF POLICY

OHA officials said it was a matter of policy to appoint its president to contest CAHA positions despite the fact that CAHA regulations stipulate that none of its officers may also be members of an affiliated branch.

The rule was introduced two years ago because many of the other branches said the OHA was getting too many footholds in the CAHA.

George S. Dudley of Midland is secretary-manager of the CAHA and W. A. Hewitt of Toronto is its registrar-treasurer. Both are also on the OHA executive.

Calgary Meets Quebec For Edinburgh Trophy

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders won the Western Hockey League championship here Saturday night, downing Vancouver Canucks 3-1 before 8,575 fans.

The win gave the Stampeders the best-of-seven final 4-2. Trailing 2-1 after the first three games in Vancouver, the Stamps breezed through three wins in a row at home for the title.

They now will meet Quebec Aces, Quebec Hockey League champions, in a best-of-seven post-season series for the new Duke of Edinburgh Trophy and the Canadian professional hockey championship. First game will be played in Calgary Tuesday.

Substitute forward Johnny Michaluk came up with the series-winning goal for Calgary in the third period. Sid Finney accounted for the other two Calgary goals, scoring in the second and third periods. Carl Kaiser rapped in the lone Vancouver tally in the third period.

Syracuse Beats Out Bisons In Tough Doubleheader

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What a difference a day makes—in the International League standings, that is.

Buffalo Bisons fell three notches in six hours Sunday and now are the hapless occupants of fourth place in the loop. Syracuse Chiefs took over first place from the Bisons by beating the staggering Herd in a doubleheader, 4-3 and 4-2.

Rochester Red Wings and Havana's Cuban Sugar Kings also vaulted past the Bisons. The Sugar Kings whipped the Red Wings 3-1, and the two teams now are tied for second place.

In other games, Richmond Virginians defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 6-4, and Montreal Royals and Ottawa Athletics split a twin bill. The A's won the first 5-3 and the Royals the nightcap 3-2.

Jackie Mayo's home run in the ninth inning won the first game for the Chiefs. In the nightcap, Jack Sanford held the Bisons to seven hits and was given a three-run lead in the first inning on home runs by Stan Palys and John Blatnik.

Joe Lutz hit a home run with Ed Mierkowicz on base in the 10th inning to give Richmond the triumph over Toronto. Ken Heintzelman, fourth of the Virginians' pitchers, was the winner. The second game was called at the end of six innings with the Virginians ahead 1-0. It will be completed at a later date.

Vince Gohl held Montreal hitless for five innings for the A's in the opener. He needed help in the eighth from Al Romberger; who protected the margin. Montreal scored its winning run in the nightcap on successive triples by Dick Whitman and Ham Hemric in the sixth.

Mitri KO's Turpin In 28 Seconds

ROME (AP)—Randy Turpin of Britain and Italy's Tiberio Mitri met on the comeback trail Sunday.

And 28 seconds after the opening bell Mitri was laughing happily — again the European middleweight champion and Idol of Italy, and aching to tangle with world champion Bobo Olson.

Turpin, the former world champion, slammed to the canvas by his opponent's first punch, stood in his corner with glazed eyes, smiling a little, as if it couldn't have happened.

It was one of the quickest knockouts on record.

The end came so suddenly and the crunching punch was so short and swift that veteran fight reporters less than four feet away never saw the brutal left hook.

"It was like a pistol shot the way he went down," the elated Italian said later in his dressing room. "Now I want to fight Bobo Olson."

The disconsolate Turpin, who beat Sugar Ray Robinson for the middleweight crown in 1951 and later lost it to the American Negro sat in his dressing room, slumped on a stool.

"I could have gone on," Turpin said.

But his manager, George Middleton, later change his mind and agreed that the referee was right in leading the beaten warrior to the corner and ending the fight.

Turpin won the European 160-pound title by knocking out Holland's Lucien van Dam in 1951.

Yesterday's Stars

Batting: Stan Musial, Cardinals—Set major league record by hitting five home runs in doubleheader against New York as Cards won 10-6 and lost 9-7. Also collected single and walked twice, scoring six runs and driving in nine runs.

Crevolin Horses Win Two $100,000 Races

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)—Bill Kyne's 67th birthday party was a recordbreaking success at Bay Meadows.

Andy Crevolin's Imbros won the inaugural W. P. Kyne Handicap, northern California's first $100,000 horse race. That made Crevolin, an Alhambra, Calif., auto dealer, the first man ever to win two $100,000 races the same day. Lucky Andy's Determine had plucked the roses at the Kentucky Derby just three hours earlier.

Imbros, ridden by Johnny Longden, sped the 1⅛ miles in 1:48 3-5, cutting 2-5 seconds off the 16-year-old 1:49 track record set by the great Seabiscuit.

RECORDS FELL

Bay Meadows' parimutuel and attendance records also fell. A crowd of 26,165 bet $1,573,309 on the nine races. That's exactly 60 more than the 26,105 set May 11, 1946. The previous high mutuel handle was $1,481,905.

Imbros' victory was good for $48,800 net as Kyne spread the $100,000 purse money through eight places. Kyne, Bay Meadows' general manager, was celebrating his 67th birthday and 50th year in horse racing.

Imbros, paying $4.80 as a 7-to-5 favorite, defeated Calumet's Fleet Bird, 8-to-5 second choice, by half a length, with Trusting third.

STRONG MEN—Marv Grissom delightedly lifted Whitey Lockman's left arm after the first baseman hit a 279-foot home run that gave the veteran a 1-0 shutout. Lockman felt that it should have been the other way around when the 36-year-old righthander qualified as a Giant starter with a three-hit performance against Robin Roberts and the Phillies.

LONDON (AP)—Brazil, Austria, Egypt and Spain Sunday completed their sweep into the second round of the European zone Davis Cup tennis competition.

Brazil qualified to meet England by beating Switzerland, three to one.

Austria eliminated Ireland, 3-2 at Vienna, overcoming a 2-1 Irish lead. Egypt, which had clinched its win over Turkey Saturday, split the final two singles for a 4-1 victory.

Calgary earlier reported financial troubles.

DAVIS CUP AT TORONTO

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canada-Chile Davis Cup tennis tie will be played at Toronto in July, the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association announced Sunday.

An association spokesman said the decision to hold the tie in Toronto was taken at a council meeting Saturday following return of Laird Watt, council member, from Toronto where he has been looking over courts at the Toronto Cricket Club.

TENNIS SUSPENSIONS

ROME (AP)—Fausto Gardini and Giuseppe Merlo, Italy's two top Davis Cup players, were suspended Sunday because, an official of the Italian Tennis Federation said, "they asked for money to compete in the Davis Cup tournament."

The announcement came like a hidden bombshell on the eve of the start of the big Italian international tournament.

Enrico Piccardo, secretary of the federation, did not say how much money was requested by the players.

Killed In Playpen

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ten-year-old James Lykins, Jr., kept begging his father to let him drive the family car. Finally his father said he could drive it back and forth in the driveway. Jimmy lost control of the car Sunday, police said, and it struck a baby's playpen near the garage, killing 15-month-old Douglas Byrneside.

A CINCH, boasts Determine, the pint-sized colt who led the way to the wire Saturday in the Kentucky Derby with a thrilling stretch drive. Determine was the first grey to win in the history of the Derby.

Determine Breaks Jinx, Kentucky Derby Winner

By ORLO ROBERTSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A little grey colt with a terrific appetite and a decided dislike for work is going after two-thirds of racing's coveted triple crown after breaking a jinx that plagued horses of his color through the 80 years of the Kentucky Derby.

No grey had ever won the glamor race, though many tried, until Andy Crevolin's Determine, a mite of a horse out of Alhambra, Calif., came from second place in the stretch Saturday to hang a length-and-a-half defeat on the swift Hasty Road.

Fifteen other three-year olds, including the favored Correlation, were up the stretch eating the dust of the leaders as Determine reached the end of the mile-and-a-quarter in 2:03.

Determine's next stop is the Preakness at Pimlico May 22. Then, according to present plans of his owner, and trainer Willie Molter, he'll head back west, where he had won six straight stake victories before arriving in Kentucky. He bowed to Hasty Road by a head in the mile of the Derby Trial here last Tuesday.

The little colt is not eligible for the Belmont Stakes, third race of the triple crown. And if Molter had his way, Determine probably also would skip the Preakness.

"After all, he won the big one and that is what we wanted," said Molter. "Since he can't w' the triple crown I would just as soon ship him back home, but the boss (Crevolin) has the final say naturally."

He added: "He dislikes work so much that we don't ask much of him between races, but we race him as often as possible."

Hasty Road, a speed demon from Allie Reuben's Hasty House farm of Toledo, Ohio, stepped to the front soon after the start of the Derby, but jockey Ray York never had Determine farther back than third, ready to strike when he gave the word.

The Crevolin grey moved within a length or so of Hasty Road going around the final bend, caught the pace-setter at the eighth pole, raced on nearly even terms for another sixteenth and then took command to win going away.

Hasty Road had 2½ lengths on R. W. McIlvain's Hasseyampa, an outsider.

The victory, worth a record of $102,050, boosted Determine's total earnings to $286,235.

Quebec Ties Series, Downs TeePees 5-3

TORONTO (CP)—Quebec Frontenacs came up with their best game of the eastern Memorial Cup finals Sunday to defeat St. Catharines TeePees 5-3 and deadlock the best-of-seven series 2-2.

If the prediction of Quebec coach Phil Watson means anything, the Frontenacs will be the 1954 winners of the Memorial Cup. Watson predicted before Sunday's game that the winner of the fourth contest would take the works.

But even though his Frontenacs were ahead all the way in Sunday's game Watson wasn't satisfied.

"We haven't hit our stride yet," he said after the game. "If we had only met these guys after we knocked off (Montreal) Canadiens, it would have been a breeze."

The Frontenacs had a layoff of almost two weeks after winning the Quebec championship while the TeePees and Toronto Marlboros were fighting for the Ontario Hockey Association title.

HOT FOR GAME

A sweltering shirt-sleeved crowd of 7,349 saw Sunday's clash. Quebec went ahead 1-0 just after eight minutes of play but the TeePees tied the score before the period ended. Three unanswered goals by the Frontenacs in the second stanza decided the game but St. Catharines outscored Quebec 2-1 in the last 20 minutes.

Mike Ratchford scored two goals for Quebec for the second consecutive game. Gilles Thibault, George Falkner and Butch Bouchard rounded out the total, Ratchford also assisted on Bouchard's goal.

Barry Cullen, Ches Warchol and Brian Cullen were the TeePee snipers.

TeePees, playing their 89th game of the season, looked weary and showed the strain of their two tough playoff series with Toronto St. Michael's College Majors and the Marlboros.

Thibault trapped Faulkner's goal-mouth pass and scooped it in the net at 8:30 of the first period for the first goal of the game.

Barry Cullen tipped in a shot less than three minutes from the end of the period to knot the score. Ratchford was off for tripping at the time and it was the only penalty that was instrumental in the scoring.

MINOR PENALTIES

TeePees took seven of the total of 13 minor penalties handed out during the game.

Faulkner sent the Frontenacs ahead at 9:29 of the second after he pulled away from Jack Higgins, St. Catharines defenceman. Seven minutes later Ratchford increased the lead to 3-1 when he drove in Rousseau's pass. Bouchard took Ratchford's rebound off the back boards two minutes later and fired past Marv Edwards for the winning goal.

Warchol gave the TeePees some hope in the third when his backhander beat Jacques Marcotte but a two-man breakaway resulted in Ratchford's second goal to erase the TeePee bid. Brian Cullen wrapped up the scoring just after a face off at 14:50.

The teams now travel to Quebec City for the fifth game Wednesday night. They come back to Toronto for the sixth meeting Friday.

Drop Determine For Preakness

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Determine, the Kentucky Derby winner, will not run in the Preakness May 22, it was announced today by the thoroughbred's trainer, Willie Molter.

Molter, who said he was speaking for owner Andy Crevolin, said "We don't want to push our luck too far."

Crevolin could not be reached immediately for comment.

Determine, only grey ever to win the derby in its 80 years, is not eligible for the Belmont Stakes, third event in American racing's triple crown, but Crevolin had said he would enter him in the Preakness after Saturday's victory, when Determine came from second place in the stretch to win by a length and a half over Hasty Road, who had beaten him by a head in the mile Derby trial last Tuesday.

Churches Over-Organized Members Lose Sight Of Goal

Church members are often so "obsessed by organization" that they lose sight of their goal, the "duty and privilege" to make known the word of God.

The Rev. Dr. A. B. B. Moore, president of Victoria College University of Toronto, made this charge at the 121st anniversary services of St. Andrew's United church Sunday.

Dr. Moore quoted from famed Swiss theologian Karl Barth to suggest that "we live in an age which overly stresses mans' accomplishments." Church people, he said, should never forget that it is "God who created and sustains" the church. We take "far too much credit" for what the church does, he said.

Taking a theme from Ephesians 3:10, Dr. Moore called for more evangelizing on the part of all church people. In the words of the text it is "to the intent that now unto the principalities and powers in heavenly places might be known by the church the manifold wisdom of God."

WORLD EVANGELISM

This theme was echoed at the evening service by the Rev. Gordon S. Maxwell of Trinity United church who said that "we must all think in terms of world evangelism." Mr. Maxwell was filling in for Elex Edmison, QC, assistant to the president of Queen's University whose aircraft was grounded due to fog in Newfoundland.

There is a "tremendous paucity of spiritual force" in this streamlined 20th century, Mr. Maxwell charged. He said that many ways the church was more virile 100 years ago and has been on a decline.

Proof of this, said Mr. Maxwell, is in the church's inability to prevent war. He compared this with the Christian church in it's first three centuries when no Christian bore arms.

Mr. Maxwell also echoed Dr. Moore's assertion that man tends to inflate himself at the expense of God. Man has no personal spiritual power, he said, but is only "the bulb through which the power flows."

Nor it there anything new under the sun in terms of sin, said Mr. Maxwell. Man has, however, developed techniques which allow him to sin more easily and draw away from God. He called for a sort of spiritual renaissance, "akin to the New Testament spirit of Pentecost."

"We are hovering at the edge of something tremendous," Mr. Maxwell concluded. The choice, he said, is between a rededication to the word of God or bringing the world "down into darkness."

St. Andrew's set some sort of record Sunday night for the power and lustiness of congregational singing. Hymns were familiar and the walls fairly reverberated.

The Rev. H. C. Cotton, St. Andrew's minister, cited the presence of James Milligan as guest soloist as one reason for enthusiastic vocal response by the congregation. Mr. Milligan won the top award for Singing Stars of Tomorrow recently. In addition to singing with the choir, he performed three more secular numbers at a friendship hour after the evening service.

The choir, too, had several numbers for the 121st anniversary. One, "Near to the Heart of God" was arranged by Peterborough organist Stanley Northrop.

A male quartet performed at the friendship hour. Members were Arthur Vogt, Ross Cotton, Don Eason and William Peltz. They sang four numbers.

Receiving visitors to the friendship hour were Mrs. J. A. Dewart, president of the Women's Association, Mrs. H. C. Cotton and E. F. Reid, clerk of session. Greetings from Trinity were brought by Mr. Maxwell.

Refreshments were arranged by the Mr. and Mrs. Club under Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McFarlane, the president couple. They were assisted by a WA group under Miss Helen Brown. Thanks to the refreshment crew and to the musical artists were expressed by Mr. Reid.

Stevens Called Again To Testify

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens was called again today to testify at the televised hearings probing into his dispute with Senator McCarthy.

Stevens has testified for at least part of each of the seven days of the hearings, and McCarthy said he would be "awfully surprised" if the secretary finished today.

Roy M. Cohn, the Wisconsin Republican senator's chief counsel, said in advance of today's hearing that he wanted to question Stevens further about the secretary's actions in relation to Maj.-Gen. Kirke B. Lawton.

Lawton, commanding general at Fort Monmouth, N.J., and now on sick leave here, is reported to have given the Senate investigations sub-committee in a closed session testimony favorable to McCarthy's search for subversives in the army.

CLAIMS SCHINE "HOSTAGE"

McCarthy and two of his aides have accused Stevens and other high army officials of trying to force them to drop or divert that inquiry. They said the army officials used as a "hostage" Pte. G. David Schine, an unpaid committee aide until he was drafted last November.

Stevens and two associates accused McCarthy and Cohn of using improper methods in seeking an officer's commission for Schine and, after he was drafted, of trying to get favored treatment for him.

McCarthy has stepped off the sub-committee, which he normally heads, for this inquiry.

As for Lawton, McCarthy has declared he was passed over for promotion to the permanent rank of major-general, and implied that Stevens had something to do with it. Stevens has said he has no authority to interfere with the recommendations of army promotion boards.

NO FEAR OF McCARTHY

Stevens testified last week that he "got the word" that McCarthy wouldn't like the dismissal of Lawton as Fort Monmouth commander. Stevens said he didn't go through with a move to transfer Lawton, but that his decision was not based on any fear of McCarthy.

Week-end criticism of senators outside the inquiry committee on the televised scenes of a Republican senator battling with a Republican president's appointee (Stevens) pointed up the political pain felt by some Republicans over the whole matter.

Chairman Stephan A. Mitchell of the Democratic national committee said on a television program Sunday that he thinks President Eisenhower would "be better off" now if he had taken a position against McCarthy while he was campaigning for the presidency in 1952.

Asked if McCarthy was helping the Democratic party, Mitchell said he doesn't regard the senator as "an asset to anybody."

Say New Canadian Sub-Chaser Tops

MONTREAL (CP) — A veteran naval expert said Sunday Canada's new submarine chaser would be capable of destroying the United States atomic submarine Nautilus, "before she could become effective."

Capt. Frank Freeborn, chief naval overseer at Canadian Vickers plant here, said he would back HMCS St. Laurent, prototype of 14 Canadian built sub-chasers, "to take care of the latest type submarine."

"The St. Laurent will be the latest, up-to-date submarine killer in the world," he said in an interview.

"In a theoretical battle the St. Laurent could pick up the Nautilus before she became effective."

A BALLET RECITAL by the pupils of Miss Caroline Littlefield was given Saturday afternoon in the auditorium of the Teachers' College for an appreciative audience of more than 100 parents and children. It was a garden fantasy with prettily costumed flowers and fairies of the babies' and juniors' classes doing special numbers, and seniors providing novelty with a skater's waltz and French can can dances. Pictured here in the front row are Sally Sands and Betty Mahoney with Lynda Howard, Diane Zakos and Diana Mulcahy standing. A coffee party followed the recital. Flowers and gifts were presented to Miss Littlefield by the children.

Aberdeen Angus Bring Average Of $289 At Sale

Twenty-five Aberdeen-Angus cattle grossed $7,240 for an average of $289.60 at Morrow Park Saturday.

This was the third consignment auction by breeders of the Eastern Ontario Aberdeen-Angus Association.

The $600 top price was paid by Parrish & Lannon of Grinnell, Iowa, for a year-old heifer owned by Malcolm Bailey of Uxbridge.

Six entries selling for $400 or more averaged $463 and those bringing $300 or more averaged $409.

Thirteen of the 25 were bought for farms in the Peterborough group — six in Durham, two in Hastings, two in Peterborough, one each in Northumberland, Victoria and Ontario county.

"Considering everything, quite a successful sale," said G. B. Beatty of Richmond Hill.

It might have been slightly more than a coincidence that the two Peterborough buyers picked out the entries of the consignor nearest to Peterborough — W. Cliff Hall & Son of Cavan. These two heifers were born within the last year.

George McIlmoyle of Lakefield, RR 3, paid $215 for Pride of Fair Vista 6th by Bandolier of Fair Vista out of Pride of Windsweep 4th. J. R. (Jack) Sinclair was a repeat buyer from the previous sale. He took Missie of Fair Vista 8th for $170.

Thomas Lawson of Janetville handed in a cheque for $790 for three females: $305 for a three-year-old cow and calf at foot, entered by P. R. Richmond of Keswick; $275 for a yearling owned by Ronald Marquis of Sunderland, and $210 for a bred heifer from the herd of T. Jackson of Malton.

J. W. McKewen of Kingston got five animals for $1,765, one of them with a calf at heel. Of the three others, one was a G. B. Beatty bull, Bandolier of Drynoch 18th, at $440.

The three bulls in the sale averaged $370.

M. Glenn Heath of Stirling paid $425 for a Don Head Farms cow, "Erica of Great Oaks 9th", and $265 for "Lady Canton of Oakholm", a three-year-old entered by Robert Petch of Gormley.

Hugh Campbell of Dartford got a R. C. Baker (Claremont) heifer for $200, and John Lyons of Little Britain a bred heifer for $350 from P. R. Richmond of Keswick.

G. W. Beatty's bid of $350 carried through for a Pauline of Arkindale heifer owned by W. C. Arkinstall, Newmarket.

Dora Brothers of Bowmanville returned to this sale with an entry that got them $150, and they bought a Don Head cow for $310.

The auctioneer was Duncan Brown of Shedden with Gordon Hancock assisting.

Highly-Organized Sport Detrimental To Youngsters

Highly organized sport is detrimental to the moral, physical and emotional well-being of children under 13.

This resolution was passed, after much stormy debate, at the windup session of the Ontario Recreation Association's ninth annual conference Sunday morning.

Too much emphasis on winning, too much "pushing" of young children into athletic competitions is bad not only for the children so spotlighted but for many more who don't make it. This was the view of Dr. Earle Zeigler, professor of physical health and recreation at the University of Western who drafted the motion. He was introduced to the conference at the Empress by Jack Dane of Toronto, formerly Peterborough recreation director.

Mr. Dane was particularly caustic about junior tournaments in which commercial firms bring in customers by exploiting youngsters. He scored tourneys in which young winners are presented with "watches and fancy doodads" while those who fail to succeed are forgotten.

But just because a "few gold watches" may have been unwisely given, "let's not make a blanket condemnation" said Sam Jacks, recreation director of North Bay. Mr. Jacks was dubious about any move which might tend to stifle the spirit of competition, holding that it is an intrinsic part of any youngster's development.

NEED RIGHT TYPE

Dr. Zeigler's reply to this was that he was "all for" competition, but that it must be competition "of the right type." He felt that no useful purpose was served by putting a few youngsters in the spotlight at the expense of themselves and of the losers as well.

Digressing slightly, Dr. Zeigler also contended that bodily contact sports are dangerous for youngsters under 13. He said that such youngsters are neither "emotionally or physically mature enough" to engage in competitive boxing, hockey or football."

Another delegate felt that this was "unrealistic" on the grounds that "children should engage in these sports anyway and it's best they be supervised.

As the debate drifted off into numerous tangents, Dr. Zeigler declared that "it's about time some people sharpened up" on this issue. All seemed to agree that exploitation of youngsters is not desirable, but felt that "highly-commercialized" or "highly-specialized" might convey the idea of the resolution better than "highly-organized."

The suggestion for rewording the resolution was first put by incoming ORA president Bob Ballard of Ajax, but got nowhere. The resolution was passed by approximately a two to one majority.

AGREE ON GRANTS

Unanimity was achieved, however, on a resolution put by William R. Jones, Timmins recreation director. Mr. Jones asked that the convention go on record as opposing the present government arrangement for recreation grants-in-aid, suggesting that ceilings for grants be abolished.

Under the present arrangement, Mr. Jones explained, the maximum grant for a municipality which is not large enough to operate an area-wide program is $4,800, which may be obtained with a maximum outlay of $14,400. But in Timmins, for example, the budget is for $30,000, yet grants may still not exceed $4,800.

There is a "serious inequity" here, Mr. Jones charged. He said his resolution "puts it squarely up to the provincial government that the people want some action."

Specifically Mr. Jones asked that grants-in-aid be based either on a straight percentage basis of the total outlay, or by removing the maximum ceiling and allowing grants on the overall costs in the various recreation classifications.

A plan for amending the ORA constitution to ensure representation from all 11 recreation zones in the association was tabled. George Cummings of Deep River, who put the motion, argued that some areas are being discriminated against, not wilfully, but because the present election machinery is "inadequate."

There were rumblings of discontent from northern delegates when the Cummings motion was tabled. One delegate was heard to suggest that northern groups might even secede from the ORA.

Peterborough's Wilf Langan was ruled out of order by chairman Roy Cadwell of Toronto when he asked if a discussion could be held to see what affect secession might have on the organization. Past president Mrs. Estelle Howley of Orillia observed that Mr. Cummings' motion "presupposes" that unorganized areas are going to become organized." Mr. Cummings replied that he was trying to protect all areas, suggested a "bonus" for those who become organized, and "if they don't organize, so what?"

SUGGEST OVERHAUL

One delegate then suggested that a complete overhaul of the ORA might be wise. He suggested division into six districts, with each district further divided into zones. This would create a pyramidal, two-level ORA administration which he felt would solve the problem.

Wendell Brewster, who voted in favor of tabling the Cummings' motion, thought the ORA might be attempting to "do too much too soon." He said he favored the Cummings' motion "in principle" but doubted "if we have grown enough to do a responsible province-wide job."

Another delegate suggested that even if the administrative council did have a member from each zone, this gave no assurance that the executive would be representative. The 11, plus ten or more others elected at an annual meeting would elect a new executive.

Incoming president Ballard saw in the whole motion a "possible reflection" on the work of past executives. Mr. Cummings denied this, said that some executive members favored his plan.

Other resolutions passed included one to further research on area programming in recreation, and another to examine the whole question of facilities. A special advisory committee of the ORA will study the selection, preparation and design of facilities, and may recommend formation of a permanent advisory committee on this subject.

COMMITTEE NAMED

A resolution presented by Mr. Brewster set up a committee to study recent enabling legislation passed by the government which allows community centre committees, recreation groups and parks boards to merge responsibilities under one organization. He said ORA delegates should "tell municipal councils to get busy and go to work on this."

Sunday morning's resolutions, the product of discussion workshops Saturday, wound up the conference. The findings of the conference were summarized by Richard McDonald of the Toronto metropolitan YMCA. Earlier, the Rev. F. G. Ongley of St. John's Anglican church conducted Sunday observances for some of the 400 delegates at the conference.

New officers were installed at Saturday night's banquet, chaired by Col. G. Bolton: The officers: president, Bob Ballard, Ajax; secretary, Wendell Brewster, Oshawa; treasurer, Ted Snow, Oshawa; vice-presidents, Mrs. Louise Colley, Barrie; Garth Kaye, Walkerton; William Pillsworth, London; Norman Cragg, Toronto.

Saturday noon guests joined lustily in a zonal sing song led by Bill McFarlane of the Peterborough "Y". A dance followed the banquet Saturday night.

Suburban Shopping Centres Won't Cut Downtown Stores

TORONTO (CP) — The suburban shopping centre has its place, but it is nonsense to suggest that it will supplant downtown areas in the foreseeable future, Morgan Reid, assistant vice-president, retail, of Simpsons-Sears, Ltd., said today.

He advised retailers, in an address prepared for delivery to the annual conference of the Canadian Retail Federation, to examine whether proposed new developments are based on retail experience, or are promotional efforts where land has no profitable alternate use.

"It is not possible," he said, "to guess how many of the shopping centres now on drawing boards will actually come into reality and be successful, but I should be very surprised if more than one out of 10 are really justifiable.

"As with other new ideas of undoubted but limited merit, the shopping centre has been definitely over-sold."

STILL GO DOWNTOWN

The same survey showed that consumers in suburban areas up to 15 miles away from the hub made 50 per cent of their purchases downtown.

Mr. Reid said purchases by categories showed the following downtown percentages:

Fur coats 75; cloth coats 64; jewelry 63; china and glassware 57; sheets and pillow cases 57; furniture 56.

In the 15 to 35 mile limit, 12 to 21 per cent of shoppers, depending on the merchandise, were downtown.

Downtown areas, however, if they were to maintain and increase their position, must study the need for improved transportation and better parking facilities.

PICKETING CAPITALIST—Businessmen in downtown Cleveland, Ohio, were surprised to see Abe Sechter dressed in morning coat, striped trousers, silk hat and carrying a picket sign. A resident of St. Paul, Minn., he was picketing the annual meeting of a steel company, protesting that continued operation of the company is unfair to stockholders. He says he owns 3,500 shares of stock in the company, which no longer operates any plants. At the meeting, a motion to dissolve the company was defeated.

Police Captures Recorded For Radio Show

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The new "Night Watch" radio show tops "Dragnet" for realism in the cops-and-criminal department. It's the genuine thing.

Listeners to "Night Watch" on CBS tonight will hear the actual nabbing of a criminal. The recording was made during an arrest by the Culver City, Calif., police.

Columbia's answer to Dragnet's Jack Webb is an enterprising young man named Donn Reed. A radio veteran, he dreamed up "Night Watch" in an effort to find something new in radio.

Reed went in a police prowl car one night and found a wealth of material. A friend on the force talked to chief W. H. Hildebrande of the Culver City police about allowing Reed to record some cases. Permission was granted, and the project got under way.

"Our first problem was the recording equipment," reported Reed. "To get really professional quality meant using about 1,000 pounds of gear. Obviously that was impractical, since much of the time I had to race after police to get my recordings. We finally worked it down to a self-inclusive unit that weighs only 16 pounds."

The danger can be considerable. Once Reed was in close proximity when a hold-up man was apprehended. The hood reached for his gun, and Reed hit the deck. The fall damaged the recording equipment and ruined his report on the crime.

On another occasion, the police picked up a dope addict who confessed the source of supply. This led to an under-cover interview with a dope-pusher whose devious method of selling the stuff was recorded on tape.

Such exploits provide an exciting life for Reed. Too exciting, claims his insurance firm. "My premium has been tripled since I started this work," he lamented.

Wants UN Ban H-Bomb

TORONTO (CP)—The annual Ontario CCF youth convention Sunday called on the United Nations to ban the use of hydrogen and atomic bombs and all other nuclear weapons of war. It asked that testing of such weapons be banned, since such tests constitute a menace to human life.

A resolution was drafted urging the provincial government to aid in the rehabilitation of persons convicted of criminal offences by making it possible for them to obtain employment as civil servants on completion of their sentences.

Other resolutions asked that unemployment benefits be made available to young persons who have not worked the required 180 days and that apprenticeship periods be shortened.

The convention criticized compulsory cadet training, "which masquerades in some schools as citizenship training."

The CCF youth also said they were opposed to any kind of censorship of the press, movies and literature.

Need More Unity, But Not Uniformity

TORONTO (CP)—Unity without uniformity is needed in building Canadian greatness, the president of the University of Toronto says.

Dr. Sidney Smith, in an address upon receipt of the Canadian B'Nai B'Rith Humanitarian Award for 1953, said Sunday night that from time to time Canadians should take stock of "the wealth of their diversities." He said Canada's blending of races and cultures in its national mosaic makes it strong and versatile.

"The reconciling of our differences, racial or religious or sectional or occupational, with the national interest is not merely, as we often think, a task for governments, Dominion and provincial. Each one of us has many opportunities in our business and professional and social affairs to contribute to a deeper spirit of national unity."

Hold Three-Hour May Day Parade

WINDSOR (CP)—Thousands of persons lined Windsor streets Saturday night to watch the three-hour sixth annual May Day parade.

Sponsored by the Catholic Lay Guild of Windsor, the event featured the presence of James Cardinal McGuigan of Toronto, Danny Thomas, radio and television comedian, marched with other lay dignitaries.

The parade was the first major public show of Windsor's centennial celebration marking 1954 as 100th anniversary of incorporation. It was also part of a world-wide campaign to win back May Day from the Communists and an opportunity to pray publicly for Russia's conversion.

Daley Voices Optimism On Unemployment Picture

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Labor Minister Daley of Ontario said Saturday that, generally speaking, the unemployment picture does not appear to be one which should create too much pessimism.

He addressed representatives from 11 municipal governments, the unemployment insurance commission and district labor organizations at a special meeting here.

"This is a new season—spring—and industry which has lain dormant over the winter months will soon come to life," Mr. Daley said. "There are many new industries — particularly along the Queen Elizabeth Way—which are in the process of completion and will soon be needing new workers, new personnel."

Harry P. Cavers, Liberal member of Parliament for Lincoln, said that although public works are important, they are not the complete solution to the present unemployment situation. He said that both he and Dr. W. H. McMillan, Liberal member for Welland, had urged Federal Labor Minister Gregg to keep up supplementary insurance benefits, "but so far there has been no move made to restore them."

Israel Project

MONTREAL (CP)—Bartley C. Crum, internationally-known U.S. lawyer, will speak at the annual Negev dinner here May 5. Sponsored by the Montreal council of the Jewish national fund in Canada, the banquet is to promote reclamation of a large tract of agricultural land in the western Negev district of Israel.

James P. Nicol Dies In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—James P. Nicol 59, prominent in labor circles and manager of industrial relations for Gair Company Canada Ltd., died Sunday.

Born in Scotland he came to Canada in 1913 and settled in Thorold where he became associated with the Ontario Paper Company.

Mr. Nicol was a former vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers and served on the international executive board for many years. He was also a past-president and one of the founders of the Niagara District Council of Paper Mill Unions.

In 1942, Mr. Nicol became a conciliation officer with the federal labor department. He joined the Gair Co. after the Second World War.

Surviving are his widow and a son, and four grandchildren.

Vigilante Committee To Track Down Pollution

By GRAHAM BERRY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles has formed a citizens' vigilante committee to track down and eradicate air pollution—a growing affliction of big cities everywhere.

Prominent citizens, tired of conflicting theories on the subject and the lack of co-ordination among agencies concerned with it, have banded together "to find out what causes smog and to get rid of it."

Bankers, hotel and store owners, educationists, industrialists and scientists set up the non-profit Southern California Air Pollution Foundation, Inc. It will farm out research projects and expects to co-ordinate efforts of the many agencies working on the problem for up to eight years.

The foundation is similar to other energetic citizens' groups which over the years have helped create the metropolitan miracle of modern Los Angeles out of a desert. One such group piped water in from the Colorado river, 392 miles away. Another built one of the world's great harbors, without benefit of a natural shelter from the sea.

The new group has high hopes of solving a problem which has cost millions of dollars in crop losses and caused millions of smarting eyes and sore throats.

Dr. Lauren Blakely Hitchcock, $50,000 - a - year president of the foundation, says "Engineers and scientists have a social obligation to solve the problem of air pollution, brought on by technicological advances which they helped create."

He says the foundation will do no research work itself, but will "ride herd" on research projects it decides are necessary. The foundation's first project is to learn exactly what in smog causes eye irritation.

"The irritating element (in eye-smarting) seems to be in part due to reaction products of hydrocarbons as activated by other impurities in the air and by sunshine," Dr. Hitchcock says. Hydrocarbons come from oil refinery cracking plants, automobile engines and gasoline storage tanks.

Trout Bite Well For Fishermen

TORONTO (CP) — The anglers were enthusiastic and so, apparently were the fish, as Ontario's trout-fishing season opened Saturday. Good catches were reported from most parts of the province.

An estimated 100,000 anglers dipped their lines in Ontario streams and lakes and found that trout were snapping in lively fashion.

Conservation officers said good old fashioned worms rather than fancy flies seemed to be the most successful bait.

Most anglers travelled miles to get their favorite spots. But at Owen Sound, 14-year-old Bob Wilson, did it the easy way. He took a three-pound rainbow from the Sydenham river—just a few minutes walk from his home.

Another Owen Sound angler, Howard Siegrist, pulled in a 2½-pound speckled trout 10 minutes after midnight. A 10-pound laker was hooked by Bob McGibbon of Port Hope at Lake L'Amable in the Bancroft area.

Up in the Algoma, Sudbury and Nipissing district fishermen can go after a new species of trout unofficially called the Wendigo. It is the result of two years of cross-breeding between speckled and lake trout and has been stocked in seven northern lakes.

Milburn's property on the 2nd line of Smith township. A careless picknicker is believed to have started the fire that spread to the cedar rail fence.

$950 TAG DAY

Tag Day on Saturday for the Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club's travel fund netted a total of $950. Senior swimmers were tagging on downtown street corners and Lakefield and juniors canvassed homes in the residential sections. This sum will be added to the $1,500 already realized in a series of events planned when the club needed $3,500 to go to the British Empire Games at Vancouver. Now that they are being sponsored on this trip, the money will be used toward travelling expenses when the swimmers go to defend the international championships they have won in United States.

Bird Sanctuary?

Peterborough citizens are quite used to stories of fighting muskies being caught regularly in the centre of the city in Little lake and the Otonabee river. But this morning they were a bit startled to see a good-sized flock of geese had settled down for a rest on the lake. An Examiner photographer who went stalking them about 11 a.m. came back without a picture. They were too wary for that. You'll just have to take our word that they were there.

Defer Hearing Of CGE Appeal On Assessment

The legal battle by the Canadian General Electric Co. to have their assessment cut has been postponed to May 31.

Today counsel for the CGE and the city appeared in county court before Judge J. A. McGibbon of Lindsay. They asked for an adjournment, without prejudice to the rights of both parties, to May 31. Their request was granted.

T. J. Carley, QC, represented the city. Alex Elliott, QC, acted for Fred Parkinson, QC, CGE's counsel.

The CGE are appealing their 1953 assessment that the court of revision earlier this year set at $4,753,868. This was a jump of about $2,500,000 over the previous year.

The court of revision confirmed the city's assessment, less $124,579 that the assessment department conceded had been mistakenly charged to the company.

Besides fighting the court of revision's findings in county court, the CGE have asked the Supreme Court for an injunction restraining the city from taxing the company's property on the 1953 assessment.

The company asked the Supreme Court to decide hat the 1952 assessment was the last valid one.

Planning To Burn Passenger Steamer

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Plans are afoot to burn the passenger steamer City of Cleveland III off the head of Peche island as a centennial year spectacle, Capt. Frank Becker of Detroit said Saturday night.

The ship, idle since a collision with a freighter in Lake Huron three years ago, would be stripped of all valuables, towed to deep water in Lake St. Clair, and burned within sight of the Canadian shore, Capt. Becker said.

List Appointment Of City Editor

SARNIA (CP) — T. N. Dwan, publisher and general manager of The Canadian Observer, today announced the appointment of Lew Gloin as city editor.

Mr. Gloin, previously district editor, city hall reporter and columnist, joined the staff of The Observer in September, 1952. He was formerly on the advertising staff of the St. Thomas Times-Journal and the editorial staff of the London Free Press.

Blistering Sun Turns Spring Into Summer

Thermometer Hits 75, Daring Few Go Swimming

A hot sun, only occasionally obscured by scudding clouds, on Sunday boosted the temperature in Peterborough to the mid-summer figure of 75 degrees.

Only two places recorded higher thermometer readings, a bulletin from the Toronto public weather office indicates Montreal all but sweltered in an unseasonal 77 degree heat wave, and it was 76 in Ottawa.

In downtown Peterborough it looked like an August day. Boys and men were down to their shirtsleeves and girls and women wore light sleeveless blouses. Most of those who were outdoors and in the sun for any length of time got their first burn of the season.

SWIMMING

Some of the more daring young folk got so carried away by the unseasonal warmth that they went in for a swim. A number took a few breath-catching strokes in the canal, and motorists who visited their summer cottages on district lakes had similar tales of neighbors who went in for a dip.

District golf courses were well patronized by would-be Sammy Sneads. The sportsmen picked up a healthy sunburn if they didn't break par.

Official figures for the day; maximum 75, night low 57, today at 9 a.m. 61, and at noon 66. Night showers caused a considerable temperature drop.

Not all of Ontario had this ideal holiday weather. At the lakehead people glumly measured an eight-inch fall of snow during the week-end. At Port Arthur the thermometer sank down to 23 and the high was only five degrees above freezing. And farther west, at Regina, wintry blasts caused the temperature to drop to 14 degrees.

And temperatures in the thirties are expected Tuesday.

Mental Health Gets Spotlight At Meetings

This is Mental Health Week.

Lay, clerical and medical leaders will be combining their talents this week to bring this message to Peterborough: mental disturbances are an almost characteristic phenomenon of our age. Elimination of some widespread misconcepts about mental disability can help to make society better adjusted.

That religion is a powerful weapon against mental disturbances, and that Christ is the great healer is the view of the Rev. Gordon Maxwell of Trinity United church. Mr. Maxwell will be conducting a series of five morning radio broadcasts, beginning today, on this theme.

Tonight, Dr. Tom Currier brings his film, "Shyness," to the Queen Mary home and school association. Previously shown at the Peterborough Rotary club last week, this film shows that shy children often become neurotic and maladjusted adults.

Mothers who smother their children and mothers who belittle them, are niggardly with praise and encouragement are equally culpable should a child become maladjusted. This is the central theme of Dr. Currier's film, which will also be shown at the Cameron St. home and school association May 11. Both meetings are at 8 p.m.

SECOND FILM

Another film, "That the Deaf May Speak," will be shown at the Central home and school association meeting tonight at 8 p.m.

Mental health will be the theme of a panel discussion which will be broadcast over CHEX at 2.45 Tuesday. Panel speakers will be Dr. Currier, Miss Rachel Young of the children's aid society, Dr. J. S. Pratten of the Peterborough Civic hospital mental health clinic, and J. H. Moebus.

Dr. S. R. Laycock, of Madoc, former dean of education at the University of Saskatchewan, will speak on "Safeguarding the mental health of children" Tuesday, at 8 p.m., in the Queen Mary auditorium. Dr. Laycock also will make a radio address Thursday at 1.30 p.m.

The Jewish community will take cognizance of mental health week in special services at the Beth Israel synagogue. Thursday evening at 7.30 and Friday morning at 8, Rabbi A. M. Babb will discuss "The community circle and God."

At least one Protestant clergyman will build his sermon around mental health next Sunday. The Rev. Dr. N. D. Patterson, of Mark St. United church, has chosen "Crusading for Mental Health" as his topic for his evening sermon.

Fishermen Who Went North Come Home With Trout

Sunday night brought tired trout fishermen back to their homes, those who travelled great distances for the opening day of the sport, Saturday. Those who travelled caught lake speckles with good luck Saturday and poorer on Sunday due to the intemperate hot spell that drove the trout to shady holes.

The largest speckled trout reported over the opening weekend weighed 6 pounds, ten ounces. It was taken by Vivian Varrins of Griffiths, Ont., at White Lake, North Hastings county. The big one fell for a red devil lure. It is believed that the lucky fisherman was a member of a party that took a total of 96 speckles. This big one is to be mounted.

Land o' Lakes area was a popular spot where a party of 11 took more than 100 fish at three unidentified lakes. Worms, half-waves and redtails seemed to be the popular lures.

Those on the large party included Johnny Russelle, Dave Foster, Dave Wilson, Everett Stewart, Ken Doughty, Red Creighton and George Sullivan, all of Peterborough; Ted Highstead, Wally Clarke, Murray Gordon and Bill Morrison, all of Toronto.

'Dolph Lamers and Rae McWilliams took seven lakers north of Haliburton village and missed 20 more fish. Toronto newspapermen Bob Turnbull and Jim Vipond took the same number of fish in the Barry's Bay district. James Wharry and Lloyd Ash took trout "north of Bancroft."

Two large brown trout were taken at Weslemakoon Lake, north of Kaladar, on Saturday. The largest, 8 pounds, 15 ounces, was caught by Keenie Edmunds, of Norwood; it measured 27¾ inches. A friend, David Annis, of Toronto, caught a five-pound brown while Herb Batts of Norwool, also of the party, had nothing to show for his trip.

Bert Carter went up Flesherton way and caught his limit on Saturday. Frank Scott took two days' count in the Castleton district, Northumberland county.

District stream fishermen crowed the popular spots and didn't do too well. However, Morris Duke and his wife caught 14 speckles at Kelly's Creek. Worms again, was the popular lure on the streams.

John Smith, of 224 Lake St., caught a 3½-pound speckled five miles north of Wilberforce, and nearly matched it with a three-pounder. His fishing pal, Les Holmes, of Antrim St., was not so lucky.

Generally speaking, all trout fishermen were happy whether they caught fish or not. They blew off steam at the frustration of being denied their favorite sport since last mid-September. Weather was fine—if a bit too warm on Sunday—and black flies started to make their appearance just as most of them were ready to pack up and leave on Sunday.

Church Damaged Boy, 12, Charged

BANCROFT (ENS)—A twelve-year-old Peterborough boy who said he had run away from home on Thursday, was apprehended in the village at 10:30 pm. Friday, by provincial police Constable George Lloyd.

The lad was charged with the theft of $25 from three offertory boxes and damage to candles and religious statuary in Our Lady of Mercy church. He is alleged to have admitted taking the money.

The lad was taken back to Peterborough where he is in the custody of Msgr. P. P. Butler, pending court action.

Painted City Churches Man Killed In Fall

When a chimney he was painting Saturday collapsed, Edward J. Gazley, 63, of Belleville, fell 35 feet to the ground and was fatally injured. He died shortly afterwards.

Mr. Gazley is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Roy Powell, 14 Cricket Place. He frequently painted the St. Peter's spire in Peterborough, and Sacred Heart and Douro churches.

His funeral will be Tuesday afternoon in Belleville.

Air Cadets Fly During Visit To Trenton Drome

Airmen of the future, 64 young men from the 534th Peterborough Air Cadet squadron realized several dreams Saturday. They visited the RCAF base at Trenton and saw the latest in Canadian aircraft development.

A course in living in close quarters was a unscheduled part of the tour. The boys travelled to Trenton in an RCAF bus designed to hold 44 persons.

The program began as soon as the lads arrived in the morning and included enough flights to allow each boy to participate in RCAF Expeditor aircraft.

After lunch at the airmen's mess, the Peterborough crew had a chance to see at first hand the many types of aircraft being used by the RCAF. They were shown such craft as the T-33 Silver Star jet trainers, huge C-119 "flying boxcars" and some RCAF "North Stars."

Base officer also briefed the boys on many points of interest at the busy base, showed them how to handle parachutes, and kept them active through the day.

The supply officer of the Peterborough corps, F-O J. B. Cameron was the officer in charge of the visiting cadets. Corps commandant Bill Van Atter was unable to be on hand.

Man, 73, Thrown From Car In Crash Near Omemee Dies Of Injuries In Hospital

Lying Helpless On Road, Believed Run Over By Car He Had Been Riding In; Intersection Collision May Bring Charges

LINDSAY (ENS)—Thrown from a car in a collision north of Omemee late Sunday afternoon, 73-year-old Eugene Ackerman of Lindsay died an hour later in Ross Memorial Hospital from severe chest injuries.

Ackerman, a passenger in his brother-in-law's car, was tossed onto the road when the vehicle collided with another car at the intersection of county road 7 and the 7th concession of Emily township. His vehicle is believed to have struck him and inflicted the fatal chest injuries as he lay helpless on the road.

It was the first fatality of the year in the Lindsay district.

Ackerman and his wife were passengers in the car of George Deacon, 67, of Hally's lake. Their car collided at the intersection with another car driven by Allan Wright, 21, of Millbrook.

BOTH THROWN OUT

Both Ackerman and Deacon were thrown out of their vehicles by the impact. They were treated at the scene by Dr. W. Earle of Omemee and then they were taken by ambulance to Lindsay hospital.

Ackerman died about an hour after admission but Deacon's injuries are not serious and he is being held for observation.

Mrs. Ackerman was unhurt. So were the two occupants in the other car — Wright, the driver, and his passenger, Marilyn Palmer, also of Millbrook.

OPP Constable Morris Baker and Jim Plumtree of Lindsay investigated the accident. They said that charges were pending.

Both cars were extensively damaged by the smashup, the most serious in a busy weekend for the Lindsay detachment.

Ackerman was taken to the Welsh funeral home, Minden, where the funeral will be held. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery, Boskung.

5 Asian PMs Demand Cease-Fire

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—Five South Asian prime ministers have ended a four-day conference here after calling for a cease-fire and direct negotiations to bring peace to Indo-China.

The five government chiefs—of India, Pakistan, Burma, Indonesia and Ceylon—demanded also that the United States, Russia, Britain and Communist China agree on the "steps necessary to prevent a recurrence" of Indo-Chinese hostilities.

They asked France to commit herself "irrevocably" at Geneva to granting Indo-China complete independence.

WATERED DOWN

The resolution, outlined in a communique after the closing session Sunday, had been watered down from one proposed by India's Prime Minister Nehru. Nehru had demanded that Britain, the U.S., the Russians and Chinese Communists promise not to interfere in the Vietminh conflict.

The prime ministers declared that Communist China should be admitted to the United Nations to "ease world tensions." All their governments have recognized the Peiping regime.

Young Builders Of Birdhouses Awarded Prizes

There was a colorful collection of spring birdhouses at the YMCA on Saturday evening as the April building contest sponsored by Peterborough Nature Club, and the recreation commission, were assembled for judging. Results were as follows:

Age ten years and under: Wayne Miller, 9, of 767 Brown St., varnished wren house, first; second place was tied between a robin shelter and swallow house built by Tommy Hele of 460 O'Connell Rd., and Donald Young of 581 Rose Ave., respectively.

In the ten-11-12 age group Douglas Wharry of Middleton Dr. came first with a birchlog bluebird house. Douglas Townsend, 691 Ross St., was second with a double diamond-shaped martin house. Worthy of mention, but not a prize-winner, was a flowerpot bluebird house built by Ralph McCullough of 664 Charlotte St.

The smallest entry class, 13-14-15 age group, produced only one prize, a swallow house build by Harold Kelly of 331 Maniece Ave.

Houses were judged for simplicity, attractiveness and usefulness to birds. It was the last classification that children found hard to obtain. Many attractive projects contained no ventilation, nor was there any means for cleaning them. Judges were Cook Munro, Lawrence McKeever and Nick Nickels.

The project committee was under the chairmanship of Morley Powell, assisted by Dick Sircom, Lou Bird, Margaret Eastwood and recreation director Ken Robinson. Prizes offered were Petersen's field bird guides and bird-song recordings.

The man were met at the church by 40 members of Rebekah Lodge 208 under noble grand Mrs. Edith Ridyard and vice-grand Mrs. Conn Hildenbrand.

The church service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. N. D. Patterson, himself a member of the Odd Fellow order; he spoke on Oddfellowship.

Gouzenko's Two Children Are Not Aware Of Russian Background

By SAUL PETT

MONTREAL (AP) — The man said, before we entered the hotel room, "You'd better call him Stephen."

"Stephen" rose from the couch to be introduced. A pink-cheeked man of 35, with a nervous friendliness, he pumped my hand vigorously. With one eye on the waiter clearing away the lunch dishes, he made pleasant conversation about the weather and my trip from New York. Then the door closed behind the waiter.

The "Stephen" relaxed and became Igor Gouzenko.

He stopped talking about the weather and started talking about Russian spies and secret documents. He said more members of the Russian secret police can be expected to defect as it becomes known that the two who recently broke in Australia and East Germany received a warm welcome and protection from Western hands. He spoke with the conviction of personal experience.

Gouzenko is the former Russian cipher clerk who broke a Soviet atomic spy ring in Canada in 1945, mostly with documents he took with him from the Russian embassy in Ottawa. Today, nine years later, he still can't take any chances. As long as he lives and prospers, his case may tempt other Russians to make the break. The Soviet high command can be depended on to try to eliminate all temptation.

Thus, Gouzenko continues to live—and expects to live forever—a double life, a man of mystery with two identities, both of which are known only to his wife and a handful of others, he hopes.

SPLIT PERSONALITY

In the small town where he lives, Gouzenko is known by another name. Let's say the alias is Malok. Malok and Gouzenko are different in many ways.

Gouzenko is intensely interested in politics and world affairs. Malok can take them or leave them alone. A few months ago, when U.S. senators sought to question Gouzenko, Malok was at a dinner party with friends when suddenly the conversation turned to the Gouzenko case. Malok's heart flipped but he pretended no more interest in Gouzenko than in, say, King Farouk.

"When that happens," Gouzenko said, "I try to be casual about it. I hope the subject will be changed but I try not to change it myself—or at least not change it too abruptly."

While he has learned to relax somewhat, Gouzenko still distrusts any car which stays behind his too long. When this happens, he pulls over to the curb and lets the other fellow pass to make sure he's not being followed.

When he drives to another town, like Montreal, where he is known by some as Gouzenko, but not Malok, he stops along the way to change his licence plates. He doesn't want anyone in Montreal to get a clue to where he came from.

WOULD WOO CONVERTS

There are many other precautions in his day to day living. But he'd rather talk about the widening chinks in the MVD, the Russian secret police.

He thinks more of its members can be encouraged to break away with valuable documents, as Vladimir Petrov did in Australia and Nikolai Khokhlov did in East Germany. This can be done, Gouzenko believes, if Western governments publicly promise:

Immediate citizenship, as soon as documents are authenticated; a 24-hour guard to protect them from Soviet reprisals; financial security and a chance to work at jobs suited to their talents; and documentary evidence, "in case they ever need to prove it," that they served their new country by helping to expose Soviet espionage.

On the question of financial security, Gouzenko said he was not thinking in terms of a "bribe" but a "reward."

"After all, we must be practical," he said. "Idealism, alone, is not enough. The Russian who breaks away does so at tremendous personal risk and sacrifice. He leaves behind his family in Russia, with little hope they will be spared. The anguish of his decision is enormous.

MIGHT AVERT WAR

"If we can encourage more Russian agents to break, and to break in quick succession, the Kremlin will find it almost impossible to get or rely on new recruits . . . When their intelligence system is undermined, they will think twice about any aggressive action."

How do the Gouzenkos—or Maloks—live?

Mostly from income by Gouzenko, the writer. Shortly after his break, he wrote several magazine articles and a book. His second book, a novel called "Fall of a Titan," has been selected by the Book of the Monch Club.

FILMING NEW MOVIE

A movie several years ago, based on his break, brought him additional money. A second movie, tentatively titled "Gouzenko: Man in Hiding," now is being filmed in Canada by producer Fred Feldkamp. This is a highly fictionalized version of his life since 1945.

In addition, the Gouzenkos have an annunity given them by a grateful Canadian who admired their courage in exposing the atomic spy ring. The annuity pays them $100 a month for the remainder of their lives.

All in all, the Gouzenkos have enough money to live in a comfortable house and own a good car.

When they broke with the Russians in 1945 and went under the protection of the government, Canada gave the Gouzenkos citizenship by order-in-council.

They were given new birth certificates from a foreign country other than Russia to explain their continuing heavy accents. Their two children, 8 and 10, know nothing of their Russian background.

'LET'S SPEAK ENGLISH'

Gouzenko speaks English and Russian fluently. He can only just get by in the language of the country he now pretends was his birthplace. Let us say this country is Czechoslovakia.

When a real Czech meets Malok and thinks he has found a countryman, the Czech frequently tries to talk to Malok in Czech.

"I always try to discourage this," Gouzenko says. I laugh and say to the man, 'We are Canadians now. Let us speak English.'

In the first few years after 1945 the Gouzenkos moved three or four times. Each time they moved, they changed their name slightly.

MOVING TIME AGAIN

For the last few years the Gouzenkos have lived in the same town in the same house. He feels it's time to move again and will do so when there is enough money.

"Nothing special has occurred," he explained. "But I'd just feel better moving. The business of changing our name again will, of course, present complications since the children now are at an age where they need explanations."

The Gouzenkos are undecided as to whether they will ever tell their children their true identity.

"Probably," he said, "there will come a time when we'll have to tell them for their own protection. But I hope it won't be necessary for that reason. Still, I suppose, I'd like them ultimately to know so, perhaps, the Gouzenko name can be continued."

"All things considered, despite the obvious difficulties and the painful memories," he said, "we have never regretted we broke from the Russians. Democracy has been kind to us in every way."

Emperor Of Ethiopia Noted For Tolerance And Dignity

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — Fifteen million subjects hail him as "Conquering Lion of Judah" but small, pensive, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia doesn't look the part.

Selassie, who late this month will begin an official visit to the United States and Canada, is a man of delicate features with a weakness for lemon pie, marmalade and maple syrup. But he is every inch a king.

Now 62, Selassie weighs in the neighborhood of 130 pounds.

He has a bushy head of frizzly black hair — about the only thing leonine about him. A blackish beard and moustache frame his medium full lips.

STRICT PROTOCOL

The emperor's dignity is proverbial. He observes strict protocol with all foreigners and expects them to do likewise. He has few mannerisms. Complete calmness, self-possession and attention to detail indicate a methodical and unemotional mentality. He walks with slow, measured steps.

Selassie learned early how to rule. In 1910, when he was 18, he was made governor of Harar province. The following year he was named regent to Empress Zauditu. At her death in 1930, he became the lawful "King of Kings."

The sorrows of the emperor have been many.

While he was boating as a boy with his brothers on Lake Haramaya in his native Harar province, the boat sank and he alone was rescued. Three daughters have died during his reign.

SPENT EXILE IN U.K.

His bitterest cup was in the 1930s when, with Mussolini's legions overruning his country, he left his ancient throne and country for exile in England. Failure of the League of Nations to rescue his country proved a lasting disappointment to him.

Selassie and the empress live in a two-storey, greystone palace on the western outskirts of Addis Ababa. They continue an ancient tradition that Ethiopian rulers must keep royal lions. Unlike other Ethiopian monarchs, Selassie does not let them roam about his palace as pets, but keeps them in a steel-barred menagerie.

Selassie's consort, Empress Manen, is portly, motherly, light-complexioned, calm and dignified. Her main interests are in social welfare work, especially among children and women, and educational facilities for girls.

The emperor has great tolerance toward foreigners. Except for Cairo, Addis Ababa, with its large foreign colony, is perhaps the most cosmopolitan city in Africa. Italians comprise by far the largest number of foreigners in Ethiopia. No discrimination against them is permitted. Many hold responsible jobs in government departments.

Revenge appears to be completely alien to Selassie. When tens of thousands of Italians were trapped in Ethiopia by British Commonwealth forces in 1941, there was danger that the enraged Ethiopians would massacre them. But the emperor personally issued an appeal to spare their lives.

After reoccupying his throne in 1941, Selassie energetically took up the broken threads of a reform program he had initiated prior to Mussolini's attack.

Selassie's education was under French tutors and he is a strong promoter of education for his 15,000,000 subjects.

May Take Years To Study Controversial Criminal Law

OTTAWA (CP)—A special Commons-Senate committee studying three controversial segments of Canada's criminal law plans enough work to keep members busy for months, perhaps years.

The committee of 10 senators and 17 commoners was appointed last February to determine whether the Criminal Code's sections on capital and corporal punishment and lotteries should be amended.

Don Brown (L—Essex West), co-chairman of the committee with Senator Salter Hayden (L—Ontario) figures it will be a long pull to sift through the evidence the committee wants to gather.

Mr. Brown, chairman of a Commons committee which prepared the final draft of Canada's revised code last year, says the committee probably will not complete work this session.

In that event, the committee would report progress and recommend re-establishment at the next session. The procedure could be repeated for another session.

SOME ARE RELUCTANT

When the committee started work it extended a standing invitation to the provincial attorneys-general and any group or individual who might want to give their views.

Now, said Mr. Brown, it appears some witnesses who might give valuable assistance are reluctant to appear.

The committee has held 12 hearings in the last two months and heard eight witnesses. Now the committee has prepared a 28-page questionnaire and members hope experts will provide the answers.

The greatest public reaction—250 letters and more are coming in every day—comes from men and women who have set opinions about lotteries.

Those opposing lotteries have a 3-1 edge. The majority of letters come from ministers of the United Church of Canada backing the anti-lottery stand of the Canadian Council of Churches.

T. F. (Tommy) Gorman, Ottawa sportsman, is among those who support the principle of government-run lotteries, a stand put forward by the 580,000member Trades and Labor Council.

SPLIT ON PUNISHMENT

The private opinion from letter-writers on capital and corporal punishment cuts through the middle.

Ontario administrators of justice have told the committee capital and corporal punishment should be retained.

An opposition view is expected to come later this month from Thorsten Selling, sociology professor at the University of Pennsylvania and a director of the American League for the Abolition of Capital Punishment. He testified before a United Kingdom royal commission which urged retention of capital punishment two years ago.

The committee also plans to extend an invitation to Justice Felix Frankfurter of the U. S. Supreme Court. Erle Stanley Gardner, U. S. mystery writer and lawyer, has written the committee, but he offered no opinion.

Call Special Session Discuss County Home

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Warden George Mannerow of Grey county Saturday called a special session of Grey county council for next Friday to discuss matters concerning the Grey county home at Markdale.

The special one-day session was called after Welfare Minister Goodfellow turned down a request by the home board of management to conduct an investigation into the administration of the home. The manager and matron, Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn Gould, were suspended Wednesday over charges of wild parties and other irregularities.

Saturday reeve John Davis of Artemsia, chairman of the home board of management, said things are running smoothly at the home.

Says Some Government Agencies Ignoring Discrimination Law

TORONTO (CP)—Kalmen Kaplansky, director of the Jewish Labor Committee of Canada said Sunday that although the federal government and three provinces have laws outlawing racial and religious discrimination, some government agencies do not live up to their own laws.

He was speaking to a conference on fair employment practices, sponsored by the Ontario Federation of Labor (CIO-CCL) and the Joint Rights.

Mr. Kaplansky said sworn affidavits show some Canadians are still denied the right to purchase homes under the National Housing Act because of racial and religious discrimination.

FOUR COMPLAINTS

J. Douglas Love of the federal labor department said four complaints have been received since the Canada Fair Employment Practices Act became effective last July. It outlaws discrimination in industries under federal jurisdiction and forbids questions on employment application forms which inquire into religious affiliations.

George Burt, president of the OFL, criticized the administration of the Immigration Act which makes it difficult for Negroes of the British West Indies to settle in Canada, although they are British subjects.

"And do you know why they are barred?" he asked. "Because they say the climate isn't good for them.

"It's the most ridiculous excuse anyone could think of."

French Cuffs Bold Links Very Popular

Elegance is the keynote in men's accessories this spring.

To set off their neater, lighter suits, men are choosing shirts and neckwear that are restrained but far from drab.

In shirts, there has been a great return to the French cuff, worn with a tremendous variety of bold cuff links in fresh and interesting designs. Gaining popularity are the out-size links which can be easily fastened after the shirt is on.

In shirt collars, there are dozens of styles to choose from. The neat button-down collar is still popular, and the newest thing is the rounded eylet collar, worn with a small pin. There is a wide range of designs, from soft, square-spreading colar to the narrow, pointed type.

In dress shirts, white leads the field, but pastels in blue, grey and yellow are available, and there is a trend toward the pink shirt to be worn with the new charcoal grey suits. Also popular are candy stripes.

In shirting fabrics there are cotton piques, nylon tricots, Oxford cloth, used in most button-downs, and jacquards of white on white designs.

In sports shirts, the trend is to neat styles in unusual fabrics, almost all of which are washable. Rayon shantung is shown in a wide range of colors. There are rayon shirts in tweed effects and pale shades, printed shantungs, basic greys and pale blues. Light weight wool jersey shirts in warm colors are popular for golfing.

Ties have become narrower in the past few years, with the three-inch width now standard.

Slim bar ties with square bottoms and neat woven patterns or bar stripes, in silk repps, are increasingly fashionable.

The striped tie is the favorite of most men, and comes in a great variety of fabrics, from silk to homespun, and colors, from pastel blues and pinks to black and gold.

Underknot styles — a single woven pattern breaking below the knot of the tie — are being shown.

Pure silk foulards for spring and summer are coming back in small abstract patterns and pale colors.

Black and navy ties, to be worn with the new darker suits, are also gaining new popularity.

There are linen weaves and wool homespuns, in small checks and quiet patterns, with square ends, and a wide range of solid color nylon ties.

Ties in general are fairly conservative, with the more flamboyant hand-painted types losing ground.

In socks, the trend toward nylon seems to be reversing, with men returning to wool for greater comfort. There are still many types of nylon socks available, including the kind that fits any foot and lasts indefinitely, and knitted Argyle nylons.

Most popular sock is the plain "six and three" hib in wool or silk in plain pastel colors.

Argyles, clock socks and novelty knits are always available, and blends of black and white are coming into favor.

The odd vest, or fancy "weskit" is becoming increasingly popular and seems to appeal to men of all ages.

It is no newcomer. Back in 1766, the tattersall, most popular pattern with weskit wearers, was created when customers of Richard Tattersall's horse auction rooms in London ordered vests made up out of blankets used on horses awaiting sale.

While it is still a standard weskit pattern, tattersall is only one of hundreds of patterns now in common use in the fancy vest revival of the past two years.

Col. Agnes Neill Chapter Spring Tea

One of the very nice social events of the spring season is the tea of the Colonel Agnes Neill Chapter IODE. The warm temperature of the afternoon of May 1st contributed to this occasion being also a showing of early summe fashions by guests and members alike.

Mauve was the color featured in tea decorations and it was uniquely inserted in the floral centrepiece in the form of satin ribbon half-bows. The flowers were white snapdragons and 'mums with pale mauve stocks and there were bouquets on the mantel and piano as well.

Wide lace edged the tea cloth and the dainty table setting was completed with mauve candles.

The tea pourers were past regents of the chapter, Mrs. Gordon Vallery, Miss Dorothy Franks, Miss Jean Hamley and Mrs. Brian Roberts.

Servers were Mrs. Wm. Durant, Mrs. G. Spicer, Mrs. D. Tanney, Mrs. S. Adamson, Mrs. Wm. Wright, Miss Jean Blodgett, Mrs. E. McLellan, Miss Agnes Chalk, Miss Helen Thompson, Miss Joan Gardiner, Miss Helen Boyer and Miss Hazel Wilson.

General tea convener Miss Isabel Shearer and social convener Mrs. Wm. Cuppy were kept busy replenishing the plates and tea pots. The food was arranged for serving by Mrs.P. Wellwood and Mrs. A. Lacey, assisted by Mrs. Jack Cranfield, Mrs. G. Robinson, Mrs. F. Todd and Mrs. L. Routley.

It was much regretted that the honorary regent of the chapter, Mrs. A. W. Turner of Stouffville, was unable to be present.

Regent Mrs. Garry Ardern and vice regent Mrs. Arthur Gertley received the guests and admissions were taken by ticket convener Miss Betty Pogue and treasurer Miss Nora Gabbutt.

Pleasing music in the tea room was provided throughout the afternoon by pianists Mrs. Wm. Messervey and Miss Eleanor Taylor, in turn.

Tables in the bazaar section were laid with white cloths and trimmed with mauve streamers. The home baking was being sold by Mrs. Norman Bennett, Mrs. Wm. Edwards and Mrs. A. Marshall and the candy by Mrs. Wm. Loomis, Mrs. D. Cutmore and Mrs. M Uloth.

Two draws created considerable interest at the tea. One was for a merchandise certificate worth $25 at a local furniture store and the suggestions on hand were an electric tea kettle and toaster. The winner, vice regent Mrs. Arthur Gertley of 407 Wolfe St., can make her own choice at the store however. Tickets on this were in charge of Miss Doris Finnie, Miss Eleanor Chapman and Mrs. R. Gray.

The other prize was the tea table bouquet and it was won by Mrs. Margaret Faux of 179 Park St. The tickets were sold by Mrs. K. Kidd and Mrs. A. Marshall.

Toronto Artist Says Club 'Jumped Forward' In 2 Years

"A real jump forward" has been made by Peterborough Group of Painters in the opinion of their guest artist for opening of the 10th annual exhibition, Miss Doris McCarthy, ARCA, OSA, of Toronto.

Miss McCarthy told [illegible] guests on Saturday afternoon at the opening that she had seen their work two years ago and they have made a "long jump" since then.

The "bottles" project undertaken by the group members came in for special mention by the expert. She was particularly enthused about the subject chosen because it was not a conventional picture subject.

"With bottles it becomes the responsibility of the artist to 'see' something in his subject," Miss McCarthy explained, pointing out how it differed from a landscape subject.

The 12 bottles pictures in the 70-picture exhibition were viewed with very much interest by all guests, who found as Miss McCarthy commented "that in almost every case the artist has shown us something we would not have seen for ourselves." Mr. Jack Hamer's "Bottles in an Eddy" was possibly the most outstanding example. Miss Gertrude Cox chose the various interestingly shaped bottles on her dressing table as her subject.

"The real function of an artist is to see and 'say' something that others cannot see for themselves" said Miss McCarthy. "There was a time when the artist worked anonymously to produce for the glory of God. Later on artists became conscious of themselves as individuals and development of medieval painting is an outgrowth of this."

Function of the art club is to give a "common vision," the speaker explained. "We learn from each other — that's the truth of the matter — and I certainly feel the Peterborough Art Club is doing just this for its members.

President Mrs. Norman Wilson welcomed the guests and introduced Miss McCarthy. Also receiving was secretary Mrs. Ross Thompson and Mr. J. McKerchar attended the guest register.

After viewing the exhibition guests were invited to the children's library for tea where a [illegible]ngly appointed table with [illegible]erly spring flowers in pastel shades was arranged.

Tea was poured by Mrs. J. McKerchar and Mrs. J. Hamer, followed by Mrs. J. E. R. Munro and Miss Musa Cox, and friends of the club members were serving.

Exhibiting club members are: Bonnie Carlisle, Gertrude Cox, Madeline Hambly, Jack Hamer, Winnifred Lampman, Mary Lee, John Londerville, Peg Londerville, John McKerchar, Helena Munro, Maralin Munro, Ruth Martin Thompson, Betty Weir and Florence Wilson. Three paintings by Miss McCarthy are also hanging for this exhibit, which will close on May 15th.

Knox CGIT Girls Make $70 At Tea

The CGIT girls of Knox United church realized $70 from the May Day tea which they held Saturday afternoon at the church, and were extremely pleased with the co-operation shown them by the congregation. Their leader this year is Miss Ella Down who supervised all their arrangements.

President Marjorie Drummond and her mother, Mrs. J. G. Drummond, and vice-president Carol Douglas and her mother, Mrs. H. G. Douglas, received in turns at the door, and Jean McIntyre took tickets.

A Maypole circled by tiny doll figurines was the attractive tea table centre arrangement and colorful butterflies decorated the walls.

Serving the guests were June Osborne, Vivien Gillespie, Margaret Schumacher, Dorothy Johnston, Beverley Fallis, Beverley and Barbara Jude and Judy Dunford, and the tea pourers were senior ladies of the church, Mrs. F. E. Thexton, Mrs. D. Richardson, Mrs. Howard Clegg and Mrs. H. Trotter.

Mrs. Eric Pearse and assistants took charge of preparing the refreshments and making the tea.

Ellen Thexton, who was responsible for the decorations as well, attended the bazaar and home cooking table. The "post office" box was in charge of Christine Douglas.

JOHN NIAGARA talks about:

Why Niagara may be a good place for you to borrow . . .

MONEY

We agree with people who say, "don't borrow money unless you must"—however, when you do have to borrow money, we think Niagara is the kind of loan company you'll want to do business with. Here are some features you'll want when you borrow.

You'll rate "service" high on your list, we're sure. At Niagara, we do too. We like to think we're prompt—some loans are made in 20 minutes. And polite—our company has been designed to serve our customers. Almost everyone can borrow money at NIAGARA when they need it . . . our plans are flexible, and on many amounts a 24 month payment period can be used.

"Reliability" will be important to you, too. Our business started in Welland, Ontario, over 25 years ago. We're associated with the Industrial Acceptance Corporation whose Merit Plan has been used by hundreds of thousands of Canadians to buy cars, appliances, etc. We're an all-Canadian Company with over 80 branches from coast-to-coast.

And here are two additional points about Niagara Loans: Rates are lower on many amounts . . . so you get more for your money. Loans to $1500 are life insured at no extra cost to you . . . when you can get this family protection, why do without it?

If you need money for any good reason—just drop in or phone, anytime.

How To Avoid Hurting Uninvited Folk At Wedding

DEAR MISS DIX: After a two-year engagement, I am marrying Jerry in August. My parents can't give me a very expensive wedding, but they do want everything to be as nice as possible. We'll be married in church at 10 o'clock in the morning, and I'll have a white gown, veil, bridesmaids, etc. Now to the dilemma. We could have a small reception for the immediate family only, or a larger one for some 75 people. In the latter case there will, of necessity, be friends who can't be invited. How can we avoid hav their feelings hurt?

DOLORES D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: With the season of weddings approaching, your letter paves the way for a bit of advice, not so much to you, as to the myriads of friends who must "of necessity" be excluded from receptions. Your own problem has a very good solution in the small reception you mention. But if your friends will heed my little homely advice you could go ahead with your larger party, confident that others will understand and appreciate your position.

✧ ✧ ✧

ALL FRIENDS CAN'T BE INVITED

Very few bridal parties can include all the friends and relatives whom the young people, and their parents, would like to invite. With the rapid passing of spacious private homes that could easily and comfortably accommodate a throng of well-wishers, wedding receptions have well been pushed into restaurants, hotels, and reception halls. The result is that even a small wedding reception is expensive, and while there are those who don't have to consider the expense of such an important occasion, practicality must enter into the picture sometime. It's a very foolish thing to go into heavy debt to launch a bride.

✧ ✧ ✧

Furthermore, many young couples start out today with little money behind them. The young man is probably just out of service and has little opportunity to stash away the nest egg that was once de rigueur before marriage. Consequenly, a little financial aid from parents is often preferred to a lavish wedding reception. So, friends or distant relatives who haven't been invited to a reception should hold no rancor. No personal slight is intended; none should be inferred. Do give the young couple your blessing, assuring them of your good will without a teary, "Well, I do think I should have been invited," Good sportsmanship, you know, has a value in every walk of life, in every situation. Be sure to show you have it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I've been married four months to a wonderful girl and we would be very happy if my parents would stop interfering. Her folks are very nice to us, but my mother is the fault-finding kind, and nothing we do seems to satisfy her and my father. We're not children either, I'm 29 and my wife is 28.

C. P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are both old enough to run your marriage without parental supervision, and it's up to you, C.P., to set your parents right. A frank talk is the best tack to take, and though they may be hurt at first, they'll soon realize that you intend to run your own household. The sooner this situation is cleared up, the sooner your marriage will proceed harmoniously.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 16 and have been going with a 17-year-old boy for almost a year. Last week I had my fortune told and the woman gave me the initials of my future husband—which are not those of my boy friend. However, I do know a boy with the initials she specified. If this is superstition, I'd like to know how to stop worrying about it.

M. K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: By trying to look upon the incident not only as superstition but as rank nonsense, you may be able to laugh yourself out of it. Any form of fortune telling should be avoided like the plague by anyone with the slightest tendency to put credence into these phony forecasts. Stick with the boy you like and forget the fortune teller's tale.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm an unhappy girl of 17. I was never very pretty or popular. Early this winter I was brokenhearted because a boy fed me a line (and I fell for it,) then dropped me. I really liked him a lot and was very blue when I learned he wasn't sincere.

After that I had a few dates, but spent most of the evenings home alone. Sometimes boys would make dates with me, then break them, or would take me out a few times, but never come back. I don't have any girl friends, either, since most of the girls go steady. I guess I just don't have the personality that attracts multitudes of friends. My latest beau was Fred, an old school chum. We dated awhile, but I found our temperaments just didn't click. I dreaded sittting home alone again, but when I learned he was dating other girls, I had a good excuse to give him up. My thoughts still go back to Doug, my first date, and I'd love to know if there's a chance to win him back. I see him occasionally and we are friendly. I'm not allowed to have parties at home, so that possible solution is ruled out.

ANNETTE K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your problem my dear young lady, is the result of your attitude toward dating. You tackle it with grim determination to make a permanent acquisition instead of handling your dates lightheartedly. Your idea that "I must make this one stick or I'll spend all my evenings alone again" robs a date of its enjoyment. Doug wasn't "feeding you a line" intentionally to mislead you; he just used the light approach of "kidding" that characterizes almost all teen-age dating. He was probably a thoroughly frightened individual when he realized that you took his joshing so seriously.

GOOD COMPANION

You certainly don't lack the knack of acquiring dates, but, since you undoubtedly have the same serious response for all of them, the lads lose interest. A boy likes to have fun. Help out in that quality, along with good comradeship, and whether you're pretty or not makes little difference. You'll rate as an agreeable companion. The fact that it's just such a beginning that usually leads to the altar may be taken into consideration, too, but don't let your thoughts in that direction be obvious.

Do relax, and do make an effort to acquire more pals of your own sex. Just don't expect too much of people, be prepared to be as good a friend as you expect somebody else to be, and stop rushing your dates. Concentrate on making each occasion together a pleasant one for you both.

HAND-ME-DOWNS meet fewer protests from youngsters if an inexpensive accessory is added. This young man is delighted with a new, striped bow tie which brightens an old, wool sweater.

Clothes From Older Sister Can Be Made Attractive

By KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

Hand-me-downs are almost always popular with mom and rarely ever popular with the small fry [illegible]

In a large family such as ours, with cousins, nieces and nephews who span the ages from diapers to long pants, a periodic exchange of outgrown but not outworn togs is sensible economy.

Close friends also join in the second-hand shift. But the yelp of protest occasionally heard from younger members of the tribe must be respected. Better than ignoring the opposition, a smart mother will put some thought into making hand-me-downs more acceptable and the exchange less haphazard.

No article of clothing should be considered hand-me-down material unless it's clean and in good repair. Know the sizes of clothing you have ready to pass along.

Equally important, let your family and friends know the sizes of togs your kids wear. Don't ship an outgrown snowsuit, for example, to a little nephew unless you know the size will be right by next fall.

You'll save yourself time and postage if you compare notes on what's needed before you send a package.

Obvious? You bet. But I just droye to the post office through a snowstorm to pick up a package of sunsuits that will be far too small when the summer rolls around.

When a little child has outgrown an especially beloved dress, I think it's kinder to hand it down to a child living out of town, if you can. I learned the hard way how difficult it was to explain to four-year-old Mary why her favorite beautiful blue dress should be given to a smaller friend when she could no longer squeeze into it.

As a child grows older and more critical of the offerings, sweeten them up a bit. A dollar or two spent on new accessories can turn a protest into acceptance. Bright new brass buttons, for example, can perk up an old navy coat.

Or add a new white collar to put an old coat into the Easter parade with no apologies. Linings that are mended or faded should be abolished in favor of a new, bright-colored, striped or printed lining.

When Junior suddenly becomes clothes conscious, encourage him to buy a new striped or plaid wool tie to sharpen up the second-hand sweater or suit.

It's the wise housewife who is prepared for all sorts of emergencies. Your electricity may never fail you, but in the event it does some time, a few candles would come in handy. Store them in a box in a cool and convenient place.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Three Dinners Prepared By Cook With Imagination

Those Americans! The pace they set, the standards they maintain, the ambitions they achieve, the fund of knowledge they retain, the hospitality they dispense—it all leaves me breathless.

The kind of confusion that exists on my desk after a five-day absence is welcome. It seems so still and peacefull.

My beloved friend Garney is the personification of hospitality. The way she projects her imagination into our interests is nothing less than psychic.

Last night when I was relating our experiences to my sister, Doris said "Garny makes good copy". She certainly does.

Just for the fun of it let me run through three of the dinner menus she served while Pete and I were there.

1) Fresh shrimp (3 lbs. for 5 people) with a dip of melted butter and lime juice, melba toast, tossed salad, home-canned Byng cherries. 2) Roast standing ribs of beef, frozen green peas, stuffed baked Idaho potatoes, Waldorf salad, gingerbread (look for recipe sometime this week) with whipped cream and bananas. 3) Shrimp Cocktail, Baked Pheasants and Grouse, Cream Gravy, Sauerkraut, Wild Rice, Tomato Jelly Ring and As paragus salad, Cheese Cake and Fresh Pineapple in Shell, Salted Jumbo pecans and stuffed dessert dates.

There were countless other little interesting items served with these meals too, but she seems to spend a minimum of time in the kitchen. She buys, prepares, serves all of these complicated meals to guests and casual callers without a hitch and without hired help too.

Pete and Dora Jean (the lovely 17-year-old daughter) offered to go to the locker to pick up the pheasants and grouse, but she could not let herself accept that help because they might not choose exactly the right birds. (She and Joe had shot these birds in Northern Michigan during the hunting season last fall, and some of them were ear-marked for Mary's visi at Easter.)

She is indeed a wonder woman and it is a rare privilege to know her.

On my return I opened a letter from a reader who is learning to cook and who tackled a cheese cake recipe I gave you—with highly satisfactory results. I do not know to which cheese cake recipe Betty Jo is referring but now I have another Cheese Cake recipe for her to try. It is Garney's recipe and is the one she served to us on Easter Sunday. It is different because it calls for honey instead of sugar. This family does not eat sugar. This substitution of honey for sugar causes the cake to be slightly crumbly, but the flavor makes up for that slight defect. When it was 48 hours old however, it did not crumble.

GARNY'S CHEESE CAKE

Roll out 2 slices Zweiback to make very fine crumbs and rub into them 1 tablespoon each melted butter and honey. Use half of this to sprinkle bottom and sides of buttered small tube pan. Cream 1 lb. white cream cheese with ½ cup honey (or ½ cup sugar if you insist or a little more), 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup evaporated milk, 4 beaten egg yolks. When these are smooth and well blended, fold in very lightly 4 stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into crumb-sprinkled tube pan, sprinkle remaining crumbs over top and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour, then turn off oven heat and allow cheese cake to remain in oven for 1 hour.

NOTE: Garney cooks with gas, and I believe oven heat recedes more quickly in a gas oven then in an electric one. When I make this cake I am going to leave it in my electric oven only ½ hour after heat is turned off to see if that is sufficient time to complete baking. You will have to use your own judgment.

McKEE HARVESTING SYSTEMS

Why not call on our Field Men to help you plan a Harvesting System for your Farm? We have the experience to assure guaranteed results. Our systems apply to every crop. Grass, silage, hay, grain threshing, and seed harvest. Use McKee Harvester to pick up swathed grain and haul it to your threshing machine. We manufacture special conveyors to elevate it into your thresher. Remember, ONE 25 H.P. Tractor, ONE McKee Harvester and Wagon, and ONE Man can bring in enough grain to keep a threshing machine running continuously. Two Men can do the job which formerly required 7 or 8.

HAVE YOU ORDERER YOUR McKEE HARVESTER?

Did you ever rise early on a quiet June morning to slip off to your favourite fishing spot only to find some one has been there before you? Rather frustrating, isn't it? The man that telephones up in June and expects to get a McKee Harvester could find himself in the same dilemma. Let's face it! We have about 25 in stock, but a carload is scheduled for Kelowna, B.C. Plus a carload for Regina, Sask. We prefer to do business with Ontario farmers, but we certainly can't maintain a manufacturing plant on last minute orders.

Buy direct from the Company or Factory Salesmen.

TATTLETALE — Certain plastic manufacturers have found that rodents treat some of their products as a tasty appetizer. To discourage such nibbling, a Minneapolis, Minn., company has recruited some white rats to test their likes and dislikes. Here, a rat scorns a large piece of cheese to sniff at the plastic tape. If he nibbles, the researchers will promptly add a strong repellent to the coatin.

Spent First Year In Glass Box Where Temperature Controlled

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Twins Roy and Ray Hope spent much of their first year in a glass-enclosed box with a scientifically controlled climate.

The idea was that a baby, with nothing but a diaper hindering his movement, could cavort to his heart's content and thus develop faster and healthier. The mother would be saved laundry drudgery because she would need to wash only diapers and sheets. And neither parent would have to worry whether the infant was smothering in its blankets.

Today at five Roy and Ray are about as frisky as small boys can get. Their father isn't sure whether the "Skinner box" had any major effect on their development. He does maintain they're "physically precocious." This, he elaborates with a slight grimace, means "they're extremely destructive."

The box here was one of perhaps several hundred scattered across the country, mostly in the homes of college and university faculty members. The scheme was devised by psychologist Burrhus F. Skinner, now at Harvard University.

Dr. Skinner and his wife planned the first box in 1945 as a labor-saving device while living in St. Paul, Minn. Henry R. Hope, father of the twins here, heard about it while both he and Dr. Skinner were on the staff at Indiana University.

ELABORATE AFFAIR

The box Hope had built is an elaborate affair with glass doors and controls to maintain a constant temperature of 88 degrees and humidity of 50 per cent. Its occupants, clad only in diapers, lay on a tightly-drawn sheet protected from most germs.

Hope, head of the fine arts department at Indiana University, says "like all utopian things, the box didn't work out quite as planned."

Roy and Ray caught about as many colds as the average baby since there was no attempt to rear them in a vacuum-like isolation. They were taken out of the box for feedings, play and attention.

Mrs. Hope summed up the box in a single sentence: "It's a help to the mother."

MORE TIME TO PLAY

One of the most enthusiastic supporters of the Skinner boxes is a research psychologist in New York City, Dr. Anne Roe, who has five grandchildren—all raised in boxes. She says criticism that the boxes deprive children of love and affection is "ridiculous."

"Actually," she adds, "the mother has less dirty work to do and therefore more time to play with and love the child."

The general idea of the box, Dr. Roe says, is to apply the principle of the air-conditioned room to a smaller area. Dr. Skinner says the box he built in St. Paul cost $35.

"We found we could keep the baby from crying largely by adjusting the temperature," he says. "Her response was so sensitive he wondered how a comfortable temperature is ever reached with clothing or blankets. It was necessary to watch her surprisingly violent exercise only a few minutes to realize how severely restrained the average baby is and how much energy must be directed into the only remaining channel—crying."

Employers Often Mislead In Help-Wanted Ads

OTTAWA (CP) — Employers do not always know what type of help they need.

That's the contention of Ruth Hamilton, co-ordinator of women's employment for the National Employment Service. "Many employers," she said in an interview, "fail to adequately describe a job."

When they need a new employee they first form a picture in their minds—often a vision where secretaries are concerned—of the type they want. Then they try to fit the job to the employee. Miss Hamilton says the employee should be fitted to the job.

ARBITRARY AGE SYSTEM

A reluctance on the part of employers to hire older workers has resulted in a shortage of stenographers in some larger Canadian centres, she said. In Toronto and Montreal for example, where competition is keen, a stenographer may find herself regarded as too old at 28. Employers there often lost opportunities to hire efficient workers because they set "arbitrary" age limits.

The labor department recognized the problem of finding work for Canada's growing numbers of older workers as long ago as 1952. In December that year, the department presented a lengthy memorandum to the national advisory council on manpower, outlining the problem and its obstacles.

The memorandum said that in 1881, Canadians over 40 constituted 20 per cent of the population and there were 15 adults under 65 for every one more than 65. The 1951 census showed that over-40 Canadians had increased to 32 per cent of the population, and there were only seven adults under 65 to every one over 65. It estimated that by 1971, there will be only five under-65 adults to every one beyond that age.

The problem, the memorandum added, is that despite this trend toward more older workers the chief difficulty in matching unplaced applicants with unfilled jobs "is the tendency on the part of employers to reject applicants over 40 (over 35 in women)."

CALENDAR RULE

This use of the chronological age as the chief determining factor in selecting workers, Miss Hamilton said, still is the main aspect of the problem of older workers. In the last few years, the labor department has carried on extensive research and issued a good many suggestions for solution of the problem.

"The preference for youth is an obstacle to the employment of older workers of both sexes," she added, giving this definition of an older worker:

"An adult who meets with resistance to employment, continued employment or re-employment solely because of his age."

"If the employer is honest in seeking the right workers for the right job, age need not be of primary importance."

Lack Interest In NATO Work Pass Up Millions In Business

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian firms may be passing up millions of dollars in new business simply because they lack interest in NATO construction work in continental Europe, a trade department official believes.

E. C. Thorne, chief of the department's machinery and metals division, says North Atlantic countries are planning to spen about $250,000,000 this year in building new airfields, jet fuel pipelines, radio communication networks, port and radar installations and storage facilities on the continent.

But despite all efforts of the department to get Canadian firms interested in bidding for contracts, the response has been "very disappointing."

European construction forms part of "infrastructure," a French railroading term adopted by NATO to describe the huge amount of installations required to keep military forces in operational efficiency.

Canadian business men should get interested in this work, because continued lack of interest "may result in the loss of business for Canadian engineering know-how and for Canadian manufacturers," said Mr. Thorne, writing about the problem in thedepartment's foreign trade magazine.

CANADA'S CONTRIBUTION

The 14 NATO member countries plan to contribute $1,900,000,000 for European installation work in the five-year period ending in 1957. Canada has agreed to contribute $116,000,000.

About half of the $250,000,000 allocated for 1954 construction will be devoted to the completion of jet fuel pipelines and fuel storage systems for NATO airfields. There also will be need for a number of storage bases in the Mediterranean, along with expansion of telecommunication facilities, and navigational aids in the eastern Atlantic.

Mr. Thorne said the department has kept a look-out for Canadian interests. Canadian companies have been given an opportunity to quote on projects.

"However, the response to efforts on the part of the trade department—which has gone to some lengths to ensure that Canadian firms have every opportunity to participate in the infrastructure program — has been very disappointing."

Union Preparing Contract Demands

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The CIO United Steelworkers' 170-member wage policy committee comes here Thursday and Friday to put finishing touches on the union's contract demands before starting negotiations with the American basic steel industry.

The big industry, which has granted seven rounds of wage hikes since the Second World War, is feeling the pinch of a business lag for the first time in several years, and this is expected to weaken union bargaining power.

Any wage increase will likely be considerably less than the 8½-cent hourly raise granted last year to boost average hourly pay to between $2.14 and $2.24.

Leave Red China

HONG KONG (AP)—Three Roman Catholic priests, including Msgr. Gustave Prevost, 42, of the Quebec Foreign Mission Society, arrived here Sunday after 32 months imprisonment in Red China. They said they were tried by the Communists and ordered to get out. Four Canadian missionaries are left in China.

Settle Claims

SEATTLE (CP)—Claims for $1,119,000 by 300 passengers and crew members of the wrecked steamship Princess Kathleen have been settled by the Canadian Pacific Railway for $190,000. The ship sank off Alaska in 1952.

IN GENEVA — Gen. Morris Abraham Cohen, 66 — better known as "Two-Gun" Cohen—the fabulous Canadian who was once right-hand man to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese Nationalist Leader, is in Geneva, seeking to renew acquaintance with some old China hands attending the Korea and Indo-China conference. Cohen, born in Stepny, East London, was sent to Canada by his father. He farmed in Alberta for a time and picked up a smattering of Chines dialect among the Chinese colony around Edmonton and Calgary. Duplessis Praises Advertising Results

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis said Saturday night newspaper advertising "will guarantee the permanence and progress" of the pulp and paper industry in Quebec province.

Addressing a banquet closing the annual meeting of the Quebec and Eastern Council of Pulp and Paper Mill Workers (AFL-TLC), the premier said industry is turning more and more to newspaper advertising in preference to radio.

"Your industry plays a first class role in Quebec province and it is a factor of constant progress," he told the 150 delegates. "Quebec province is undeniably ahead in the pulp and paper domain."

He compared Quebec's 1952 statistics with those of Ontario. During that year, this province produced 3,720,000 tons of paper valued at $400,000,000 while Ontario's production was 1,963,403 tons valued at $246,215,000.

"Here, the forest is in better condition than anywhere else in Canada," he said. "But it must be protected unceasingly to keep it in this state."

Bring Up Troops Too Fast French Defence Plan Upset

NOTE: This story of the battle of Dien Bien Phu is based on a close study of accounts from AP correspondents and military authorities.

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

In the beginning, there were four main outlying strongpoints. They were built into gentle knolls on the northwest corner of the plain, near the base of the mountains. Each held about 200 soldiers, crowded into bunkers and trenches. Bristling clumps of barbed wire made the four outposts look like steel nettles. Each had been given a girl's name—Huguette, Dominique, Claudine, Elena.

fantry hit the barbed wire and At 5 o'clock on Saturday, March 13, a bugle sounded somewhere in the hills.

By that hour in Indo-China, the mountain valleys are filling with purple shadows. The "opium road," which comes snaking down from China, is hard to see. The light is violet and deceptive.

After the first bugle, there was another, and another.

The first wave of Vietminh infantry hit the barbed wire and stuck there. A second wave followed. There were five in all. They attacked, Chinese fashion, yelling and screaming, and signalling with the bugles.

DECISIVE BATTLE

The attack lasted about an hour. When quiet came again, the French counted more than 100 bodies hanging in the wire. Some were moving; most were still.

So began the siege of Dien Bien Phu, 50 days ago.

The fate of all Indo-Chiha may hang on this struggle. And it has been said, rightly or not, that the whole of Southeast Asia may be in the balance.

This is a decisive battle. It was planned by the French commander. If it has not gone exactly as he planned, it is, in any case, another epic in the story of garrisons that stood firm against unequal ods.

Gen. Henri Navarre, commander in Indo-China, envisioned a series of such strongpoints, well fortified bases, so situated as to command the main strategic areas and roadways of northern Indo-China. Their purpose was not only to block or impede the movement of large-scale Communist forces, but to provide springboards from which the French could operate.

Dien Bien Phu sits astride the "opium road" from China. It is about 70 miles from the Chinese border, and it blocks the path to Luang Prabang, capital of the Laos kingdom of Indo-China.

INHABITANTS EVACUATED

It is a flat, rock-strewn plain, about four miles wide and six miles long, and surrounded by mountains. The French base was in the centre of the saucer.

There had been a village at Dien Bien Phu with some 1,000 inhabitants, a gentle and smiling people who grew rice and vegetables and had a few pigs and some cattle. Their thatched-roof huts had to be destroyed and the great majority of the people left. Some, however, remained and are fighting today undr the French tricolor.

Dien Bien Phu was designed as the kind of battleground where the French expected to have the advantag, for once, in open ground.

The Vietminh commander, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, reacted rapidly. He pushed a Red division—usually 10,000 men—down the "opium road" and near enough to provoke a series of skirmishes with the garrison.

FRENCH BUILD-UP

Meanwhile, the French build-up going on. Everything had to be brought by air from Hanoi, 170 miles away. Guns, ammunition, food, supplies of all kinds, even tanks, were flown over the rugged, jungle-covered mountains to the saucer.

Men, too, were coming in as fast as the transports could bring them. There were Viet Namese (non-Communist Indo-Chinese), officers from metropolitan France, burly Senegalese who prefer the knife at close quarters, Algerian and Moroccan riflemen, and as always, units of the Foreign Legion.

As commander Gen. Navarre chose an unusual soldier, Col. Christian Marie Fernand de la Croix de Castries, 52, a Parisian. His family has been sending officers to the French Army since the days of Louis XVI.

Why did Dien Bien Phu develop so differently from the plan of the French commanders?

Apparently the answer is that the Vietminh general, Giap, was able to bring up his forces far more rapidly than the garrison could push them back. All through December, January and February, the Communist build-up continued.

FRENCH OUTNUMBERED

They are believed to have four divisions, the equivalent of about 40,000 men, completely surrounding Dien Bien Phu now. The defenders number 10,000 to 14,000.

It was not long after the first Communist asssult, March 13, before the outlying strongposts were overrun. The French pulled back to other trenches and strung more barbed wire in front of them.

The Vietminh moved up to these, using one of the oldest devices in warfare.

Sappers—mole men—tunnel up to the wire, and there dig trenches. If they can, they bring up explosives to tear holes in the wire. In reply, French tanks and infantry sally out to crush the trenches and tunnels and dig out the enemy with bayonets. The French believe they have put out of action at least 10,000 Reds, the equivalent of a division.

Now the big monsoon has begun. In Indo-China, the rains are almost like a solid wall of grey and pelting water. It is impossible to see more than a few feet through the downpour.

The monsoon may bog down the Vietminh, but the French are not optimistic about the effect on their own position. Their dumps and storehouses and "hospitals," filled with wounded, are well beneath the level of the ground. "We may thre in a week's time," an officer said.

Nevertheless, if the Communists hoped to crush Dien Bien Phu before the current Geneva confernc is over, to strengthen the Red position at the bargaining table, they have failed.

Charges Government Ignore Unemployment

HAMILTON (CP)—Ontario CCF leader Donald MacDonald said Sunday federal and provincial governments are standing idly by "Hoping for some miraculous magic" to end the unemployment situation.

Mr. MacDonald told delegates to the Ontario Federation of Printing Trades Unions' annual conference that "there is every likelihood that the unemployment trend is going to project itself into at least one more winter."

He said exports have dropped off to overseas markets, and to the United States with an overall drop of 17 per cent.

"We are going to be extremely lucky if we can maintain exports this year at the same level."

Believes Only 5% Of Chinese Have Any Use For Red Government

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — A Montreal-educated physician who was held in China for 18 months under "town arrest" says "not more than five per cent of the Chinese people have any use for the Communist government or any confidence in the party."

He forecasts an ultimate uprising.

Dr. William E. Braisted, graduate of McGill University medical school, went to China first in 1938 for the American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society. He operated a hospital at Kityang, Kwangtung province, in south China. Part of the time it was under control of the Communists.

He believes "it is only a matter of time before the end will be seen in a mass uprising."

The only loyal Communists were party officers, members of the military and "stooges," and "even they are far from 100 per cent loyal."

"The mass of people," Dr. Braisted claims, "are totally disillusioned by the failure of the new government to fulfil promises of better administration. They are deeply resentful of the oppression of the new rulers.

"And they are particularly full of resentment for the murder of many of their best citizens.

"The people are more miserable than before with less food, higher taxes and the loss of all freedoms and security.

"This fits a familiar historical pattern, and I believe it is only a matter of time before the end will be seen in a mass uprising."

Who might lead such an uprising?

Dr. Braisted found some lack of enthusiasm for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek among Chinese with whom he talked. He says their attitude was: "We didn't like those mice that were eating up our grain a while ago; but we like these rats even less."

Asks Ban Removed

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal district Chamber of Commerce said Sunday in a brief submitted to Premier Duplessis that the ban against sale of margarine in Quebec should be lifted as soon as its "adverse effects" on the dairy industry can be removed.

Marriage In Russia Is Easy; Governing Consideration In Divorce Is The Children

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Marriage is easy in the Soviet Union but divorce is not as simple as most Canadians imagine.

To marry, a couple goes to a registrar and signs a document saying that henceforth they will live as man and wife.

Foreigners who marry in Russia go to the same registrar. The last Canadian to do so was Katherine Jamieson of Carleton Place, Ont., who married Lieut. James Davidson, assistant British naval attache, last January.

First stage towards divorce is a compulsory session with a conciliation board. If the board thinks divorce would prejudice the welfare of the children, the matter stops right there.

If the couple gets permission to go before a people's court, they must advertise that intention. Space for divorce notices is limited in the controlled press, and there often is considerable delay.

When the case finally is called, the governing consideration is care of the children. A second divorce is hard to get, a third extremely rare.

The Communist party now speaks strongly against "free love" which was a mark of Russian society during the 1920s. It demands a simon-pure morality among its members and seldom lets a divorced member keep his party card.

LIKE HOLLYWOOD

Ordinary motion pictures present anti-American themes with about the same taste as Hollywood shows anti-Russian material.

Foreign films aren't shown often, but the Russians got a batch of United States productions of the 1930s, all carefully screened for political purity.

"Tarzan" with Johnny Weissmuller passed with ease politically. A few months ago it got into trouble with the ministry of agriculture.

On collective farms, movies are projected on out-door screens by mobile film units. Tarzan's whoops the roars of lions, the trumpeting of elephants and jibbering of monkeys terrified the livestock. Egg- and milk-production programs were disturbed.

DEMAND FOR 3D

Three dimensional movies are supposed to be old hat to Soviet audiences, but there's a big demand for tickets at Moscow's "Stereokino," only theatre in the capital where they are shown.

Russia produced her first 3-D film in 1941, a version of Rachmaninov's opera, "May Night." It was still playing when I reached Moscow last autumn, but since has given way to another of his operas, "Aleko."

The stereoptic effect is there but Soviet 3-D isn't easy to look at. I usually left with a head-ache.

On the other hand, Russian colors on film are less sharp and more pleasing than Hollywood's.

A good deal of Russian radio time is taken up with propaganda, direct and indirect.

Apart from news broadcasts and commentaries, radio Moscow announcers read editorials from Pravda, Izvestia and Trud. A number of school programs, plays and book reviews also reflect the Communist party teachings.

WITHOUT PATTER

Straight entertainment programs on the Russian radio are usually carried without any patter.

Symphony broadcasts and operas get only brief announcements, with no background about the compositions or composers. All works are performed in full.

A 45-minute symphony program is preceded simply by:

"Beethoven—Symphony No. 5. Orchestra — Moscow State Symphony. Conductor—Samosud."

There are no commercials. The closest thing to advertising are announcements of book publications.

Soviet television is good. Home sets have small screens but the picture is clear.

PROPAGANDA

The Communist-inspired "peace" campaign waged in the Western world is more than matched by the same propaganda inside the Soviet Union.

When Pravda, the Communist party newspaper in Moscow, reports a foreign-policy move, it says it is "consistent with the well-known and constant peace policy of the Soviet Union."

Russians love badges and decorations. If they aren't entitled to wear the insignia of some organization, they often sport a "peace" badge—a small enameled pin with Picasso's white dove on a red background.

Signs in public places, stadiums and even the circus proclaim "peace to the world." Children's admission cards to the Kremlin's New Year parties carried the "peace" slogan in five languag-

In conversation, Russians ask a foreigner: "are you a fighter for peace?" The post office sells a "peace" postcard. It shows a fight between police and workers at a street barricade in a French city and "peace" chalked on a wall in French.

NO STALIN NEWS

The Stalin and Lenin families have disappeared from the news.

Vassilyi Stalin, the late prime minister's air-force-general son, has been transferred to a remote inland command.

Lenin's nephew, although his photograph with the founder of the Communist party hangs in Moscow's Lenin museum, works and lives in the capital as an ordinary engineer.

Russians say nepotism is impossible under their system. The party rules prescribe expulsion for members who choose personnel "from considerations of friendship, personal loyalty, hometown ties or kinship."

Lenin's nephew is given as an example. I did not find a Russian who would make any comment when asked whether Stalin's son was promoted only "on the basis of political and professional qualifications," as ordered by the party.

THEY ALL PERISHED—This tragic document, a picture from a film found in the camera of one of 10 German schoolboys and their two teachers who perished in a blizzard on Mount Dachstein, Austria, shows teacher Hans Rupp (centre, back to camera) rubbing the hands of his fiancee, Christa Vollmer, while the pupils do their best to ward off the cold.

Federation To Support CCF Candidates

HAMILTON (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Printing Trades Unions (AFL-TLC) decided Sunday by a margin of one vote to urge full support to CCF candidates in elections. President John Duncan of Toronto cast the deciding vote.

The action is believed to be the first by an allied group in the Trades and Labor Congress to declare its support of a political party. The TLC, unlike the Canadian Congress of Labor which has backed the CCF party in election campaigns, has steered clear of supporting the CCF or any political party.

A similar resolution two years ago was defeated.

The Toronto Allied Printing Trades Council charged that the federal government is letting its printing contracts "on a patronage basis," and that the federal printing bureau operates in direct competition with union plants.

The federation voted unanimously to urge member unions to boycott three publications of Maclean-Hunter Publishing Co. Ltd., and all publications of the Curtis Publishing Co. The Toronto council charged that efforts to organize printing craftsmen at Maclean-Hunter had been fought "with every means" by the company and that a similar situation existed at the Curtis company.

Reuther Stresses Extending New Alliances

NIAGARA FALLS (CP)—Efforts to achieve international alliances should not be restricted to governments but should be extended to people, Victor Reuther, executive assistant to his brother, Walter Reuther, president of the CIO, said Sunday night.

Reuther was addressing the opening session of an international affairs seminar conducted by the Canadian congress of Labor.

The seminar is closed to the press but a summary of the highlights of Mr. Reuther's talk was issued in a statement.

SOVIET EXAMPLE

"We are witnessing the emergence of new forces in international relations," Reuther said. "The Soviet, for example, no longer depends on the traditional approach of government-to-government. It relies to a considerable extent on its ability to exert political influence through established organizations in the countries in which it is interested."

Time and again there had been evidence of the efforts of Soviet agents to infiltrate unions and to use them "as colonial agents." The strength of the union movement lay in its freedom from the control of both industry and government.

"Surely it is significant that in countries where there is a strong free trade union movement there is no serious threat from communism," Reuther said, speaking from his experience recently as CIO representative in Europe.

Man's Body In River At Lakefield

Lost Bearings Fell Down Bank; Found Monday

The body of 50-year-old Leo McManus, a Lakefield sawyer, was found at 4 p.m. Monday at Lock 24, some 250 feet downstream from where he is believed to have fallen into the Otonabee river early Sunday morning.

McManus, who had been drinking, walked out of the residence part of Boyd's Snack Bar, two miles south of Lakefield, about 2 a.m. after an argument. Instead of entering a truck as he had been told to do he walked in a westerly direction for 100 feet or so and fell into the river.

His brother-in-law, Romeo Leonard of Toronto, left the snack bar a couple of minutes after he did but could find no trace of him. A flashlight search was started and it, too, was unsuccessful.

The OPP in Peterborough were not notified until Sunday afternoon because his friends thought he may have been given a car ride by a passing motorist and spent the night somewhere else deliberately.

OPP Cpl. Jack Munro and Constable Douglas Ross hired a couple of skiffs and organized dragging operations on Monday. First, Lock 25 was partly blocked off causing the water level to drop two feet. This slowed the current and made dragging easier from the boats.

McManus's body was found in about eight feet of water, 20 feet offshore, after three hours dragging.

IN SNACK BAR

The victim, his brother John, and Romeo Leonard went to the snack bar about midnight Saturday. They stayed for a couple of hours and, after a disagreement, Leonard told Leo McManus to go outside and sit in the truck.

Instead of doing so McManus wandered to the river's edge, first knocking over a snow fence erected to keep a child from straying away. He apparently lost his bearings and fell down the steep bank into the Otonabee. A couple of displaced stones on the bank indicated where he went into the river.

Nobody heard any cry from McManus. He is believed to have drowned almost immediately, and his body was swept downstream to the lock.

Local residents joined in the search and helped the OPP in Monday's dragging operations.

McManus was born in Douro township, son of the late James McManus and Johanna McCliggott. He was educated locally and lived a lifetime in the district.

He and his brothers, John and Victor, have a sawmill in Lakefield. Besides these two, he leaves a third brother, Thomas; and two sisters, Mrs. Romeo Leonard (Bregetta) of Lakefield, and Mrs. Leo Picard (Ernestine) of Peterborough.

He was a member of St. Paul's Roman Catholic church, Lakefield.

The body was taken to the Anderson funeral home, Lakefield, and the funeral will be from there to St. Paul's for requiem mass at 9 a.m. Thursday. Burial will be in St. Peter's cemetery, Peterborough.

HE WALKED AWAY—A Marmora man, John Terrion, 23, was thrown about 70 feet through the air early Monday evening when his late model car rolled near the Indian River turn on Highway 7. Terrion was hurled from the car, through the low-hanging branches of two nearby trees and landed in a soggy pasture field (where men are standing in background, above). He was able to scramble to his hands and knees, then with some assistance walked a couple of hundred feet to Lorne Braden's farm home. Terrion's car was a complete wreck, landing on several fence-posts which ripped into the front seat. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Egyptian Court Sentences Press Tycoons

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt's Revolutionary court today slapped long prison sentences on the Abul Fath brothers, two of Egypt's leading press tycoons. Neither will go to jail, but one may lose $1,000,000 or his newspapers.

The three-man military court found the two brothers, Mahmoud and Hassein Abul Fath, guilty of activities against the interests of the Egyptian state.

Mahmoud was sentenced to 10 years imprisonment and confiscation of £358,438 Egyptian ($1,032,197) of his personal fortune which the court said had been "illegally earned." Mahmoud, a former senator of the Wafdist party, now is in Europe and was tried in absentia.

15 YEARS

His brother, Hussein, was sentenced to 15 years, but the court suspended the sentence.

A member of the court later said he doubts Mahmoud has enough cash assets in Egypt to meet the confiscation order. He added that the government then might confiscate the brothers' newspaper properties—Al Misri, the former Wafdist organ, which claims to be the largest daily in the Middle East, an a company which publishes Cairo's two leading French-language journals and a leading English-language morning paper.

Pravda Intimates U.S. Policy Defeat

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda today describes the Geneva agreement to invite the Vietminh to take part in Indo-Chinese talks there as a "new defeat for American policy."

The Communist party newspaper links the agreement with State Secretary Dulles' departure from the conference and said it was a "flight" from Geneva.

The newspaper's dispatch from Geneva says Dulles' departure, combined with the Indo-Chinese agreement, showed the United States was "compelled, if not to make a complete retreat, at least to back up."

Soviet Ratified Two Conventions

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Soviet deputy foreign minister Andrei Vishinsky deposited with the United Nations Monday the Soviet Union's ratification of the convention against genocide and a convention on political rights for women.

The convention against genocide, approved by the UN Assembly in 1948, is intended to outlaw the mass extermination of a race or a religious group. Forty-three countries including Canada have ratified it. The United States has not.

The convention on political rights for women guarantees the right of women to hold office and have equal political rights with men.

Ban Midnight Shows In City Of Kitchener

KITCHENER (CP) — Midnight shows will be banned here, except on New Year's Eve.

The city council Monday authorized a bylaw in line with protests made by Police Chief John Patrick. He claimed midnight movies attracted undesirable persons from outside points, some of whom committed crime after the shows.

Driver Hurled 70 Ft. As Car Crashes; Able To Walk Away

A Marmora man was hurled 70 feet—from the edge of Highway 7 into a soggy pasture field—in a freak accident at 5 p.m. Monday near the Indian River turn.

John Terrion, 23, of RR 2, Marmora was the victim. He's in St. Joseph's Hospital with no bones broken and in fair condition.

Terrion, after being thrown from his bouncing car, was able to scramble to his hands and knees right away. And, with assistance, he walked a couple of hundred feet to the farmhouse of Lorne Braden.

He was able to talk coherently with Mr. Braden and a nurse who examined him. Then he was taken to St. Joseph's by City Ambulance Service and was found to be suffering from cuts and bruises, shock and slight concussion. No bones were believed broken but he is being x-rayed later today to make sure.

Dr. William Blastorah is attending him.

AVOIDED CAR

Terrion told the investigating officer, OPP Constable Harold Armstrong, that he was driving west toward Peterborough along Highway 7. He had just come down the hill, past Indian River turn, when he saw an oncoming car partly over the middle of the highway.

To avoid a collision he swung to the right, his right wheels on the shoulder. It was raining at the time and the car went out of control.

It plunged into a four-foot ditch, ran along it for 94 feet and then struck the built-up driveway leading into Lorne Braden's farm on the north side of the highway. At this point he is believed to have been thrown out—in a northwesterly direction.

Sailing through the air, he cleared a five-foot wire fence and landed, feet first, in a boggy spot in the pasture field. A strip of turf was torn out of the field where he came down.

Had he remained in the 1950-model car he would have been killed. The vehicle, after striking the driveway, bounced in the air and came down, upside down, on some fence posts at the entrance to the Braden driveway.

One of the four-inch-in-diameter posts tore through the roof of the Saskatchewan MP Proposes $75 Million Tax Economies

OTTAWA (CP)—A Saskatchewan hardware merchant has proposed a wide range of economies which he said will save Canadian taxpayers $75,000,000 this year.

Ross Thatcher (CCF-Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) said in the Commons Monday his proposals would enable the government to reduce current tax rates. He described the taxes as jeopardizing Canada's trade position abroad and causing unemployment at home. Taxes were lowering consumer puchasing power and reducing demand for goods and services.

Additional savings of some $200,000,000 could be made by modest cuts in defence spending. The shooting war had ended in Korea and the international situation had improved.

The United States government had cut defence expenditures by 10 per cent and was aiming at a further five-per-cent reduction. The United Kingdom and Australian governments also were attempting to cut defence expenditures.

"TO SET EXAMPLE"

"I call on the federal government to set an example to Canadian industry by improving its own efficiency, by cutting its own expenditures and getting its own costs down," he said. "If it will do that as an example then it is fair for the minister to tell the Canadian business people to become more efficient."

Mr. Thatcher, who often disagrees with his party, said he was expressing his own views and that they did not necessarily agree with those of his colleagues.

The government could save up to $10,000,000 a year through establishment of a central purchasing agency, which would take advantage of maximum quantity discounts by bulk buying. Dozens of government branches maintained their own purchasing agencies and often competed with each other.

He said the government should reduce expenditures by cutting waste, duplication and extravagance. That would permit a tax reduction.

Further 'Quakes Hit Greece

ATHENS (Reuters) — A strong earthquake today shook the town of Tropaia in northern Greece, cutting off all phone communications.

The new tremor struck a few hours after a strong quake hit far in the south of Greece, in the Dodecanese islands just off Turkey.

Last Friday severe quakes battered towns in central Greece, killing more than a score and injuring more than 100 persons, and destroying 3,800 homes.

The Tropaia quake and the tremor in the Dodecanese islands were recorded by the Athens observatory.

Slight tremors also continued in central Greece. The earlier death toll was expected to increase as rescue teams hacked their way through ruined churches, schools and homes.

The Dodecanese quake badly shook up the island of Karpathos, and was felt lightly on the island of Rhodes.

S. African Won't Fight Without Govt. Sanction

CAPETOWN (AP)—Prime Minister Daniel Malan declared Monday night that South Africa will not take part in any future fighting in Korea or Indo-China unless the issue is first brought before Parliament.

Malan told Parliament that the greatest menace to peace today lies in the touchy problems involving Korea and Indo China.

South Africa turned down an invitation to take part in the East-West parley at Geneva designed to negotiate the Korean and Indo-Chinese issues, but sent observers instead.

British Captain Shot In Suez Canal Zone

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP) — A British army captain was shot dead and a British major seriously wounded Monday night near Kantara, in the Suez canal area, Egyptian police here reported today.

Police said "unknown persons" opened fire on a vehicle in which the officers were driving.

Reunited Royal Family Visits Historic Malta

VALLETTA, Malta (Reuters) — Prince Charles and Princess Anne today got into the thick of their parents' royal visit to this Mediterranean naval base.

Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh kept them on the royal yacht Britannia Monday so they wouldn't get over-excited. But this morning Prince Charles, 5, and tow-headed Princess Anne, 3, rode in style through Valletta's jam-packed streets. The heir to the throne was in his element—brass bands blared all around him and soldiers stood at attention, with guns.

At the Phoenicia Hotel they met the Queen and the duke. Then they walked onto a carefully scrubbed balcony and stood on a specially built platform to watch the Queen inspect Maltese soldiers, sailors and airmen.

Prince Charles wore shorts, and his little sister wore a honey-colored dress which matched her brother's shirt.

They forgot all about the parade when a brown-and-white dog got out of hand and wandered among the marching troops, dodging frantic pursuers. Charles and Anne waved and pointed excitedly at the mongrel until a perspiring Guardsman nabbed it.

Admiral Earl Mounthatten stood beside the royal couple on the reviewing stand.

The Britannia brought the royal party to Malta Monday from Tobruk, Libya, where the Queen and the duke saw their children for the first time since they left on their global tour of the Commonwealth five months ago.

The royal couple will be here another three days before going to Gibraltar, their last stop before returning to London.

May Organize Security Pact In Far East

Failure At Geneva Could Result In "Tragic" Rift

GENEVA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada today warned the Geneva conference that failure of peace moves in Indo-China may lead the West to consider further collective security measures.

Pearson, providing Canada's first contribution to the general debate on Korea, made a spirited defence of United Nations policy regarding that war-torn peninsula, criticized Communist proposals for a peaceful settlement there and referred briefly to negotiations concerning Indo-China.

At the end of his speech, he referred to the interest expressed by Asian countries which have just met at Colombo in ensuring peace in Indo-China. He added:

"If these peaceful purposes are not achieved by a just, honorable and negotiated settlement, the consequences will be bad, and probably far-reaching.

MAY WIDEN RIFT

"Failure here may well necessitate further collective consideration by those who, as a result of such failure, will feel increasingly threatened, of further ways and means to meet that threat. This, in its turn, may harden and make more dangerous the great tragic division in the world. . . .

"The reward for success at Geneva will be great in terms of peaceful progress; but the penalty of failure may be even greater in terms of increasing tensions and the risk of a war which would engulf and destroy us all."

The reference to "further collective consideration" almost certainly means that western countries, including Canada, will reconsider their position if negotiations over Indo-China and Korea break down through Communist intransigence.

Engine, 19 Cars Leave Tracks

MONTREAL (CP)—The engine and 19 cars of a Canadian National Railways freight train were derailed today at Coteau station, about 40 miles west of Montreal. No one was injured.

Cause of the accident was not known.

One of the wrecked cars contained a load of pigs. Twelve of them had to be destroyed.

A CNR spokesman said the accident occurred at approximately 4:25 a. m. EDT. The train bound from Brockville, Ont., to Montreal had just pulled into Coteau station when it left the tracks. None of the cars overturned.

The wreck blocked the transcontinental line of the railway for approximately three hours. The Montreal to Cornwall track was also blocked but work crews expected to have it cleared by early afternoon.

Vietminh Envoy To Geneva Received Moscow Training

PARIS (Reuters) — Pham Van Dong, 48-year-old leader of the Indo-Chinese Communist delegation to the Geneva conference, has become a key figure in the Vietminh rebel movement only since 1949.

But for the last 29 years he has been a most active figure in Indo-China's extreme left-wing nationalist circles.

Pham Van Dong was born in Annam, of a wealthy cultured mandarin family. His father was for a time secretary to the emperor of Annam, Duy-tam.

Van Dong attracted attention when, as a Hanoi law student in 1925 he helped to organize a strike to commemorate the death of an Annamite nationalist leader. Police issued a warrant for his arrest and he fled to Canton, China where he joined a small group of exiled Indo-Chinese nationalists, including Ho Chi Minh.

He remained in Canton for a year, studying at the "agitators school" formed by Ho Chi Minh there, and at the end of his course became a Communist and returned to Hanoi as a teacher in a private school.

ACTIVE PROPAGANDISTS

He quickly became one of the most active Communist propagandists in Hanoi and was arrested and sentenced to six years hard labor at Poulo Condore, the island detention centre for Indo-Chinese extremists.

After his release he is believed to have spent several years in Russia, attending courses at schools for overseas Communists.

In 1936, he returned to Indo-China, and for two years helped put out a Communist French-language newspaper, Volonte Indo-Chinoise.

In 1938, threatened with rearrest he fled to China with Ho Chi Minh and helped him form the Vietminh movement in 1941.

In 1943, Van Dong went to Indo-China to take part in anti-Japanese guerrilla warfare in the Tonkin delta. He emerged in 1945 as a member of the "Viet Nam people's republic liberation committee" and the leader of a tiny Communist-inspired party, the "Viet Nam Dan Chu Dang" (democratic popular party).

He became finance minister and secretary of state for defence in the Ho Chi Minh government set up in 1946. In June, 1946, he was president of the Viet Minh government delegation to Paris.

When the Indo-China war began in December, 1946, he went underground with Ho Chi Minh. In 1949 he was reported to have been made vice-president of the Ho Chi Minh government and president of the defence council.

Infinite Patience Needed To Solve Problems of Today

WASHINGTON (CP)—Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, governor-general of Canada, today said peace "can be won only by the quality of infinite patience."

In a prepared address, the first ever delivered to a joint session of Congress by a Canadian governor-general, Mr. Massey said Canada believes as the United States does "that the problems of our time cannot be solved by military strength alone."

"The line can be held only by the deployment of force but the only objective — peace — can be won only by the quality of infinite patience. In our collaboration, we may not always agree on every detail of the plans we must discuss together but there is no difference between us on the fundamental aims which we pursue; we may differ now and then on the 'hows', but never on the 'whys'."

Mr. Massey's address to the joint session of the Senate and House of Representatives was the highlight of a 2½-day official visit by the governor-general to the U.S. capital where he opened Canada's legation in 1927. He is the first governor-general in 17 years to address any congressional House and the second in history. The first was Lord Tweedsmuir, who spoke to the Senate and House of Representatives separately in 1937.

Mr. Massey said the United States can depend on Canadians as faithful friends and comrades.

MUST DEFEND VALUES

"You and we work together in the international community. Along with kinsmen and friends across the seas, we are allies in defence of things we value. And if I may say so I think that we in Canada, like you, have given proof that those values must be actively and zealously defended."

He reviewed Canada's efforts as a partner with the U.S.—joint defence of the far north; a brigade group in Korea; 12 air squadrons and a brigade group in Europe; mutual aid "on a considerable scale" to Europe and aid under the Colombo plan to Southeast Asia.

He said his visit reminds him of all the British Commonwealth owes the United States. The principles of the declaration of independence and the U.S. constitution were a challenge to the British people "to seek out the sources of their ancient freedom—sources from which we all have fed."

Valdmanis Charge Being Reduced

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Attorney-General Curtis said Monday in the Newfoundland legislature the latest charge against Dr. Alfred A. Valdmanis was reduced because the original figure did not conform with the dates on the charges.

Valdmanis, former director-general of economic development here was charged Saturday with defrauding a German machine company of $270,000. The charge was first read as $360,000 but solicitor-general Myles Murray reduced it by $90,000.

The charge said the fraud was committed between August, 1950, and October 1951. Valdmanis is also charged with defrauding the Newfoundland government of $150,000.

Charge Frost Softening Highway Probe

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal and CCF opposition leaders suggested today that Premier Leslie Frost was "attempting to soften the full impact" of the Ontario highways department investigation by reorganizing the department before a report on the department is issued.

In a statement following a cabinet meeting Monday, Premier Frost announced the appointment of Mebourne A. Elson, a 44-year-old mining engineer as deputy highways minister to succeed J. D. Millar, deputy since 1943. Mr. Millar was made deputy public works minister in charge of engineering to work with the present deputy, George Williams.

FULL IMPACT

Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver said:

"It looks as though this is a move to soften the full impact of the revelations to come out of the Woods-Gordon report and out of the hearings of the special legislature committee."

CCF leader Donald MacDonald said the move followed the pattern of the federal government's dealing with the Currie report where anticipated recommendations were implemented before a committee had a chance to investigate.

"This charge has been ordered by the premier over the heads of the legislature committee," he said. "That committee has adjourned until May 17, when it was supposed to study the Woods-Gordon report, to be submitted at that time."

Both said they approved the reorganization in principle.

They suggested the removal of Mr. Millar was an attempt to make him a "scapegoat" for the highways irregularities.

Premier Frost also announced the creation of a special committee on construction and planning to study and pass on "all claims for extras, and settlement of contracts" in the highways, public works and planning and development departments.

City Council Fires Commission

SARNIA (CP) — City council Monday night fired eight members of Sarnia's nine-man hospital commission, effective May 15. The ninth member, Homer Lockhart, resigned before the dismissal motion was made.

A new commission will be appointed at a special meeting of council expected to be held within 10 days.

The new commission will be requested to appoint a "competent hospital administrator" as soon as possible—a step frequently advocated by the mayor and members of council in previous discussions on the hospital.

The commission was fired over a dispute over financial management of the hospital. A resolution by council said:

"City council has complete confidence in the medical standards of the hospital, but is concerned only with financial management and public relations."

The commission recently hired a firm of management consultants to survey the hospital administration and recommend more efficient methods.

Blame Canada Policy For Loss Of UK Trade

OTTAWA (CP)—R. Hardy Small (PC—Toronto Danforth) Monday night said Canada lost the United Kingdom market because of the government's external trade policies.

He told the Commons during the budget debate that the government's policy apparently is to "have no truck or trade with the British." The loss of the United Kingdom market for Canadian agriculture products and other goods had impaired the flow of the lifeblood of the country.

Attendant Stops 2 Men With Aid Of Shotgun

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Service station attendant William Johnson held two men at bay with a shotgun until police arrived Monday when he spotted a stolen car from its licence plate while filling the gas tank.

Roger Rivers, 17, and William Maides, both of Toronto were charged with car theft. Johnson said police gave him the licence number shortly after Arthur Webb of Niagara Falls, reported his car stolen.

Vietminh Launch New Attack Against Fortress

HANOI (AP)—Renewing their massive infantry assault on Dien Bien Phu, the Communist-led Vietminh captured a new French strongpoint today on the western side of the besieged northwest Indo-China fortress.

A French high command announcement here said the battered French Union defenders inside the crumbling defences immediately launched a strong counter-attack.

"Bitter combat now is under way," the communique said.

But the communique indicated that the rebel renewal, at least in its initial stage, might be of less magnitude than the all-out attack which began Saturday night and was suspended the next day.

The communique said Communist Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap had launched his black-clad troops at the western side of the French Union garrison's defences.

FORTRESS SHRINKING

The last attack had come from all sides of the hemmed-in fortress, now reduced to less than a mile across. Before the rebels halted their wild charges Sunday, they overran French strongpoints guarding the western, eastern and northeastern approaches to the command headquarters of Brig.-Gen. Christian de Castries.

Today's communique made no mention of an attack other than from the west, one of the areas in which the rebels scored Saturday night and Sunday.

The latest attack was preceded by the usual step-up in the constant rain of rebel mortar and artillery fire. The rebels also kept up a constant digging of trenches in the areas from which they had driven the French Union forces.

The French said the Vietminh legions returned to the attack shortly after midnight, charging in full force against the western sector.

Savage hand-to-hand fighting raged throughout the night. As dawn broke over the muddy plain, the battle still was in progress.

The Vietminh followed their usual tactic of battering the defences with human tidal waves. The advancing columns pressed so closely together that any gaps in the ranks were quickly filled.

HURL NITROGLYCERINE

The attackers hurled plastic containers of nitroglycerine as they launched their drives.

Wave after wave of rebel attackers were raked by machine-gun and artillery fire. The French met the rebels at the barricades with savage bayonet thrusts, and hand-to-hand fighting raged.

U.S.-supplied transports Monday parachuted men and war materiel. The new troops included nearly 150 men who had volunteered to aid their battle-weary comrades.

French pilots spotted hundreds of Russian-made Molotov trucks moving into the rebel encampments in the hills encircling Dien Bien Phu, bringing fresh troops and Chinese-supplied food and ammunition for the besieging legions.

30 Young Men At Jaycee Open House

More than 30 young men attended the Jaycee open house meeting at the public library, Monday night, sponsored by the junior chamber of commerce as a membership drive and featuring a number of business men as speakers.

Speakers included Harry Cherney, Ray McWilliams, Sam Whitehouse, Grenville Lathangue, Gerry Grady, Steve Evans, Art Smoke, Bill Wayne, Doug Vaisey, president Bruce Edwards and president of region six, Les Groombridge. Each gave short outlines on how the Jaycee leadership courses had aided them socially and professionally. Mr. Whitehouse stated that although the chamber of commerce and the junior chamber co-operated with each other, they are distinct organizations.

It was announced that national president, Harry Smith, of Toronto, would be guest speaker at the May meeting of the junior organization.

Operations Possible Through Refrigeration

MONTREAL (CP) — A Toronto surgeon said Monday operations on the heart, previously considered "bad risks," now are possible through refrigeration of the patient's body.

Dr. W. G. Bigelow, assistant professor of surgery at the University of Toronto, said surgeons by lowering body temperature by as much as 10 degrees have performed successful operations inside the heart.

Lower temperatures slow the circulation of blood in the heart and enable the operation to be carried out without harming the patient, he told a meeting of the American Association of Thoracic Surgeons.

Woman Unwilling Leave Apartment

BEAMSVILLE, Ont. (CP) — An elderly woman, unwilling to leave her fire-threatened apartment, was forcibly led to safety early today when fire devastated a three-storey business building in the heart of Beamsville, causing damage estimated by fire chief James Allan as being in excess of $80,000.

Mrs. Oscar Wilcox, 75, lone occupant of a second floor apartment in the Orth building, had to be awakened and removed from her apartment as flames roared through the building's third floor.

Firemen from Beamsville and Grimsby fought the blaze for many hours and succeeded in saving adjoining buildings. Early during the fire, Beamsville's entire business section was threatened by the blaze.

Cause of the fire is not known.

Living Costs Resisting Rising Rents

OTTAWA (CP)—Living costs are resisting the impact of rising rents with lower food prices.

The yardstick for measuring food costs made its fifth consecutive monthly decline in February, dropping to a nine-month low.

And while rents and home-ownership costs rose to a new high, the consumer price index, measuring rod for living costs generally, slipped by a fifth of a point to 115.5, lowest in eight months.

The March survey of the index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, likely will be published Wednesday.

Pork, coffee and fruits jumped in February, but beef and fresh vegetables countered with over-balancing drops, cutting the food sub-index by a full point to 110.7. This is the lowest since the 110.1 of April, 1953.

In contrast, the shelter column, which includes rents and home ownership costs, continued its historic climb to a new high of 125.6, up a fifth of a point from the previous month and three points in a year.

RELATIVE STABILITY

The opposing moves between food and rents, in some respects, give the appearance of a period of relative stability in living costs.

The drop of a fifth of a point in the consumer price index in February compared with no change in January and a drop of a tenth of a point last December.

And "there is nothing in the wind," says a federal economist, "to indicate any major shift from this period of general stability in the next few months."

Other shifts in the consumer price index during February:

The clothing sub-index eased to 109.8, as scattered decreases shaved it by a fifth of a point.

Higher prices for dry-cleaning, laundry services and soaps bumped the household operations sub-group by a tenth of a point to a record 117.6.

Premier Pays Provincial Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec province's new income tax law affects even Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The prime minister said Monday in the Commons that, like others who reside in Quebec, he comes under the provincial tax and already has made his first quarterly payment.

The provincial tax is approximately 15 per cent of federal income tax levies—the prime minister said it is something more than 16 per cent in his case.

He noted that he will be entitled to a credit of up to five per cent of his federal income tax as a deduction when he settles his federal tax next spring.

He added:

"Of course no one likes the idea of having to pay about 10 per cent more income tax because he resides in the province of Quebec than if he resided elsewhere."

Mr. St. Laurent has an official residence here, but maintains a home in Quebec City.

BOTH COUNTRIES

Peoples of both countries had common characteristics, but "one of the greatest is our dislike of regimentation, our respect for the differences which lend color to everyday existence. . . ."

"We know it is not your wish to have on your borders a mere replica of your own country but rather a self-respecting community faithful to its own ways. We are thus better neighbors because self-respect is the key to respect for others."

He said Canada is fortunate to have a warm-hearted, powerful and friendly neighbor.

Quick Thinking Prevents Holdup

MONTREAL (CP)—Police said a $176,000 holdup failed Monday because of the quick thinking of a cab driver and two store clerks. Approximately $174,000 of the amount was in cheques and the remainder in cash.

Nathan Stein, an employee of Modern Packers Limited, was on his way to deposit the money in a bank in Rosemount in the north-east end of the city. Police said that when Stein stepped from his car in front of the bank two young men, one of them armed, approached and ordered him to hand over a leather bag containing the money.

When Stein began to shout for help, one of the youths disappeared and the second grabbed the leather bag and ran.

Taxi driver George Graham and two store clerks—Pierre and Andre Dery—took up the chase and cornered the youth in a nearby yard. Stein's money and cheques were untouched.

Police said the youth gave his name as Jacques Arbour of Montreal.

Police Find Liquor Two Men Fined

Lloyd Calvert of Lot 7, Con., 12, Harvey township, today pleaded guilty to having liquor in his home after it had been declared a public place.

Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, fined him $25 and costs and renewed the ban on liquor on Calvert's premises for another year.

OPP Cpl. Aime Gaudry said that he and other officers were on patrol and saw a number of cars around Calvert's house. When they investigated, they found beer and two bottles of wine in his home and some more beer in his brother's car that was parked there.

Frank Trotter of Apsley pleaded guilty to keeping liquor for sale. His home was declared a public place and he was fined $100 and $2.50 costs.

North Monaghan Determines New Tax Rates

North Monaghan taxes were determined at a special meeting of the township council Monday night.

County rate—16.4 mills, raising $15,020.56, payable to the county treasury.

General township rate—8 mills providing $7,442.83.

General Public School rate — 4.6 mills, amounting to $3,715.

North Monaghan Public School area No. 1 — 34 mills on an assessment of $388,330, raising $15,003.22. This area includes the former Grove Confederation and May's.

No. 2 School area — assessment $374,559; nine mills, for $4,908.97. This comprises Town Hall and Brealey's.

Debenture levy in No. 2 area 7.6 mills, amounting to $2,840.35, required for the new Brealey's school.

North Cavan school area — 15 mills on $50,662 assessment or Separate school board — 15 mills on $50,662 assessment providing $1,329.62.

Council applied to the department of highways for appropriation of $8,500 for township road subsidy. The department reduced that amount to $7,500 in their approval.

Council made their annual road inspection trip Monday. One of their observations was that Weller St., at the west end, within the city, is almost impassable. They are writing the city council urging them to repair the road for travel westerly into that Wallis Drive section of the township.

Bruce Johnston, clerk, was instructed to write the trustees of School area No. 1, telling them that council is making arrangements for a meeting of the township council with the School Board and Public School Inspector to consider the matter of "excessively high tax rate in area No. 1."

Observe 100th Anniversary Of Ordination Into Ministry

The 100th anniversary of the ordination of a Cragg into the ministry of Canada was commemorated at a special service conducted by the Rev. A. R. Cragg in the First United church of Waterloo, Ontario, Sunday.

The Rev. A. R. Cragg is a grandson of the founder of a line of clergymen, the Rev. Edward Cragg who emigrated from England. He took a charge in Ontario and raised a family of five children, two of whom became ministers.

Participating in the service Sunday were the Rev. C. E. Cragg, organizer of a new church in North Toronto and still active at 84, and the Rev. H. Cragg, 76, of Preston, sons of the original Edward Cragg.

Another son, Dr. C. C. Cragg was a well-known Peterborough oculist at the Peterborough clinic for more than 25 years. Dr. C. C. Cragg came to Peterborough in 1923 and raised two sons to carry on the profession, Drs. Bertram and Edward Cragg, both oculists. Dr. C. C. Cragg's widow still lives in Peterborough at 300 London St.

At the family celebration in Waterloo after the service, Mrs. C. C. Cragg, Dr. C. E. A. Cragg, his wife and their son, Paul, were among the guests.

The present pastor of the Waterloo church, the Rev. A. R. Cragg has two sons entering the ministry to carry on the clerical tradition. These young men, David and Wesley, also participated in the service along with Dr. L. H. Cragg, a McMaster chemistry professor and president of the Hamilton Conference Laymen's Association.

The Craggs are also a hardy family. Two children of the original Edward are still active in their 90's. Oswald, who homesteaded with his father after the latter retired from the ministry, is living in the west, aged 91. Mrs. E. B. Stone, a daughter, aged 94, of Toronto, was on hand for the celebration.

Jennie Lee Objects To Dulles' Tact

TORONTO (CP) — Jennie Lee, British Labor member of Parliament, said Monday night the diplomacy of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles of the United States "has all the delicacy of an elephant treading on eggs."

The 50-year-old wife of Aneurin Bevan was criticising Mr. Dulles' approach to European countries when he suggested a common stand against the Communist rebels in Indo-China.

She addressed 2,800 persons at a meeting sponsored by the Toronto and District CCF Council.

"In Britain we don't think Mr. Dulles knows how to fight communism. We believe the great and generous people of the U. S. want their contributions to help make the world a safer place to live in. But there are people in America as well as in Russia who think the world should be made over to their image."

Of the Indo-China war, she commented: "There is no reason why the French should not have behaved toward Indo-China as our Labor government behaved towards India in setting her free."

Miss Lee's next stop is Washington.

Pearson devoted a great part of his speech to a reply to Communist charges that the United States had been guilty of "aggressive imperialism."

DEFENDS U.S.

"As the leader of the delegation of the country which is a neighbor of the most powerful state in the world, I can say with a conviction based on our national experience that the people of the United States are neither aggressive nor imperialist. . . .

"If indeed the United States did not respect the rights and interests of others, Canada would not today be an independent power, but merely a satellite of her great neighbor. Her representatives would not be able, as they certainly are able, to speak their own minds and stand up for their own views in conferences of the nations, even if this means, as it has more than once meant, disagreeing with some aspects of the policy of the United States."

If the United States was aggressive and imperialist, Pearson asked, why had she so soon after the Second World War virtually dismantled the greatest military machine in history?

Why, when she alone possessed atomic weapons, had she agreed these weapons should be placed under international control?

COMMISSION UNWORKABLE

Discussing Communist proposals on Korea, Pearson made these points:

1. The proposed all-Korean commission suggested by North Korea's foreign minister, Nam Il, would be "completely unworkable, unfair and unacceptable."

2. The proposal by Communist China's Chou En-lai for a commission to bring about repatriation of Chinese and Korean prisoners of war who refused to go home would "serve no useful purpose." This was a dead issue.

3. Chou En-lai's insistence that all foreign military bases in Asian countries should be removed was interesting. "It would be interesting to know," Pearson said, "whether he includes in this sweeping generalization the Russians in Port Arthur."

Pearson said North Korea's desire for an all-Korean commission seemed to be the "central and vital" part of that country's proposals. The non-Communist powers have opposed this because it does not take into consideration any question of proportional representation. (The population of South Korea is about 22,000,000 compared with 9,000,000 in North Korea).

NO AMBIGUITY

But Nam Il, Pearson said, had made clear Monday that the commission would arrive at its decisions simply by "agreement on both sides." The Canadian minister added:

"This resolves any ambiguity arising out of the scope of representation of North and South Korea, and over how decisions should be reached. It is clear now that even if North Korea had only 10 representatives in a commission of 100, they would have a veto over the activities and decisions of that commission. . . .

"We know from long and bitter experience what this means. It means that the all-Korean commission would operate as the Communist members wished. This device of 'agreement on both sides' irrespective of the number of members or the number of people represented, would make, if nothing else made, the all-Korean commission completely unworkable, unfair and unacceptable."

Backing all United Nations decisions on Korea, Pearson told today's conference plenary session in the Palace of Nations: "The Canadian government has supported, and remains bound by, these United Nations decisions.

UN CHARTER BROKEN

"Therefore, we cannot support any proposal which denies their validity, or which would equate at this conference the moral and political status of the United Nations with those governments which have in respect of the Korean question, broken the United Nations charter by taking aggressive military acts against the Republic of Korea."

Pearson strongly defended the United States against allegations of "aggressive imperialism" made at this conference by Russia and Communist China.

Gov't Eliminates Conference On Quebec Tax

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has eliminated a general federal-provincial conference as a means to solve the the current Quebec income tax dispute.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said Monday in the Commons that negotiations with the Quebec government is the only way to settle the issue which has arisen over that province's new 15-per-cent personal income tax.

Speaking in the budget debate, he said the government has not changed its decision against permitting the Quebec tax to be fully deductible from federal payments. The law permits only five-per-cent.

He said he knows of no alternative to the present federal tax-rental agreements, signed by the other nine provinces as a means to avoid double taxation.

However, the federal government was ready to consider any alternative put forward by Quebec, provided it could be offered to other provinces in lieu of their present agreements and assured the federal government of finances to meet obligations.

Referring to Opposition Leader Drew's recent demand for a federal-provincial conference on taxation and constitutional issues, he said he would not hesitate to call a conference if an alternative could be found.

CONFERENCE NO HELP

He added:

"I do not think that under any other condition the holding of a federal-provincial conference now would be desirable or apt to be helpful."

The government's position was one of "readiness at all times to sit down with the authorities of Quebec for a full and frank discussion of any alternative to a tax rental agreement and the hope that they will indicate their readiness to do so too."

Under the federal-provincial tax agreements, the provinces lease their personal and corporation income tax fields and succession duties to the federal government, in return for annual payments.

Mr. St. Laurent said there is no reason for other provinces to take part in discussions on the Quebec taxation problem.

Tax agreements, signed by the other provinces in good faith, had about three years to run and the government would not modify them simply because of Quebec's action. There could be no preferential treatment for any one province.

16 Countries Plan Compromise

GENEVA (AP) — The 16 countries which fought in Korea under the United Nations banner plan to put a compromise proposal on Korea before the Communists this week, a highly informed source said today.

This source said the compromise plan, its details were not given, would be a "very difficult thing" for Russia, Red China and North Korea to turn down.

The Communist reaction to the compromise, it was said, will determine whether there is any real chance of unifying Korea and holding elections in the war-battered peninsula.

Differences among the 16 countries over how to settle the Korean problem were described as small and today there was said to be more unanimity than at any time since the Far East conference began here April 26.

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener city council was asked Monday night to take action to fight unemployment problems.

John Maynard, president of the twin-city labor council said that two months ago the 585,000 jobless in Canada were described as victims of seasonal unemployment. He added that although the situation has improved slightly those in authority now concede it to be a recession.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The Windsor area's first May snow in at least 14 years fell early today, in the midst of a cold snap which sent temperatures to the lowest point for May 4 since 1907.

Instruments at Windsor airport measured one fifth of an inch of snow between 4 and 5 a.m. The mercury dipped to 28.6 degrees at 4:30 a.m.

Marmora Man Chats With Queen

VALLETTA, Malta (Reuters)—Canadians got special attention from Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh during a special Commonwealth memorial service here Monday.

The Queen walked to the ceremony dow na "Canadian avenue" of picked RCAF airmen from Canadian bases in Britain, France and Germany.

After Air Commodore Martin Costello placed a wreath for Canada and the RCAF at the unveiling of the Commonwealth air forces memorial here, the Queen paused to chat with Mrs. Annie Lavoie and Madeleine Patenaude of Montreal.

The duke then joined in the conversation, and spoke warmly of places he and the Queen had visited during their 1951 tour of Canada.

Present when the Queen unveiled the Commonwealth memorial was Wing Cmdr. Stan Turner of Toronto. Turner, who holds the DSO and DFC, flew Hurricanes from Malta during the war.

The royal couple also chatted with Mrs. H. R. MacMillan, wife of a Vancouver lumber millionaire, and with Sgt. Gerry Richards of Montreal and Sgt. Tom Brady of Marmora, Ont.

Rolls Car Over; Fined $15

Joseph Hickson, 21, of 1 Stewart St. was today found guilty of careless driving on Highway 7, about a quarter of a mile east of the Indian River turn.

He pleaded not guilty to the charge but Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, found the crown's evidence was strong enough for a conviction; so the magistrate fined him $15 and $3.75 costs.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, said the accused 'got a break' by not being charged with impaired driving. Investigating officers of the OPP gave evidence that Hickson smelled of alcohol; he was belligerent and his speech was different to what it was today when he was in the witness box.

It was later learned that Hickson walks with a limp as a result of a childhood attack of poliomyelitis.

Hickson rolled his car over in the south ditch about 8 p.m. on April 3. Neither he nor a girl friend were injured, though they were shaken up.

He said he was driving west and tried to pass another car but the driver speeded up. Seeing an approaching vehicle, Hickson applied his brakes to slow down and get in behind the car he was trying to pass. The car skidded and rolled over in the south ditch.

Magistrate Philp said there was evidence of speeding and drinking and registered a conviction.

Power Shut-off Stops Subway Installations

TORONTO (CP)—A short circuit cut off lights and escalators in the King street subway station early today and blacked out buildings on the west side of Yonge street between Front and King streets.

Explosions which followed the hydro failure blew three manhole covers into the air and started smouldering fires in woodwork along the underground lines. None of the workmen and firemen who fought the fires was hurt.

Subway trains, which use direct current, were not affected by the failure.

A spokesman for the Toronto hydro-electric system said the company hoped to have all services restored later today.

The bodies of four men who had drowned were recovered in southern Ontario Monday. Only two of the victims were identified. There was no indication of foul play in any case.

At Niagara Falls, the body of a man recovered from the Bridal Veil falls was identified as that of Francis Curry, 65, a retired fire captain of Niagara Falls, N. Y.

At Toronto, the body of an unidentified man was found in the harbor. Police believe the body had been in the water about three months.

Peterborough police found a body in the Otonabee river and identified the victim as Leo McManus, 49, of Lakefield. They said he apparently stumbled into the river after a drinking party Saturday night.

Windsor police removed the badly-decayed body of a man from the Detroit river. Coroner Dr. C. V. Mills said the body had been in the water between three and six weeks. He said the man was about 35, weighing around 200 pounds and 6 feet, 2 inches tall. Death was from drowning.

Royalty Admires Canada's Fur Display

LONDON (Reuters) — The Queen Mother and Princess Margaret lingered at Canada's display of mink, fox, beaver and squirrel furs when they toured the British Industries Fair in London today.

The furs, valued at $200,000, were part of the imposing Commonwealth display concentrated in the Earl's Court stadium section of the fortnight's annual shop window of British exports.

Narriman Weds Doctor Quiet Ceremony

CAIRO (AP) — Beautiful Narriman Sadek, the Egyptian Cinderella who once wed a king but failed to live forever happy, has married a doctor.

The former queen of Egypt, who will be 21 next October, and 27-year-old Dr. Adham el Nakib were united Monday in a quiet and simple ceremony attended only by a few relatives in Narriman's villa in suburban Heliopolis.

The Wedding took place three years—almost to the day—after the daughter of a minor government official was led to the ancient throne of Egypt by arouk May 6, 1951.

Relatives who attended Monday's wedding said the former queen was radiant with happiness when she joined hands with the handsome el Nakib before the maazoon (sheikh) who pronounced them man and wife.

The Cambridge-educated el Nakib runs a clinic at Alexandria and has a modest income. He is a son of Dr. Ahmed el Nakib, one of Farouk's favorites. His father now is serving a 15-year prison sentence handed out by Egypt's revolution court on charges of corruption.

Pope Pius Assumes Greater Burden Work

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Pius, constantly assuming more and more of his heavy burden of work, presided today at an important session of the Vatican's Congregation of Rites.

It was the first such session that the 78-year-old pontiff had attended since he became gravely ill last January.

FALLING OUT — While his buddies march on, eyes front, Cadet Molena lies prostrate in a Milledgeville, Ga., street. Molena passed out, a victim of the heat, as the corps of cadets from Georgia Military Academy was marching in a parade connected with a teen-age-driving rodeo.

No One Arrives For Meeting Of Navy League

Eight o'clock and the executive of the Peterborough branch of the Navy League was at the Empress, rustling papers and preparing for a meeting to reorganize the group, and put administration of sea cadet and other naval activities on a more official basis.

Eight-fifteen. The rain sloshed soggily from a sodden sky while the four wondered what was holding everybody up.

Eight-thirty. Dozens of citizens had been informed of the meeting but none was on hand. There was a small sheaf of telagrams and good wishes from such as Gordon Fraser, MP, and Mayor Norman Graham.

Eight thirty five and one man entered the room, and assumed that the meeting was over. Charles Shaw of Toronto managing secretary of the Ontario branch of the Navy League, pumped his hand and greeted him effusively. Turned out this was a reporter from the Examiner.

"There's nothing we can do but call another meeting, and work even harder to make sure people show up," said Mr. Shaw.

Mr. Shaw, with sea cadet commanding officer William Carr, first liuetenant Jack Ainsley and league chairman Jack Raine, had hoped that Monday night's meeting would see election of a slate of officers. They hoped to see the Navy League re-established in Peterborough as a public-supported citizens' group.

38 IN ONTARIO

There are 38 navy league corps on Ontario, each self-sustaining and each responsible for financing sea cadet activities, helping to rehabilitate naval veterans etc.

They also had hoped to clarify a few popular navy league misconceptions. Sea cadet activities are not underwritten by the naval division of the department of national defence but are handled on a local basis, through contributions from the public, by each navy league branch. Some equipment is supplied, but the navy leagues must insure the government against loss of equipment.

Until this year, the navy league in Peterborough was one of the agencies involved in the annual community fund drive. Now they must depend on tag days, financial campaigns, loyal supporters and some county council grants.

Sea cadet corps, says Mr. Shaw "Provide an interesting and worthwhile outlet for the natural energies of our youth." In Peterborough the boys meet at RCSCS Howe and engage in activities which have had the wholehearted support of the boys' parents.

One of the $64 questions before Messrs Shaw, Raine, Carr and Ainsley was this: where were all the parents and other interested citizens who would be shocked and disturbed if the sea cadet corps in Peterborough were forced to fold up?

"If the corps is to continue it must have a duly constituted branch of the navy league, supported by the citizens," says Mr. Shaw. "We have the cadets. All we need is public support."

HELP YOUTHS

Sea cadet training, Mr. Shaw continued, helps boys in the critical 12-16 age group "to become good citizens of Canada. They have good recreational facilities, annual summer camps, the benefits of instruction by experienced naval officers and a very fine system of scholarships to help them to a university career or to one of the service colleges where they can qualify as naval officers."

Another popular sea cadet misconception is that corps are an apprenticeship to the navy. While those in charge feel that cadet background provides first-class training for merchant marine or RCN careers, boys are not obligated in any way to join the services or the merchant fleet when they graduate as sea cadets.

Down from Toronto to attend the "meeting" Monday night, Mr. Shaw says he will have to return for more meetings until the public is made aware of the corps' present difficulties. Meanwhile the present sea cadet committee will carry on as best they can, with the hope that some public support, and some money will soon be forth-coming.

The Spitzbergen islands nearly 400 miles north of Norway produce about 470,000 tons of coal annually.

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret was around town Monday night with a new escort—he-man poet Gavin Maxwell.

They saw the Robert Morley play, "Hippo Dancing," at the Lyric Theatre and then took supper at an Italian restaurant.

Maxwell, 39, is a cousin of the Duke of Northumberland. Between poems he goes shark-fishing off the coast of Scotland. He wrote a best-seller about it called "Harpoon at a Venture."

Quebec Minister Dies At Home After Illness

MONTREAL (CP) — Charles Daniel French, 70, prominent for many years in the farming, building and political life of Quebec, died at his home here Monday night after a prolonged illness.

Mines minister in Quebec's Union Nationale government since 1948, his term of office coincided with the big Ungava development of iron ore and other large-scale mining projects.

Rugged-looking but soft-spoken, he was the only Protestant, English-speaking member of the Quebec cabinet and was held in high esteem by politicians on both sides of the legislature.

Besides operating a large farm at Cookshire, Que., he was president of Kennedy Construction Company of Montreal between 1919 and his entry into politics in 1946.

WON TWO ELECTIONS

He was elected to the legislature for Compton riding, in the Eastern townships, in a by-election and became mines minister in the government of Premier Duplessis after the provincial general election of 1948.

Although he spoke French with some difficulty, he came through two general elections, winning handily over French speaking opponents in the Compton constituency where the voters are about evenly divided in racial groups.

The death of Mr. rench creates the first vacancy in the Quebec legislative assembly since 1952. Standing now is Union Nationale 67, Liberals 23, Independent, one, vacant, one.

Survivors include his Widow, a son, Donald, and a daughter, Enid. Burial will be Friday at Cookshire.

Harvard Professor Dies Of Heart Attack

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Ernest A. Hooton, Harvard University professor and internationally prominent anthropologist, died of a heart attack Monday. He was 67.

Hooton, who had headed the Harvard anthropology department since the early 1930s, was noted for his salty observations on the human race—known as "Hootonisms" to other scientists.

He often contended that man is on the road back to the jungle unless he changes his ways.

An advocate of birth control and sterilization of insane, diseased and criminal elements, Hooton contended that a "biological purge" was the essential prerequisite for the "social and spiritual salvation of the human race."

BRANTFORD (CP) — Mar Simpkins, 67, of St. George, was killed Monday when his automobile collided with another car four miles north of here. His wife was admitted to hospital with a brain injury and her condition is critical. Two occupants in the second car, Mrs. E. Gowing of Galt and her 18-month-old daugher were admitted to hospital with minor injuries.

8-Room School Cost $120,000 Planned Lindsay

LINDSAY (ENS) — Plans will probably go forward on the construction of a new eight room school at a cost of some $120,000 in Lindsay. This prediction followed Monday's meeting of council at which representatives of the Public School Board attended.

The lengthy discussion over the original school board proposal has continued for three months.

At first the board asked approval of a plan calling for two new schools, one in the north ward and the other in the south at an estimated cost of $268,000. Council balked at the expenditure and a series of meetings began to discuss alternative plans including additions to the present four schools rather than new buildings.

BOARD RELUCTANT

The school board was reluctant for a time to cut the proposed plan but finally last week came in with a modified proposal for one new school.

The new school will probably be built on a lot outside the town limits on Angeline street south. An option on the tract is presently held by the Maryknoll Buildings Co-operative but school use would preclude their building on the land.

Police Raid Results In Bootlegging Charge

LINDSAY (ENS) — Roland Faiers was remanded for one week when he appeared in magistrate's court on a charge of keeping liquor for sale.

The charge was laid following a raid on Sunday night by three members of the OPP. Faier's home is inside the Victoria county line on Highway 7 west of Fowler's Corners. Cpl. Deniss conducted the investigation, assisted by two other officers.

The raid was a result of co-operation between town and OPP officers.

On Sunday morning a Lindsay man was arrested by local police in possession of two bottles of whiskey. During investigation of his case, information was obtained that led to the raid on Sunday night. The Lindsayite was charged with illegal purchase of liquor.

Former Mayor Dies

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Edward A. Horton, 87, mayor of St. Thomas in 1918 and 1919 and a member of the local hospital board since 1918, died Monday. He was a member of one of the first families of the city. Mr. Horton was head of the Ontario Oriental Flour Company here for more than 50 years and had been on the executive of the Ontario Hospital Association for many years.

Car Fails Make Curve, Lindsay Man Injured

LINDSAY (ENS) — Francis Gassien, Lindsay, is in Ross Memorial Hospital with undetermined injuries but not in serious condition following an accident early today when his car left the road.

According to provincial police here the accident occurred on the little Lindsay Road, three miles south of town at a sharp curve.

Gassien was treated at the scene by Dr. H. G. Metcalfe of Lindsay and taken to the Ross Memorial Hospital. Constable Jim Plumtree of the Lindsay detachment investigated.

Sign Argument Heated

Citrus Product May Assist Some Vaccines

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A substance derived from a material occurring in citrus fruit peel may have possibilities for increasing the power and prolonging the effect of certain vaccines, a Philadelphia scientist reports.

Dr. Jack Moss of the National Drug Company research laboratories, says the substance is a phosphorous - containing compound based on hesperidin, a material found in citrus peel.

He told the Society of American Bacteriologists in a paper prepared for today that he has employed it, in laboratory tests, in conjunction with vaccines against typhoid fever, whooping cough and one form of influenza. He said there are indications that it enhances the effect of the vaccines from the standpoint of potency and of duration of immunizing power.

There also were tentative indications of a similar possible effect on materials designed to produce immunity against tetanus, diphtheria and one form of polio.

Toronto, We Love You!

We hasten to set at rest the fear expressed by the Telegram that the buffooneries of some of its City Fathers will bring Toronto into disrepute in provincial Ontario. The Tely thinks that if Controller Saunders continues to make foolish remarks about symphony orchestras, ballet festivals and and other such entertainments, people in such cities as Peterborough may think of Toronto as an uncouth mudhole, and sneer at its pretensions to culture.

* * *

Have no fear, Torontonians! The Controller's remarks are admittedly comical, but we do not suppose for an instant that they represent the opinions of Toronto as a whole. How could we? We know perfectly well that if we want to hear a large orchestra, we must visit our provincial capital, and that we must book seats well ahead of time or they will all be filled with Torontonians. We know that ballet thrives in Toronto as it cannot in our smaller cities. We know that we can see more plays in a year in Toronto than is possible anywhere else in Ontario. We know that Toronto has shows of pictures that cannot come to us, and that in Toronto we can see movies of a sort which it would not be possible to bring to smaller places.

* * *

We know, what is more, that these entertainments are not, as Controller Saunders laughably assumes, patronized by a small coterie of long-hairs, who go to impress the neighbours. It is obvious to anybody who cares to take a look that the audiences at all these affairs are made up of people whose hair is of every possible length, and that they are there because they like opera, plays, symphonies, chamber concerts, ballet and shows of pictures. They are, in fact, civilized people who also go to ballgames, hockey matches, tennis tournaments, boat races and other agreeable diversions.

* * *

Toronto is a big city, and it provides many entertainments which we cannot expect, in the same measure, in our home towns. We do not say so very often, because we are shy, but—Toronto, we love you!

Ten Years Of Painting

We congratulate the Peterborough Group of Artists on the completion of ten years of existence, and on its excellent Annual Exhibition, which may be seen in the gallery at the Public Library until the 15th of May. It is only one of several groups of painters in Peterborough, and we have, at one time or another, said words in praise of them all, but we think that this particular association has made remarkable progress, and that the variety and honesty of its work makes it an important element in the life of our community.

Why so, someone may ask? Because the particular job of the painter is to see, with more intensity and discrimination than other people, and to do everything within the range of his technical skill to communicate that intensity and discrimination to the rest of us. Seeing is an acquired skill. A baby does not see very much at birth; it must learn to see, and it will learn to see what its parents and teachers call to its attention. Many animals see poorly, by human standards, and this is not only because their eyes are not quite like ours; it is because they have not the intellectual equipment to see what we see. The painter is a man who sees as an expert; he sees pattern and beauty of colour where most of us would not see it unless it were called to our attention. He leads us to see what is under our noses, but what we cannot see without his help. It is a good thing to have a great many people in Peterborough who carry this special gift always with them, and who occasionally demonstrate to us what they have seen, and what we have merely looked at.

This year the Peterborough Group are showing, among other things, several pictures of bottles; the range of vision and viewpoint is wide and enlightening. Some of the pictures are simply expository, some are mystical, some are patterns and arrangements, some are humorous, some are concerned chiefly with light and others with texture.

What do you make of a bottle, when you look at it? (An empty bottle, that is.) If you visit the current show you will find out what several gifted people see in bottles, and we venture to say that you will never look at a bottle in quite the same way again.

Beef On Tape

Complaining to our representatives in Parliament and the Legislature is a cherished democratic custom. Sometimes it is done by deputation, sometimes by buttonholing him on the street, but most often it is done by letter. An alert M.P. receives a great number of letters in a year, and he spends a lot of his time sending replies which are reassuring, explanatory or delicately evasive. But now we learn that a new way of complaining to one's representative has come into use in the U.S.A.; he is sent a tape-recording of one's grievance. We hear that this has happened a few times in Canada, as well.

It will never work. People read letters; the custom of ages is behind them, and it is a very rare man who can throw away a letter unread. We know about this, because we get a lot of angry letters, and we read them all. But a tape-recording—! That is a very different matter. Is a man likely to put a tape on a machine, and settle down to listen to what it says, when he has an eighty-five per cent. certainty that it will say something he does not want to hear, in terms which will dismay him and spoil his digestion? All reason, all probability are against it. He will, if he is a frugal man, put the tape on the scraping machine, erase the offending message, and use the tape himself to record something more to his taste. He will allow his grandchildren to sing into his recording machine; he will practise his speeches into it. He will be grateful for the present of tape, but he will pay no attention to the message.

All kinds of devices are offered to the public today which are designed to save us the trouble of writing. But they are of limited use so long as mankind persists in the ingrained habit of reading—of taking information into the mind by means of the eye, at the speed and at the time most convenient. The oldest means of conveying information is by spoken language, face to face; the next oldest is by reading. Both are good methods of registering a complaint. But we have little faith in any plan which depends on a man putting a tape on a machine, and settling down in his armchair to listen to a bawling-out from somebody who is out of sight.

We Take Our Own Medicine

In an editorial about Mental Health Week which we published yesterday we recommended a spell of logical thinking every day as an exercise for the mind, and a contributing factor in mental health. And in order to show that we are willing to take our own medicine, we intend herewith to apply logic (not in its severest form, but good enough) to some information which we received this morning about Salad Week, which will be celebrated from July 29 to August 7. The purpose of Salad Week is, of course, to get us to eat more salad, and, in the words of the press handout, 'to persuade more Canadians that the right look is the slimmer look'.

All right, it is desirable to be slim. Does that mean eating salad? Only in part. You can be slim by eating meat, as well. You can be slim if you eat fruit for your sweet course, instead of pastries and cakes. Salad is also slimming. But is salad healthy? Here again we are persuaded that the only proper answer is a qualified affirmative; it may well be that salad does not agree with you, and this is not mere imagination, as salad-fiends may tell you.

We base our qualification about salad on some remarks of Dr. Walter Alvarez, formerly the chief diagnostician of the Mayo Clinic. The digestive tract of a man, he says, is that of a meat-eating creature; it is comparatively short, and though it will accommodate a reasonable amount of green food it is plainly intended to cope with meat. The digestive tract of such a herb-eating creature as a cow, for instance, is different in many important ways, and if you try to make a cow of yourself, you may not succeed.

Therefore we shall approach Salad Week, when it comes, with wary goodwill. We believe in the beneficial qualities of salad, and we eat salad every day, but we are only about 33 per cent. as near to 50 per cent. carnivorous (or wolf-like) as we can manage in these days of high prices. The remainder of our diet it postulated on our theory that thousands of years of civilization have made us mildly pie-ivorous, cake-ivorous, and ice-cream-ivorous. The class in logic is now closed for the day.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A female pipe band in Toronto is disbanding because it has no leader. Or could it be that they are all leaders?

Shelley Winters, returning from Europe, says that the men there are all right, but they expect women to keep quiet. Brutes!

The new dollar bill will be a little narrower than the old one. Of course, after an old one had been stretched as much as was necessary, it was pretty narrow, too.

A square frying pan is now for sale and it is said to be more efficient than the old model. But it will be a long time before the pleasure-loving hen matches it with a square egg.

Sicily Is A Big Place

By WAYLAND YOUNG
(Special from Palerno)

"SICILY is a big place" was how Thucydides began his account of it. And so it is. In the interior you have twenty miles of country, then a town of twenty thousand inhabitants, then twenty miles more before the next town, which may have seventy thousand inhabitants. No villages. This was partly for defence, but it endures because the feudal barons, although they now live in Rome and Palermo and no longer in their mountain-top castles, still own their vast estates. Through their bailiffs they hire hands chaotically, piecemeal, anywhere. The peasant works a day in one field, tramps ten miles back to town and waits for the next job, which may be anywhere, and any time. Or never. The Hiring takes place in the street before dawn.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE estates are big, the towns are big, and so are the horses and mules, and the cattle. The goats have long twisted horns and the mountains are of an operatic grandeur. The whole country is of a hugeness and violence — violent colours, violent precipices, violent bandits — which attracts Germans. The French tourist seeks the wit and exuberance of Rome, the English seeks the calm and measure of Florence, but the Germans come in busloads to Sicily. Partly, of course, it is Kennst du das Land, the call of the orange groves and the Doric temples.

✧ ✧ ✧

AS FAR as the Sicilian people go the violence springs from a combination of poverty and mountains. It is perfect bandit country. The police still go in threes in certain areas, armed with rifles and on horseback. It took the Italian Police and Army several years to reduce the bandit Giuliano; his second in command was murdered in prison only a month or two ago, and seventy-nine of his followers are now on trial in Palermo. If you are very poor and live on a plain, you have to suffer in silence because the police can get at you. But if you are very poor in the mountains . . .

✧ ✧ ✧

I SAW some slums in Caltanisetta, the centre of the suphur mining district in the hills. The hovels are contiguous, the streets about five feet across, unpaved. There are no windows; the doors open on to single rooms about ten feet by eight in which anything up to nine people live. One water fountain for fifty or sixty hovels. Sanitation by bucket, cooking by paraffin. The roofs leak, and it is not surprising that sometimes the people who have grown up in these conditions should not even have the initiative to put a board over the gaping holes. Most of the people I talked to were Communists, and it was interesting that they did not say: "The Catholic Government does nothing about this poverty," but: "This poverty is the will of the Catholic Government". The cynicism here is as violent as everything else.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE Catholic Government is, of course, doing something about it, but it is a desperately slow business. Many of the sulphur miners who live in these hovels with their families are unemployed, because there is a year and a half's suphur lying unsold in Sicilian ports. The bottom fell out of the suphur market when the Korean war ended, and now the Sicilian mines, with their awkward geology and their ancient, or even absent, equipment are hopelessly outclassed by the United States mines.

✧ ✧ ✧

I SAW one place where the miners have to walk a thousand feet up and down rock steps, and another where the sulphur is brought out in a wheelbarrow and stored for a year until a lorry can reach the mine after the harvest. These miners and the landless peasants are good raw material for Communism. It started late in Sicily, but is catching up fast. The people who still tell one another stories of Roland and Arthur, who paint their carts with jousts and dragon-slayings, are now struggling with the theories of surplus value and historical materialism.

✧ ✧ ✧

YOU SEE fewer priests than in Italy, and huge cathedrals, Arab, Norman and Baroque, are used more as places of meeting and shelter than they are on the mainland. Children scamper and play and old men look in to blow three ritual kisses at the naked body of a saint exposed in a sort of Cinderella's coach of glass and gold-painted filigree.

✧ ✧ ✧

AT funerals the whole population of the town will sometimes turn out for the processions. First come twenty or thirty big garish hired wreaths of paper flowers, then the orphanage children robed and winged as angels, then the coffin borne by friends, then the women in identical black with black shawls over their heads — a few show nylons below — then the men, and last of all the empty hearse, a very old Fiat vehicle, black and plate glass, with white naked cherubs and nymphs all over it.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE sylvan deities got little Christian hallowing in Sicily. You can still see the cave by a lake (although they are making a motor racing track round it) where Pluto carried Persephone down to the Underworld; and it may not have been by chance that there was a fire burning in it on Easter day, the day of spring and renewal when Persephone returns.

Book For Mr. Garson

(Commons Hansard)

Mr. Hansell: I have a book here that I bought at the newsstand because the title was quite an innocent title and rather intrigued me. I thought there might be something in there of some educational value. I am not going to mention the name of the book, because I would only advertise it.

I am going to pass this book over to the minister. I have put a little slip of paper in one page, and have marked an "X" against one particular paragraph I want the minister (Mr. Garson) to read. I dare not read, Mr Chairman, I do not want the minister to get up and read it out loud. I just want him to look at that one paragraph. Hon. members can watch the expression on the minister's face to see whether or not he thinks—

Mr. Nesbitt: It is not fair to let just the minister see it.

Mr. Hansell: Well, you can borrow it from the minister afterwards, if you wish. I think we have paused long enough for the minister to read that paragraph.

Mr. Fleming: He has read it three times now.

The Chairman: I am wondering whether or not the rules of the House are being transgressed.

An American Opinion: "MIND IF I HAVE EQUAL BREATHING TIME?"

Letters To The Editor

PITIES ANGELINA

SIR: Poor Angelina Frump must be in a terrible situation when she can't stand to see underwear and ladies unmentionables out on the clothes line. I never heard of anything so ridiculous and I think it is people like "Sam" and "Angelina", who should grow up and act their age. I would advise you Angelina, not to walk down the side streets any more.

"CAREFREE ANNIE."

BEN IRISH DESENT

SIR: Will you kindly give the following letter space as to me it seems too bad that a town the size of Peterborough should have so much ignorant bigotry in it, as has been displayed during the last few weeks.

Now Dear Mr. MacBride: Plase don't be so hard on us, wes only doin and practisin the religion that the good Lord gave us. Thanks to his Goodness. Wer not minden much about the English Church nor the Luthern Church nor in fact any of the other churches. Wer just going on about our business of savin our imortal souls an thinkin about the Day of judgement when we must tell the Lord that we loved our nabor as ourselves. Cause I remember well the cathism says. Love man kind of every descriptan even them what injure us or differ from us in religon.

And now Mr. Macbride as fur as percusion goes. Well you knows between me and you. That wus jus growin panes. They percuted you if you was a Catholic and if you wasnt a Catholic because it was jus the fashion.

Now ben Irish desent. You take Ireland for instanc. In the early days after St. Patrick gave them a start. They build all kinds of schools and houses to live in an would you believe it Mr. they even built Colleges, Colleges if you plase, and would you be belavin it all the ould countries in Urope sent their young lads there to be educated in the new country of St. Patrick until England found out then they just would not have them furners takin over that lland. Next thing theyd be bringing the pope over, so they went at the percutin. No one could go to church they even put a price on the head of a priest and burned the colleges and schools. Theyd have no furners so near England and them Irish had got so smart jus get into an argmen with they talk you dum and blind every time so the only thing to do was to keep them from ben educated. Jus smash the printin houses and burn every bit of printin you found and then it was a law, a law mind you. No printin matter in Ireland for 50 years, by that time, with people only living around 40 years the young people woodnt know nothing, with no readen or writen an the old folks all gone. Whod teach them. Well the wit of the Irish came in. They dug holes in the ground and lined them with the flax that they had used to make linen and buried the books, while England wondered why so little linen was coming from the Island. Jus them lazy rascals and them going to the new world by the thousands and takin their religion with them.

Then Mr. MacBride You know about the Black and Tan. But now, my dear man dont be goin back so far in history. That must have been before Good Queen Victoria's English Church days and her fine Lutheran Consort. Cuase I know they would never allow percusun. Well now those Black and Tan, they were nasty. Of course they were the inmates of all the worst prisons in England. They were told they would get theor fredom if they joined the Black and Tan and went to Ireland. When one of their number asked what he would do in Ireland he was told to do as he liked so long as you boss those Irish and show those dam Irish wose boss. The idae of those dam beggers wantin Home Rule and runnin their own ports to sell their stuff all over the world. What would our gentry do when they couldnt go to Ireland for their beef pork taters vegetables and linen. Kill a few of them off, break up their nunneries and monk houses to show you mean business.

Och now, my dear man dont be after goin back so far in history, that must a ben before Victoria and Gladstone cuase by that time there was no percusn onl in savage countries.

It must have been before Queen Isabeela of Spain pond her precious jewels to let Columbus travel the ocean. You know the Queen was a catholic and Columbus was a catholic and you Mr. MacBride are enjoying the liberties and luxuries purchased by the misery, hardwodk and lonliness of those uneducated Irish and other imagrants who braved the wilds for the freedom of consience and avoid percuson.

Now my dear man lets grow up and be sensible you enjoy your religion with all the joy it gives you and I will enjoy mine for I know very well that when it comes to getting into Heaven, that protestant Minister that they rote about in the week end magazine, last Sunday who gave the last rite to the catholic soldier in Korea. That minister, I feel sure, who died a few weeks later with the rosary which he showed to the boy in his hand, will when he met the good Lord also saw the Blessed Mother looking over the Lord's shoulder and he would hear say. Now son dear don't delay him. We remember how he helped that poor boy in Korea.

Written on impulse,
NEW CITIZEN.

MODESTY AND FASHION

SIR: For the past two weeks I have been highly amused by Nosret Sam and his opponents and find that I have a few things to say to all of them.

Sam, you should stop concerning yourself with the display of women's garments in the shop windows and look past them at the women within them. I asked you to take a look at Puella when she is dressed in shorts or a Bikini swim suit and observe how she wears almost nothing without any sense of shame or guilt. And then watch her closely when she becomes Puella in Skirts. Wait, Sam, until the skirt exposes just one half inch of knee and then watch the yanking and the embarrassment and the sly shy look—the hope that nobody noticed.

Here you have two patterns for behaviour in the one person. They are accepted only because they are the decree of fashion and society,—the result of years of training, and neither of them real and each of them a state of complete illusion. This is an example of human morality and modesty. The cloth is cut from the same pattern as the religion that is put on with the best clothes on Sunday morning, and which turn the triple-plated, double-dyed hypocrite into a sanctimonious nincompoop for the space of an hour and a quarter.

O tempora, O mores! Oh, Mrs. Housewife! Oh, Mr. Prude!

The evil and the immodesty, Sam, are not in the wisps of nylon, the bits of silk, the whalebone stays or the pneumatic falsies—or in being clothed or naked. It's in your head, Sam. 'As a man thinketh in his heart—' And who thinks sickly there—Evil be, eh, Mr. Tully? (I hold you in strict accounting for the subjunctive use of the verb 'to be').

The most amusing thing was the fact that the display dummy bothered 'Respectable'. They amuse me—they remind me of most of the people I see. The plastic form with the glassy eye and the moronic stare; the painted cheek and superficial, synthetic smiles—brainless and insensate; without heart and soul and depth; void of understanding and divested of sense; motivated by other people's actions and compelled by the ideas of others.

The human body, per se, is just so many cents' worth of chemicals, unless it has contained within it a well-integrated personality and a stable and insistent mind.

O Chaos, O ethos, O Lesbos! Eh, Miss Prudens? And, incidentally, did you mean that you were wise, or extremely careful?

In conclusion, I leave you with the words of Shakespeare:—

'So, may the outward shows be least themselves
The world is still deceived with ornament'.

Respectfully yours,
W. J. WATT.

Bible Message

(From The Authorized Version)

The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me; because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound . . . To appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they might be called trees of righteousness, the planting of the Lord, that he might be glorified. (Isa. 61:1, 3.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For God, who commanded the light to shine out of the darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ. But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us.

We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; we are perplexed, but not in despair . . . For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory; while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal. (II Cor. 4:6-8, 17, 18.)

✧ ✧ ✧

But I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ. (II Cor. 11:3.)

3 Communists Sentenced In United States

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Three Communists loudly denounced the United States government in federal court Monday and then were given short prison sentences for subversive activities.

A 22-year-old woman, said by the judge to have been the youngest ever brought into federal court under accusation of involvement in Communist conspiracies, was given a one-year prison sentence.

The defendants and their sentences:

Sidney Steinberg, 39, former assistant national labor secretary of the Communist party in the United States, three years.

Samuel Coleman, 43, former member of the top officials' staff of the Communist party of New York, three years.

Carl Ross, 41, former secretary of the Communist party of Minnesota, two years.

Mrs. Shirley Kremen, 22, former Los Angeles City College student and admitted leftist, one year.

All four were seized at a Sierra mountain cabin hideout near Twain Harte last Aug. 27 with Robert Thompson, a fugitive from New York who was convicted as one of the country's 11 top Communists

During the trial, the prosecution charged that the three men Communists had gone underground in a plot to help hide Thompson, who jumped bond.

Birmingham Continues Air Raid Precautions

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuters) — The Birmingham civil defence committee decided unanimously Monday to continue its air raid precaution activities despite the local Labor party's demands that the committee be suspended.

The Labor party wants to follow the lead given by Coventry. The Labor - controlled Coventry city council decided civil defence precautions were pointless in view of the power of the H-bomb as shown by the United States tests in the Pacific last March.

McCarthy May Have Last Word On Shortening Army Inquiry

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans on the Senate investigations sub-committee looked today for an approving word from Senator McCarthy which might shorten the inquiry into the Wisconsin Republican senator's dispute with United States Army officials.

Senator Leverett Dirksen (Rep. Ill.) said "serious consideration" is being given to an army-sponsored proposal to limit further testimony in the controversy to the chief antagonists, McCarthy and Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens.

The fate of the suggestion appears to hinge largely on McCarthy's reaction.

McCarthy, as his own counsel, would be entitled to report whether he cared to take the brunt of testimony and possibly eliminate his chief sub-committe counsel, Roy M. Cohn, and Francis P. Carr, his sub-committee chief of staff, as principals under army charges that they sought favored military treatment for Pte. G. David Schine, a former aide. McCarthy has stepped down as sub-committe chairman for the inquiry in favor of Senator Karl Mundt (Rep. S.D.).

WANTS McCARTHY TESTIMONY

Joseph N. Welch, special army counsel, already has said publicly that he would be willing to forgo testimony from Adams and H. Struve Hensel, assistant secretary of defence, for the time being if McCarthy could be brought to the stand quickly.

McCarthy has accused Adams and Hensel, along with Stevens, of seeking to halt his sub-committee's investigation of alleged Communists at Fort Monmouth, N.J., by holding Schine as a "hostage."

McCarthy, without giving any clear indication of his reaction to the proposal to cut down the witnesses to himself and Stevens, has said he hasn't yet covered "a tenth of the allegations" he has made against the army secretary.

Although Senator John L. McClellan (Dem. Ark.) and other Democrats still stand firmly for testimony by all "principals," the majority of Republican members seem to be lining up for a short-cut. Some of them are known to feel the inquiry is doing the Republican party no good.

DISCUSS MEANS

Ways to shorten the televised inquiry were discussed at a closed sub-committee session after Monday's hearing produced long wrangles during cross-examination of Stevens by McCarthy and Cohn.

Also involved was the army counsel, John G. Adams. He and McCarthy disputed the meaning of a press release drafted last October, but not issued, during McCarthy's search for subversion at Fort Monmouth.

Stevens denied, under questioning by McCarthy, knowledge of any threats by Adams to issue what the senator called a "smear" report on Cohn.

United Church Growing Fast

TORONTO (CP)—The editor of the United Church Observer says the United Church of Canada is growing faster than Canada as a whole.

Dr. A. J. Wilson says in an editorial in the current issue of the Observer that his church comprises 40 per cent of the Protestants in the country and is gaining ground.

He took issue with the conclusion of a New York Times survey that Protestantism in Canada is slipping.

"As far as the United Church is concerned, the statement does not apply," says Dr. Wilson. "During the past four years the United Church has organized a new congregation on the average of one every 10 days. The United Church is growing faster than the growth of the country as a whole."

Vietminh Delegates Arrive In Geneva For Talks

GENEVA (CP) — A five-man delegation representing the Communist Vietminh rebels of Indo-China arrived by plane from Moscow today to begin talks at the Far East conference here aimed at ending the seven-year-old Indo-China war.

The arrival of the delegation, coincident with the new Vietminh assault on the besieged French Union fortress of Dien Bien Phu in Indo-China, took the conference spotlight away from the Korean question, on which Canada's L. B. Pearson was scheduled to speak today.

The Canadian external affairs minister had originally planned to speak Monday, but changed his plans. The Korean debate has bogged down at the conference in the last few days, delaying its removal to private talks on the side where trading of concessions might be possible.

The delegation of Indo-Chinese rebels, headed by their deputy Pham Van Dong, was met at the airport by an impressive array of Communist dignitaries. Among them were Russia's deputy foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko; Red China's premier-foreign minister, Chou En-lai; and the North Korean foreign minister, Nam Il.

PEACEFUL SOLUTION

In a statement after he stepped from the plane, Pham said the Vietminh delegation is "disposed to continue all its efforts toward peaceful solution of the Indo-China question."

Pham shook hands first with Chou and after a round of greetings, drove off in the Chinese diplomat's limousine.

Representatives of the French-sponsored associated states of Indo-China, Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia, are still in Paris, but they can get here in little more than an hour by plane once a starting time for the talks is set.

These four delegations, together with representatives of the Big Four and China, will make up the conference which will seek to end the war.

The first item of business, however, will be to decide whether other countries will be invited. A Soviet source said Foreign Minister Molotov will propose that India, Burma, Thailand and Indonesia be added to the list.

ONLY A GESTURE

Observers said this might only be a gesture. The United States is anxious to keep the conference limited, and the Soviet informant said Molotov is not prepared to insist on bringing in other countries if this jeopardizes the parley.

Apparently the Russians are content that they were able to get the Vietminh seated in the talks. In Moscow, the Communist party organ, Pravda, hailed the agreement to invite the Vietminh as a "new defeat for American policy."

The rapid progress made in setting up the Indo-Chinese phase of the conference caught many delegates by surprise. They had expected much more East-West bargaining on the procedure and composition of the parley.

Another honor has come to George (Red) Sullivan of this city. He has been voted the most valuable player in the American Hockey League for the 1953-54 season, taking the Leslie Cunningham Trophy and an extra $300 bonus to bring his financial bonus jackpot to $900 for the season. The redhead centre for Hershey (who was sold this spring to Chicago Hawks of the NHL) set a new scoring record for the AHL with 30 goals and 89 assists for 119 points in the 69 games he played, having missed one tilt due to injury. He compiled a total of 26 points in the MVP voting of a possible 30, the runner-up (Frank Mathers of Pittsburgh) getting just eight points. Red was first on four selections and second on two.

* * * * * *

As mentioned here before, the Ashburnham redhead is a son of Mrs. John Sullivan of Rogers St., and he is married and has a small son. They live in Otonabee now and George spends his summers playing softball at the Bowl. Born on Christmas Eve, 1929, the 24-year-old star athlete played minor hockey here, started in OHA junior "B" ranks in Lakefield, then with our junior Oddfellows before catching on in junior "A" with St. Catharines under Boston sponsorship. Went pro with Hershey at the age of 20 in 1950, playing both at Hershey and with the Bruins in the NHL. Spent the 1951-52 season at Boston after a brief whirl at Hershey. Has been a fine playmaker and high scorer in every division of hockey he played.

* * * * * *

Red's a Star Puckist

Another thing, the redhead is rated an excellent defensive forward at centre and is often used to kill off penalties. His average points per game last season was a remarkable 1.72 and he spent 54 minutes in the sin bin, a high mark for him. He is a real scrapper but definitely not a rough player and doesn't draw many penalties as a rule over a season. George isn't too big for pro hockey, standing five feet 10½ inches and scaling just 155 pounds. Has a deceptive skating style and is plenty shifty on the ice. In softball, Red is a first-rate infielder and hitter, leading the City League last year in homers. We look for him to have a good NHL season next year with the Hawks, where Ike Hildebrand of the Petes' lacrossers also plays.

No pro mat card her this week. In fact, there'll be no more wrestling shows at the Brock Arena before next autumn, probably late October or early November. This isn't an indoor sports centre in the summer, folks preferring outdoor entertainment in the hot months. So, the merry matmen perform here during the winter but pull up stakes and head elsewhere (like Oshawa and Belleville in this area) along about the middle of May each year. City and district grapple followers will have to be content for the next six months or so to read of those mad mat brawls in other spots of the mean Mills, the destroying Duseks, popular Whipper, powerful Yukon Eric and those other ring bruisers.

Minor Ballsters Set

A couple of items to hand on minor baseball here. One is the re-organization of the Boys' Baseball Association with these officers named: President, Wimp Borland; vice-prexy, Pat Calladine; secretary, Joe Gatfield; custodian-treasurer, Bill Bennett; plus team managers. Looks like a dozen teams from peewee to juveniles, and there's a rally of all minor ballsters Saturday morn at the Bowl. Equipment for teams is available for the season, but the need is for managers and coaches. The other item has to do with Bill Sisler and the proposed summer-long minor ball school here. A meeting is planned for later this week to select a slate of officers and get things going. Indications are good that the necessary finances will be raised for the school soon.

According to the Act passed by the Legislature some 10 years ago to permit erection of the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre, the building committee must have three members of the city council on it, and these have yet to be appointed. They will be included with the committee members we mentioned yesterday. D. A. McGillis, general committee chairman and a member of the Fair Board, phoned us to say he and other members of the Board did not know that the site selected was in the north-east corner of Morrow Park until he saw it in Monday's Examiner. E. A. Outram, site committee chairman, said this spot was selected with the approval of the Morrow Trust and the Fair Board, the latter's president being present at the meeting when the site was announced. It now goes to the general committee for approval.

B.C. Lions Have New Prospects

VANCOUVER (CP)—A pair of new prospects were on hand Monday when B.C. Lions, the new western conference football entry, held their first spring training session.

Tailback Ernie Zalejski, one-time Notre Dame, Baltimore Colt and Washington Redskin speedster, was the main attraction.

Coach Annis Stukus said the six-foot, 190-pounder from South Bend, Ind., showed he was a "good passer and a nice runner."

Also on hand was Guido Scarton, a five-foot-nine, 185-pound halfback formerly with Wake Forrest in the southern college conference.

Scarton, who played three years for Wake, is stationed in Seattle with the U.S. Army. He finishes his service in July.

NEW YORK (AP) — George (Red) Sullivan of the Hershey Bears, who set a scoring record of 119 points in the season just ended, today was announced as the most valuable player in the American Hockey League for the 1953-54 campaign.

The circuit's sports writers and broadcasters sent him to the top in their voting. He compiled 26 points out of a possible 30.

Frank Mathers of Pittsburgh was second with eight points, followed by Jackie Gordon of Cleveland and Gaye Stewart of Buffalo. Other players who received points included Frank Edolls of Buffalo, Gordon Henry of Hershey, Ed Slowinski of Buffalo, Emile Francis of Cleveland and Danny Lewicki of Pittsburgh.

Sullivan, who missed one game because of an injury, scored 30 goals and had 89 assists. The former record was 118 points set by Carl Liscombe during the 1947-48 season.

Legion No. 11 after coming from behind in the first to tie it at 4-all went on to a 13-5 victory over Glens No. 6. The second game was a tight one with No. 11 again coming from behind to make it 9-all in the 11th end and with the final frame going to them with a single, No. 6 was defeated 9-10. Orphans No. 8 dropped a close 9-10 game to Red Patch No. 13 but won 16-8 in the second game. Fire Hall No. 10 defaulted to Legion No. 5.

Games not reported or postponed are now tabulated: Legion No. 7 won the first from Fire Hall No. 10 by a 22-10 score. No. 10 won the second 18-9. LOL No. 12 won 15-5 over Orphans No. 8 and coming from behind in the second game made it 9-all. Glens No. 6 defaulted to Orphans No. 8. There are still two matches not reported to finish the legaue schedule, Post Office No. 14 against Lawn Boys No. 2 and Legion No. 1.

TOOK DOUBLES

The Gracie's Memorial Doubles go to team No. 23 (A. Robinson and R. Ralston) when they swept to two straight victories over S. Cummings and R. Moynes by scores of 7-4 and 12-3.

President's Cup playdowns, second round: Glens No. 6 eliminated Legion No. 5 in two straight by scores 10-4 and 14-7. Legion No. 3 also eliminated Legion No. 11 by scores 11-5 and 11-6, both winners moving into the third round.

Only one match was played in the semi-final or third round. Glens No. 6 won the first game 7-6 even though Legion No. 9 finished strong. The second game was No. 9's all the way as they won 10-4. The third game and deciding game again was Legion No. 9 all the way as they swept to a 17-3 victory, eliminating Glen No. 6.

OTHER SURVIVORS

Lawn Boys No. 2 vs Legion No. 3 are the other semi-finalists and their game has not been played. The winner will play Legion No. 9 in the final for the cup.

A general meeting of all members has been called for Wednesday, May 5 at 7.45 p.m. at Legion Hall, to amend any rules, etc. The annual banquet will also be discussed.

Oshawa Truckers Win Ontario Senior B Crown

SIMCOE (CP)—Oshawa Truckmen Monday night won the Ontario Hockey Association senior B championship by defeating Simcoe Gunners 5-3. Oshawa took the best-of-seven series 4-1 with one game tied.

The visitors took a 2-1 lead in the first period and increased it to 4-1 early in the second before the Gunners came to life and put in two goals. In the third period, most of the play centred about the Oshawa net but Simcoe failed to score. On one of the few thrusts into Simcoe territory Oshawa's George Samolenko put in the final goal.

Jerry Scott, Truckmen captain, scored three goals and Jack Thaler put in a single. Simcoe scorers were Ralph Orlando, Len Cooke and Jerry Goodwin.

David Ross Takes Trophy For Highest Points As "Y" Swim Club Closes

David Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Ross of Wallis Drive, won the Victor Allen Memorial Trophy at the annual YMCA swimming club parents' night last evening in a most successful closing event for the season at the "Y" pool. Twenty-five members displayed their strokes in a sample workout. The trophy winner received his award for the highest points of the season, given for attendance, competition, improvement and conduct. He also received a gold medal for his 189 points total.

David Pryde, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Pryde, received the silver medal for second position with 169 points. Terry Northrop was third with 168 for his season's work to win the bronze medal. A "Y" crest and honorable mention went to fourth-place Barry Baker with 167 points.

PRESENTS TROPHY

The Gordon Dobbin Trophy for the most improved swimmer for the year was presented by Gordon Dobbin, YMCA swimming chairman, to David Pryde, the unanimous choice.

David Minty was the winner of the junior swimming club shield for April, the presentation being made by Jim McClenaghan.

Bill Gerow, leading local swimmer in the 30s, was on hand to present the Allen Trophy and speak to the gathering on the donor of this trophy, a late teammate to Bill. Winners for each monthly competition received bronze medals, donated and presented by former swimming club members.

Wilton Tranter won the October medal, presentd by Bill Gerow; Bill Bonney took medals for November and March, given by Jim Brown, a 1940 shield winner, and Scott Pearton, double winner in 1951; David Ross won in December and February to get awards from Don Wood, a four-times winner, and Ralph Wood, victor in 1950; John Gordon, high man in January, won a medal donated by Garnet Gilders, a 1947 winner; and David Minty, April winner, received his medal from Leonard Smith, who in 1941 placed fourth in the Canadian senior back-stroke championship.

PRAISES STAFF

Gordon Dobbin was chairman and spoke of the benefits derived from the club activities. He praised the work of Coach Gordon Minty highly, and pointed to the excellent co-operation given by the "Y" staff. Jim McClenaghan, Fraser Wade and Bill McFarlane. Wilton Tranter and Larry Reid were complimented on their efforts with the "Y" classes, and Scott Pearton, Ralph Wood and Don Wood received special mention for efforts in community programs last summer.

During the workout earlier, Lorne Hale, Ontario YMCA junior men's diving champion, gave an excellent exhibition to delight the audience.

The swim club program is now complete for the season, and will re-open about the middle of September.

Quebec Aces, Stampeders Meet In First Game Minor Pro Hockey

CALGARY (CP)—Quebec Aces engage a potent battler on home ice when they take on Calgary Stampeders here tonight in the opening game of a best-of-nine series to decide Canada's minor professional hockey championship.

The Stampeders lost only one of their 10 home-ice playoff games in eliminating Billy Reay's Victoria Cougars, Bud Poile's Edmonton Flyers and Art Chapman's Vancouver Canucks to win their first Western Hockey League title.

Both the Aces and Stampeders have just emerged from two tough series. Aces came from behind a 4-2 deficit in games to win their best-of-nine series with Ottawa Senators for the Quebec Hockey League championship. Stampeders eliminated Vancouver four games to two in their WHL final but it was nip-and-tuck throughout.

This is the first post-season series between Canada's two minor professional loops. They play for the Edinburgh Cup, donated by the Duke of Edinburgh, who became a hockey fan during his 1951 tour of the Dominion. Next year the series will be played in the east.

NHL REPRESENTATION

Both leagues have hook-ups with clubs in the National and American Lagues. There is a fair sprinkling of former NHL players on the Calgary and Quebec rosters.

Defenceman Rags Raglan and forwards Buddy Boone, Roy Kelly, Gerry Gabana and Adam Brown of the Aces are no strangers to Calgary, having all played at one time in the WHL. Kelly was one of Stampeders' top goal-getters last season.

Chief among Calgary's former NHL performers are defenceman Gus Kyle, former New York Ranger and Boston Bruin; centre Ray Barry, ex-Bruin; centre Sid Finney, former Chicago Black Hawk; and Jim McFadden, one-time Detroit Red Wing and Chicago star who won the rookie award in his NHL debut.

Stampeders are a smooth-passing "old-pro" aggregation with only one seldom-used rookie winger. They play positional hockey to the letter.

REAL ROADBLOCK

To enter the series with Quebec, Calgary had to overcome a real roadblock in Vancouver's all-star goalie Lorne Worsley, the NHL's 1952-53 rookie award winner with Rangers.

During the regular season, Stampeders were runnrs-up to Vancouver by two points in the seven-team league after a 70-game schedule. They won 38, lost 25 and tied seven. Their 266 goals easily made them th WHL's highest-scoring team. Goalie Bill Brennan, former Detroit player, was second to Worsley among the goalies with a goals-against average of 2.87 a game. Brennan set a league shut-out record with seven.

In the WHL playoffs, Stampeders won 12 games while losing six, their home-ice strength telling the tale. They are coached by Frank Currie, who was a defence star of Montreal Royals when the Quebec league was a senior circuit.

Re-Elected President

GALT (CP)—Ralph C. Yager of Fenwick has been re-elected president of the Ontario Rural Softball Association.

Other officers re-elected at the 22nd annual meeting of the association were: John Eccles of Guelph, vice-president; Joe Holmes of Dixie, second vice-president and Elmer Halls of Galt, secretary.

The only new member on the executive is treasurer Earl Sage of Galt, who filled the vacancy left by the resignation of Jack Carson of Stratford.

W. Borland Prexy Of Minor Ball With 10 Clubs In

Wimp Borland was elected president of the Peterborough Boys Baseball Association for 1954 at the annual re-organization meeting held to start the week in the Ashburnham Hall. Former player, umpire and manager in baseball, Mr. Borland was the unanimous choice to head the minor ball association for this season at the well-attended meeting.

Elected vice-president of the setup was Pat Calladine, with Joe Gatfield named secretary, and Bill Bennett custodian-treasurer. The latter is chairman of the sports committee of the Peterborough Recreation Commission. Managers of the 1954 teams will also act on the executive with these officers.

EXPECT A DOZEN

Ten teams were represented at the first meeting, and it is expected that at least 12 will operate, the same number as a year ago. They perform in three divisions, peewees, bantams and the combined midget-juveniles for the older boys.

The association was started a year ago to revive minor baseball and it was quite successful, trade unions of the city and service clubs contributing for equipment. Some of the teams made good showings later in OBA playdowns.

A rally of minor ballsters and boys interested in learning the game will be from 9:30 a.m. till noon Saturday this week in the Ashburnham Bowl. Bill Sisler, who will be running a summer school for minor baseball — a project quite apart from the Boys' Baseball Association — will be on hand Saturday to discuss the diamond game with the boys. Other officers, managers and coaches will attend, too. Another executive meeting for entries will be called on May 6.

UMPIRE'S SCHOOL

It is planned to run an umpires' school again this season as was done last year. Efforts are being made now to obtain one diamond at Brinton Field and two at the Bonner-Worth Field for all games this season in the association. When the entries are closed off, schedules will be drawn up in the three divisions.

"We need more managers and coaches," Mr. Bennet stated Monday evening, "and are asking them to contact us or attend our next meeting. We'll supply all the necessary equipment, even if there are more than a dozen teams, but we can't supply enough managers to properly look after these kids' teams. I hope more fathers of players will come out this summer and give us a hand."

It was felt by the gathering that the proposed school for minor baseball, running four months through the summer — with about 10 weeks of actual field coaching and playing — would tie in fine with the good baseball being provided by the minor association of Peterborough.

Rink Company Chooses Ten Directors

So completely satisfied were the shareholders of the Peterborough Curling Rink Co. with last year's Board of Directors that at the annual meeting of the company, held in the club's parlors Monday night— eight of the 10 directors elected were members of last year's board. Dr. R. Nott and Dr. R. Morgan replacing the two retired members, R. Payne and E. Bickle.

President M. McCartney's opening remarks were very brief. He outlined the season's activities and thanked all for their grand support and co-operation.

FINANCIAL REPORT

Secretary Ira Moore gave the financial statement and this was well received.

The proposed alterations over ice six and seven were carried with little opposition.

Dr. R. Nott's motion to have 10 directors elected, — the five highest for two years and the other five for one year, was carried unanimously.

Those elected for two years are: H. Bradburn, N. Hawley, B. Harrison, Dr. M. McCartney; and for one year: Thos. Doughty, B. Grant, Dr. R. Morgan, Dr. R. Nott and O. Price.

The election of the officers of the was held over for the time being.

Oshawa May Bid For World Series

OSHAWA (CP) — Officials of Oshawa Truckmen, Ontario Hockey Association senior B champions, said they will make a bid to have the Truckmen represent Canada at the next world hockey championships.

General manager Wren Blair said Monday the Truckmen will forward their application to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association meeting in Vancouver next week.

"I know the CAHA has said it will send only senior A or junior A teams over to Europe after what happened to Toronto East York," he said, "but our club is actually of senior A calibre."

East York was beaten by Russia in the finals of this year's world championships.

The Truckmen Monday night defeated Simcoe Gunners 5-3 to win the senior B title 4-1 in games.

YUGOS WIN

MONTE CARLO (AP)—Using reserve players, Yugoslavia split in the two final singles matches with Monaco Monday for a 4-1 victory in the first-round European zone Davis Cup series. Yugoslavia will meet Belgium's defending European champions in the second round.

Snow Stops Baseball In Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minneapolis and St. Paul baseball officials took a pained glance at the snow carpet covering their ball parks Monday and called off scheduled American Association games.

Minneapolis was due to play Charleston and St. Paul was to meet Columbus but one of the area's worst May snowstorms in recent years forced a quick halt.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Every Kentucky Derby—like every other great horse race—has its episodes of glory, but every renewal of this great race has its bitter disappointments, and its upsets, too.

For instance, there was the 1940 Kentucky Derby, and there never has been a satisfactory answer to the question of just what happened to the great Bimelech in the Run For The Roses that year.

Colonel E. R. Bradley has an amazing number of thoroughbreds, including four winners of previous Derbies, and also the mighty Black Servant, Baggenbaggage, Blue Larkspur, and so many others, and he had furnished the sire which produced Black Gold Going up to the 1940 Derby, Colonel Bradley said:

"I thing Bimelech is the greatest horse I ever had."

Bimelech won 6 races straight, as a 2-year old. Making his debut as a 3-year old, he won both races in which he had been entered, and came up to the Kentucky Derby of 1940 with the record of being unbeaten in 8 starts, apparently at the peak of his form, and with the turf authorities insisting he had the Derby at his mercy.

The punters made him a favorite at 40 cents to the dollar. The field he was pitted against was regarded as one of the most mediocre of many years. It represented the best of the crop, but the crop, at its best, was not presumed to be in a class with Bimelech.

"Bimelech should win by a quarter of a mile" the experts insisted. "No other horse in the race can run the mile and a quarter faster than 2.05."

Yet Gallahadion, who never knew greatness before, nor showed any greatness afterward, was too fast for Bimelech that afternoon. Gallahadion won by a length and a half. Gallahadion's time: 2.05.

Not until the defeat of the grey ghost, Native Dancer, last year, at 7.10, has there been a similar catastrophe of form, and even so, the odds on Bimelech were much shorter, so that the great mystery of all the Kentucky Derbies is: "What was wrong with Bimelech on Derby Day of 1940?"

White Sox Leading N.Y. Yankees In Pennant Race

By BEN PHLEGAR

Chicago White Sox are making every effort to run away from the New York Yankees in the American League pennant race, and for a change they're getting some help.

For more seasons than they care to remember the rest of the managers in the league have found out the hard way that no team can beat the Bronx Bombers all by itself. But this year every team the Yanks have played has beaten them at least once — and they've played every team in the league except Baltimore. The Orioles open a three-game series in New York today.

Meanwhile the White Sox have recovered from three quick losses at the start of the season and have won nine of their last 12 games. They lead the league by one game over the surprising Detroit Tigers and hold a four-game edge over the Yankees.

HERE'S WHY

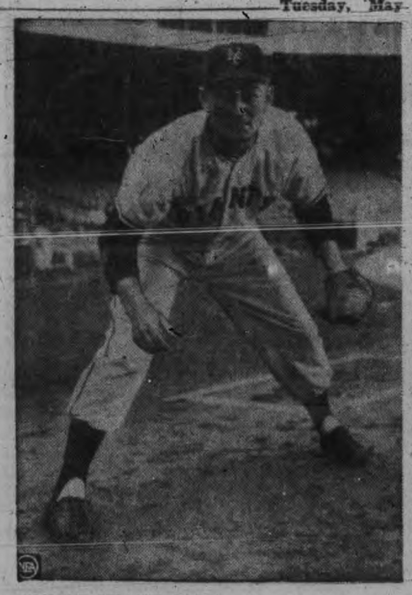
Johnny Groth, a .253 weakling with St. Louis Browns last year, is leading the Sox with a .364 average. Ferris Fain, who followed two straight batting championships with a miserable .256 performance last season, is hitting .328.

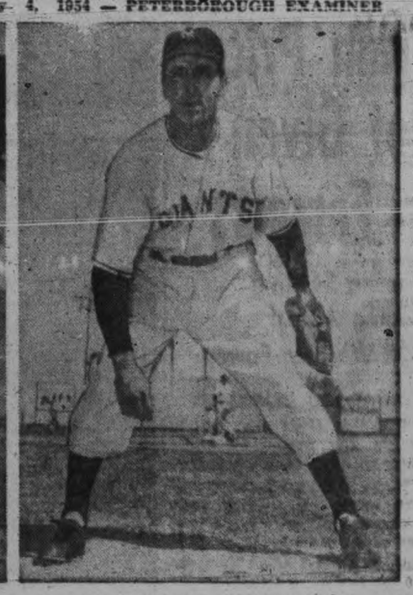
Pitchers Bob Keegan, Sandy Consuegra and Don Johnson have accounted for seven victories without being beaten.

Consuegra won his second one Monday. Despite the 14-3 score against Philadelphia Athletics he gave up only two hits — a bunt single and a wind-blown double—both by Forrest Jacobs.

St. Louis Cardinals beat New York Giants 8-2 Monday night in the only other activity in the majors. It was too cold at Milwaukee for Brooklyn to play the last-place Braves, and it was too wet at Washington for the Senators' game with Cleveland. The other clubs weren't scheduled.

At St. Louis, Stan Musial, who slugged a record five home runs in Sunday's twin bill with the Giants, didn't get a hit. He was walked four times and fouled out on his one official appearance.





ELDER STATESMEN—Another old pro, Marv Grissom, left, 36, has taken his place alongside Sal Maglie, 37, the Giants' pitching leader.

Two Veterans Battling For Honors

NEW YORK (AP)—Veteran outfielders Hank Sauer of the Chicago Cubs and Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals are challenging pace-setting Ransom (Randy) Jackson of the Cubs for National League batting supremacy.

Jackson, who led by a healthy margin a week ago, saw his average drop to .426. Sauer, meanwhile, moved into contention at .412 followed by Musial, a six-time batting champion, at .400.

Bill Glynn of the Cleveland Indians still tops the American League with a .406 mark, but Detroit rookie Bill Tuttle is right at his heels at .404, the figures include Sunday's games.

Jackson, after swinging at a .500 clip last week, went 4-for-16 and dipped 76 points. Teammate Sauer, on the other hand, collected nine hits in 17 trips and gained 59 points. Musial, with 12-for-22 during the week, boosted his average 84 points.

PHENOMEML RISE

Brooklyn's Duke Snider, fourth with .385, and Don Mueller of the Giants, fifth at .381, also had phenomenal weeks at the plate. Snider delivered 12 hits in 24 at bats and raised his average 68 points, while Mueller climbed 95 points with 14-for-28.

With Al Rosen taking over at first base for the Indians, Glynn had only one bat during the week and his American League average fell 13 points. Tuttle, tied for second a week ago, went 6-for-15 and advanced to within two points of the top.

Billy Goodman of the Boston Red Sox, who won the batting crown in 1950, ranks third with .370. Cleveland's Bobby Avila is fourth with .355 and Jackie Jensen of the Red Sox rounds out the top five leaders at .354.

Plate Runners Reduced 43 Colts, Fillies

TORONTO (CP)—The field for the 95th running of the Queen's Plate has been reduced to 43 colts and fillies.

The Ontario Jockey Club said today that final payment of $100 to keep horses eligible for the June 12 race was due last week-end. Last year 35 owners made the May 1 payment.

The Queen's Plate, Canada's top turf event, offers a prize of a $20,000-added purse and 50 guineas. It is run over a 1⅛-mile course.

There were few surprises among the scratches. The western Canada contingent was reduced to two horses. Only Hi Laude, owned by Dr. L. H. Appleby of Vancouver and Mr. Speaker, owned by Attorney-General Lucien Maynard of Alberta, are still on the west's list.

FILLIES FAIL

R. James Speers of Winnipeg, who had a couple of contenders in Weyburn and Treherne, scratched the fillies when they failed to train to expectations.

For the first time there will be two separate trials for the Queen's Plate. A six-furlong test will be held May 22 and a second trial of one mile and 70 yards will be run June 2.

There were 177 original nominations for this year's plate. The field was reduced to 74 when another payment was due Dec. 1.

Wolves Beat Penticton 2-1 In First Allan Cup Game

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — Sudbury Wolves hammered out a narrow 2-1 victory over Penticton V's here Monday night in the first game of a best-of-seven series for the Allan Cup.

The Allan Cup is the symbol of senior amateur hockey supremacy in Canada.

It was a game of breaks. A potentially tying Penticton goal was disallowed on an offside call and on Sudbury's first marker the puck snake-hipped through a forest of players, caromed off a leg and hopped into the goal.

Lennie Speck and Nick Tomiuk scored for the easterners and Jim Fairburn tallied for Penticton.

Tonight both teams will rest from the bruising they took, a bruising which resulted in 17 penalties, before taking to neutral ice in Vernon for the second game Wednesday.

Eleven of the penalties went to Sudbury, who scored first and fought to keep the lead, and six went to Penticton who traded blow for blow in a bid to haul the contest out of the fire.

Speck put Sudbury ahead in the first period on a goal that stood up until the third period, when Tomiuk stretched the margin to 2-0. Fairburn's one third-period effort wasn't enough to catch up.

GOAL DISALLOWED

Penticton flashed the goal light first, early in the first period when Jack McIntyre picked up a pass from across two lines and went in to score. It was disallowed.

Speck's goal came on a pass from Orval Lavelle on a shot from just inside the blue line.

The second period, with Wolves riding on a 1-0 edge, was tense and tempers exploded several times. Pete Horeck picked up the first of two 10-minute misconducts by hammering his stick on the boards in protest against a call. Mauno Kauppi served it out.

Horeck's second 10-minute misconduct came just past the 18-minute mark of the same period when he and V's Jack McDonald tangled and Horeck battled Montreal referees Mel Snowden and Syl Breen to get at the Penticton player.

Tomiuk's goal was the swiftest of the night, coming only 55 seconds from the third-period face-off on an Andy Milne pass. Fairburn's goal came on a passing play with Grant and Bill Warwick. McLellan was pulled in the final seconds, but V's couldn't score.

Chicago Goalie Judged Best In NHL

MONTREAL (CP)—Angular Al Rollins, sensational goaltender for Chicago Black Hawks, has been judged the National Hockey League player most valuable to his team last season, the NHL announced today. He wins the Hart Trophy and $1,000.

In a pool of hockey writers and broadcasters in the six NHL cities, Rollins got the nod over Red Kelly of Detroit Red Wings. He won 80 points compared to 74 for Kelly. Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens was third with 44 points.

A remarkable feature of the Rollins victory was the fact that he played the entire season for a last-place club, the first player to accomplish such a feat since Tommy (Cowboy) Anderson won the award while playing defence for New York Americans in 1941-42.

Rollins is the first goalkeeper to annex the cup since Chuck Rayner took honors in 1949-50. Detroit's Gordie Howe has won the trophy for the last two seasons.

Elwin Ira Rollins, 28, was born at Vanguard, Sask., and played his last amateur game with Edmonton Flyers, Allan Cup winners in 1947-48. He won the Vezina Trophy in his first season as a professional with the Stanley Cup winning Toronto Maple Leafs of 1950-51.

Continue Ban Newspapermen

WINNIPEG (CP)—Officials of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers say they have every right to bar a newspaper man from the Winnipeg Stadium press box and, unless circumstances change, will continue their ban on a city sports writer.

Ralph Misener, president of Bombers, and James T. Russell, vice-president in charge of public relations, made the statement Sunday night after it was disclosed Saturday that the Western Interprovincial Football Union club intended to bar Bob Moir of the Winnipeg Free Press from the press box.

The ban was imposed after Moir reported that Bombers were said to be negotiating with Chuck Conerly, quarterback of the New York Giants in the National Football League. Bomber officials objected to the report although they refused to deny it.

Al Vickery, president of the Winnipeg Football Writers and Broadcasters Association, said a meeting of the association will be held and the group will meet later this week with Bomber officials.

Grain Prices Not Given To Farmers

Spring Seeding Going Ahead On Western Farms

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA (CP) — Prairie farmers are preparing their spring seeding without knowing what basic price crops will fetch next fall. They may not know until about the end of the crop year July 31.

Usually, about seeding time, the government posts initial prices the Canadian wheat board will pay on the harvesting of wheat, oats and barley which the board sells for producers under pooling arrangements.

This advance announcement gives the farmers some ida of how to concentrate their production; how to get the best possible return from farming operations.

However, Trade Minister Howe said Monday in the Commons in reply to Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) that an early announcement on initial prices will not be possible this year.

FACTORS OBSCURE

"There are too many factors that are obscure at the moment that will be much more clearly defined later in the season," he said. "The announcement will certainly be made before the end of the crop year but not much before."

Prairie farmers have been delayed in their seeding by cold weather. But spring work likely will be in full stride within a week or two.

Unofficial reports say that the Prairie dwellers plan to continue planting about the same acreage as last year when Canada produced 614,000,000 bushels of wheat, 407,000,000 of oats and 262,000,00 of barley.

PRODUCE LESS GRAIN?

There have been some suggestions, among producer groups, that with large grain surpluses overhanging world markets, perhaps less grain should be produced this year and more acreage left to summerfallow. However, the majority of producers have rejected this view.

Initial prices for the 1953-54 crop year, announced last spring, were $1.40 a bushel for No. 1 northern wheat, 65 cents a bushel for No. 2 oats and 96 cents a bushel for No. 3 CW barley, basis delivery at Vancouver or the Lakehead.

The wheat board usually augments these initial prices by mid-year interim payments, usually by 20 cents a bushel for wheat. However, this year for the first time in some years, there has been no interim payment.

Montreal To Rival N.Y. As Ocean Terminal

MONTREAL (CP)—Within two years Montreal will rival New York as an ocean passenger centre, a shipping official said here Monday.

The spokesman, representing one of the large cargo lines operating into Montreal, said his company is planning to switch to passenger carrying to cash in on rising Canadian immigration.

The first of "five or six" new passenger liners, each accommodating some 500 passengers has already been ordered, he said in an interview.

The official, who asked to be unnamed, said this will be the company's first big venture into the passenger trade.

Favors German Plan

LONDON (AP) — The Labor party's national executive committee came out Monday in favor of a West German military contribution to European defence. This action placed the party organization firmly behind Clement Attlee on the issue. It was a setback for the left-wing followers of Aneurin Bevan.

Car Shipments Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Factory shipments of Canadian-made motor vehicles during February rose to an all-time high for the month at 44,268 units, compared with 42,904 units in the corresponding month last year. Aggregate shipments for January and February rose to 84,578 units as against 78,798 in the same period last year.

TELEVISION GROWS FAST—Canadian manufacturers estimate 625,000 television sets were in use at the end of January. By late next autumn 23 TV stations will be operating in Canada. Three-quarters of Canada's population will be in range of television. This is a photo of a television assembly line in a To onto factory. The industry last year turned out sets valued at $148,753,000.—(CP Photo).

23 Canadian TV Stations In Operation By Autumn

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—By late autumn 23 television stations will be operating in Canada. Threee-quarters of Canada's population will be in range of TV.

Manufacturers estimate 625,000 television sets were in use at the end of January. Last year, 366,498 units were sold for $148,753,000, almost $100,000,000 higher than radio sets.

That's how much Canadian television has grown since the first station opened at Montreal in September, 1952.

ALLOTTED AREAS

Of nine TV stations now on the air, five are CBC stations and four privately-owned. Before winter, there will be seven CBC and 16 private stations.

TV licences in the largest cities so far are restricted to the publicly owned CBC. F. H. Elphicke of Vancouver, past president of the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, says viewers in those cities have no alternative but American TV if they don't like the Canadian program. The CBC cities are Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. (Halifax and Winnipeg are still to open).

NETWORK PLANS

A micro-wave television relay now links Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and London, with a link to Buffalo to pick up some U.S. programs. There will be a leg off this relay for the Hamilton station opening soon. It is proposed to extend the network to Quebec and Windsor Ont.

Plans are also being drawn for extension of the micro-wave to Halifax and Winnipeg.

Some day Canada may have a transcontinental micro-wave system linking all TV stations. Involved would be construction of relay towers over vast stretches of open country.

Micro-wave beam relay is practical only over "line of sight" distances; one tower has to be seen from the next. By using towers 100 feet or more in height, and taking advantage of high spots in the terrain, it is possible to space them 30 miles apart.

FIRST STATIONS

Television watchers in border communities were already familiar with American programs before the first Canadian stations started. Montreal's CBC outlet, CBFT, and Toronto's CBLT went on the air in September, 1952.

Four more started last year. Ottawa's CBOT got off with a bang on Coronation Day, June 2. The first private station, CKSO-TV at Sudbury, Ont., opened in October and the second, CFPL-TV at London, Ont., in November. CBUT came on the air at Vancouver just before Christmas.

The English-language CBMT started at Montreal last January, 17 months after its sister CBC station, the French-language CBFT. The privately owned CKCO-TV opened at Kitchener, March 1 and three weeks later.

COMING UP

New eastern stations opening this summer and fall are at Sydney and Halifax, Quebec City, Sherbrooke and Rimouski, Que., and Kingston, Hamilton, Windsor and Port Arthur.

The only CBC station among the western ones ready to go on the air is CBWT at Winnipeg, opening this month. The first western private stations, opening in a few months, are at Saskatoon, Regina Calgary and Edmonton.

Britain Opens Industry Fair

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain Monday opened her £500,000 industrial store window—the British Industries Fair.

But first visitors warned that while the goods look fine, the price tags are too steep.

They said heavy Dutch and German competition will cut into sales. British delivery often is too slow, some added.

Some 125,000 business men from 100 countries are expected to visit the two-week fair, which spreads itself over two large London halls and a third in Birmingham. Export goods from 2,400 British firms areon display.

Strike Halts Work At Eight Glass Firms

DETROIT (CP)—A strike by American Federation of Labor glaziers Monday brought operations of eight Detroit-area glass-distributing firms to a stop.

It was the first building trades strike since most AFL craft union contracts expired Friday night. Contracts have still to be negotiated with 14,000 carpenters, 5,000 painters and smaller unions.

A spokesman for the companies said the men were offered 10 cents an hour over the present $2.55. The union is asking 55 cents.

Ottawa Man Elected Retailers President

TORONTO (CP) — Walter M. Murray of Ottawa Monday was elected president of the Canadian Retail Federation, succeeding Mark Ely of Toronto. He is president of Murphy-Gamble, Ltd., Ottawa department store firm.

A. B. Munro, Toronto, was elected senior vice-president and chairman of the executive committee, and Raymond Dupuis, Montreal, Vice-President and vice-chairman of the executive committee.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Word was received here Monday of the death of a man and two children in a car crash near Terrace, B.C. Sunday night. They were identified as Dennis Water, 23, Carol Anne Bell, 2, and Frederick Wesley, 5. Nine others were reported sent to hospital following a collision.

Wins High Award

NEW MUSKEG TRACTOR—This new muskeg tractor, developed to make possible year-round prospecting for oil in the vast, moss-covered bog-land—called muskeg—which covers much of northern Canada, is able to run on surfaces too treacherous to support a man. The tractor is equally adept at fording muddy stream beds as this picture shows, climbing hills, surmounting timber obstacles and negotiating narrow trails. The tractor is expected to double or triple the speed of petroleum prospecting in the muskeg.—(CP Photo).

Mrs. James Peel, Now 90 Still Has Zest For Living

Still active at the age of 90, Mrs. James Peel of 564 Aylmer St., celebrated her 90th birthday Saturday, looking back over a busy and interesting life, crowded with memories and with three husbands.

Born in Elizabethville in Hope township May 1, 1864, Elizabeth Tucker grew up in Millbrook. Her father, James Tucker, was a baker, the husband of the former Agnes Kirk and the father of seven active children, including Elizabeth.

Elizabeth took her first husband, John Lang, when she was only 15. The two settled down to farm near Centreville and to raise seven children. Mr. Lang died in 1900.

After she moved to Peterborough with her family, the widowed Mrs. Lang met "Sandy" O'Brien, who worked at the old MacDonald lumber mill. Mr. O'Brien died after a few years of marriage. By this time the children were growing up, and Mrs. O'Brien wanted to establish another home.

Shortly after the First World War, Mrs. O'Brien met James Peel, a rural mail carrier. The two lived a happy life together until Mr. Peel's death 10 years ago.

VISITING SON

Now Mrs. Peel amazes her four surviving children (she has outlived three of her children) with her boundless energy, ready wit and zest for living. Over the weekend she headed for Long Beach, on Georgian Bay, to visit with her son, Harry Lang.

Other surviving children are James Lang, Mrs. Jack Huggins (Claire), and Mrs. Wilbert Howson (Laura) all of Peterborough. There are 16 grandchildren, and 26 great-grandchildren. Harry Lang has five, James, four, Mrs. Huggins, three and a deceased son, John, had four children.

Would you like your teacup read by an expert? This is one of Mrs. Peel's favorite pastimes, but she does not have as much time for it as she would like. This is because she is busily working on a beautiful new quilt.

This small packet of energy has not given the slightest indication of resigning from the human race. Active, alert and agile at 90, her children jokingly ask her if she plans to outlive a fourth husband. Mrs. Peel has no plans, beyond keeping busy.

Ald. P. J. Anglesey was appointed chairman of the city council Monday night in a motion by Aldermen Rehill and Knox. He was acting Mayor for the session in the absence of Mayor Norman Graham.

FIRST IS PRIZE

Morris Hearns, 15, of Havelock, hooked and landed his first brook trout Sunday while fishing in the Denbigh district. It weighed four pounds and measured 19 inches in length and 13 inches in girth, and was taken on a worm. Four smaller fish were taken by the party of three.

CITY'S CONGRATULATION

Congratulation to Pete McGillen on being honoured as Citizen of the Year by the West Toronto Civitan Club last week is being extended by the council in a resolution Monday night by Ald. Gordon Powell, seconded by Ald. Alene Holt. Mr. McGillen was presented with an engraved silver tray.

SAFE AND SANE FIRST

Department of lands and forests officials reported the trout-opening weekend brought unprecedented numbers of fishermen into the open. Fire conditions in the open were at high hazard due to the sudden hot spell. The department seaplane was busy from daylight till dark spreading the fire safety gospel with its loud hailer. No fires were reported.

Jailed 6 Months For $400 Theft From Hotel Desk

Accused of robbing the Empress hotel of $400-odd, 33-year-old Donald McNeil, 646 George St. and a newcomer to Peterborough, was Monday sentenced to six months definite and one month indefinite imprisonment at an Ontario reformatory. He pleaded guilty.

The prosecution brought forward three witnesses, inspector of detectives William Clarke, a Peterborough woman, Rose McGuirk, and a taxi driver Wilfred Phillips.

Mrs. McGuirk said that on the evening of April 15 she had been at a party at the Empress hotel. There had been two men and three women present. At about 5 a.m. in the morning she had been left alone in the hotel room with one of the men who was ill. The other man had driven two of the women home and intended coming back to take her home.

In the meantime McNeil, who was employed as night desk clerk, had come to the room and had several drinks of beer. He had later asked her to come with him to Toronto, offering her $100. She had "thought him crazy."

RETURNED TO ROOM

Later, she had gone downstairs and left her briefcase on the office counter, before going back to the room for her handbag. When she came down again there was a taxi waiting at the door. After some discussion she had gone to the taxi, and McNeil had followed her. She told the court that she noticed her bag was fairly heavy and had immediately become suspicious.

However, she did not know quite what to do, but had gone in the taxi. The cab driver had taken them near the city limits, where, at McNeil's suggestion, a bottle of liquor was purchased from an unidentified person. Then they had proceeded to Oshawa, stopping on the way at Bewdley for a drink of coffee.

NOTE TO BOOTLEGGER

Mrs. McGuirk said that while the bottle of liquor was being purchased she had slipped a note to the unidentified man to tell him that a holdup had been committed and asking him to contact the police. At Bewdley she had made a further attempt to get a message to the police.

McNeil, represented by Gordon H. T. Farquharson, said that he had consumed an amount of beer (two bottles) at the hotel room where the previous witness had been. He told the court that liquor had always been a trouble to him.

When Mrs. McGuirk had left her bag on the counter he had put some cash from the hotel office into it, then taking it with him to the cab. He mentioned buying a bottle of liquor from a man (he did not mention the name) and then asking the cab driver to go to Toronto. At Oshawa they had intened to change taxis, but the Oshawa police had arrested them.

BLAMED ON LIQUOR

McNeil pleaded guilty to the theft, but said that he blamed his action on liquor. He had been in charge of a firm's money before and had not been tempted.

Inspector Clarke said that he had been satisfied that Mrs. McGuirk had attempted to assist

Company Gives Property To Lakefield

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — American Nepheline Co. has turned over its waterfront property to the village to be used for recreational purposes.

The property consists of about 500 feet of water frontage where the mine stockpiled ore by boat for their Lakefield mill in the days before ore was trucked direct from Blue Mountain. It totals about one acre of ground.

An additional acre, comprising some five village lots—the community rink is situated on one of these — now makes about two acres available.

At a recent meeting of the Chamber of Commerce it was suggested that the property described above would be well suited for recreational purposes and that a master plan should be considered on which all interested organizations could submit their ideas.

TO STUDY PLANS

Plans thus formed would be, of course, subject to the approval and needs of the village before being presented to council.

Letters were sent to the various organizations for consideration. The following have been appointed to represent their organizations: the Catherine Parr Traill Chapter IODE, Mrs. E. H. Northey; the Lakefield branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, Mrs. Harold Wilford; the Women's Institute, Mrs. Fred Kemp; village recreational committee, Kenneth R. Jakins; Lions Club, Jack J. Ryan; rink committee, John McKerchar.

It is expected that a meeting of these representatives and chamber members will be arranged in the near future.

Veterans Begin To Build Homes On New VLA Site

War veterans have begun construction for themselves of four houses on the Murray farm in North Monaghan, bought by the federal government for a Veterans' Land Act subdivision.

Six more are likely to be breaking ground by the end of the week, and these ten are expected to be increased to 25 before the season is far advanced. The Murray farm in the vicinity of Scott's corners, and extending over to the Cavan boundary, has been subdivided into 43 lots.

VLA terms provide types of buildings as desired by ex-service men, and terms of payment over periods up to 25 years, or less, according to the wishes of the applicants. The men who are taking out basements on the former Murray farm have arranged for some measure of co-operation as an economy beignning with cellars.

Plans of houses vary in bungalow and one and one-half story sizes, two and three bedrooms, for the most part. Murray Humphries, representing the VLA in this district says that veterans in the Bancroft area are also interested in securing houses for themselves and families. Probably six will be built there this season, five or six in the Haliburton district, one or two at Campbellford. There may be other applicants from places like Norwood, Havelock, and so on.

Rubbish Fire Catches In Chicken Coop

A concealed fire in the walls of an old chicken house near the lockmaster's house at the locks bridge meant a three-hour job for city firemen late Monday afternoon.

A workman had been cleaning the area around and in the chicken house. He had started a fire close by to burn rubbish. Suddenly the stormy weather blew up from the west, and the wind shifted.

Within minutes the rubbish blaze had caught the chicken coop, setting it ablaze. Fearing that the wind would carry sparks to the lockmaster's house, about 30 feet away, the fire department was called.

By the time firemen had arrived the flames were licking between the metal sheeting and the wooden frame. Firemen had to rip the metal away, meaning the whole coop had to be torn down, before they could reach the fire.

It was about 6:30 p.m. before the firemen could leave.

School Trustees To Meet In Peterborough

"Wither Education" will be a theme of the annual spring conference of the Ontario urban and school trustees' association (central zone) to be held at the Queen Mary public school Wednesday.

A crowded day will begin at 2 p.m. when Charles Huffman, chairman of the board of education, will welcome delegates to the conference. Greetings will also be presented from Harold Wagner of Waterloo, president of the Ontario Trustees Council and from Dr. H. D. Taylor of Windsor, president of the association.

The conference will get under way at 2:30 with a panel on the future of education, chaired by superintendent of schools K. S. Wightman. This panel will feature Dr. E. P. Ray, principal of Kenner collegiate, discussing the difficulties of applying educational philosophy to school practice.

"Schools of the past, present and future" will be discussed at a 3 o'clock symposium. This discussion will be of a more technical nature, analysing schools from an architectural and functional point of view. Chief speakers will be H.H. Roberts, an architect from Westport and Dr. J. A. G. Easton, chief technical advisor of the department of education.

After refreshments and conducted tours of Kenner collegiate and the new Armour Heights public school, delegates will gather at the Empress to hear Dr. T. H. W. Martin, public school inspector for the Toronto Board of Education, discuss progressive education. The speaker will consider, in an address titled "Wise and Otherwise" how much of the current attack on progressive education is justified.

The conference will be under the general direction of Mrs. Mary Temple of Toronto, chairman of the central zone committee of the trustees' association. She will be assisted by vice-chairman Mrs. Harry Tissington of Orillia and secretary J. A. McKee of Leaside.

Big Trout Haul

BELLEVILLE (CP)—One of the biggest hauls of speckled trout made on opening day in Hastings county in years was recorded during the week-end by Don McNevin, Belleville creamery proprietor, and a party of nine who caught 93 fish in Green lake about 25 miles northeast of here.

Housing Offer

AYLMER, Ont. (CP) — Town council Monday night offered two acres of town property for $1 to Central mortgage and Housing Corporation which proposes to erect 100 homes here. The building project, largest in Aylmer in years, will need 10 acres of land.

Spring Renovations Form Bulk Of New Building

April's fine weather not only brought out the mops and dusters of Peterborough's housewives for the annual joust of spring cleaning. It beckoned the breadwinners from their easy chairs to combat the effects of winter's change and decay with hammer and saw.

The monthly statistics on building permits issued by the city engineer's department reveal that scores of tasks of altering and repairing were undertaken last month. They included tearing down verandahs and putting new ones up, adding bedrooms and constructing garages; but shingling and reshingling were the most popular jobs.

Although the number of permits issued last month was not as great as a year ago, the value was considerably higher, owing chiefly to the estimated costs of the new Canadian Bank of Commerce branch building at Lansdowne St. and Monaghan Rd. and reconstruction of the Loblaw supermarket at 215 George St.

110 PERMITS

A total of 110 permits were issued last month, including 10 for garages, valued at $4,558; 16 for dwellings, valued at $168,700; and 84 miscellaneous items, valued at $276,100, for a total estimated value of $449,358.

In April, 1953, there were 120 permits issued, including nine garages, valued at $2,485; 35 dwellings, valued at $287,500; and 76 miscellaneous items, valued at $40,656, for a total estimated value of $330,641.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce branch building is to be a one-storey structure faced with brick and stone measuring slightly over 37 feet by 52 feet. Estimated cost is $85,000. Contractor is Taylor Woodrow (Canada) Ltd.

The Loblaw supermarket is to be a one-storey masonry building measuring slightly over 103 feet by 131 feet. Estimated cost is $145,000. Contractor is Eastwood Construction Co. Ltd.

Total estimated value of permits issued during the first four months of this year was twice as high as for the same period last year, even though the number of permits was less.

There were 10 permits issued for garages this year with a value of $4,558; 33 for dwellings with a value of $326,200; and 142 miscellaneous items, valued at $1,108,723 making a total of 185 permits with a total estimated value of $1,439,481.

To the end of April, 1953, there had been 17 permits issued for garages, at a total value of $5,385; 49 for dwellings, with a value of $400,500; and 143 miscellaneous items with a value of $308,896, making a total of 209 permits with an estimated value of $714,781.

Will Pay Grants If $29,000 Taken Off Roads

Ontario department of highways has clipped $29,000 off the amount of expenditure on Peterborough city roads for which they are willing to pay the provincial subsidy of 50 per cent.

Board of works had submitted the total of $287,000 as prepared by City Engineer Chalmers, expenditure requiring the department's approval. The letter to the council Monday night approved a total of $258,000.

Similar notices have been going out to other municipalities as indicated in the news columns of various provincial dailies. The letter was received without comment.

A motion by Ald. Gordon Farquharson and Ald. McBride authorized Mayor Graham and City Clerk Outram to sign for the city consent of transfer by J. A. McColl, trustee of the estate of Timber Structures of Canada Ltd., of the lease dated August 13, 1951, between the city and Timber Structures to D. E. Ness, of Campbellford, for the remainder of the period of the lease, subject to the attached conditions.

Allowed Boy To Play Punch Board

Arthur Reynolds, a Peterborough store manager, admitted before Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, on Monday, that he was guilty of allowing a boy to hazard money on a gaming device (a punch board).

Sergeant Gordon Puffer told the court that the boy, in his early teens, had complained to the police that he had punched out the winning ticket on the board in Reynolds' shop and then had been refused the prize money.

Crown attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, considered that Reynolds had not only been breaking the law, but had shown a lack of sportsmanship in not giving the boy his prize.

Reynolds said that he had come into the shop after the boy had punched out the ticket. He said that he had considered the boy too young to use the board and had given him his money back.

Mr. Bradshaw: "When did you do that. Before or after he had won?"

Reynolds: "Winner or not, he was too young to play."

Magistrate Philp said he could not consider the fact that Reynolds might have shown an unsportsmanlike attitude. The fact that the punch board was illegal convinced him that a conviction was in order.

He fined Reynolds $75, costs $2.50.

Farm Income Down

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian farmers' net income declined by 13 per cent to $1,656,600,000 in 1953, as gross earnings fell more sharply than operating expenses and depreciation charges. The 1953 total, down $244,200,000 from $1,900,800,000 in 1952, was 23 per cent below the 1951 all-time high of $2,154,500,000, the bureau of statistics reported Monday.

President Elected

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Erma Frank of Montreal was elected president Monday of the 19 women's chapters of the Eastern Canada Council of B'Nai B'Rith.

The council has more than 10,000 members in Ontario Quebec and the Maritimes.

District stream fishermen, out for small speckles, didn't fare so well; too many fishermen, they claimed.

False Cheque Artist Jailed

A Calgary man who spent at least two months living off the proceeds of false cheques, appeared for sentence before Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, on Monday. He was Fred Parker, aged 30 years.

From evidence taken some time ago, Parker was convicted of numerous charges of uttering false cheques and of false pretences.

Evidence collected from Hamilton, St. Catharines, Crowland, Brantford, Otonabee, Grantham township, Lincoln, and Peterborough, alleged that Parker had been in the habit of going round passing cheques supposedly signed by prominent contractors. He told payees that he was working for the contractors and that the cheques were payment for wages earned.

Sixteen charges were brought against Parker and he was convicted on all counts. The magistrate entered sentences ranging up to one year definite and six months indefinite. The sentences will run concurrently, so that Parker's total time spent in prison will be one year, with six months indefinite.

The offences occurred during the months of July and August, 1953.

Says Witness Urged

OTTAWA (CP)—The Journal said Monday Works Minister Winters has been urged to stand for election as Liberal leader in Nova Scotia succeeding the late premier Angus L. Macdonald. In a news-page story, the paper says Mr. Winters has confirmed that the approach was made but has given no hint of his decision.

Wants Cyprus

ATHENS (AP)—Premier Field Marshal Alexander Papagos said Monday Britain must give up the strategic isle of Cyprus to Greece by Aug. 22 or he will take the issue to the United Nations General Assembly. The 450,000 population of the island is largely Greek and Greece has been asking for its return.

Willing To Aid New Expressway

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Highway Minister Doucett said Monday the provincial government is willing to give "substantial aid" to metropolitan Toronto's proposed $50,000,000 lakeshore expressway.

Mr. Doucett said: "They can't spend $50,000,000 on that project this year anyway. We might be able to give them a couple of million to help in the engineering work necessary to get the thing started."

Metropolitan chairman Fred Gardiner has asked the province to share 50 per cent of the cost.

Blood Contribution

TORONTO (CP)—Canadians last year contributed 345,069 bottles of blood to the Canadian Red Cross Society, Vernon C. Hale of Hamilton, blood donor committee chairman, told the annual meeting of the Red Cross central council Monday. On the basis of prevailing costs of $25 per bottle for blood and $40 per bottle for plasma, the Red Cross free blood service saved Canadians $6,086,630 in 1953.

Faculty Men Suspended Refuse To Talk

DETROIT (AP) — Two Wayne University faculty men were suspended Monday after refusing to tell a House of Representatives un-American activities sub-committee whether they are or were Communists.

Wayne's president, Dr. Clarence Hilberry, announced the suspensions of the two, Dr. Gerald I. Harrison, 37, assistant professor of mathematics, and Irving Stein, 33, physics instructor, subsequent to a hearing before the school's faculty advisory committee.

Both Canadian-born Dr. Harrison, a Second World War defence project scientist, and Dr. Stein refused to answer a series of questions as the congressional group opened its Michigan hearings.

Wayne said Drs. Harrison and Stein would be given a later hearing.

WINTER HANGOVER—While most of Eastern Canada enjoyed comparatively spring-like weather, Jack Frost had his last fling across Western Canada. An example of his work are these sagging, ice-coated telephone wires at Morden, Man., the result of a sleet and snow storm which hit many western areas, disrupting communications and travel. Forecasters said it was one of the coldest Aprils in the West in years. —(CP Photo).

Queen Consents To Be Colonel Of Regiment Of Canadian Guards

OTTAWA (CP)—The Queen has consented to be colonel-in-chief of the Regiment of Canadian Guards, defence headquarters said today.

The regiment, formed last October as the senior regiment in the six-regiment regular force Canadian infantry, is known simply as the Canadian Guards. The department said the Queen has indicated she favors this name for general use though the official title remains the Regiment of Canadian Guards.

Royal approval has been received for regimental badges, buttons and rank insignia. Ceremonial dress will include scarlet uniforms and black bearskin headdress. At first, only the bands of the regiment's four battalions will wear the ceremonial uniforms, which will add a colorful touch to future Canadian military pageantry.

NEW CAP BADGE

The new cap badge for the guards is a 10-pointed silver metal star, the points representing the 10 provinces. On top of the star is the gold crown of St. Edward and in the centre, a sprig of three gold maple leaves on a red enamel field, surrounded by the motto "a mari usque ad mare" (from sea to sea) of Canada's coat-of-arms.

At the suggestion of the Queen, stars required as officers' insignia of rank will be miniatures of the cap badge without the crown.

A shoulder flash denoting the battalion and regiment will be worn on the battledress. It will be on a white and red background.

The guards will wear blue forage, or peak, caps. All officers will have gold braid on theirs.

FOLLOW BRITISH PATTERN

Generally speaking, the dress follows the pattern of the British Brigade of Guards.

All five British guards regiments — Grenadier, Coldstream, Scots, Irish and Welsh—wear black bearskin caps, scarlet tunics with dark blue facings and blue trousers with two-inch red stripes when they are on public duties.

Three of the Canadian guards battalions have been formed. The 2nd battalion is at Petawawa, Ont., the 3rd at Valcartier, Que., and the 4th in Korea. The 1st will be formed at Petawawa from the 3rd battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, which returned recently from Korea.

Ask For Addition, Suggested Build Proper Terminal

To the Colonial Coach Lines' application for permission to build an addition to their garage on Douro St. in Ashburnham, Ald. Stan McBride proposed an alternative at the meeting of the committee of the whole council Monday night.

He suggested that "we ask them to move their garage and build a decent terminal at Louis and King Streets or on some other suitable location."

Ald. McBride said it was understood when Colonial Coach came into Peterborough that they had plans for a bus terminal that would be a credit to themselves and to the city.

"I don't know what people think who get off the coaches here and go into that old barn," said Ald. McBride." "Some residents have told me they consider it a disgrace. I think we ought to ask them when are they going to modernize their terminal the way they said they would, and make it adequate for a city like Peterborough.

"If they haven't room enough where they are on King St., maybe they could get some other place suitable to them."

Discussion affirmed that it was a matter of record ten years or more ago that Colonial Coach said they were going to occupy the present building on King St. only temporarily, and that they would build a proper terminal.

The Coach Lines request is for permission to erect an annex 20 ft. x 20 ft. of stone block toward the rear of the Douro St. garage, for storage and greasing, as reported to the committee.

Ald. McBride's motion, which Ald. Alene Holt seconded, instructed City Clerk Outram to write the management for the puprose of opening negotiations about the prospect of their taking some action to carry out their promise to provide the modern type of terminal which they said they were planning when they came into Peterborough.

Anti-Communism Pays

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Louis Budenz, former editor of The Daily Worker, says he has earned more than $70,000 in the last six years from anti-Communist lectures and articles and fees for testifying against Communist party leaders. The 63-year-old Budenz, now on the faculty of Fordham University, made the statement Monday in testimony at the trial of nine alleged Communists charged with conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the government.

Dead Birds Litter City

LA GRANDE, Ore. (AP)—This eastern Oregon city found thousands of birds dead in the streets and yards Monday. Burns T. Bailey, county agricultural agent, said he suspected the birds were killed from eating vegetable matter frozen in a week-end frost.

Hail Causes Injuries

ROME (Reuters)—Several persons were injured when a violent thunder and hail storm broke over Turin in northwest Italy Monday, covering the street four inches deep with hail stones.

Council Gives Permission To Build House

Request of W. H. Freeman for permission to build a house at 126 Hilliard St. was approved by the committee of the whole council Monday night.

Ald. Gordon Powell explained that Mr. Freeman had bought the present old house on the lot six years ago. His ambition was to demolish and replace it with a new one. But the frontage of the lot is 35 feet, and the required minimum is 40 feet.

"There were no restrictions when he bought it," Ald. Powell said.

The report of City Engineer Chalmers was to the effect that the projected new house would obviously be an improvement.

Ald. J. A. Dewart said that circumstances had decided other precedents at variance with the 40 foot frontage, and in this instance a new house was to be built on the same area as the old one.

He moved that Mr. Freeman's request be granted. Ald. Powell seconded that motion.

ASK DRAINAGE

Six property owners on Stormont St. and Glengarry Ave. petitioned for relief from the "man-made ditch" that crosses their properties, by diversion or the laying of a tile drain. In the spring and after heavy rains the ditch fills with water, is a nuisance to the residents and a danger to small children of the neighborhood.

City Engineer Chalmers said the ditch was probably dug by Wartime Housing Ltd. when they decided to build one of their housing projects there, a condition which existed when the properties were purchased by their present owners.

"I don't think it will be saisfactory until a proper drainage system is put in there," Mr. Chalmers said.

The committee decided to refer the petition to a special committee to consider what should be done to get rid of the ditch.

Victim Badly Beaten Man Held For Sentence

About midnight on Saturday, OPP constables answered a call to the Curve Lake Indian Reserve. There they found a man known as Coleman Jacobs, who appeared to have been badly beaten up. (He is still in hospital).

Following investigations, the constables arrested John Taylor, of the Reserve, and charged him with causing a disturbance. It was also thought he was responsible for the beating of Coleman Jacobs, but no charges were laid.

Asked what he had hit Coleman with, John Jacobs had shown the constables his two fists, saying: "With these."

Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, told Jacobs that he was concerned about the increased brawling at the Reserve. He remanded Taylor for sentence until May 10.

Vincent Massey Visiting At White House

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada's governor-general, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, today will tour a city familiar to him from the three years he spent here as Canada's first minister from 1927 to 1930.

The governor-general spent Monday night in the White House as guest of President and Mrs. Eisenhower, returning a visit they paid Ottawa last November.

This morning he was to move with his immediate staff across Pennsylvania avenue to Blair House, hospitality annex of the White House, where he will remain until his departure for Ottawa Wednesday afternoon.

Massey and his party, which included his son and secretary Lionel and Mrs. Lionel Massey, Defence Minister and Mrs. Brooke Claxton and the U.S. Ambassador to Canada and Mrs. R. Douglas Stuart, arrived in Washington Monday afternoon to an unprecedented reception program.

ARRIVED BY AIR

He arrived by air promptly at 4 p.m. in the face of a threatening storm.

The governor-general was welcomed by a 21-gun salute, a large guard of U.S. armed forces, diplomatic dignitaries and vice-president Richard Nixon representing the president.

A scheduled civic reception in front of the district building, with a great panoply of flags and squads of armed forces, more than a dozen bands and troops lining the parkways through which he drove from Memorial bridge, was rained out.

Massey had no more than received the keys of the city when a torrential downpour sent the crowd running for cover and he arrived at the main entrance of the White House in a cloudburst.

"I must look like a drowned rat," he told the president who waited for him on the portico.

"Oh, no," Eisenhower replied, "I thought you would be even wetter."

Massey dined at the White House Monday night.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Everything Garney Cooks Makes Delicious Eating

While the memory of Garny's cooking is still fresh I am going to pass on her recipes to you.

Pete and I were to leave their house for our drive home at 7:30 a.m. At 5:45 a.m. I heard the tap-tap of her little footsteps (size 5 shoe) on the stairs, and knew she was up early to pack our lunch for the trip and to get us a hearty breakfast. So I rolled out of bed, slipped into my dressing gown and shuffled out to the kitchen. Over a first cup of coffee she carefully gave me the recipes I wanted for you, and then got on with the lunch packed while I dressed.

I gave you her cheese cake in this column yesterday. All of the items I am giving you today she made and we ate while we were there. I think they are xtra good Indeed everything that Garny cooks is.

GARN'Y GINGERBREAD (no sugar)

One-half cup melted shortening (Garny used ½ butter and ½ chicken fat), 1 beaten egg, 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1¼ cups best quality molasses (Garny calls this sorghum molasses but teaspoons each soda and cinnamon, dall-p .:earny urpos 'sake you should hunt for light colored Barbados molasses in Canada), 1½ ½ teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon ½ teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoone each ginger and salt, ¾ cup hot water. Mix together the shortening and molasses. Beat in the egg. Sift together the dry ingredients and add them alternately with the hot water. Bake in buttered pan about 13 x 8 inches at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 45 or 50 minutes.

GARNY'S SHRIMP

I have to explain something: There are 2 ways of shellings shrimp. If you have the time and patience and the curved pointed shrimp-shelling instrument, shell the shrimp and remove the vein in one operation before cooking them Joe did this for Garny and it took him ½ hour to shell 3 lbs. thawed frozen shrimp. But Joe is a surgeon and an expert with instruments. 2) if you know your guests well and want to have a fun supper (where everybody shells his own at the table) cook the unshelled shrimp in boiling water to cover for 12 minutes. IN EITHER METHOD to the water add cait, celery leaves, 1 clove garlic and a little lemon juice. Shelled shrimp require only 8 minutes—less time if they are small. When they are cooked drain them well and pile in shallow hot serving bowl. Have ready melted butter to which you have added a little lime or lemon juice. On each plate at the table have a little paper cup (manufactured for just such a purpose and to be bought in large chain or stationery stores) filled with the hot butter mixture. When the shrimp are passed take your share then dip each shrimp in the butter — and taste—and drool. For once in my life I had enough shrimp.

GARN'Y CHEESE BALLS

These are to be served with salads at a light lunch or with cocktails such as frozen orange juice or tomato juice before dinner.

Into 1 cup sifted flour cut ¼ lb. margarine and ½ lb. finely grated old cheddar cheese and a shake of cayenne. This is cut with pastry blender as you would pie crust but no liquid is added. When blended roll it into balls between the palms, place on cookie sheet 2 inches apart and chill. Bake 20 minutes at 375 deg Fahr. Garny says these are fine if made and baked a day ahead of serving OR made day before and baked at serving time. She says for a change sometimes she rolls half of them in sesame seed and the other half in celery seed.

TRAINS WOLF HUNTERS—Ursula Cartland, of London, says she'd like to hunt wolves in Canada's Hudson Bay region. She has trained Borzoi dogs which are excellent at chasing wolves. Meanwhile, Miss Cartland, a tall blonde from Stettin, Germany, rents her dogs to English film companies.—(CP Photo).

Would Like To Start Sport Wolf Hunting With Hounds

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP) — Ursula Cartland, an authority on borzoi dogs, thinks Canada should establish a new national sport—wolf-hunting with hounds.

Miss Cartland, a tall blonde from Stettin, Germany, now is in London renting her borzoi dogs to film companies. She says that of all the countries in the western world, Canada has the greatest need for a revival of the old Russian sport of "coursing" wolves—catching the quarry with a small number of fast dogs hunting by sight.

It could become a national sport," she said. "If Canada wants to get rid of its wolves—the four-legged variety, of course—this is the way to do it."

Miss Cartland figures that coursing would be a lucrative sport in Canada, with each skin bringing $50 in government bounties. Her dream is to set up a kennel of at least 60 trained borzois for wolf-hunting around Hudson bay.

FAST HUNTERS

Stroking the silky heads of two tall, pedigreed borzois she keeps for breeding and for work in films and advertising, Miss Cartland said in an interview: "Borzois are docile, obedient pets—but they have one of the oldest and fastest hunting records."

It will be some time before Miss Cartland can achieve her Canadian ambition. It takes too much capital to get started. "The dogs would have to be kept for a year and trained on wolves," she said.

She now earns £10 a day renting her borzois, 3½-year-old Teufel and Yerres, 8, for work in Rex Harrison's latest movie, "The Constant Husband." As part of the fee, it's her job to see the dogs do exactly what is required.

DOROTHY DIX

Young Girl's Wail No Engagement Ring

DEAR MISS DIX: I've been going with Danny for five years and, though I graduate from high school in June and am certainly old enough to get married, he's never mentioned the subject. Most of the girls in my class will get their engagement rings when they graduate, and I am anxious to have one, too. All my girl friends know how I feel and I'll look mighty foolish if June passes and I'm still not engaged. How can I make Danny understand how anxious I am to get married?

Rhoda T.

UNDERSTANDING NEEDED

ANSWER: What you need, my dear, is to understand that marriage isn't a matter of keeping up with the crowd. It's not something one does simply because "all the other girls are doing it." There's much more to married life than a cloud of nylon tulle and pretty bridsemaids. A young man whose intentions are serious must be able to support a home and family.

Danny hasn't progressed that far yet, and the fact that he is postponing marriage until he can assume its full responsibilities proves him a lad of honor. He's well worth waiting for, so don't try rushing him.

Naturally you want to keep up with all the other girls, but sometimes lagging behind a bit is much wiser. A young man's fancy in spring may turn to thoughts of love, but, in June, his young lady goes him one better and dreams of Lohengrin and a wedding ring.

But getting married just to keep up with the crowd would be a very foolish step, and one I hope you can be persuaded to postpone. Don't nag your Danny, or sulk because he isn't seeing things your way. Don't run the risk of losing a fine boy just because he refuses to throw discretion to the four winds.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Sometime ago I was hospitalized for quite a long period and, while all my nurses were very competent, one in particular was so agreeable that I have continued remembering her with birthday and Christmas gifts. She is engaged now, and I wonder if it would be right for me to continue the gifts.

S.M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: By now, I think you have quite adequately conveyed your gratitude. Suppose you wind up the gifts with a really nice wedding present, then confine your remembrances to cards. Her husband might not like the idea of her continuing to receive your presents.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a high-school senior with a problem. A few weeks ago my boy friend and I quarreled and we haven't spoken since. I'm sorry for my part in the disagreement, and I'm sure he is, too, but we both have too much pride to admit a wrong.

E.J.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Which do you love more—your pride or your friend? This looks like a stalemate unless you decide to make the first move of reconciliation. One or the other must, you know, and if you just leave it up to him, some other girl may appear on the scene and make up his mind for him—and in a direction you won't like. A pleasant note saying you're sorry the difficulty arose, and hope he isn't going to let it lead to permanent separation, will undoubtedly bring a phone call, letter, or flowers—maybe all three.

Ancient Capital Of Arab Culture Now Province In Soviet Russia

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Islam drips from the stones of Samarkand.

It was an ancient seat of Arab culture in 1271 when Genghis Khan and 110,000 Mongols destroyd it. A century later Timor the Lame, the Uzbek warrior who sacked Moscow and conquered parts of Pakistan, made it his home and launched it on a second period of Moslem glory.

In Soviet Russia, Samarkand is the spiritual home of 5,000,000 Uzbeks—the largest non-Slavic minority in the union. Because they also have the longest continuous political history and would form the natural rallying point for any "pan-Asiatic" union, the Uzbeks have been reduced to one of the smallest Soviet republics, and there are Uzbeks in every adjoining area.

Samarkand is Uzbek through and through, despite the modern layout and European buildings of its downtown streets.

It is a market town for the surrounding countryside, where donkeys and mules are still the main transportation. Its principal manufactures are hand-made wagons, carts and caleches. Its beverage is "sillon," a thin green Oriental tea. Many of its women still are veiled.

Its schools are modern and the pupils study the curriculum set for children everywhere in the Soviet Union, but there is reason to believe they also get other lessons at home.

In the 1930s, Moscow ordered that Uzbek be written in Russian characters, in place of Arabic script. Arabic was supposed to die.

A bearded man at a street tea shop in Samarkand's old city said, however, he had taught his sons, and now was teaching his grandsons to read and write in Arabic script. I gathered this was not uncommon.

STILL MARKET TOWN

Materially the city seems to be paying for its strong Islamic sentiment. It has the schools, hospitals and administrative buildings one sees in that part of the Soviet world, but it has remained a market town. There is little new "Socialist construction," little housing, and its industry is largely agricultural.

A focal point of propaganda about the Soviet Union concerns the cultural freedom accorded its minorities. Uzbeks certainly speak their own language, have newspapers and books published in that language, and have their own artists, sculptors and musicians.

But "Uzbek art" is really "Soviet art by Uzbek artists." The themes in painting and sculpture are restricted to the same "Socialist realism" which governs Soviet artists elsewhere. I saw paintings showing cotton pickers checking their production records on a collective farm, the four-man team with the highest production record in a shoe factory, landscapes and city scenes with somewhere a patriotic motif. These ar called "Uzbek art."

I attended an Uzbek opera. The music drew on Uzbek themes and wrapped them up well in contemporary symphonic scores, but the plot was political. The audience began to walk out on the flag-waving fourth act.

On the other hand, an Uzbek play I saw brought applause—although no Russians were in the audience—when one of the characters proclaimed: "Our great father Stalin speaks the languages of all people who believe in him."

Survey Party Seeks New Site For Arctic Community Of Aklavik

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A 10-man survey party is seeking a new site for the remote Arctic community of Aklavik on the Mackenzie river delta 70 miles south of the Arctic ocean.

The 42-year-old settlement, largest in the Canadian Arctic, is in danger of sinking through melting permafrost and being engulfed by the river.

The party, headed by C. L. Merrill, department of northern affairs geographer, expects to complete work by mid-July.

NEED FIRM GROUND

It is searching for an area of firm ground on the mainland of the Mackenzie or one of its channels. It is hoped that a suitable site will be found within 10 to 35 miles of the present location.

Firm ground would permit construction of a water and sewage disposal system and provide a foundation for roads, buildings and an air strip. The existing location is not suitable because summer heat, ground warmth created by buildings and excavations and roads turn the permafrost terrain into a quagmire.

Lack of an adequate year-round water supply and sewage disposal system has created a serious health problem for the 400 whites, 250 Eskimos and 125 Indians who live in the community. A large amount of sewage must be dumped into the river, contaminating the water.

A new site would permit further expansion of Aklavik, a centre for fur trading, missionary work and administration for an area of 50,000 square miles. An airport would keep the community open to the outside world during break-up and freeze-up, which lasts for three months each year.

STUDY SIX AREAS

The survey party will investigate six potential areas within a 35-mile radius of the community, 120 miles inside the Arctic circle and 1,500 miles northwest of Edmonton. The most promising appears to be a shale plateau on the west bank of the Mackenzie about 12 miles southwest of the delta area.

The party includes representatives of the departments of northern affairs, public works, mines and technical surveys, health and welfare and transport, the division of building research of the National Research Council, the navy, and the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals.

The group will observe winter conditions at the six possible sites and conditions during the six-week breakup and the summer. They will travel mostly by helicopter.

F. J. G. Cunningham, director of the northern administration branch of the northern affairs department, said the new site must make it possible for Aklavik to continue as a port for cargo boats plying the Mackenzie.

He said a new site must be found this year and most of the community's 150 buildings moved by sledge by the winter of 1956-57.

No buildings would be moved until foundations were completed, roads built and a water and sewage system installed.

SILT AND ICE

He said the permafrost at Aklavik consists of equal proportions of silt and ice crystals. So long as a protective covering of bush, scrub trees and lighter vegetation was not disturbed it remained firm.

Removal of this covering turned the permafrost into mud. During the winter the settlement is about 16 feet above the level of the river which in the spring floods areas adjacent to the community.

The river also is slowly eating away the delta on which the community is located. The Roman Catholic mission estimates that its existing site will be engulfed in 10 years.

Aklavik's 400 whites live in the centre area of the community. The Indians and Eskimos live in tents and shacks or on barges anchored in the river.

TIGERS IMPROVE

NEW YORK (AP) — Detroit's lively start in the new baseball season has taken everybody by surprise except Tiger manager Freddie Hutchinson and his coaching staff.

Most observers believe the Tigers have been playing over their heads but Hutchinson doesn't agree. He thinks his club is at least 50 per cent improved over last year and declares it will get even better.

The Tigers have won nine out of 14 and are leadership contenders at this stage.

Discussing the Tigers' impressive early season showing, Hutch spoke glowingly Monday of his pitching staff, the defensive improvement of the club and the fine showing of his rookie regulars Bill Tuttle, Al Kaline and Frank Bolling.

"I've said all along we've got the nucleus of a real good pitching staff but few would agree with me," he declared. "In righthanders Steve Gromek and Ned Garver and lefthanders Billy Hoeft and Ted Gray we've got as good a Big Four as there is in the American League."

DERBY FAVORITE

LONDON (AP) — Ambler II, American-bred colt owned by William Woodward, Jr., of New York Monday night was made the 6-4 favorite for the June 2 Epsom Derby. In the latest takeover of odds at the Victoria Club, Ambler regained the favorite's role from Darius, winner of last week's Two Thousand Guineas classic. Darius was second at 13-2 followed by the French-bred Ferriol, 8-1.

The 19-year-old Maureen, seeking her third straight singles crown Monday was made a prohibitive 1-4 choice by the bookmakers. Hoad was quoted at 5-2.

REPORT INCREASE

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A report that the Kentucky Derby purse will be increased from $100,000 to $150,000 next year "might be right," Bill Corum, Churchill Downs president, said Monday.

Corum commented: "I can't deny that it might be right, but any such decision would have to be made at the December meeting of board of directors."

EYES HAD IT—TURPIN

ROME (AP) — Britain's Randy Turpin said he saw "a whole bunch of Mitris" Sunday night just before Italian middleweight Tiberio Mitri flattened Randy in 28 seconds.

Turpin's manager, George Middleton, said Monday that the first thing Randy will do when he returns to London in three or four days will be to see an eye specialist.

He quoted Turpin as saying just as the bell rang for the brief encounter:

"My eyes are queer—I can't see anything."

Ladies' Aid Sponsors Cooking School

HASTINGS (ENS)—The cooking school sponsored by the Ladies Aid of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was well attended. The dietician, Mrs. Violet Scriver formerly resided here and is a frequent visitor.

After the singing of the Queen, the Rev. T. E. Kennedy called on Max Humphries to act as master of ceremonies. Mrs. Scriver was assisted by Mrs. Jessie Stevenson.

The first recipe was for cheese and bacon pinwheels and was won by Nancy Wellman.

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—The dance held in Memorial Hall and sponsored by the Scout and Cub mothers' auxiliary was a decided success. The exceptionally large attendance was further augmented by a number of Rover Scouts from Peterborough.

Mrs. Stanley Burger was convener for the event and Kenneth Jakins acted as MC. He was assisted by Chester Lilley.

Prizes were won as follows: birthday dance, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kennedy; spot dance, Betty Lou Leonard and Jack McCracken; costume prize, Art Rose and Mrs. T. Payton; anniversary dance, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hatton; dance for oldest couple, Police Chief Price Morris and Mrs. Morris; door prize, Ronald Davidson.

The committee in charge of arrangements was grateful to Perce Archer who installed a P.A. system and to many others who helped make the evening so successful. Music was supplied by the Jimmy Jones orchestra.

No One Interested In Buying Two Clubs

HAMILTON (CP)—Two hockey clubs are still up for sale here but franchise owner Ken Soble says "no one seems to be interested."

Hamilton's senior A tigers and the junior A Cubs were put up on the auction block last week for a sale price of approximately $5,000 each.

"But it's just as if nothing had happened," Soble said Monday. A few enquiries had been made about the senior team but none regarding the Cubs.

Soble said a purchaser will need at least $50,000 for operating expenses, including salaries, plus an assured 2,000 to 3,000 persons at every game to break even at the end of the season.

Scouts Hold Course For Patrol Leaders

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — About 30 Boy Scouts from Campbellford, Stirling and Havelock attended the Bronze Arrowhead course in Campbellford on Saturday and Sunday.

The course is a patrol leaders' training course. The boys attended lectures on Saturday. On Sunday they attended a church parade, further lectures, and later a hike to Crow Bay, north-east of the town, where they learned to put into practice the points learned in their lectures. The course included fire by friction, signals and other crafts.

The gym at Campbellford High School was headquarters for the boys. On Saturday night they enjoyed movies and a program put on by the various patrols.

Points were given for competition over the weekend. The wolf patrol, made up of members from the three troops attending, walked off with top honors.

Leaders and instructors for the course were Jack Connor, Douglas Carewell and Keith Sutton of Campbellford and Frank Harding, Ralph Andrews and Joe Irish of Stirling.

Edmonton's Oil Kings Considered Best In West

By GRAHAM TROTTER

EDMONTON (CP)—Edmonton's "go-go" Oil Kings are chafing at the bit, waiting for the East to decide their opposition in the Memorial Cup junior hockey final—either St. Catharines TeePees or Quebec Frontenacs.

But the two-week wait is nothing new to the Edmonton club, whose habit of winning playoff series in minimum games has resulted in three previous layoffs this year varying from eight days to two weeks.

Add this trait to Oil Kings' record of 62 wins in 67 league, playoff and exhibition games this season and you see why many observers rate them the West's strongest contender since 1948, the last year the West won the cup.

They lost only one of 19 games in four playoff series, a 2-1 setback from Fort William Canadiens in the western final, snapping their win streak at 35 games, believed a Canadian record.

BOUNCED BACK

Proving they bounce back hard, Oil Kings won the next game 8-0 on Fort William ice.

A relatively "big" junior club, the 18 Oil Kings average 182 pounds but their lone 200-pounder is a sparingly-used rookie defenceman. The average age is 18, making the Edmonton club one of the youngest Memorial Cup finalists. They have only three 20-year-olds. All but two players are Edmonton and district products.

Goalie Al Jacobson, in his fourth junior year, gives Oil Kings good, steady goaling. The defence is a little shy on experience but closes the gap with desire and hard checking. Edmonton's two top forward lines are considered a match for anything in the East.

DOWN THE MIDDLE

Their main strength lies down the middle in centres Norm Ullman and Jerry Melnyk. Ullman, 18-year-old pivot, specializes in digging pucks out of corners for his wings.

Ullman won the WJHL scoring championship the last two seasons and runner-up this year was Melnyk, 19-year-old dipsey-doodling playmaker highly regarded by Oil Kings' parent Detroit Red Wings.

In 55 league and playoff games, Ullman scored 159 points, including 75 goals. This compares with the 59-game regular season record of 161 points, including 68 goals, compiled by St. Catharines' Brian Cullen, considered the East's hottest pro prospect. In his 55 games, Melnyk, a three-year man, had 55 goals while scoring 138 points.

"Grandmother's recipe paid for our kitchen!"

"Look delicious, don't they? They're my Grandmother's Southern Pecan cookies. You'll never believe this recipe paid for our kitchen . . .

"You see, a few years ago I baked several batches of these cookies for our church bazaar. A lot of people liked them so well, they made inquiries as to who made them. I began to get a special order or two . . . then a few more, until nowadays I bake as many as forty dozen cookies a week. Tom . . . he's my hubby . . . delivers them in the evenings.

"Well, we were really surprised at the money we were earning. So we decided to see if we could save enough to completely modernize our kitchen. Every week we added the cookie money to our joint savings account at The Dominion Bank. What a difference those few extra dollars made!

French-Canada Not Really Isolationist

OTTAWA (CP)—A Montreal English-language member of Parliament said Monday few Canadians realize what is in the minds and hearts of most French-Canadians in Quebec.

William Hamilton (PC—Montreal Notre-Dame-de-Grace) said in the Commons that French-language Canadians in Quebec are not isolationists and do not want to impose their ideas on other Canadians.

He made the observations as he urged the government to solve its problems with Quebec with an understanding of the peculiarities of the province.

There was a time when the majority of the people of Quebec opposed Canada's entry into foreign wars. Many catastrophes occurred as a result of that feeling.

NO LONGER FIGHTING WORD

Referring to conscription, which has long been a controversial issue in Quebec, he said:

"Just recently I read in the newspaper that the question of conscription, so long almost a fighting word in that province, was no longer a fighting word; that the people of Quebec were coming more and more to be prepared to play their part, as they have always done when the glove was actually down, in all phases of international affairs."

He said his travels across Canada have shown that Canadians in other provinces believe that French language Canadians want to live completely unto themselves.

Mr. Hamilton said the French-language people of Quebec do not want to impose their culture, religion or way of life on other parts of Canada. They want to live in amity with everyone and did not want to be set aside and treated as a region which was not a part of the rest of Canada.

Mrs. William Purdy

HAVELOCK (ENS)—The funeral took place today of Mrs. Lillia Victoria Purdy, 83, widow of the late William R. Purdy.

The service was held at the home of Gordon Hartin, Havelock, and was conducted by the Rev. Crawford of Marmora United church. Burial was in Maple Grove cemetery.

Pallbearers were Walter Van Steenburgh, A. Allen, Peter Deshane, Harry Bowen, Edward Bowen and James Barrons.

Mrs. Purdy's death, Sunday, followed an illness of about nine months. She was born in Alnwick township, daughter of the late John Johnson and Harriet Smith.

When she was six years old she moved with her parents to Belmont township, settling on what is known as the Smith homestead just east of Havelock.

In 1902 she married William R. Purdy and took up residence in the Cordova Mines vicinity where she lived until her death. Mr. Purdy died in 1941.

Surviving are a son Carl; four sisters, Mrs. Edward McMillan, Toronto; Mrs. Alex Watson, Havelock; Mrs. Hugh Stecker, Mrs. Edward Guielbault of Sault Ste Marie, Ont.; three brothers, Hiram Johnson of Windsor, Peter Johnson of Peterborough and Stanley Johnson of Port McNichol.

No Evidence

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. David P. Boyd, leading heart and lung surgeon at the Lahey clinic in Boston, said Monday there is no conclusive evidence that cigaret smoking causes lung cancer. He was speaking to some 1,000 chest surgeons attending the three-day meeting of the American Association for Thoracic surgery.

Resale Price Maintenance Exploitation, Retailers Told

TORONTO (CP)—Madame H. E. Vautelet of Montreal said today that resale price maintenance is an example of "visible and cynical exploitation" of consumers.

She was referring, in an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Retail Federation, to the former practice, now banned in Canada, by which manufacturers suggested the price at which their products should be sold by retailers.

Madame Vautelet, president of the Canadian Association of Consumers, said the subject of resale price maintenance should be closed by now, but continuing efforts "to get a new hearing and to sell back the system to the public," is keeping it alive.

"The refusal to accept a law because it deprives a small group of price-controlling privileges, indicated by the continuing campaign to discredit it, and the very partial truths presented the consuming public, is disillusioning.

"We in CAC are worried, not because we fear this campaign can win, but because it may force us to give the facts from Hansard, from trade journals, from reports of government commissioners to consumers; facts that show how thoroughly resale price maintenance exploited consumers, how full and more than fair were the three hearings in three years given those who defend the system and who now plead that government decision was hasty; and what uses, openly stated in various trade journals, was made of the system in the past."

INFORMATIVE LABELLING

Madame Vautelet also asked, especially in fields like textiles, "for plain knowledge of what we buy," and stated that CAC is urging standardized sizes in garments and informative labelling.

"As things stand today, a mother cannot buy by size for her children without dragging them to the store to try everything on.

"She doesn't know what the various trade name of yard-goods mean in the way of performance and value. Even you (the retailer) cannot tell her which fabric will shrink; which one must be dry-cleaned. Material may be inflammable and may kill her child, but has a woman any way of knowing it?"

"With many new fibres on the market and the wondrous claims being made for them, much deception of consumers is being practised, whether intentionally or not."

Man Stabbed 7 Times Knife Used In Brawl

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Fred Crabbe, 21, was taken to hospital with seven jack-knife wounds in his arms, legs, chest and back following a brawl Monday. Hospital authorities said he is in fair condition. George Popov, 29, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., charged with the stabbing, was remanded for a week when he appeared later in court.

Colonel To Command At Fort Churchill

OTTAWA (CP) — Col. J. M. Houghton, 37, of Brockville and Kingston, will take over command of Fort Churchill, Man., in July, the army announced Monday.

Col. Houghton, now attending the National Defence College at Kingston, will succeed Col. H. A. Millen, 42, of Ottawa as commandant of the sub-Arctic proving establishment. A new appointment for Col. Millen is to be announced later.

File Atomic Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two residents of San Bernardino, Calif., Monday filed in federal court a joint $200,000 damage suit against the federal government, charging that they suffered injuries from atomic dust generated in tests at Yucca Flats, Nev., last year. They were Elma Mackelprend and Dewey A. Hortt.

CCF Member Appalled At Many Govt. Publications

OTTAWA (CP)—A member of Parliament said Monday he tosses between 25 and 30 government publications into his wastepaper basket every week.

Ross Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw Lake Centre) said in the Commons he is appalled at some of the publications distributed by the government. Many pamphlets, bulletins and other publications were of little value to taxpayers and millions of dollars could be saved if they were not printed.

He complained of several publications listed in the annual catalogue of the Queen's Printer. They included "The Cruising Speed of Gold Fish in Relation to Water Temperature," "Land Snails from the Canadian Rockies," and "Dinosaur Tracks from Peace River."

State Secretary Pickersgill said the publications are reprints of short articles in publications already in print. They were issued in pamphlet form to give the Queen's Printer a little extra revenue.

Mr. Pickersgill also asked Mr. Thatcher to forward to him all publications he received in the next month which he would consign to his wastepaper basket.

Mr. Thatcher said he would do so provided all publications of the Queen's Printer for the past year were assembled in the railway Buildings. Members could examine the publications and decide whether money was being wasted.

Mr. Pickersgill did not reply to Mr. Thatcher's offer.

2 Minesweepers Commissioned Canadian Navy

VICTORIA (CP)—The two newest ships in Canada's navy were commissioned at HMC Dockyard, Esquimalt, Monday.

They are the wooden-and-aluminum minesweepers Comox and James Bay.

Both were built by Victoria Shipyards. The ships form the nucleus of the second Canadian minesweeping squadron. The first squadron is based at Halifax.

The Esquimalt squadron is under the command of Cmdr. James V. Steel of Ottawa in HMCS Comox. The James Bay is in command of Lt.-Cmdr. G. R. Smith of Guelph. As additional minesweepers are received from the builders and commissioned, they will be added to the strength of both west and east coast squadrons.

Present at Monday's ceremony was Rear-Admiral Hibbard, flag officer, Pacific command.

Lt.-Cmdr. Smith, born in Detroit, joined the Canadian Navy as an ordinary seaman in 1941. He served in the minesweeper Georgian and at the Camperdown signal station, Halifax. He was promoted to sub-lieutenant in 1943 and served at various bases and in depot ships for the remainder of the Second World War.

Since the war, he has served as executive officer of the escort vessel St. Boniface, staff officer at HMCS Cabot, St. John's Nfld., and executive officer of the training frigate Antigonish.

Gov't Urged Levy Profit Tax

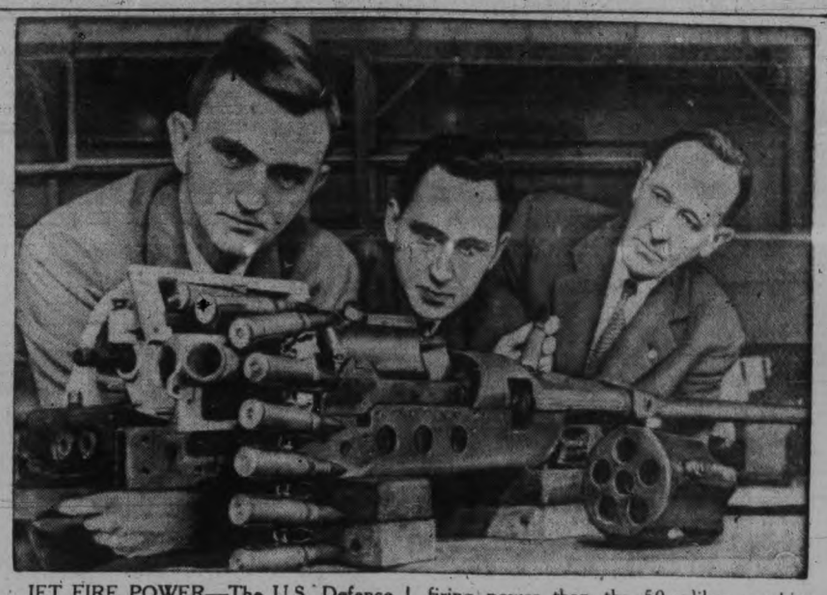
OTTAWA (CP) — Two Progressive Conservatives Monday urged the government to reconsider a decision to levy taxes on profits of mutual insurance companies which do not operate in the life insurance field.

Robert Perron, Dorchester, said 300 fire insurance companies the tax would be harmful to some which operate locally in rural Quebec. These co-operatives did not operate at a profit and any surplus went into the reserve funds at the end of the year.

Harry O. White, Middlesex East, said rural mutual fire insurance companies have never made a profit. The government would collect only about $120,000 a year through the tax, which might put some of the companies out of business.

Girl Found

TORONTO (CP)—A six-year-old girl, Muriel McDavid, who became the object of a police hunt after she went for an auto ride with a stranger, was found Monday 90 minutes after she disappeared. Police said she was unhurt. Reports of children in the same district being bothered by a motorist had been received during the last few weeks, police said.



JET FIRE POWER—The U.S. Defence Department has lifted secrecy on a jet aircraft cannon that fires faster than any gun ever before used by the U.S. armed forces. Called the "Gun, Automatic, 20 MM, M39," it will fire 20-mm. explosive shells or 60-calibre bullets. It is said to have a greater firing power than the 50-calibre machine gun, which fires 1,200 rounds a minute, but the actual rate of fire is still classified. Above are the three Detroit, Mich., engineers who developed the gun. Left to right: Joseph L. Johnson, Robert Lesman and Anders G. Patterson.

Political Unity More Likely

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) European unification is more likely on the political than the military level, Dr. Adolf Sturmthal, a visiting professor at Cornell University, Monday told a group of Canadian trade unionists. Dr. Sturmthal was addressing an international affairs seminar conducted by the Canadian Congress of Labor.

The seminar is closed to the press but the CCL issued a statement covering the address.

An Austrian, Dr. Sturmthal evaded the Nazis by escaping to the United States. Since the war he has been a frequent visitor to Germany.

German participation is essential to a European Defence Community, he said; but there was opposition within the country because provision was not made for equal status with other nations or representation on NATO.

Named Counsellors Of Red Cross Society

TORONTO (CP)—Three prominent Canadians were named Monday as honorary counsellors of the Canadian Red Cross Society, the highest honor awarded by the organization.

Harold H. Leather of Hamilton, Hon. Leopold Macaulay and John T. Phair, of Toronto, were honored and commended for their work in the national field at the annual meeting of the central council.

Australian Woman Denied Entrance

CALGARY (CP) — Mrs. Jessie Alice Wilson, an Australian woman denied entrance into Canada by Canadian immigration authorities at Vancouver because she was a tuberculosis suspect, has been given a clean bill of health in Australia, it was reported Monday.

Mrs. Wilson spent her savings for passage last year to Calgary, where she was to live with her son, Russ, but was sent home to Sydney after a two-day stay here.

Mr. Wilson said Monday he has received from his mother a letter saying the Anti-Tuberculosis Association of Australia has found her free of the disease. He said she indicated that she still hopes to come to Canada, and will make another attempt at entrance as soon as she has saved up enough money.

"Careful, Pauline!"

Of course no one would dream of climbing a telephone pole without being especially careful. Yet every time you climb a shaky ladder or stand on a rickety chair you may not realize what a big chance you're taking. Actually more people have accidents right at home than anywhere else.

By avoiding accidents you save more than suffering and worry — you save money, too!

In a family the size of ours (we're now over 31,000), these savings are important. That's why our employees are not only thoroughly trained to use safety tools and methods, but continually reminded to take every precaution to avoid injury to themselves and others.

It's another way we help keep costs down so we can provide you with the best possible telephone service at the lowest possible cost.

How to prevent home accidents is shown in "Home Safe Home", a folder available free from the Health Department of your Provincial Government or from the Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa.

WENT FISHING, CAUGHT AN ALLIGATOR—That's the fish story that Brian McMullen of Wexford, Ont., is telling, only he has the four-foot long alligator to prove it. On his way home from trout fishing (he didn't catch any) Brian spotted the reptile in the glow of his headlights on a street in north Toronto. He stopped the car and grabbed the little monster by the tail. He is keeping the alligator penned up in his fruit cellar hoping the owner will come and claim the "little pet". "We can't afford to feed it," said Mrs. McMullen. (Federal Newsphoto)

Meets Alligator On Highway, Has Problem

WEXFORD, Ont. (CP) — Man with an alligator problem is carpenter Brian McMullen. He says he finds it uncomfortable to housekeep for the 30-pound, four-foot reptile which showed up in his headlights on Sunday.

Returning from a fishing trip to Credit river—with no fish—he spotted the animal running diagonally across the road.

Brian reacted by stopping his truck, causing a temporary highway block while he grabbed the alligator by its tail. It turned on him, snapping viciously, but he held on while someone came along with a rope. Safely harnessed, the reptile was lifted into McMullen's truck and now broods in a dark corner of his fruit cellar.

A Royal Ontario Museum official said the alligator must be someone's pet as it cannot survive long outside a temperature of 75 degrees.

Brian hopes the owner will show up.

"I can't afford to feed it," he said.

Troops Revolt In Paraguay

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A Paraguayan radio broadcast said today a cavalry division has revolted against Paraguay's government. The broadcast said other troops and police had rallied to the defence of the administration.

The broadcast was made by Radio Teleco of Asuncion, the capital.

Other advices reached here from Asuncion said rioting had broken out in the city and the government had declared a state of siege throughout the country.

CHAVES IS PRESIDENT

Paraguayan President Federico Chaves, 74, was inaugurated last Aug. 15 for a five-year term. He previously served almost four years of the unexpired term of ousted president Molas Lopez.

Recent political calm had contrasted sharply with the preceding 20-month period which saw four presidents come and go.

Not Excited At 3 Million, Just Doesn't Like To Work

TORONTO (CP)—Patrick Ballentine, 28-year-old advertising man who says he doesn't like work, is not excited at becoming a triple millionaire.

Under the estate of his late west coast lumber magnate father, Edward Blake Ballentine, he inherits $3,000,000. But apart from the possibility of moving to Vancouver "nothing's any different than it was" he said today in an interview.

He and his wife, formerly Helen Belfry, of Toronto, are selling their bungalow here but the future, as Pat sees it, is rather vague.

"I may open a public relations firm in Vancouver," he said, "but I don't work. Frankly, I don't believe in it."

In that respect, Mr. Ballentine is unlike his father who, he says, was born in Hamilton and left for Vancouver in 1922 where he became one of the original directors of the H. R. MacMillan Export Co.,—now MacMillan and Bloedel, Ltd.—largest lumber firm in the Commonwealth.

The new millionaire was born in Toronto, and served 2½ years as a naval officer.

Four years ago he came to Toronto as an advertising executive in a company of which his father was president and later admitted he spent less time at his desk than any other ad man in the city.

Until now, he has been prohibited from working in his father's lumber company because of a family clause.

He is principal heir to his father's $3,378,148 estate and will receive nearly all the money after government succession duties have been subtracted.

Explosion Partially Wrecks Toronto Plant

TORONTO (CP)—Edmund Wozniak, 28, was taken to hospital today in "grave" condition after an explosion at the Canada Metals Limited plant in Toronto showered the upper part of his body with flaming nitrate. The blast partially wrecked the plant.

Police said the explosion was caused when Wozniak, a workman, threw the wrong type of flux into a 10-ton aluminum smelter.

Several other men escaped serious injury. The blast ripped a hole in the roof and in one wall of the building.

Russia Has New Rocket

NEW YORK (CP)—A powerful new Russian rocket, weighing only as much as two automobiles, may soon be capable of launching into space an artificial satellite weighing a ton, an American astronomy-physicist said Tuesday night.

Speaking during the third annual symposium on space travel at Hayden planetarium, George Sutton, supervisor of the aerophysics department of North American Aviation, Inc., said the new rocket engine, now being developed, has a thrust equal to 53 conventional turbojet engines used in fighter aircraft. And five times as much as the German V-2.

Sutton said the Russians also plan to use the engine in developing a winged form of the V-2, which could carry an atomic warhead 500 to 1,000 miles in a half-hour. Used as a two-stage missile, the engine would have a range of 1,865, capable of reaching any point in Europe within 15 minutes.

RCMP Break Up Illicit Liquor Ring

OAKVILLE (CP)—RCMP went into action Tuesday against what they called the first large illicit liquor ring to operate in Ontario since the war.

Simultaneous raids were made on three Oakville homes and a farm at Thornton, near Barrie, early Tuesday, resulting in four arrests and the seizure of a semi-commercial 45-gallon still which police said was capable of turning out "a lot of liquor."

The still was found on a Thornton farm, said police, who arrested Joseph Miller as the operator.

In Oakville, police seized six gallons of illicit liquor and arrested three town residents on possession charges.

Protests Unemployment

100 Workers Picket Parliament Building

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament Hill's entre Block today was picketed by a placard - carrying delegation calling on the federal government for action against unemployment.

About 100 workers marched back and forth across the main entrance to the Parliament building while leaders sought interviews with Prime Minister St. Laurent, cabinet ministers and heads of opposition groups.

They were from southern Ontario and the hard-rock mining area around Sudbury. Leaders said they represented the Sudbury and District Unemployed Association and a southern Ontario association of unemployed unions in Hamilton, Toronto, Niagara Falls, St. Catharines, Port Colborne and Welland.

The groups motored here overnight, carrying briefs from each of the areas, to be presented to Commons members.

URGED CANUCK SEAWAY

The marchers carried banners and placards with such slogans as "Expand the Canadian steel industry," "Save the textile industry," "Build a Canadian St. Lawrence seaway," "Expand world trade" and "A publicly-owned trans-Canada pipeline."

A couple of RCMP constables watched the marchers, without interfering. A handful of spectators looked on.

The southern Ontario brief said it is becoming increasingly clear that Canada is experiencing the beginning of a depression.

It said the government should immediately begin to implement any national works projects it has in mind. It mentioned the St. Lawrence seaway and a publicly-owned natural gas pipeline from Alberta to the east.

ASK TRADE POLICY SWITCH

Trade policies should be changed, it said, to encourage the most extensive trade arrangements with all countries willing to exchange products on a mutually-advantageous basis. The official currencies of the countries involved should be accepted.

Other proposals:

1. Federal-provincial agreements for low-rental of low-cost housing.
2. Larger unemployment insurance benefits and other insurance improvements.
3. A moratorium on home mortgages for unemployed.
4. Temporary discontinuance of immigration.
5. Free medical and dental care for the families of unemployed.

The suggestions in the Sudbury brief were substantially the same.

Asia Security Pact Progressing President Says

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Eisenhower said today the proposed southeast Asia security pact now is "in process of formation."

In a statement read to his weekly press conference, the president announced that the countries of the Indo-China area now are "thinking in constructive terms, which include the indispensable concept of collective security."

"Progress in this matter has been considered and I am convinced that further progress will continue to be made."

The president said the fact that a southeast Asia security arrangement "is in process of formation could have an important bearing upon what happens at Geneva during the Indo-China phase of the conference."

BACKS DULLES FULLY

Eisenhower declared his unqualified support for State Secretary Dulles and for Dulles' efforts to form a united front against communism in southeast Asia.

The press conference followed a meeting between Eisenhower and Dulles after which the secretary said he does not know of any basis for the idea that he suffered a diplomatic defeat at the Geneva conference.

In answer to a question whether he thought the Genva conference on Asian peace problems had been a major defeat for American policy, Eisenhower replied crisply that no one can count a battle lost while it is still going on.

The secretary returned Tuesday night from the Geneva sessions and reported to Eisenhower today on his efforts there to find peace for Asia and a way to save Indo-China from Communist conquest.

DULLES CHUCKLES

A reporter told Dulles the idea had been advanced that he suffered a "major diplomatic defeat" in the meetings with the Soviet and Chinese Communist leaders at Geneva.

His reply was that "I don't understand what's happened there (at Geneva) which is alleged to constitute the defeat."

Dulles seemed in good spirits and was chuckling as he gave his reply.

Begin Debate On Seaway 'Now Or Never'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public opinion "is overwhelmingly in favor" of the proposed St. Lawrence seaway, Representative George Dondero (Rep. Mich.) told the House of Representatives today as it neared a decision on the long-argued international project.

Dondero, in a prepared speech, said an amendment proposed by Representative Charles Brownson (Rep. Ind.) would be "completely contrary" to the established policy of the treasury and the budget bureau. The Brownson amendment would require that bonds to finance the 27-foot-deep waterway be sold to the public instead of to the treasury.

"It (the amendment) has no precedent in financing government operations," Dondero said.

"It is no secret that the purpose of the amendment is to kill the bill by making it impossible to finance our participation with Canada."

Dondero said engineers in both the U.S. and Canada have estimated that the seaway cost, through tolls on shipping, can be liquidated in 50 years or less.

SUPPORTERS CONFIDENT

Seaway forces were confident as the House opened debate on the first seaway bill to reach its floor in nearly 20 years. The bill, already passed by the Senate, would authorize U. S. participation with Canada in building the Atlantic-to-Great Lakes channel.

A top Republican member of the House, who declined use of his name, said "indications are that the bill will pass by a substantial margin."

House leaders have called for a vote on the proposal Thursday, and the tally will amount to a "now or never" decision as far as U.S. participation is concerned. Canada has officially stated that she will build the seaway by herself on the Canadian side of the St. Lawrence if the U.S. legislation fails in Congress this year.

NO HANDOUT

Representative Clarence Kilburn, a Republican from Glovers ville in northern New York state, near where the U.S. portion of the seaway would be built, asserted in a prepared speech that the project is not "another handout or give-away program."

BEGIN DEBATE (Continued on Page 2)

Remand Woman In Arson Case

HAMILTON (CP)—Charged with threatening, Helen Leonard, 42, appeared before Magistrate Beamer W. Hopkins this morning and was remanded one week for mental examination.

The charge was laid following investigation of two mysterious fires which broke out Sunday morning in a children's nursing home on Douglas St. The charge is that on several occasions the accused woman threatened the life of Alvin Clark Badder and threatened to put Bader and his daughter, Grace Mitchell, out of the nursery business.

Inspector George Halliday of the Ontario fire marshal's office said today the investigation is "far from over."

RAGS PILED ON STAIRS

When the first fire broke out Sunday, 17 children and four adults were removed from the building. Firemen discovered rags had been piled at the bottom of a stairs.

Alderman Ada Pritchard, chairman of the special housing committee set up by city council recently, has called a special meeting of the committee for Thursday afternoon as an aftermath of the fire.

"The fact that there were 17 children being cared for at the boarding home has pointed up the urgent need for low rental housing in Hamilton," said Alderman Pritchard today.

Rebels Only 437 Yards From Post

Vietminh Extends Western Trenches In Deep Mud

LONDON (AP) — Peiping radio declared today that Vietminh troops have smashed to within 400 metres, (437 yards) of the command post in besieged Dien Bien Phu.

The French estimate of the closest approach is 600 yards.

The Communist-led rebels also claimed 10,000 Viet Namese troops fighting alongside the French in Indo-China had surrendered to Ho Chi Minh's forces.

Peiping broadcast statements published by newspapers within Ho's area which contended the reported defections were due to the Vietminh's land reform policy and Ho's battle victories.

Vietminh troops at Dien Bien Phu today used bad weather as a cover to burrow trenches through muddy soil in preparation for a new assault against the heart of the French Union's northwest Indo-China fortress.

For the third successive day clouds hampered French air attacks against the Communist rebels and prevented many planes from dropping munitions, food and ammunition to the defenders.

Some supplies reached the shrinking fortress, but the rainy season is threatening to cut Dien Bien Phu off from the parachuted supplies that have sustained it since the battle began 54 days ago.

A French high command spokesman said Brig.-Gen. Christian de Castries' forces now are encamped in a giant mudbath.

AWAIT ATTACK IN MUD

Tough French paratroopers and Foreign Legionnaires are ankle-deep in the oozing mud awaiting the next rebel attack following the Vietminh capture of a western outpost Tuesday.

Vietminh troops spent the night extending their trenches on the western flank, where they now are only 600 yards from French command headquarters. They also maintained pressure on the eastern perimeter.

Reports Tuesday night said there had been some clashes in the tangle of trenches. French and Vietminh suicide raiders stalked each other with knives.

De Castries asked his wife by radio to send him a pair of rubber boots by parachute.

Fear 50 Dead In Mine Blast

RIBOLLA, Italy (Reuters) — Rescue officials here today feared 50 miners and firemen dead in one of the greatest mine disasters in Italian history.

Black-shawled mothers and wives gathered again today at the entrance to a Ribolla coal mine, hoping desperately that some 30 miners trapped 800 feet below were still alive.

An explosion seared the shaft Tuesday and brought tons of rock down in a cave-in.

Wails of grief went up from the waiting relatives as six more bodies were hauled to the surface, bringing the known death toll to 19. Twenty injured men have been rescued during 24 hours of frantic digging by rescue workers.

So far only 10 men of those originally trapped have been brought to the surface unhurt.

Three Young Boys Die In House Fire

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Three young boys were killed and their parents critically burned today in a fire that destroyed their home.

The Jesse Keel home was ablaze when a passing truck driver discovered the fire and sounded an alarm about 3 a. m. Authorities were unable to determine how it started.

Killed were Norman Keel, 14, and his two brothers, Douglas, 12, and Kenneth, 10. Jesse Keel, 43, the father, and Jean, 43, the mother, are in Pontiac General Hospital suffering from critical burns and shock.

The unidentified truck driver said Keel had attempted to reach the children with a ladder.

Commissioner Ill

OTTAWA (CP) — William J. Callaghan, commissioner of tariffs, is "gravely ill," hospital authorities reported today. The 61-year-old finance department official took a weak turn at his office last Monday and was rushed to hospital. His condition worsened overnight.

Report Partition Idea Favored By Red Leaders

By EDDY GILMORE

GENEVA (AP)—Western sources said today they have received information indicating that the Communists may favor creation of coalition rule in Indo-China rather than partition.

No high-level conversations between East and West have been held on the form of an eventual Indo-Chinese settlement, they said, but an impression of the Red position was obtained through other contacts.

This estimate of the Communist plans came during a two-day recess of the plenary meetings of the Far East conference here.

A Western informant said the Communist line on Indo-China at the outset of the conference seemed to be: "Why can't there be a settlement like the armistice in Korea?" This indicated the Communists wanted to partition Indo-China—at least the French Associated state of Viet Nam and perhaps its sister states, Cambodia and Laos.

Now, the informant said, they seem to favor a political rather than a territorial settlement.

INTERPRETATION WRONG

Meanwhile, it was learned on good authority that President Eisenhower sent a letter to State Secretary Dulles here last weekend saying he was disturbed over European press interpretation of one of the American president's press conference statements last Thursday.

The president expressed hope at that time that some kind of "modus vivendi" for Indo-China could be worked out at Geneva. The interpretation of many West European papers was that he had failed to support Dulles' policy of toughness and had weakened the French position.

The president is understood to have stated that this was not the case at all. Copies of his letter were given the French and British foreign ministers.

U.S. Loses Prestige In McCarthy Row

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today the United States has suffered a loss of international prestige as a result of the row between Senator Joseph McCarthy and the army.

His assertion was made at a press conference at which Eisenhower also issued a formal statement declaring his unqualified support for State Secretary Dulles and for Dulles' efforts to form a united front against communism in southeast Asia.

The president told newspaper men he knows of nothing which would cause him to lose confidence in Army Secretary Robert Stevens so far as administration of the army department's business is concerned.

Nearly 3 Inches Snow At Sudbury

SUDBURY (CP)—Heaviest May snowfall in 25 years was recorded here today by the Dominion weather office. It totalled 2½ inches at 8:30 a. m. and at mid-morning was still falling. There had been a trace Tuesday.

In May, 1929, 6.2 inches of snow fell.

The overnight low here was 31 degrees.

Enforce 50 MPH Speed Limit On Highways

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario provincial police today began an extensive anti - speeder campaign aimed at cutting the Ontario traffic death toll which last year reached an all-time high.

Deputy commissioner William H. Lougheed said Ontario's 50-mile an hour limit will be "strictly enforced," on highways, including super highways where motorists have been travelling at speeds as high as "100 miles an hour."

Provincial police are patrolling the Queen Elizabeth way between Toronto and Burlington, the Barrie highway and highways 2 and 5.

BEING WARNED

Motorists violating the 50-mile limit now are being warned only.

Last year's death toll in the province was 1,082 an increase of 72 over 1952.

Highway patrols are going out earlier and with greater regularity. The campaign will be extended to other areas of the province where there is heavy traffic volume, the deputy commissioner said.

Order Towermen Watch 'Saucers'

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — Department of lands and forests towermen here have been told to watch the skies for flying saucers.

Flying Officer Bill Scott, in command of the ground observer corps at North Bay, instructed the men Tuesday to include "saucers" in their lists of airborne objects to be reported to the filter centre here.

He referred to the report made by a trapper north of Moosonee of strange objects flying at a height of 3,000 feet, which had been substantiated "by another level-headed observer."

"Reports of flying saucers are too accurate to be ignored," O. Scott said.

He conferred 4 GOC wings on foresters, rangers and towermen.

Living Costs Rise Fraction

OTTAWA (CP) — Scattered increases in living costs pushed the consumer price index up by one-tenth of a point during March to 115.6 from 115.5. It was the first rise in six months.

Food prices continued to decline and shelter costs were unchanged. But there were increases in the cost of clothing, household operations and a group of other items, including health and personal care and postal rates.

The boost in the consumer price index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, followed a February decline of one-fifth of a point. It was the first rise since the half-point jump last September.

3 Teen-Age Girls Committed For Trial

WINDSOR (CP)—Three Windsor girls were committed for trial in higher court Tuesday on charges of housebreaking and theft and robbery with violence.

Jean Ann Stewart, 19, Joyce Dupuis, 17, and Cora Bayliss, 16, will face trial before county court. Only Dupuis and Stewart will face the first charge.

Bella Bechard of Windsor said she returned home on the morning of April 3 to find her premises ransacked and clothing, luggage and jewellery missing. Police said they found the goods in the girls' possession.

Mrs. Hilda Blackmore and Mary Hedwig, both of Windsor, said they were beaten up by the three girls and their purses stolen.

Didn't Intend Canada Join Asia Pact—Pearson

By ALAN HARVEY

GENEVA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said today that when he wrote his speech for the Geneva conference he had not had in mind the specific possibility that Canada might joint the projected southeast Asia security pact.

He made this comment when asked about the significance of the statement in his speech Tuesday that failure of the Far East conference here might result in further collective security measures by the Western powers. This would apply particularly in respect to Indo-China.

At the end of his speech, he referred to the recent meeting of Asian Commonwealth prime ministers at Colombo, Ceylon.

"I would like," Pearson said, "to call attention to the importance attached by these Asian leaders to the role of the United Nations in furthering the peaceful purposes of this conference, particularly in respect of Indo-China.

"If these peaceful purposes are not achieved by a just honorable and negotiated settlement, the consequences will be bad, and probably far-reaching.

MAY HARDEN DIVISION

"Failure here may well necessitate further collective consideration by those who, as a result of such failure, will feel increasingly threatened, of further ways and means to meet that threat. This, in its turn, may harden and make more dangerous the great and tragic division in the world which now exists.

"The reward for success at Geneva will be great in terms of peaceful progress; but the penalty of failure may be even greater in terms of increasing tensions and the risk of a war which would engulf and destroy us all."

Conference observers believe Pearson's warning of "further collective consideration" was designed to emphasize Canada's solidarity with the other Western powers in the event of failure of the conference.

CONFERENCE RECESSES

The conference recessed until Friday following Pearson's speech, giving the delegates a chance to hold private consultations and clarify their positions.

The Associated Press reported today that Western diplomats are ready to break off the Korea phase of the conference once they are sure the Communists will not accept elections supervised by the United Nations.

This would clear the way for the conference to turn to the Indo-China problem, which has largely taken the spotlight from the Korean discussions even though it has not yet come up on the conference floor.

C. W. Boorman Heads Assoc.

C. W. Boorman of Boorman's Beverages in Peterborough has been named president of the Canadian Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages. The selection was made at the recent annual conference of the association in Vancouver.

Mr. Boorman has been vice-president of the association and as past president of the Ontario association. He succeeds Ralph Streb of Saint John N.B.

Mr. Boorman has been further honored with publication of his picture on the cover of the current issue of the Canadian Beverage Review. This bi-monthly represents not only the carbonated drink industry, but is the journal for the brewing, wine-making and distilling industries as well.

In the Canadian Beverage Review's 24 years of publication, this marks the first time an individual has been honored with a cover portrait, according to William Freeman, editor of the publication.

More than 100 delegates were on hand in Vancouver to conduct panel discussions on the industry, hear of the "financially sound" state of the organization's treasury, learn of the Kitimat aluminum project and install a new executive. Delegates also decided to hold the 1955 conference at the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec City, the 1956 parley in Niagara Falls.

GOTTA MATCH, MAC?

Over the trout-fishing opening weekend two Peterborough men in a car were driving north of Harcourt in the Elephant Lake country. They came to a small corduroy bridge at the York river and stopped because two fishermen were lying across the narrow planked track, on their backs. The car horn did not disturb them and the driver got out. Fishing rods were jammed over the bridge railing, unattended. The fishermen slept on but the car owner wanted to pass. He shook one worthy who came groggily to his senses and asked in a rather thick voice for a "couplamatches." He couldn't have asked a person who was touchier on the subject of combining trout fishing and drinking for he was the regional forester, W. B. Greenwood, making a worried fire patrol by car on a very vulnerable weekend.—N.N.

Hint Violation Of Law Over Letter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator John L. McClellan (Dem. Ark.) questioned today whether "someone has violated the law" in connection with what Senator McCarthy calls a confidential FBI letter to United States army intelligence which the Wisconsin Republican senator injected into the McCarthy-army hearings Tuesday.

McCarthy, without explaining how he got it, produced a purported copy of the letter at the Senate investigations sub - committee's public televised hearings. He said the original is still in the army's files. Contents of the letter were not disclosed.

McCarthy said he didn't get his copy from the FBI, and later he told reporters "I got it from army sources." He declined to be more specific."

Senator Karl Mundt (Rep. S.D.), presiding at the inquiry, said he has no idea how a copy of the letter, dated some time in 1951 and addressed to Maj.-Gen. A. R. Bolling, who then was assistant chief of staff for army intelligence (G-2), might have come into McCarthy's possession. And he added: "I am sure we are not going to try to find out."

McClellan said in a separate interview:

"If this letter is a security matter, someone has violated the law. I wouldn't want it in my possession."

McClellan said "it might be of considerable interest" for army intelligence and the FBI to try to learn how any outsider could get a copy.

Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens, called back today for a 10th day of questioning concerning the bitter row, is under orders to report whether the original letter is in army files.

Ray H. Jenkins, the sub-committee's special counsel, has received orders to ask FBI director J. Edgar Hoover whether he would object to making public the letter. McCarthy, saying it bore Hoover's signature, termed the message "one of a series of letters from the FBI warning of the tremendous danger" of suspected Communists working in radar laboratories, written before Stevens took office.

But McCarthy declared it had been "ignored" by Stevens after he did take office in 1953, and said this bore a relation to his charge that Stevens sought to halt McCarthy's own searches for subversives.

A move Tuesday to short-cut the hearings to an early end was fruitless.

McCarthy told reporters he does not know how much longer he will question Stevens. He stuck to his charge that Joseph N. Welch, special counsel to Stevens and Adams, had "welched" on an agreement that McCarthy would take the witness chair as the next and probably the final witness. Welch termed that false.

Begin Debate

"Our Canadian neighbors have already spent more than we in developing the seaway and will now spend about $200,000,000 more."

Declaring that the seaway will produce benefits for the country as a whole, he said:

DOESN'T SHARE FEARS

"I do not share the fears of many of my good friends that their industries and ports will be ruined or greatly harmed by the seaway."

Several former opponents of the seaway in the House recently have said their views have changed on the project. The latest to do so was Representative Robert Secrest (Dem. Ohio), who fought the project in the 10 years preceeding the Second World War.

Secrest declared in a pre-debate interview:

"Unless we join in the project, my district and the whole Midwest will suffer."

SITUATION CHANGED

Secrest said that in the 1930s Britain and European countries could offer serious competition to the coal industry in his southeast Ohio district.

"Today, two new power plants and many new factories are using our coal at home which is far better for all of us. Furthermore, no European country has any coal to export."

Secrest listed several other arguments:

1. The U. S. needs to have a voice in setting toll rates for incoming ships. "Canada could set them so low that our east-to-west railroads would be ruined."

2. The U. S. needs to be certain of being able to use the seaway in case of war.

3. With more and more iron ore coming from Labrador, midwest steel industries would have to move to the ocean unless they have access to that ore at Great Lakes ports.

"DAMAGING BLOW"

In Albany, N. Y., a private taxpayers' group told congressmen today that construction of a St. Lawrence seaway would "strike a damaging blow at business and employment" in New York state.

In letters to every New York member of the U. S. House of Representatives, the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey, Inc., said jobs and commerce would be lost at the ports of New York City, Buffale and Albany if the seaway were built.

In New York City Tuesday, the New York Commerce and Industry Association urged the state delegation to Congress to vote against the measure in its present form.

Warns Negotiating Must Be More Flexible

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The British ambassador to the United States, Sir Roger Makins, Tuesday advised the United States not to regard negotiation with "your former adversary" as "almost equivalent to surrender or appeasement and therefore as something to be avoided."

In an address in Wisconsin entitled "The Purpose and Practice of Diplomacy," the ambassador did not refer specifically to the Chinese Communists, to the Indo-China problem or to the Geneva Far Eastern conference.

He did not refer to current press and congressional criticism of the endeavors of British diplomats to negotiate a settlement of the Indo-China problem before agreeing to join in the "united action" in Southeast Asia proposed by the United States.

HITS CRITICISM

But, whether by design or not, Sir Roger's remarks struck at the roots of much recent criticism and provided a defence of the basic principles of British policy at Geneva, sometimes in contrast to those of the United States.

First, Sir Roger said: "there is a tendency in this couhtry to regard negotiation, the act of sitting down with your former adversary, as almost equivalent to surrender or appeasement, and therefore as something to be avoided."

"You cannot expect to win at the conference table what you have not won, and are not prepared to try to win, by force of arms. But, equally, a willingness to negotiate does not imply any intention to give way, to surrender an essential interest."

Secondly, Sir Roger emphasized the importance of leaving the "execution" of foreign policy to the executive branch of a government after that policy had been decided upon with the approval of the legislature.

DEPLORES PUBLICITY

Thirdly, Sir Roger deplored the tendency of modern diplomacy for each party to a negotiation to make "for home consumption, a full public statement of its own position and demands at the outset."

He added: "This procedure is warmly applauded by all those who abhor what they have been taught to call 'secret diplomacy.' It often produces a series of splendid ringing sounds. It also makes it nearly impossible for any of the negotiators to do what they have met to do—namely, to negotiate.

"For negotiation implies the exercise of concession, of give and take, of adjustment; and the man who, in order to secure something of importance, is prepared to concede something of less importance, will be accused of having given something away. He will be lucky if his conduct is called by no worse name than appeasement."

Finally, Sir Roger emphasized the great difficulties of what he called "diplomacy in a gold fish bowl" and deplored the public "release of far too much information far too soon about matters which may well be at a most delicate stage of discussion."

Files Libel Suits Against 2 Papers

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Welfare Minister H. L. Pottle told the Newfoundland legislature Tuesday he is entering libel suits totalling $350,000 against two Newfoundland daily newspapers.

He told the House the suits are for $200,000 against the Evening Telegram, St. John's, and $150,000 against The Western Star, Corner Brook.

The suits arise out of reports of a speech by Mr. Pottle in the House in which he referred to conditions in a section of the province. He did not name the district in his speech.

Drew Supports Quebec Bid For Income Tax Deduction

OTTAWA (CP)—Quebec's bid for full deduction of its new 15-per-cent income tax from federal tax levies has gained the support of Opposition Leader Drew.

He said Tuesday in the Commons that Quebec's request should be granted this year and that a general federal-provincial conference should be called immediately to settle the broad problem of re-allocation of taxing powers before next year.

The Progressive Conservative leader, entering the closing stage of the budget debate, for the first time specifically supported Quebec's request for full deduction of the tax.

He said it would cost the federal government $25,000,000 less than a tax-rental agreement which it wanted Quebec to sign. It would mean no new cost to the other provinces and would allow them to begin discussions on the general problem of a new alignment of taxing fields for the federal and provincial governments.

The government has rejected Quebec's bid for full deduction for its new tax. Monday, Prime Minister St. Laurent turned down the proposal made earlier by Mr. Drew for an immediate federal-provincial conference but said the door is open for Premier Duplessis to discuss a solution.

AN UNHAPPY SPEECH

Mr. Drew said the prime minister's statement was a most unhappy speech in every way.

"In effect, it was a simple and emphatic statement that until the province of Quebec submits to terms imposed by this government, there will be no conference, although every province has been asking for a conference for a long time."

It was clear the federal government's door was open only if Premier Duplessis accepted an agreement similar to the tax-rental pacts signed by the other provinces.

Under those agreements, the provinces leased their right to collect personal and corporation income taxes and succession duties, in return for annual federal payments. The existing agreements expire in 1957.

Mr. Drew said the Quebec tax dispute is a costly and meaningless conflict.

The federal government had admitted the principle of deductibility and allowed a reduction of up to five per cent from federal taxes for provincial income taxes.

But acceptance of the principle that the federal government could dictate the amount of provincial income taxes would mean the end of the federal system.

"SUBSERVIENT COMMISSIONS"

"The provincial governments would be nothing more than subservient commissions carrying out the orders of this government.

"They would be rubber stamps for Ottawa. And whenever they needed more money they would have to come, cap in hand, as the premier of Quebec has been invited to do, through that door that is opened for such a clearly defined purpose."

When the provinces gave up their income tax fields in 1942 under the wartime tax agreements, the federal government had promised to restore them after the war. That promise included restoration of the agreement by which the federal government collected income tax for some of the provinces.

The promise was being ignored and the federal government was deliberately trying to bring as much as possible of the country's tax money under its control.

Hoover Denies Letter 'A True Copy'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A committee counsel today quoted FBI director J. Edgar Hoover as saying the letter produced Tuesday by Senator Joseph McCarthy, was not a true copy of one written by Hoover to the army on Jan. 26, 1951.

Robert A. Collier, a member of counsel for the Senate hearings into the McCarthy-army row, testified Hoover told him neither Hover nor the FBI ever sent the army a communication identical to the one brought out by McCarthy.

McCarthy said Tuesday the letter was from Hoover to Maj.-Gen. A. R. Bolling, then chief of army intelligence. The senator, questioning Army Secretary Robert Stevens, said the purported letter was one of a series of FBI warnings to the army about possible subversion at Ft. Monmouth, N.J.

McCarthy contended that the army had ignored the warnings until the McCarthy sub-committee started its investigation of alleged subversion at Monmouth.

ILLEGAL, COUNSEL HINTS

When McCarthy produced the purported letter marked "personal and confidential," army counsel Joseph N. Welch said McCarthy's possession of the paper appeared improper and perhaps illegal.

Ray Jenkins, special counsel for the Senate inquiry into the McCarthy-army controversy, was instructed to see whether Hoover could identify the letter and advise whether it should be made public.

Jenkins gave that assignment to Collier, who today recounted his conference with Hoover.

The letter raised a lot of questions—including one from Senator John McClellan (Dem. Ark.) as to whether "someone has violated the law."

Collier said Hoover told him:

"This letter produced yesterday is not a carbon copy or copy of any communication prepared or sent by the FBI to Gen. Bolling Jan. 26, 1951 or any other date."

SIMILAR TO FBI REPORT

However, Collier went on, Hoover said the language in the letter produced by McCarthy was similar in substance and in some parts as identical to the language to a 15-page FBI document on the same subject and dated Jan. 26, 1951.

He said Hoover felt that the FBI memorandum should not be made public without permission of Attorney-General Herbert Brownell.

Press Council Censures News Editor

LONDON (Reuters)—The British Press Council today censured a tabloid newspaper editor who allowed a movie review in his paper to be altered without the writer's consent.

The press council, voluntary guardian of journalistic standards, said it "cannot agree it was proper" for Herbert Gunn, editor of the Daily Sketch, "to have allowed his association with a film to affect his newspaper's judgment upon it."

The reference to Gunn's connection with the picture was not further elaborated.

The council was formed in July, 1952, following the recommendations of a royal commission on the press. Its 25 members are drawn from newspaper publishers, editors and employees' representatives.

COMPLETE SUPPORT

The council gave its complete support to the principle that "a critic has the right to insist that where his name is to be published with an article no alterations, apart from those of normal subediting or those which are necessary to protect a newspaper against legal action under common law, should be made without the sanction of the critic or his agent."

The council also said it did not support the view that if a critic's name is removed from his work, the editor is free to make use of that work in any way he pleases.

The case concerned an article by Tom Hopkinson which appeared in the Daily Sketch Jan. 22.

Six-Point Circuit For Bethany Church

BETHANY (ENS). — Several meetings have been held during the past few months to decide the new status of the Bethany United church circuit, necessitated by the closing of Ebenezer church, one of the outer charges.

On Monday evening more than 40 officials from the churches of Manvers Station, Pontypool, Janetville, Mount Horeb, Bethany and Yelverton met in Bethany. It was their unanimous decision that this become a six-point charge as of July 1 and be comprised of the churches mentioned above.

The Rev. A. E. Larke of Springville presided. The Rev. Gordon S. Maxwell of Trinity United church and Edward DeNure were the representatives of Peterborough Presbytery. The Lindsay Presbytery was represented by the Rev. S. Profitt of Beaverton, chairman of that presbytery, also Mr. W. Winters of Lindsay.

Each of these men explained the necessity for a change in the boundary lines of the circuit.

MINISTERS SCARCE

"There is a great scarcity of ordained ministers. This situation is not only happening here; there are many country charges presented with the same difficulty and an amalgamation of these churches seems the only answer."

It was decided an ordained minister would reside at Bethany and a student minister engaged to assist in the six-point charge. If married, he will reside in Janetville for the first year.

As student ministers only remain one year at a time, there was a suggestion that the following year he would live in Pontypool. There are parsonages at both villages. This point was left to the discretion of the board of managers. The ordained minister will supervise the whole field.

The matter of who the new minister will be was left in the hands of the stationing committee of Peterborough Presbytery, which is convening this week.

The Bethany circuit has been without a permanent minister for several months, due to the sudden death of the late Rev. Clifford Grant in October. Since that time the Rev. Lawrence Norman has been in charge of the work; but he and his family are moving to Erin in June.

EARLY DAYS

This is not the first time Bethany has had a six-point circuit with a resident ordained minister and a student to share in looking after a large parish.

In the early 1870s the circuit was comprised of the churches of Bethany, Lifford, Fleetwood, Hebron, Yelverton and Franklin. The senior minister resided at Bethany and the junior minister was usually a student who arrived on weekends and boarded at various homes. There were also local licenced lay-readers who assisted in the services.

In 1901 Hebron church was closed for lack of members and Ebenezer added to this circuit. In 1921 the churches at Lifford and Franklin were closed for lack of members. The same year, the church at Ebenezer was made a part of the Cavan circuit and the minister at Bethany served the local church and those of Fleetwood and Yelverton.

In 1947 another change was made. The church at Fleetwood was closed and Ebenezer was once more transferred to the Bethany circuit. This arrangement lasted until this year when, again due to lack of interested families, the doors of Ebenezer church were officially closed.

Those remaining in the district are hoping this is not a permanent arrangement, that perhaps new families will move in and the church will once more become the centre of the community.

Monday's meeting ended on a hopeful note that the new arrangement would be for the benefit of all concerned and that a greater interest in church work in general would be the result.

"If it could be done in horse-and-buggy days, surely it can be done now," was the comment.

Would Erect Addition To Town Hall

COBOURG (ENS) — Warden Reg McCann, Reeve Sid Little of Bowmanville and Reeve W. W. Archer of Seymour township paid another visit to town council Tuesday night at the invitation of council to discuss the inadequacy of present accommodation in the town hall for counties council offices and council chamber.

At the session of counties council this past month a committee headed by Reeve Little was authorized to purchase Hatfield Hall for a county building, providing it met certain requirements of the counties. Purchase had not been made yet.

The committee Tuesday night discussed the matter thoroughly with town council and left with two suggestions.

TWO PROPOSALS

One of the proposals to be explored is for the town to erect a two-storey building back of the town hall to give the counties the extra space they need. The counties would pay enough additional yearly rental to cover the debentures which the town would have to issue to build the addition.

The other suggestion was for the counties to move all their offices to Hatfield Hall, leaving only the rooms used in the administration of justice in the town hall.

Before the building was bought the counties would have to obtain consent of the ratepayers in that part of the town to exempt the building from the prevailing residential area bylaw, it was pointed out.

Mayor Jack Burnet proposed the town should lease, at a dollar a year, land just back of the town hall on which the counties could build an addition. The lease would be for the life of the debentures.

ALTERNATIVE

As an alternative, the mayor proposed that the town should erect an addition which would house some of the town offices and release enough room in the main building to take care of the counties' extra needs.

After a lengthy discussion, two proposals were considered feasible. The one of the town building the addition and the other of the counties buying Hatfield Hall.

The counties council committee will take the suggestions back for further study. Town council will also look into the matter further.

Seaweed May Provide Major Industry

SOUTH UIST, Western Isles, Scotland (CP)—Seaweed may provide northern Scotland with a major industry.

The underwater plant has been eaten as a vegetable, turned into jelly, made into bread, used as cattle fodder and fertilizer and at one time in the production of iodine and potassium.

Now experiments are under way to squeeze new uses from the slimy waterweed. If these prove successful, large-scale expansion is expected in the industry centred around this island of the Outer Hebrides.

HAS MANY USES

Crofters get £5 a ton for seaweed after it has been dried. At factories the plant winds up as a fine powder.

Alginic acid is easily obtainable from most brown seaweeds and the salts of this acid—called alginates—have a wide range of uses. Some ice cream now is made smooth to the palate by the addition of alginates. Other uses are in paint, textiles and medical swabs.

Insoluble alginates are flameproof and it may be possible to weave textiles from them.

A Break In The Clouds

The statesmen taking part in the Geneva Conference appear to have gone to it with heavy hearts and small expectations. Yet more may come of their deliberations than they foresee at present. Recently the Soviet Prime Minister, Malenkov, gave an address to the Soviet of Nationalities which was, in effect, a survey of foreign and domestic Russian policy. On first consideration it does not seem very hopeful, but we have learned over the years that Russian changes of policy are matters of deeds rather than words; they make a few grudging admissions, surrounded by some fierce accusations against their opponents, and then they go much further than might have been expected in carrying their policy into effect.

* * *

Consider what Malenkov said. He spoke of an easing of international tension; but he accused the Western powers of provoking and prolonging the war in Indo-China; he accused them of building up the militarists of West Germany; of preparing Japan as a capitalist-imperialist state. He said that Russia wanted more world trade, but he accused the U.S.A. of compelling other countries not to trade with Russia. He spoke of the possible peaceful co-existence of capitalist and socialist regimes, but he added that a third world war would ruin the capitalist system. In fact, it was the familiar old Russian game of giving with one hand and taking away with the other.

* * *

However, we are getting used to that. And we are also getting used to the cold war, and are realizing that it is something which can continue for a century or more without in itself amounting to anything. We are accustomed to a diplomacy in which nations profess close friendship and admiration for one another until something happens upon which they disagree—and then all the friendship and admiration vanish overnight. How often has this not happened in the last century? But we must accustom ourselves to taking the rough side of Russia's tongue—of hearing scorn and disapproval of all that we stand for—while at the same time living in peace with Russia. In spite of the cold war the Berlin Blockade was ended. An in spite of the cold war the trouble in East Asia could end, if China and Russia thought it desirable.

* * *

It would be foolish, however, to expect it to end with hand-shakings and mutual expressions of goodwill. It will end, if it ends, in the fashion of the new diplomacy, with grudging admissions, hard-won concessions, and assurances that capitalism is just as black and decadent as ever. The cold war is an ideological war, and it is basic to such warfare that the opposition must never be regarded as reasonable, or even human.

* * *

Widespread hopes have been expressed that Russia will yield to the cruel logic of the hydrogen bomb. Perhaps Russia will do so, but we must not expect a Russian yielding to look like a collapse. The flow of abuse and carefully fostered ill-will may be expected to continue as usual, whatever moves toward a firmer peace are achieved. We must really learn to pay less attention to what the Russians say, and keep our eyes more closely upon what they do.

It's Not As Simple As That

The proposal has been made to the Commons Banking Committee that the Dominion Government should create a large sum of money for circulation by borrowing hundreds of millions, without interest, from the Bank of Canada; it could then declare something resembling a 'consumer dividend', and put the money into circulation. The originator of this scheme is the Attorney General of Alberta, which is, of course a Social Credit province.

Somebody has this great idea every few years. We recall the late Agnes MacPhail's comment when it was mentioned that there was a shortage of money in the country—Well, why not print some?

But as Mr. J. M. Macdonnell has patiently pointed out, creating money which has no support in production, is simply inflation. When the amount of money in circulation is not in proper accord with the amount of goods available, and the services which can be obtained, the value of the money becomes less.

We make no claim to economic knowledge, but there are certain facts which most people know, just as they know the multiplication tables. One of these facts is this: money is of no value in itself, and takes its value from what it can buy; money is simply a system of tokens, without which we would be involved in an impossibly cumbrous system of barter.

It is tempting to suggest that money can be created by printing or minting it. It is tempting to say that a difficult situation can be tided over by printing more money than is justified by the country's goods and services, this same money to be 'recalled' when things are better. But history does not lack examples of countries who have tried it and have ruined themselves by so doing.

Push-Button Warfare

Last week, it was reported that one of the chief reasons for Defence Minister Claxton's Western tour, was to "talk over these approaches, (nuclear missiles etc.) with senior commanders". It was also reported that there appears to be a growing tendency toward research and development of new nuclear weapons, rather than to improve existing conventional weapons, i.e. field guns etc. This year, Defence Expenditures are estimated at around $470,000,000, next year about $460,000,000, and then levelling off at $450,000,000 annually.

That comparatively large areas, many lives, and much property might be destroyed by some remote-controlled missile, presents a most terrifying spectacle. It is tragic that sums of almost astronomical proportions must be spent on the development of machines for the sole purpose of destroying life and property, while a sum, infinitesimal by comparison, is made available for the preservation and prolongation of life e.g. polio and cancer research.

The advent of the much publicized "push-button" warfare, should be sufficient incentive for nations to make greater efforts to arrive at some compromise on the use of atomic weapons. Obviously, it is mutual fear and distrust of each other that has resulted in the present situation, as it is certain that no sane person would advocate self-destruction. Instead of negotiating from a premise of fear, it might be more propitious for the conferees to approach the atomic problem from a moral, rather than solely from a military standpoint. Disagreement on morals, of course, is as common as disagreement on disarmament.

'Scrounging'

Many words have been written about "scrounging" or "borrowing" in the army. It is an accepted rule or custom that a man may justifiably replenish his kit when opportunity knocks. The essential thing is not to be reprimanded for kit shortages. This practice is condoned by both the Top Brass and civilians, to a certain extent, so long as the practice is confined within the Army itself.

However, the recent disclosures that "Government Issue" articles to a value of some $10,000 have been found in the possession of civilians at Thedford, alongside Ipperwash camp, would appear to indicate a lack of proper supervision. After the Petawawa scandal, the Curry report recommended better accounting methods and more frequent inspection audits. The fact that it is intimated that the thefts occurred over a period of two years, would indicate that this suggestion has not bee apopted.

While this practice when confined to the Military is merely dismissed as "scrounging", the sale of Government Issue articles (to civilians) by soldiers, takes on the aspect of mere stealing. It is the more incomprehensible that thefts on such a scale would be possible.

While the sum of $10,000 may seem trivial when compared with a military budget of millions, irregularities such as the Ipperwash disclosures pose a great moral as well as financial problem for Military Authorities.

The St. Lawrence Is Ours

We are getting tired of the American talk about what they should, may or will do about the St. Lawrence seaway. Now one group favours it, another does not. Now one makes a suggestion about finance and another objects. Biting, sniffing, snapping and delaying, that is what they are doing. Let Canada remind the ponderous, carping and procrastinating agents, on the other side of the border, that Canada is perfectly willing to build the seaway alone, to finance it alone, and to ignore the American sensibilities entirely. And if the deliberations and legislative talk go on much longer, Canada would be perfectly within her rights to remind Washington that the first thousand miles of the St. Lawrence are entirely within Canadian territory.

What other country in the world but Canada would put up with the delays and nonsense talked across the line about a river which is essentially hers? The entrance to the St. Lawrence and nearly all of the river proper is Canada's, and hers alone. Upon sufficient provocation, Canada could deny the use of the entire St. Lawrence-Great Lakes system to American shipping. Let the American legislators get their perspective straight. They are talking about a river which is primarily a Canadian river, not an American one at all.

Children And Violence

By A CONSULTANT PSYCHIATRIST

"THE Child Audience" is the theme of a recent Unesco report* on the methods used in various countries "to protect children from the undesirable influence which may be exerted" by films, radio and the Press. It is a stimulating and interesting document, representing, in the words of its sponsors, "merely a tentative first effort at the international level".

✧ ✧ ✧

THE REPORT brings out two main trends: the first, general agreement on the importance of assessing both the impact upon children of what they read or see or hear, and the ways in which the moral or artistic qualities of the material offered to them are determined; and the second, a conflict of personal impressions on these questions, unsupported for the most part by valid or objectively measurable evidence. "In fact," says the Introduction, " . . . it seems essential to make a clean sweep of all preconceived ideas and prejudices, such as that the cinema encourages juvenile delinquency, pornography is dangerous for the young, accounts of crimes incite children to imitate the criminals, etc. In truth, strange as it may appear, we are forced to admit the we know almost nothing about what affects the child . . ."

✧ ✧ ✧

THE REPORT goes on to stress the need for research on such matters. Its candid blend of caution and humility provides an admirable context for an attempt at a psychiatric contribution to the problem; one, moreover, which finds an echo in the pages of the report itself.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEALING with sick, unhappy, disturbed or deliquent children, one is constantly struck by the overwhelming importance of the relationship between the child and the parents—and between the individual parents themselves—in influencing the child's own mood, health and behaviour. Example rather than precept, and parental example above all, seems to form the basis of the child's moral judgements, just as the certainty of parental love, and therefore of family security in its most fundamental sense, forms the basis of the child's happiness, confidence, and peace of mind. On these foundations arise the capacity for accepting and sifting all other experiences which life may offer; including comic books, films, and television and radio programmes.

✧ ✧ ✧

THAT certain tendencies in comic strips are degrading, and harmful to the development of any concept of human dignity or values, seems at least highly probable. The "Superman" myth, with its crude and stereotyped emphasis upon physical power, part magical, part pseudoscientific, but essentially violent, superficial, and totally devoid of either humour or compassion, is perhaps the most pernicious. But the effect created by such monstrosities upon the public who lap up their lamentable adventures — a public which of course includes many adults as well as children — will depend far more upon the emotional environment provided for each individual in childhood, by parents and home, than upon the over-simplification and imaginative poverty of material and presentation in the comics themselves.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE child lives within the shelter — or the storm — of his parents' shared life. If he senses there an element of instability or violence, if his happiness or confidence are sapped or threatened by a lack of love, by injustice, or by brutality, then he is already vulnerable; and this vulnerability may predispose him to an uncritical acceptance of the debased values of the Superman whose might is right, or of the gangster who deals out death and boasts that only suckers work.

✧ ✧ ✧

WHEN the reality of his own small world is unhappy or unbearable, the fantasy which is his natural escape may attain an explosive intensity. Then the savage film or sadistic comic may perhaps touch off disaster.

✧ ✧ ✧

A NORMALLY happy and balanced child will have an interest in such things, too: he has an interest in everything in life. But he will tend to take them in his stride, acting them out harmlessly in games without concern. The difference between these two kinds of response lies in what the child himself has learned to expect in his home, in everyday life: that is where children's minds are really troubled, or truly set at rest. And this, moreover, is a continuous and consistent process. A happy home continually strengthens a child's morale and confidence; an unhappy one persistently undermines him and thereby increases his susceptibility to any morbid or degrading influence. Among these, the worst type of comic may certainly be included.

✧ ✧ ✧

EQUALLY certainly the case for a constructive effort to raise the artistic and imaginative standards of children's entertainment, in all media, in a way which so far has received at least as much attention in the United Kingdom as anywhere else in the world, stands on its own indisputable merits. But it remains true that it is the parents, rather than the Press or the producer, who naturally and inescapably provide the fundamental emotional background which will in turn determine the degree and nature of the influence exerted upon children by anything they encounter in the course of their adventurous quest for knowledge and experience.

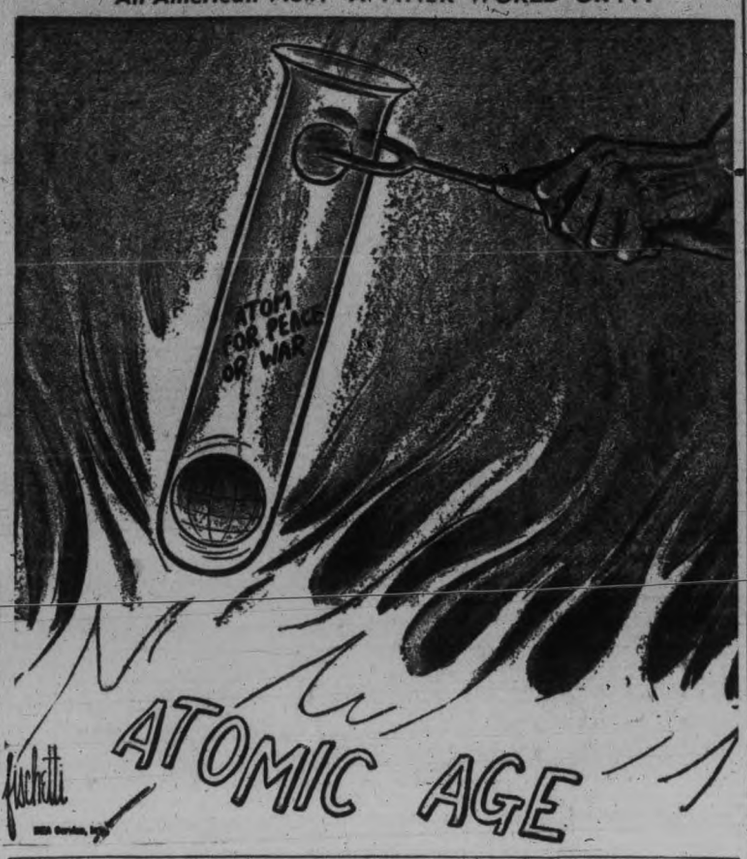
A second-hand book store is not a normal setting for a lesson in economics. This is the report of an exception.

We found on a shelf a copy of a translation of Xenophon's "Anabasis." It was marked to sell for a dollar, and we noted on the fly-leaf that this was precisely the price asked when published new by Harper in 1889. English translations of "Anabasis" are by no means rare, and the book itself seemed to have no special distinction as a collector's item.

"Why no depreciation in 65 years?" we asked the proprietor. "Oh, that's been considered," he explained. "The same book today would cost $3 new. You're getting this at a third the price."

The book's still there. But we may buy it yet as a curiosity. Maybe it's the last firm link between the dollar of 1889 and that of 1954.

An American View: A FINER WORLD OR . . .



Letters To The Editor

CONTEST RIVER BANK ZONING

SIR: The problem with which we are faced is so urgent and the time at our disposal is so limited that we are appealing to you for assistance. We must know what public opinion is — and not only must we know, but also the Planning Board and the City Council. Through your columns we can more accurately ascertain that public opinion.

The proposed Zoning Plan for Peterborough published in your pages on April 20, 1954, has named three areas of the banks of the Otonabee, Heavy Industry. Two of these areas — both on the west bank of the river —are presently occupied by heavy industry. If one is to be realistic, one must — as the expert at the public hearings pointed out to us last Friday night — accept a 'fait accompli.' The beautifying of these areas we will approach on a different tack with, we hope, the co-operation of the owners.

The third area, that north from Parkhill Rd., is free of industry except for the small, recently erected sash and door factory. It is this area's zoning that we are most actively contesting at the minute.

There is a CNR spur-line between the river and the road at this point, a spur which serves in part two small industries and a larger one. For the rest the spur is used mainly as a storage place for freight cars. This means perhaps one load of cars a day using the line, with two, sometimes, on Mondays. Thus at present, it can scarcely be considered a hazard or too serious a blight to the value of the land. Under such circumstances, would this area not be better zoned as RM with perhaps small apartment buildings or duplexes going in? It is—aside from the one train a day — quiet and removed; it is close to two of the city's finest parks; it borders the river with no possibility of building between it and the river; its natural beauty is beyond compare. True there are no sewers there now for buildings, but neither are there sewers for industry. These would presumably have to be provided in either case.

If, on the other hand, HI or Heavy Industry or whatever size is allowed to locate there, the siding then becomes a permanent fixture, busy, noisy and dirty, and all the adjacent property will be greatly lowered in value. This, without any consideration for the nuisance of the factories themselves, is evident.

The Otonabee Valley Conservation Committee was formed last fall as "watchdogs of the council for the Otonabee banks," to quote your pages. It is a responsible, practical and representation group whose aims are purely altruistic. We are planning not in terms of five or ten years, but for fifty. We hope that our children will be able to enjoy their rightful heritage from nature in the unparalleled beauty of the Otonabee river and the Jackson Park Creek. We feel we are right in this crusade, but we must know where public opinion stands on the issue.

Yours truly,
CHRISTINE F. NORABELL.
Chairman,
Otonabee Valley Conservation Committe.

MEMORIES OF LAKE EXCURSIONS

SIR. Reading your entertaining recollections and speculations on pleasure boats on the Kawartha Lakes and Trent Valley waters recalled to me memories of far away and long ago scenes in the sunny days of my boyhood in somnolent old Cobourg. We boys roamed the countryside a-foot and knew intimately the lovely rolling hills and dales of Northumberland, and all the rivulets and ponds where the best fishing was to be found, as well as the waters of Rice Lake and the Otonabee. And the little streamers, — the "Golden-Eye," the "Whistle-Wing" and the "Isaac Butts" among others. On occasion the Cobourg firemen held their annual summer picnic at Idlewild in Rice Lake and a part of the outing would be a steamer trip up the Otonabee to Peterborough. It was a picturesque route, the trees meeting overhead at times, the little turtles scuttling off the logs on which they basked, the fish jumping, with an occasional blue heron standing immobile in the shadows ready to impale a fish with a lightning thrust of his deadly bill. Now and then some festive fireman became hilarious and prone to sing, preach or fight as the amber ale of the local breweries took effect. Mackechnie in Cobourg, Ambrose & Winslow in Port Hope and Calcutt in Peterborough, all of whom brewed a golden nectar of honest malt and hops and incidentally provided the local housekeepers with the yeast for their delicious home-made bread — crusty, nutty loaves made from good stone-ground flour, food fit for the gods. You envision gondolas on the Otonabee and into the Kawartha Lakes: well, may your dream come true! I should like to see your suggestion realized and a little ship once again leisurely cruising through your captivating lakes during the summer months, — how very far superior to any outing along hot and dusty highways infested with speeding motor cars! But there will always remain to the older folks a Bridge of Sighs haunted by nostalgic memories of little streamers, gay with bunting, cheered by a tiny orchestra, plying the placid waters of Rice Lake and the Otonabee beneath the sunny summer skies

UNION STATION FOR PETERBOROUGH

SIR: I read with interest Alderman Anglesey's suggestion and your editorial re a union station.

As you know, this has been under consideration for quite a long time, but nothing of a practical nature has been done about it.

I thought it would be of interest to the citizens to know that this matter had been discussed by myself with the late Mr. Pringle, one of the vice-presidents of the Canadian National Railway. Shortly before his death, I had the privilege of being entertained by Mr. Pringle on the occasion of one of his visits to the city. At that time I asked him how they would feel about the removal of the CNR tracks running through the centre of the city. Naturally, he was not enthusiastic about this, but did suggest that the difficulty might be over come by the creation of subways on the principal streets. Whilst this would be a solution, it would be costly.

Regarding the matter of a union station, Mr. Pringle said that he would look with favour on such a proposal, and suggested that the CPR might also be approached to see how they felt about the matter. I did speak to two of the officials of the CPR very briefly, but had no opportunity at that time to discuss the matter with them at length, and so received no reply one way or the other. I do feel, however, that the matter of a union station in Peterborough is so important that an opportunity should be sought whereby the responsible officials of both railways might be called into conference with the City Council and the Planning Board. I think the problem should be explored so that the various obstacles, of which there are many, might be considered in an attempt to find a solution.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,
Yours sincerely,
JAMES DUTTON.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them. (Gen. 1:26, 27.)

✧ ✧ ✧

That which is far off, and exceeding deep, who can find it out?

I applied mine heart to know, and to search and to seek out wisdom and the reason of things, and to know the wickedness of folly, even of foolishness and madness . . . Lo, this only have I found that God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions. (Eccl. 7:24, 25, 29.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And Elihu the son of Barachel the Buzite answered and said, I am young, and ye are very old; wherefore I was afraid and durst not shew you mine opinion . . . Let me not, I pray you, accept any man's person, neither let me give flattering titles unto man. (Job 32:6, 21.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Wherefore, Job, I pray thee, hear my speeches, and harken to all my words . . . The Spirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the Almighty hath given me life . . . Behold, I am according to thy wish in God's stead: I also am formed out of the clay. (Job 33:1, 4, 6.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The way of the Lord is strength to the upright: but destruction shall be to the workers of iniquity. The righteous shall never be removed: but the wicked shall not inhabit the earth. (Prov. 10:29, 30.)

Let's Abolish Education

(Printed Word)

Education, as many people have discovered to their sorrow, can be a very embarrassing business. Alas! the educational process tends to reveal that all people are not equally stupid. This is a bad thing, particularly for those who sincerely believe that all people are born equal.

The slowness of medical science in devising means of overcoming the intellectual deficiencies of those who find learning hard to master poses serious problems for exponents of equality in ability. So it is but natural that they should conclude that the only solution to the problem is to adapt the educational process to meet the legitimate requirements of those whose equality of intellectual deficiency can readily be determined.

It has not yet been suggested that education should be entirely abolished. This would please a good many children; but not the educators, who would be out of jobs. The trend, however, is already apparent. Some universities are to be commended for having taken the lead in watering education down. Provided they are to be aided in their efforts by such fraternal delegates from the Canadian Teachers' Federation as share their views, there should be no difficulty in working out an educational programme that would largely remove the stigma of stupidity.

ELECTIONEERING—This picture, made in Istanbul on the eve of Turkey's general election, shows partisans on top of a monument in Taksim Square. Former U.S. PoW Sentenced To 10 Years Hard Labor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson was convicted Tuesday and sentenced to 10 years' hard labor on charges of informing on his comrades in a Korean prisoner-of-war camp and currying favor with his Red Chinese captors.

Both the conviction and the prison sentence are subject to review by an army board, which may act in about a month.

The court martial of the 23-year-old farm boy from Cracker's Neck, Va., ended late in the afternoon of its 12th day. Dickenson was tried on charges of collaborating with the Chinese Communists and informing the Reds about the escape plans of a buddy, former Pte. Edward M. Gaither of Philadelphia. He was convicted on both counts—the first time a U.S. war prisoner had ever been so tried and convicted.

Hollow-eyed and haggard, Dickenson stared gloomily at the floor as the verdict was returned after 10½ hours of deliberation by eight army officers. The soldier's blonde bride of four months, Kate, fought down tears.

Dickenson is one of 23 American prisoners of war who refused repatriation and chose to stay with the Reds after the Korean armistice. But he and one other, Claude Batchelor of Kermit, Tex., later changed their minds and chose to return home.

Batchelor, self-styled leader of the group of 23 at one time, now is in custody awaiting court martial.

Meanwhile, the air force Tuesday cleared 69 officers and airmen of wrong-doing while they were prisoners of war. Fourteen others not completely cleared were ordered to show cause why they should be permitted to remain in the service.

Abbott Turns Down Money Control Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott Tuesday rejected an opposition proposal that Parliament be given control over the country's money supply.

He said he considers it neither desirable nor feasible to spell out legislation fixing the amount of money which should be distributed.

Currently, control over currency production and distribution is vested in the government and its agency, the Bank of Canada.

J. M. Macdonnell, Progressive Conservative financial critic, warned the Commons banking committee that there might come a time when a "really irresponsible" government would be armed with power to push the monetary supply "to the sky."

City Manager Vote

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener may vote this year on whether it wants a city manager. A plebiscite on the question is a possibility, Monday night's city council session indicated.

Action to place the issue on the December ballot would have to be taken by Nov. 1.

Friend of Conservatives

LONDON (Reuters) — Deputy Socialist Leader Herbert Morrison Tuesday accused rebellious left-wing leader Aneurin Bevan of being "the answer to the Tories' prayer." Morrison, writing in the magazine Socialist Commentary, lashed out at Bevan for causing an "open conflict" in Parliament by publicly disagreeing with Socialist Leader Clement Attlee on collective security proposals for Southeast Asia.

Ross And Roger Given To A's By Ontario Body

The Ontario Lacrosse Association has ruled that Ross Powless and Roger Smith are the senior lacrosse property of St. Catharines Athletics this year, and that no recompense will be made to the Petes for their loss unless the two clubs concerned can work out a mutual agreement. St. Catharines, of course, will not consider making any payment to the Petes for these players.

The OLA ruling was received yesterday by the local and was presented at an executive meeting last night in the YMCA, under President Bob Peirson. The ruling was contained in a long, rambling and often contradictory letter sent by OLA Secretary Chuck Rowan. He stated the players concerned were properly signed by St. Kitts and that the OLA was not interested in financial arrangements between clubs for players.

THE PETERSON CASE

Rowan denied local allegations that the OLA had been most unfair last year in not permitting Denny Peterson to play here, when there was no residence rule in effect. The residence rule was put in effect March 1, 1954, in order to keep Hamilton in the senior group, as St. Catharines were after players Hamilton needed. The St. Kitts club promptly took advantage of the short-lived rule to sign Powless and Smith, who were living closer to St. Catharines than to Peterborough. The residence rule since was thrown out again.

Petes' executive members, after much discussion, decided to carry on with what players they had and with several more import prospects. They felt they could field as strong a squad as last year in the four-team senior "A" group.

LOSING THREE

The club has lost three players, Powless, Smith and Nip O'Hearn, but has added Peterson, Doug Powell, two former juniors, Curtis and Allen, and expects to sign George Masters and one or two more players in the near future. One of last year's championship team have been signed again.

On a motion by Gordon Dobbin, it was decided to send a letter strongly condemning the turn-about tactics of the OLA in this deal of club raiding without recompense, and insisting that players on club negotiation lists who will not be used — or who are refusing to play for that club —be put on the free list and made available to clubs of their choice. This letter will be sent at once to the OLA.

LOST AND GONE FOREVER—Yes, it looks as if Ross Powless (left), Roger Smith in the centre, and Nip O'Hearn (right) are lost to the OLA Petes and probably gone forever, the trio having pulled stakes this spring and headed elsewhere for their senior lacrosse. Powless and Smith have signed with St. Catharines Athletics and will be seen soon in action against their former teammates here, while O'Hearn is performing for Victoria Shamrocks on the West Coast.

Calgary Laces Quebec 8-1 In First Game

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders, champions of the Western Hockey League, thumped a somewhat befuddled Quebec Aces squad 8-1 before close to 8,000 fans Tuesday night to take the first game of their best-of-nine series for the Edinburgh Trophy. This is the first year the trophy has been up for competition.

Second game of the series will be played here Thursday night and the third at Edmonton Saturday night.

The game was a lack-lustre affair although Stampeders were full value for their win.

Steve Black led the scoring parade with two goals. Singletons were scored by Johnny Michaluk, Sid Finney, Jim McFadden, Steve Witiuk, Archie Scott and Frank Ashworth.

The lone Quebec goal was scored by Adam Brown in the first period.

The Stampeders, who Saturday won the WHL title by eliminating Vancouver Canucks, went without two of their ace centres, Pat Lundy and Ray Barry. Lundy, out with a heel injury, is expected to return to action at the week-end. Barry is out for the season with a stomach ailment.

UNABLE TO STOP ATTACK

Aces, champions of the Quebec hockey circuit, had Jack Gelineau in the nets but he was unable to stem the Stampeders forwards. Lorne Nadeau and Bill Burega were missing from the Quebec linepup.

Michaluk put Stampeders into the lead early in the first period but Brown got the equalizer about the midway mark. After that it was all Calgary.

Stampeders tore into Quebec territory for three goals in the second period and four more in the final 20 minutes.

The officials handed out four penalties, two to each club, and two figured in the goal-scoring.

In the shots-on-goal department, Brennan kicked out 18 attempts and Gelineau stopped 20.

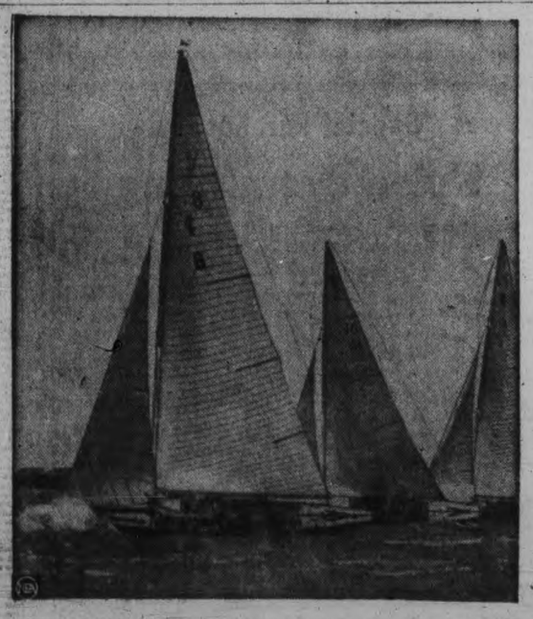
Visiting Bowlers Take Lead In Tournament

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Visiting bowlers jumped in front as the Ontario Bowling Association's 28th annual tournament started here Tuesday.

County Bowl of Whitby scored 3,492 to take the lead in the men's open team event. Toronto's Toutloff and Ford rolled 1,374 to head the open doubles and B. Fisher of Whitby forged ahead in the open singles with 804. Jack Wilson of Toronto leads the aggregate race with 2,353 points.

Welland leads the men's B open team event with 3,289. E. Lloyd of Preston has 649 points, tops in the singles of this division. He also leads the B aggregate event with 1,765.

In the C section Windsor heads the open team event with 2,738. D. Hawkshaw and T. Hawkshaw of Galt posted 1,145 points to lead the doubles.



CLOSE HAUL—Two American and a Bermuda One design manoeuvred for position in a race off Bermuda that was part of International Race Week. Home yachts took four clear victories out of seven and the Amorita Cup.

BROCK ARENA

Vernon Ready For 'Invasion'

VERNON, B.C. (CP)—This fruit-growing centre in British Columbia's lush Okanagan valley prepared for an invasion today as they play host to the titans of Canada's amateur hockey ranks.

Sudbury Wolves and Penticton V's meet here tonight in the second game of the best-of-seven series for the Allan Cup, symbol of senior amateur hockey supremacy. Sudbury took the opener 2-1 on Penticton ice Monday.

Vernon is only 80 miles north of Penticton, a mere step for the rabid fans who have followed their V's to the Allan Cup finals for two years in a row.

The Penticton club is fighting now the way they fight best—with the chips down and the odds against them.

"It's happened before," coach Grant Warwick said after their Monday night defeat. "The boys aren't happy unless they're in the hole. Now we'll start digging."

The record backs him up. V's took the British Columbia championship by coming from behind in eight games. Then the best-of-seven western final with Winnipeg Maroons went eight games—two wins, three ties apiece—and Penticton took the sudden-death eighth.

Here And There In Sports

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

GAVILAN BOUT

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Kid Gavilan will defend his welterweight boxing championship against Johnny Saxton at Connie Mack Stadium here during the latter part of June or early July, promoter Herman Taylor announced Tuesday.

The bout will be Gavilan's first title defence since Nov. 13, 1953, when he defeated Johnny Bratton in Chicago.

NEW ZEALAND BEATEN

BUDAPEST (AP)—Hungary defeated New Zealand 3-2 Tuesday to advance into the second round of the European zone Davis Cup tennis tournament. Hungary next will meet Germany in Budapest May 14-16.

SUSPEND RIDERS

TORONTO (CP) — Stewards of the Dufferin Race Track Tuesday announced suspension from May 6 to May 11 of jockey Richard Bulsson and apprentice rider George Duprey for careless riding yesterday.

A third rider, Leonard Pong, was fined $50 for lodging a frivolous claim of foul after running of the sixth race.

CHANGE SOCCER DATE

GLASGOW (Reuters)—The Glasgow Charity Cup final, originally scheduled for next Saturday, will be played at Hampden Park here Friday night, it was announced Tuesday. The finalists are Rangers and Third Lanark.

OLYMPICS DOINGS

LAUSANNE (AP) — Lausanne's new Olympic Stadium with a capacity of 84,000 was dedicated Tuesday night with the executive council of the International Olympic Committee as honored guests.

The stadium will be used for the world soccer championships this summer and to bolster Lausanne's bid for the 1960 Olympics.

Meanwhile, Ernest Holt, the chief director for the 1956 Olympics said Tuesday night he was confident the path finally will be cleared later this month for Melbourne to stage the games. He made his statement at the end of the second day of hearings by the executive council.

CAMPANELLA OPERATION

BROOKLYN (AP) — Roy Campanella, Brooklyn Dodgers' slugging catcher, underwent a successful operation Tuesday for the removal of a bone chip in his left hand. Dodger officials were assured that Campanella would not be lost for more than 3½ weeks.

Originally, Campanella, the most valuable player in the National League last year, planned on struggling through until the end of the season. But when he was assured he would be out for less than a month instead of the eight to 10 weeks originally predicted, he decided to go ahead with the surgery. His batting average has been .150.

He suffered the injury last March 20 in an exhibition game with New York Yankees in Miami.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

The cry of "Play ball" will soon be heard around and about our land. Indeed, the diamond sport already has started in various parts of the continent, but the game will be closer to home within a week or two. A week from Saturday sees the opening of the Viaduct-Ontario senior loop in which the Petes will perform this season, our first home game being on the traditional May 24 holiday. Quite a little spell back there was a scribe named Khayyam, who wasn't much on sports, but he did refer at least once to ball. Early in the 12th century, Omar wrote in a stanza:

The ball no question makes of Ayes and Noes,
But Here or There as strikes the Player goes.

Young diamondeers are invited to a rally running from 9:30 this Sat'day morn until noon at the Bowl d'Ashburnham. Boys' Baseball Association officials, managers, Bill Sisler, and others, will be on deck to discuss the game and season's plans with the young prospective players, ranging from peewees up through juvenile age. They look for a dozen teams or so, and can equip even more if the boys are available, and if enough managers and coaches — hi, there, you dads! — will come out and lend a hand. Another executive meeting is being held Thursday night to complete re-organization of the minor setup.

No Business Up There

Just the other day we glanced casually at the major ball league standings and got quite a surprise to see Detroit Tigers still up there in second place in the American League. Not far out of top spot, either. Seldom do we take much interest in big league standings till the race is about half run, as it's a long season and the strong clubs often take some weeks to get rolling. The Tigers (long a favourite club with this writer) have no business being up that high — they'll wind up the second division ere autumn. But it's nice to see 'em up with the leaders, if only for a brief spell. Incidentally, there must be many hundreds of ball fans here and in the district who faithfully follow the majors from spring to fall.

Senior Petes open their ball season in Toronto on May 16, a week from this coming Sunday. An afternoon twin bill, Joe Lowrey's team taking on Hosking Burners and Dependables to start off the schedule. Belleville Batas come here May 24 for the local opening. Each club shows at Riverside three times in the schedule, making it 15 home games and 15 away, before loop playoffs. Penalties for late starts have been set, official scorers named, and each club submits the names of four umpires to be used in VOBL fixtures, these arbiters to come under the league rather than by team appointments. Schedule is being drafted now and may be available ere the end of the week. Petes have open drills Wednesday and Thursday at six p.m. in Riverside and there Sat'day aft.

Gutted-Stick Game

Some lacrosse lettuce with a senior flavoring. OLA has ruled Powless and Smith the property of St. Kitts, with no recompense for the Petes. We doubt the rumor of Denny Peterson taking work in Oakville. Trailermen open play in St. Catharines one week from Friday and have the A's back her May 21. Bob Thorpe is after a couple of more players yet. He's hoping for milder weather for outdoor workouts at Miller Bowl, the boys having been at it in PT drills at the YMCA. OLA has re-instated Pop Chard and Luther Vipond, who hit refs last year. Nip O'Hearn scored two as Victoria opened B.C. play by beating Shamrocks, who are also signing up Jack Sibbald and Jack Bionda, two good easterners.

Following our item the other day that the Memorial Centre site committee had announced that the auditorium site would be in the north-east corner of Morrow Park, with the approval of the Morrow Trust and the Fair Board, we had a call from John Kitney. The president of the Board, and a site committee member, told us: "Our Board has not reached a final decision yet on the site within Morrow Park. We haven't had time for that, the meeting of the site committee being called before we had thoroughly discussed the matter. We'll deal with it at the next meeting of the Board." So, there it is. Let's hope no further hitches occur in settling upon the Centre site within the park, as there is much work to be done once this spot has been approved all round

Oil Kings Play Like Old 'Professionals'

By GRAHAM TROTTER

EDMONTON (CP)—In western Canada, Edmonton Oil Kings earned the reputation among opposing players, fans and sports writers of playing junior hockey "like professionals."

The western champions came by this reputation several ways. Under 33-year-old coach Ken McAuley, former New York Ranger goalie, they play strict positional hockey, skate miles without let-up, use bodily contact to good advantage and backcheck religiously.

Oil Kings practised about a dozen times with Edmonton's professional team, the Flyers of the Western League, ive of them had pro trials with the Flyers in WHLF action, collecting eight points, including four goals, in seven games. Only one man was held scoreless.

FIT IN EASILY

Likewise, up to six juvenile prospects practise with the junior squad 60 per cent of the time so they fit in easily when called up for keeps. Eight of this season's Oil Kings are rookies who were brought along this way. Six are two-year men, four three-year men.

Although a taskmaster even when winning by a mile, McAuley imbues his team with a tremendous esprit de corps. Their practices often are tougher than actual games, with McAuley calling for plenty of hard skating, stops and starts.

When he left for the east, he summed up his team's spirit this way: "All I'm going East for is to open and shut the gate on our players' box. My guys know what they're going to Toronto for. The club that plays us (either St. Catharines TeePees or Quebec Frontenacs) is going to have to skate for 60 minutes or they're dead."

Choose Golfers To Play Match

TORONTO (CP)—Three eastern Canada golfers, three from the West and an honorary member of the Canadian Professional Golfers Association from South Africa will form the Canadian team which will meet a United States PGA team for the Hopkins Trophy.

Details of the third annual match to be held this year at the Toronto Mississauga course June 10-12, were announced Tuesday night by John Jay Hopkins, founder and president of the International Golf Association, sponsor of the event.

The team, chosen by the CPGA selection committee, will consist of Henry Martell of Edmonton, captain; Stan Leonard, Vancouver; Pat Fletcher, Saskatoon; Gordon Brydson, Toronto; Bill Kerr, Montreal; Jules Huot, Montreal, and Bobby Locke of South Africa.

The seven-man team of the American PGA is expected to be announced soon.

The matches inaugurated by Mr. Hopkins, international industrialist and golf enthusiast, have been won the two previous years by the American pros although last year's result was close.

P.G. & C.C. CHIP SHOTS

Weekend activity saw many members taking full advantage of the heat wave. Some notable scores were posted, all unofficial. We only hope the dropping of winter rules will not add more than 10 stokes to those cards, fellows.

The rain of Monday failed to dampen enthusiasm of more talented painter-members. Redecoration of the verandah furniture and the men's shower rooms was completed at the height of the storm. Among those noted gleefully dipping paint brushes were "Rembrandt" Dixon, "Angelo" Frost and many members of the Business Girls' section. The industriousness of these few, aided by the helpful comments of Joseph Watson, will be appreciated by all.

That skiff of snow seen flying early this week, has in no way chilled the plans for opening day this Saturday. Flag-raising at one o'clock will officially open the season. Competition will cover nine holes and everyone has a chance to carry away one of the many prizes. The opening dance will follow at 9:00 p.m. and by the witching hour another term will be well under way. All are expected to be on hand to help in the inauguration of another playing season. See you Saturday on the first tee.

Will Conduct Clinic For Track Athletes

TORONTO (CP)—Two outstanding American track and field coaches will conduct a five-day clinic here this summer for Canadian athletes, it was announced Tuesday.

They are Brutush Hamilton, director of athletics at the University of California and coach of the 1952 U.S. Olympic track team, and Ken Doherty of the University of Pennsylvania. They will be assisted by Harold Brown, coach of the University of Toronto track club.

George Duthie, manager of the Canadian National Exhibition sports department and organizer of the Canadian Olympic training plan, said the clinic will be held Aug. 30-Sept. 3, prior to the Dominion track meet sponsored by the CNE and the COTP. The meet is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 4, and Monday, Sept. 6.

THE CLINCHER—Eddie Owens, 6, isn't certain whether he wants any kids in his game as he surveys the potential of four-year-old Claude "Scooter" Hailey, right, his Fort Worth neighbor. But he finally conceded, because "Scooter" owns the ball.

Maple Leafs Acquire Rights To Centre Brian Cullen

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League announced Tuesday night they have acquired the rights to centre Brian Cullen, one of junior hockey's most sought-after and highest scoring players.

The Leafs said in a statement that they got Cullen, a member of St. Catharines TeePees of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League, in a straight player trade with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League. The exchange sends Charles (Dusty) Blair, Jack LeClair and Frank Sullivan to the Bisons.

The deal ended a guessing game of which professional team would get Cullen. The Bisons owned Cullen outright but it was reported that Montreal Canadiens and Leafs were interested in him. Buffalo is a Montreal farm club.

ALL-STAR CENTRE

Blair was the all-star centre with Ottawa Senators, Leaf farm club in the Quebec Hockey League. LeClair was voted the most valuable player in the QHL two years ago and Sullivan was a defenceman with Pittsburgh Hornets, Leaf farm club in the AHL.

Cullen set two OHA junior A scoring records this season and captained TeePees to the OHA title and the eastern Canada Memorial Cup finals. He scored 161 points ottal is 22 points more than the old mark set by Ken Laufman of Guelph Biltmores in 1951-52.

He also fired 68 goals to eclipse the old mark in that department. The previous high for goals was held by Lou Jankowski who scored 65 for Oshawa Generals in 1949-50.

Toronto Has Chill Reception For Edmonton Oil Kings

TORONTO (CP)—Edmonton Oil Kings breezed into Toronto Tuesday to a reception nearly as cool as the chilly winds that preceded them from the west.

"There wasn't anybody on hand to meet us at the station," said team manager Leo LeClerc a few hours after Oil Kings arrived.

The train arrived eight hours late because of heavy snow in northern Ontario but LeClerc said "the CAHA sent for us and you'd think they would know what time we got in."

Oil Kings will meet either St. Catharines TeePees or Quebec Frontenacs for the Memorial Cup and Canadian junior hockey title. The best-of-seven series in the Eastern Canada finals now stands at 2-2.

LeClerc also said Oil Kings had to make their own arrangements for ice for practices.

NOT TOO GOOD

"We had to do our own scurrying around to line up ice," he commented. "We arranged to use Weston (a Toronto suburb) arena but the facilities there aren't too good."

For one thing, daily transportation bills to the arena from their motel on the outskirts of the city will cut into their expenses. And expenses are what the Oil Kings have had nothing but for the last two weeks.

"This layoff waiting for the east to decide a winner has cost our club about $3,000 already," LeClerc said.

The Oil Kings aren't particular who they meet in the championship series, and they are not overconfident. Says LeClerc:

"The west has only won two of the last 18 games against eastern champs in Memorial Cup action. We're not going to come out with rosy predictions about what we'll do. Let's just wait and see."

Braves Wallop Pittsburgh 6-1 In Small Blizzard

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

When you're in last place and you've got a team in town you think you can beat, you play the game even if it snows.

That seems to be the current theory in Milwaukee. The Braves, who have had a rough time this spring, beat Pittsburgh 6-1 Tuesday night in a game interrupted in the sixth inning by a miniature blizzard.

The victory pulled the Braves out of last place in the National League and dropped the Pirates to the bottom.

NEAR FREEZING

Although the temperature was within five degrees of freezing at game time, 12,383 of the Milwaukee faithful paid their way into the park and had such a good time during the snow that—they serenaded the chilled players with "Jingle Bells."

The wintry blasts knocked three other games from Tuesday's schedule and rain washed out a fourth. It was too cold for Brooklyn at Chicago and New York at Cincinnati in the National; too cold and wet for Baltimore at New York and too wet for Detroit at Boston in the American League.

In games that were played, Chicago White Sox increased their American League lead to a game and a half over Detroit by whipping Washington 8-6. Bob Trice won his fourth straight as Philadelphia shaded Cleveland 3-2, and Philadelphia Phillies whipped St. Louis 14-10 in 11 innings. The Phils poured across four runs in the 11th.

The Phils-Cardinals struggle ran four hours 31 minutes, finished up in the early hours of this morning and saw a major league record set for the total number of pitchers.

The two clubs tossed 15 assorted pitchers into the marathon, starting with two of the league's best—Harvey Haddix and Robin Roberts—and winding up with Hal White for the Cards and Murry Dickson for the Phils.

FOURTH SUCCESS

Dickson got the credit, his fourth success against one loss since moving to the Phils from the Pirates.

Warren Spahn struck out 12 Pirates in the Milwaukee triumph, which came against Max Surkont, traded away to the Pirates by the Braves during the winter. Joe Adcock homered for Milwaukee.

A single by Joe Demaestri followed by a walk and a single by Gus Zernial gave the Athletics the run they needed to whip Cleveland, who had won six in a row.

A grand-slam home run by Minnie Minoso set up the Chicago victory in Washington. It was the first grand slam in the American League this season.

Red Wings Clout Havana 14-4

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Niles Jordan, a strong lefthander for Rochester Red Wings in the International League, is making a strong bid for a comeback in the major baseball leagues with the parent St. Louis Cardinals.

Jordan's contract was purchased by the Cards last year while he was pitching for the Red Wings. He compiled a record of 12 victories against six losses.

The 28-year-old lefthander gave up 13 hits Tuesday night, but coasted to a 14-4 victory over Havana as his mates collected 16 hits behind him. The victory gave the Red Wings undisputed possession of second place.

The Syracuse - Buffalo doubleheader and the Richmond-Toronto game were postponed because of cold weather. Ottawa and Montreal were idle.

Orient Bay Angler Lands Biggest Trout

NEW YORK (CP)—Bill McCollum of Orient Bay, Ont., won the prize for landing the biggest brook trout in the spinning division of Field and Stream's 1953 fishing contest, the magazine announced Tuesday.

Fishing the Nipigon river Aug. 12 with a Prescott Cockatoush lure, McCollum pulled in an eight-pound four-ounce trout.

The prize for northern pike was won by Robert E. Schoewald of New York for the 24-pound, eight-ouncer he caught on Bourmont lake, Que., June 17. Schoewald used an Eppinger-Daredevil lure.

Believes Help Can Be Given Schizophrenics

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The sickest of all the mentally sick, schizophrenics, can be drawn back to reality over a bridge of words and action, a prominent psychiatrist reports.

Dr. Frieda Fromm-Reichmann of Rockville, Md., tells of new successes by psychiatric treatment that give more hope for saving hundreds of victims of this disease, once regarded as hopeless. Insulin and electric shock treatments sometimes work. This is another and useful way to save them.

Schizophrenia, often called split personality, means escaping into an unreal world of the person's own making.

The same approach which heals other mental illnesses can be used to reach the schizophrenic, help him understand why he is sick, help him get well, Dr. Fromm-Reichmann told the American Psychiatric Association in a paper prepared for today.

She believes that no matter how sick the schizophrenic seems to be, he still has some core of health, some contact with the real world. The psychiatrist can create a "bridge of understanding" with the patient and eventually help him get well. The psychiatrist becomes a part of the real world for which the sick mind can grope.

Dr. Fromm-Reichmann says schizophrenics are victims of pent-up hostility which they can't handle. They withdraw into themselves, and actually are afraid, usually, of taking out their anger against themselves or against other persons.

She believes they are not really withdrawn from contact with the world, but simply have tried to cut off all communication with it. Even patients in an apparent state of stupor are frequently keenly observing what is going on, and can remember it. But they give no signs of knowing.

What the psychiatrist says or does therefore can influence the patient, and start building the bridge of communication.

NEW BRITISH TANK—This is Britain's new heavy-gun tank, the Conqueror, which will be put through first trials by the British Army in Europe this summer. Designed by the same experts responsible for the Centurion tank the new tank will be complementary and not a replacement for the Centurion. The development of the Conqueror involved the solution of many problems in suspension, power and transmission and in the fire-control system. More heavily armored and larger than the Centurion, it will carry a crew of four.

Award $283,200 In Scholarships

OTTAWA (CP) — Scholarships totalling $283,200 in value have been awarded by the National Research Council for 1954-55.

The 236 scholarships include 75 bursaries worth $800 each, 103 studentships worth $1,100 each, and 21 fellowships valued at $1,400 each the council announced Tuesday. All of these will be held in Canada.

Special scholarships for study abroad include 20 awards worth $1,900 each. Ten of these will be held in the United States, eight in the United Kingdom, one in France and one in Sweden.

In addition, 17 ovrseas post-doctorate fellowships at $2,500 each have been granted for work overseas—12 in the U.K., two in Sweden and one each in Denmark, France and the Netherlands.

To Change Sex

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — John Cabell (Bunny) Breckinridge, 50-year-old San Francisco millionaire, said Tuesday he is going to Denmark in August to be transformed into Catherine Cabell. Breckinridge said he has made arrangements with a British surgeon to change him from man to woman.

Says Barred From U.S.

TORONTO (CP)—Samuel Seigel, about 55, said Tuesday he has been refused admission to the United States for the last two years because he gave $5 to a Communist newspaper in 1947. He said he gave $5 to a subscription canvasser for The Daily Tribune in 1947 on the urging of a business associate.

Commission On Knees Hunting Mayor's Beads

OTTAWA (CP)—Reporters awaiting an after-meeting statement on the closed proceedings of the Ottawa police commission Tuesday glimpsed a tantalizing sight when the door was opened briefly to admit a messenger.

Magistrate Glenn E. Strike, commission chairman, was on his hands and knees. So was police chief Duncan MacDonell, in full dress uniform, cap and all. Commission secretary Edward A. Evans, magistrate's court clerk, was seen crawling under a desk.

What brought the commission to its knees? Obeisance? Apology? The after-meeting statement said not a word. Later, however, on an "it was learned" basis, reporters reported the facts:

Mayor Charlotte Whitton's string of beads had broken.

P. S. All beads accounted for.

Top Canadian Stars Afraid Tackle CNE

BELLEVILLE (CP)—Hiram McCallum, general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, said Tuesday that one reason the CNE does not hire Canadians to headline the grandstand show is that established radio and television stars are afraid to work in front of live audiences.

Speaking to a Belleville service club, Mr. McCallum, former mayor of Toronto, said established stars fear they might destroy what they have built up on radio or TV by working in front of a live audience.

There is not a sufficient theatre background in Canada to produce headliners yet, he said, and lack of work forces Canadian theatre talent to go to the United States for experience and employment.

Have No Objections To More Gas Imports

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Howe said Tuesday the federal government has no objection to Union Gas Company of Canada, Ltd., temporarily increasing its imports of natural gas from the United States.

The company, operating in southwestern Ontario, announced Monday it is boosting its import of U.S. gas by 15,500,000,000 cubic feet a year over the 5,500,000,000 now being imported. The company can discontinue its contract with U.S. suppliers when Alberta gas arrives in Ontario through the proposed trans-Canada pipeline.

Asking Help To Save Birds

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Naturalists have appealed to Lakehead residents to help save the lives of thousands of birds migrating to Canada.

Hundreds of the birds have been found dead and many more are starving. Residents were asked to throw bread crumbs and other bits of food outside their homes.

Keith Denis, president of the Thunder Bay Field Naturalist Club said motorists driving along the highway from the Lakehead to Duluth Monday "witnessed a great migration tragedy."

"For miles the only snow-free area was the highway pavement and thousands of birds were seen feeding on the slippery surface," he said. Many of them were killed by the cars.

"We counted more than 3,100 robins, more than 4,000 slate-colored juncoes, more than 500 hermit thrushes, hundreds of rusty and red wing blackbirds and song, white-throated and other sparrows," Mr. Denis said.

Crime Disease Linked

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Hidden physical ailments often are part of the disease of juvenile delinquency and crime, a psychiatrist-expert said Tuesday. Finding the physical disease and correcting it helps "cure" the delinquents and criminals, said Dr. Ralph S. Banay, former chief psychiatrist at Sing Sing prison, Ossining, N.Y.

Elected President

TORONTO (CP)—R. D. Hunter of St. Catharines Tuesday was elected president of the Ontario Association of Radio, TV and Appliance Dealers. Directors include Al Brundrit of Chatham and Arthur Goddard of Sudbury.

Manager Of Firm Crashes Off Dock

Nova Scotia Farmers Now Becoming Better At Their Jobs

HALIFAX (CP)—The men who work the farms of Nova Scotia, the province's largest primary industry, are becoming better at their jobs.

There are encouraging signs that the long-range prospect for a stable industry is good but times are still tough.

Alone of all the provinces, Nova Scotia in 1953 increased its net income from farm operations—from $18,900,000 in 1952 to $20,200,000. British Columbia remained unchanged and the other eight provinces dropped.

Agriculture Minister A. W. Mackenzie says in his 1953 annual report that the owners of the 23,000 farms in Nova Scotia are engaged in following a long-term agricultural and marketing program.

"They have mechanized their farms and have adopted up-to-date methods," he said. "They are carrying on a successful farm enterprise but how long they will remain in this position is a matter of some concern. . . ."

MUST BE EFFICIENT

Although gross farm income in 1953 totalled $37,750,000, costs were high and only those farmers who used efficient methods were able to make ends meet.

Farm operating costs, Mr. Mackenzie said, are about 20 per cent higher than in 1948.

"This has resulted in the cost-of-production - agricultural - income ratio getting out of line and is one reason why farmers in certain branches of agriculture are experiencing difficulty in making ends meet."

Expect Laniel Gov't To Win On Vote

PARIS (AP) — Parliamentary observers expect Premier Joseph Laniel's government to win a National Assembly vote of confidence Thursday unless the besieged Indo-China fortress of Dien Bien Phu falls to the Vietminh rebels in the meantime.

Laniel told the assembly Tuesday night it would have to look for a new government or postpone demands for a debate on Indo-China beginning May 14. When deputies, including some of his own supporters, persisted in their call for the debate, the premier made the issue one of confidence in the cabinet.

This would require the government's resignation if the assembly does not uphold its demand for a postponement of the discussion.

The French constitution requires a full day to elapse before such a vote.

HAVELOCK (ENS).—The prize winners at the weekly euchre party sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the local of the Canadian Legion Monday evening were: first, Mrs. W. Ketchen; second, Mrs. Ralph Alley; third, Mrs. Mae Hill, lucky chair, Mrs. Claude Pollock. Nine tables were played. The conveners were Mrs. George Brooks and Mrs. Mae Hill.

What On Earth

DARTMOUTH, Mass. (AP)—John Lemos stopped his car abruptly Tuesday night when he saw what appeared to be a man hanging from a tree. Looking closer, he found it was the remains of a 200-pound seal swinging from a rope. Police had no explanation.

Labor Party Makes Big Election Gains

GLASGOW (Reuters) — The Labor party made sweeping gains in Tuesday's local government elections in Scotland, capturing control of six more town councils and increasing majorities elsewhere.

Control was gained in Dundee, third biggest Scottish city, with nine Labor gains; at Kirkcaldy, Fifeshire linoleum manufacturing town; and at Paisley, Kilmarnock, Renfrew and Kilwinning.

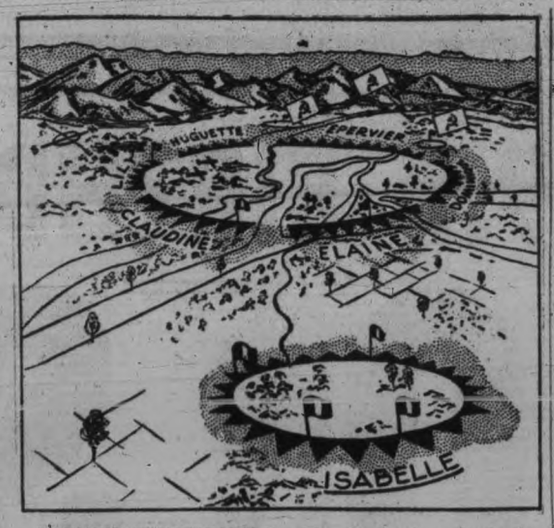
But Socialists lost their majorities in the Airdrie and Denny town councils.

With final results still awaited, Labor was credited with 47 gains and 17 losses.

Overnight results showed a sharp swing to the left everywhere, despite squabbles among the Labor party's national leaders.

Socialist quarters say the left-ward swing is due to resentment against the Conservative government over high living costs.

Local government elections will be held next week in England and Wales.



FRENCH STRONGHOLD—The Reds abruptly broke off their mass assault on the key fortress of Dien Bien Phu, Indo-China, after the slashing bayonets of French Foreign Legionnaires drove the Reds from outpost Isabelle (foreground). The ferocious fighting since May 1st has cost the French three of a score of strong points making up the hedgehog cluster of outer forts (serrated perimeter).

Find Canadians Tough As Customers

LONDON (Reuters) — A government guide on export trade with Canada pictures the average Canadian as a pretty tough customer.

The guide has been drawn up by the Board of Trade to give advice and guidance to British exporters with an eye on the Canadian market.

It said living standards were high in Canada where economy was expanding.

"There is a much stronger emphasis on selling or merchandising in Canada than there is in the United Kingdom," it said. "Goods are not 'bought' by the customer; they have to be 'sold' to him.

GOOD JUDGE

"The Canadian is price-and-value conscious. He is a good judge for value for money, but disinclined to buy what he regards as superfluous value.

"His judgment of quality is not, as is so often the case in the United Kingdom, based on durability for he is less interested in durability which will outlive improvement in design."

The Canadian market is very much subject to American influence, it said. "But . . . goods for sale in Canada should not . . . be slavish imitations of American models. They should be designed for Canadian taste and use after careful study of the market conditions."

Believes Canadians Much Too Humble

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Canadians often underestimate their importance in international affairs, Jennie Lee, British Labor member of Parliament, said Tuesday.

She told representatives of Canadian Congress of Labor unions, holding a seminar on international affairs, that Canada's unique position of understanding, but at the same time being able to differ with both Britain and the United States, gave her great influence.

The seminar is closed to the press but a statement is issued daily summarizing the highlights.

Miss Lee, wife of Aneurin Bevan, asked delegates to urge the Canadian government to align itself with Britain and a group of Asian prime ministers in seeking admission of Red China to the United Nations.

Dismiss Charge

KITCHENER (CP)—A charge of illegal possession of liquor against Walter Geiger of New Hamburg was dismissed Tuesday. The charge was the last of several laid against different persons as a result of a community-centre party marking the installation of artificial ice equipment in the New Hamburg arena. The party was held March 26.

Blood Stream Used to Combat Rheumatic, Arthritic Pain; No Pills

Penetrant Dilates Capillaries, Flows Fresh Oxygen-Rich Blood Through Afflicted Areas

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — Discovery of an entirely new method of relieving pain has been announced here. This new method applies, for the first time, a well-known medical principle of pain relief to a product now readily available to Canadians for home use. The discovery literally calls upon the blood stream to bathe away pains of rheumatism, arthritis, sore muscles and joints of most kinds.

Sold under the brand name "InfraRUB", this new cream is odorless and greaseless. InfraRUB has the unusual ability to penetrate the skin and dilate tiny blood vessels deep down in sore muscles and joints. This permits fresh, oxygen-rich blood to flow freely through the afflicted area. The fresh blood, combined with InfraRUB's soothing medication, attacks pain at the source. Users claim almost immediate relief from rheumatic and arthritic pains, sore muscles and joints.

Another feature of this new product that appeals to many people is its ease of application. No long and painful rubbing is necessary as InfraRUB penetrates in a few seconds and vanishes with a moment's light massage.

InfraRUB leaves no oily film or pungent objectionable odour on the skin. Users find they are able to put on clothing in complete safety immediately after application.

InfraRUB is now sold at all drug counters. No prescription is necessary.

Baku, City Of Oil Derricks Has Friendly Atmosphere

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Baku is known as the Soviet Union's "Windy City," but no leaves rustle in its forests.

The forests are oil derricks. Mile upon mile of countryside, as far as the eye can see, bristles with the steel pylons and their pumping machinery.

Baku is the fourth city of the Soviet Union and its strategic importance is reflected by the squadrons of MiGs lined up on its airstrip.

BIG OIL SOURCE

The Baku oilfields are Russia's largest single source of oil and account for one-half the country's production. The city is capital of the Soviet Republic of Azerbaijan whose Caspian sea coast adjoins that of Iran. It is joined by a railway to Batum, oil port on the Black sea.

Azerbaijan became part of Czarist Russia in 1806, and its oil has been exploited since the famous Nobel brothers, Robert and Ludwig, started a refinery in 1875. Other Swedish, French, German and British financiers, including the "House of Rothschild," shared in its development.

Foreign interests were thrown out after the 1917 revolution. By the outbreak of the Second World War, Baku had become the second greatest oil producing area of the world.

Politically, Baku was the scene of Joseph Stalin's first successes as a Communist organizer, but they were not considered significan at the time.

SECURITY AREA

I flew to Baku from Tashkent by way of the Asiatic cities of Ashkabad and Chopjoul. Driving through the oilfields to the city with a Russian guide, I asked to look at a well. She said "no," firmly.

"This is a security area and foreigners are not allowed to visit it. Visitors to Baku are not allowed outside the city limits. You are able to see this only because the road from the airfield has to go through it."

Because Baku is an island seaport with harbor installations, there are particular regulations concerning foreigners, especially photographers. It was forbidden to turn right on leaving the hotel, or to go far into the hilly area back of it.

Baku is really a Russian city with an Azerbaijan element. There seems little link between the capital on the Caspian and its predominantly agricultural hinterland, where most of the 3,200,000 Azerbaijani live.

OTHER INDUSTRIES

Besides oil, Baku's rising industry includes flour mills, textile and clothing factories, bromine and iodine extraction plants and other chemical works. It has army barracks, dry docks, engineering works and factories producing equipment for the oil industry. Its food industries include packing plants for grapes, olives, figs and pistachios, for which it is famous in the U.S.S.R.

A tremendous housing program is under way. Designs for new apartment blocks, public buildings, and hospitals incorporate traditional Azerbaijani motifs.

The city has a friendlier atmosphere than purely Russian cities of the union. I had a fine evening in one restaurant with a friendly Azerbaijani soldier of the Red Army and his wife. A Russian couple stopped briefly at the table, but left when they realized I was a foreigner. The Azerbaijanis don't seem to care.

Baku by moonlight suggests a subdued Mediterranean city, its battlements, arched entranceways and dimly-lit cafes making it almost human—for the Soviet Union.

Italy Sentences Spies

TURIN, Italy (Reuters)—Four Italians were found guilty Tuesday of spying for Communist Czechoslovakia and sentenced to prison terms ranging from 17 to nine years. A military tribunal was told that the band of spies was led by Eugenio Doria, 26-year-old worker said to have been trained in a Czech spy school.

Gambled With Children

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Charles Wesley Readshaw, 53, Kansas City, was fined $20 Tuesday night on a charge of operating a gambling game at a children's carnival. Police arrested Readshaw after watching him make bets "from five cents on up" with children throwing baseballs at ragdoll targets.

Training School Leader Addresses CGIT

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—"God has put into your hands a life to serve Him, to use and to make beautiful," said Mrs. W. J. Campion of the United Church Training School, Toronto, addressing a CGIT mother and daughter banquet in the United church on Monday evening.

The church must have young women offering themselves as leaders. When you think of your life work, think of the church. The future is yours to choose what you'll do and how your life will count. I certainly hope some of you will come into full-time work for the church," concluded Mrs. Campion.

Introduced by Mrs. H. C. Wolfraim, the speaker was thanked by Marie Curry. The Rev. H. C. Wolfraim was chairman. Head table guests included Mr. and Mrs. Wolfraim, Mrs. Neil Wood, leader of the CGIT, and Mr. Wood, Marion Tretheway, president of the CGIT, the guest speaker and Mrs. H. J. Brown, president of the Women's Missionary Society.

PROPOSE TOASTS

The toast to the Queen was proposed by Mr. Wolfraim; to the mothers, by Patty Jakins and replied to by Mrs. H. Trethewey; to the church and Sunday school, by Marion Trethewey, to which Mr. Wood, superintendent, replied. Ruth Northey thanked the members of the Women's Missionary and Service Club, who, under the convenership of Mrs. A. W. Newson and Mrs. Douglas Davis, had prepared the banquet.

Awards to outstanding CGIT members were presented as follows: CGIT awards, presented by Mrs. Wood to Marie Curry, Mueretta Dunford, Isobel Coons, Judy Foster, Karen Walker; WMS award by Mrs. Brown to Marion Frankish; the Service Club, presented by Mrs. C. V. Coons, to Patty Jakins and Margaret Richardson, and the Young Adults' award, by Mrs. H. Maidment, to Brenda Andrews. Each award entitles the recipient to attend either Camp Quin-Mo-Lac or the leadership school at Whitby.

Other items on the program included a piano solo by Mrs. Trethewey; a vocal duet by Elizabeth Bolton and Nancy Milligan, accompanied by Miss Helen Kelly at the piano, and two skits by members of the CGIT.

Daisy Produces Insecticide Fatal To Pesky Flies, Bugs

WASHINGTON — In Africa, Japan and Ecuador farm workers are paid to pick daisies.

Hower idyllic it sounds, picking daisies is purely a business proposition. The white-petaled, yellow-centered flower is known as pyrethrum, says the National Geographic Society, and it yields an extremely potent insecticide. Last year the United States imported almost 8,000,000 pounds of the dried blooms.

Pyrethrum's fluid or powder extract serves a score of uses. Householders spray it to kill mosquitoes, flies and ants. Cattlemen douse it on their herds. Sugar beet farmers spread it on their crops. In flour mills and food plants its liberal use assures sanitary operations.

PERSIAN WILDFLOWER

Chrysanthemum cinerariaefolium, as it is botanically known, was discovered centuries ago in Persia where the flower grows wild. When use of the powder spread to Europe, Yugoslavia became a chief source.

For a time, Japan gained a virtual monopoly on the product. In the last 20 years, however, British East Africa and the Belgian Congo have emerged as the leading growers.

Ecuador's initial exports in 1953 capped a 10-year research program to develop pyrethrum as a major crop. India, Russia, and a half-dozen Latin American nations have grown small quantities.

Pyrethrum was introduced into the United States about 1960. Attempts to grow the crop commercially in California, southern Colorado and eastern Pennsylvania failed because of excessive harvesting costs.

The plants bloom spasmodically and the flowers must be picked by hand. They can be sun dried, but in most large-scale operations, drying is done artificially.

Pyrethrum thrives in a warm, dry climate. Its average yield is 700-800 pounds of dried blossoms per acre. Oddly enough, although the flower is a deadly insecticide, it is not immune from insect attack in the field.

In 1949 the U.S. department of agriculture developed a chemical compound named allethrin which closely resembles pyrethrum. The new product, now being made by two American chemical companies, can be substituted for pyrethrum for some uses but is not expected to displace it entirely.

Pyrethrum growers in Ecuador and in Africa have extensive research programs aimed at increasing the plant's yield and strength. They plan to build extraction facilities to eliminate costly shipments of bulk flowers.

EDC Assembly Approved

PARIS (AP)—The six countries of the European army plan agreed Tuesday night to set up a popularly elected assembly to oversee the proposed pool of military forces. This would clear away another block to ratification of the army pact by the French National Assembly. The interim committee of the European army has been threshing over this question for months, but until now was unable to get any agreement.

Reds Gather Leaflets

MUNICH (AP) — An escaped Czech border guard was quoted today as saying Czechoslovakia's Red government reacted promptly to millions of Western leaflets being floated into that country by balloons. Radio Free Europe said the guard, Rudolph Sznapka, reported his unit had been ordered to collect all leaflets dropped in its area and turn them over promptly to headquarters.

Thinking about his Future?

Combine thorough trades training, schooling, sound discipline, with understanding of the spirit of youth and you have the elements of the Canadian Army's Soldier Apprentice Plan for young men of 16. The Soldier Apprentice training is designed to enable young men to gain promotion to higher ranks in the Army.

Soldier Apprentices are eligible for all Army benefits, including 30 days annual leave. They receive half pay when 16 and on their 17th birthday they receive full pay.

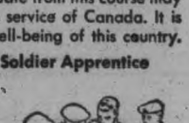
The happy enthusiasm of the young men now enrolled as Soldier Apprentices is perhaps the best indication of how successful this plan has been. The young men who graduate from this course may build good careers for themselves in the service of Canada. It is service which is vital to the continued well-being of this country.

To be eligible, the young man must be at least qualified for high school entrance. There are added opportunities for those with higher qualifications. He must have attained his sixteenth but not his seventeenth birthday.

Courses begin in September but applications are now being received. Following interviews, the applicants may be accepted after June 1st and then sent home on leave until courses commence in the Fall.

The young men who are accepted for Soldier Apprentice training receive:

- thorough trades training in one of 16 trades.
- academic training comparable to that received in secondary schools.
- the general military training of the Canadian soldier.



To obtain an interesting booklet and full information on the Soldier Apprentice Plan, write, phone or visit the Army Information Recruiting Centre nearest your home.

Low Death Rate Transplanting Diseased Hearts

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Arthur Vineberg, the Montreal surgeon who provides angina pectoris sufferers with a transplanted artery into the heart, reported today that the operative mortality for 29 cases over a four-year period is 14 per cent.

In a paper prepared for presentation to the American Association of Thoracic Surgeons, Br. Vineberg said that in 23 cases where the patients suffered no anginal pain while at rest, there was one death —an operative mortality rate of 4.3 per cent.

In six cases of status angina—anginal pain while the patient is at complete rest—there were three deaths, a mortality rate of 50 per cent.

Dr. Vineberg also reported on experimental work, carried out with animals at the department of experimental physiology at McGill University, showing amounts of blood flow and oxygen reaching the heart through the transplanted artery.

The surgical procedure originated and developed by Dr. Vineberg is known as the internal mammary artery implant. The purpose of the operation is to bypass disease coronary arteries with the fully functioning chest artery and supply blood to the heart.

REPORTS ON RESULTS

Dr. Vineberg reported on 10 human cases one to four years after operation and 19 cases one to nine months after operation.

In the first group three patients, all cases of status angina, died within 62 hours after the operation. Five of the seven who survived the operation are working eight to 16 hours a day. Three of these five are pain free; one, who works 16 hours daily, has slight pain when walking fast or lifting. One of the five worked for two years and died while pushing his car out of snow. Death was due to an old rupture in the heart muscle. There was no thrombosis—artery blockage.

Of the two others in the seven, one lived three years and died from a form of anaemia when the artery pulled from the heart. The other patient shows slight improvement a year after the operation.

In the 19 cases studied one to nine months after operation, the operation on one patient was not completed because of pulmonary edema—a swollen state of tissue, with watery fluid, in the lung area. One patient died of pulmonary edema two hours after the operation.

Of the 17 others, 12 are pain free and have increased exercise tolerance. Three have pain but are improved. One had severe pain, without improvment. One has about the same pain as before the operation.

Al Rollins Wins Hart Trophy Some Writers Object To Choice

TORONTO (CP)—Goalkeeper Al Rollins of Chicago Black Hawks was awarded the Hart Trophy Monday night as the most valuable player to his National Hockey League team and at least two sports columnists said Tuesday he shouldn't have got it.

The selection for the 1953-54 season was made in a poll of hockey writers and sportcasters in the six league cities. It started a field day for second-guessers who may have figured that either defenceman Red Kelly of Detroit Red Wings or Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens was a cinch for the award.

Commented Elmer Ferguson of the Montreal Herald:

"We can't recall when the experts made a more idiotic selection. . . If this sort of mawkish sentimental voting is to become a permanency, it's better we should scrap all the awards in the book and turn over their allocation to the league or the governors or the coaches."

Baz O'Meara, Montreal Star: "Our own preference was for Maurice Richard and this was not dictated by devotion to Canadiens or Richard friendship or sentiment. . . Nearly everybody thought Kelly would win the award but he has had plenty of honors and awards this year. . . our own idea is that there should be some other method of selection, some method by which referees and linesmen should be allowed into the panel."

Red Burnett of the Toronto Daily Star said:

"It's just possible that Detroit's Red Kelly, Canadiens' Maurice Richard and Leafs' Harry Lumley were more valuable to their teams than Rollins in the strict sense of the word.

"However, from our point of vantage, the hungry-looking six-foot-two native of Vanguard, Sask., rates the coveted Hart Trophy—maybe they should spell it 'heart' in this case—for courage if nothing else."

Rollins was credited by many with holding the Hawks together last season. They won only 12 games in the 70-game schedule and finished in last place.

For All To See

CREMONA, Italy (AP)—Nine fishermen battled for seven hours Tuesday and finally landed a sturgeon weighing 625 pounds. It was as long as the flower-decked truck on which they proudly displayed it through the city's streets. The fish was taken from the River Po.

Children Must Pass Through Seven Stages Successfully To Become Mature Adults

The development of a child's personality largely depends on four informative influences: parents, playmates, community life and general communication, and school teachers. The most influential factor is the parent, for this includes at least two of these roles.

Dr. S. R. Laycock of Madoc, recently retired from the faculty of the University of Saskatchewan, defined the needs a child has of these teaching groups during the seven stages of development, at a mental health address, sponsored by the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association, in Queen Mary auditorium, Tuesday night.

From the moment of birth the child must realize a sense of trust in his closest relationships. At this stage he is completely dependent on his parents and must be conscious of being wanted and loved. The parent must accept the child with all its imperfections and gifts and, in so doing, teach it to accept itself. All children are not born equally gifted and this fact above all must be realized and accepted.

SHOULD NOT RIDICULE

Dr. Laycock sited the example of the mentally under-average child being ridiculed by parents for a poor school report; the child may not be capable of a higher grade. He must be praised for his talents, and not deplored for his failings. The school teacher has a responsibility to the "problem" child. A good teacher realizes that the child needs help to overcome whatever disturbance it has, and that disliking the child will only increase this disturbance.

"Possibly my clerical friends too often slur over the last phrase of the Lord's commandment, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself'," said Dr. Laycock. "The child must have some love of self (self esteem) if it is to love those surrounding it, otherwise it is completely taken up with its own troubles . . . in a sense is neurotic."

The second stage is the showing of independence first noticeable in the two-year-old. It is at this point that the most discretion is required on the part of the parents to see that the child is allowed to investigate the world awakening around him, and yet be governed by a certain amount of discipline. This is the stage where exterior control should begin the transformation to self-control.

From the point of investigation, the child quickly advances through the stages where self-initiative first takes the form of imagination (i.e., the desire to imitate a fireman, engineer or other adult ocupation and secondly, the form of reality, wherein the child accomplishes certain things (i.e., the reading of certain books or the practice of doing household chores).

CRITICAL STAGE

It is during this time that the young mind must be taught to identify itself with other things and develop a sympathetic understanding for things and beings outside itself. During this period of accomplishment, education may play its most destructive part. If the child is dull, the average curriculum may discourage him; if he is brilliant, the same curriculum may bore him and cause a sloven, apathetic attitude not easily corrected.

As the child approaches the adolescent stage, the sense of self, mentally and physically encroaches. The two most important factors here are (1) the wish of the individual to be treated on an adult plane, (2) the desire of the individual to be one of the crowd. Reason and compromise must direct the limitations of the parent on the child and dictatorial or lenient extremes can be equally harmful. The 'teen-ager must be allowed to make his own decisions in many cases, particularly that of choosing his vocation. It is the period of emancipation from adult control.

An establishment of a sense of intimacy develops almost concurrently with the sense of self. It is here that the ability to love requires fertilization and encouragment. As the individual progresses, he passes through the stages of mother love, the gang age, or attraction for members of his own sex, the fickle stage when numerous attractions between members of the opposite sex occur, and finally the period when a true and lasting union developes between man and woman. Because of various imperfections of environmental influal may cessate at any one of these stages, and it is this cessation, not teh temporary dalliance in any one of them, which is abnormal.

The concluding period is that of the mature adult who has acquired a sense of integrity; the ideals and principals of living which include honesty, goodwill and service to mankind. Without these standards, the personality is in some way abnormal; the mentality in need of correction.

"Frankly, we have not done well enough so far," concluded Dr. Laycock. "But, the extended program of positive training, preventiveness and remediation, advocated by the Canadian Mental Health Association will go a long way in making this country a place filled with happy, well-adjusted people."

Suspicious, But Dismissed

A privately-laid charge against Bruce Shane of Cavan, in which it was alleged he stole two cases of ale from a parked truck, was dismissed Tuesday in magistrate's court.

Magistrate W. R. Philp said that while the circumstances were suspicious there wasn't enough evidence to warrant a conviction.

The charge was laid by Roger McFadden of 759 Chamberlain St. who alleged that Shane stole 24 pints of beer that on the afternoon of April 15 was on the back seat of his panel truck. The loaded truck was at the rear of the A and P parking lot.

After a tipoff, McFadden laid a charge of theft against Shane. Then Shane allegedly called him on the telephone and arranged to pay him $8 for the beer but wouldn't admit anything.

Shane testified that he didn't take the beer but was willing to pay the $8 rather than go to court.

Clarence Neill of Patterson St. said he saw a tall man with some beer around McFadden's truck, but he couldn't identify him.

Magistrate Philp said it was suspicious. Shane had contacted a virtual stranger by telephone and offered to pay for the stolen beer. But the evidence wasn't strong enough to warrant a conviction in a criminal case.

Canadian Actor Appears With Guinness

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Timothy Finley of Toronto has found that actors, like small boys, must sometimes be seen and not heard.

Findley, 23, is appearing with Alec Guinness in "The Prisoner," first stage production by the latter since he returned from the Stratford, Ont., Shakespearian Festival last year.

The Canadian speaks only half a sentence in his first west end part. But he doesn't mind being speechless. It isn't the first time.

"I couldn't talk when Alec offered me the chance to come here," he said in an interview, explaining how he would have found it hard to believe a year ago that he would ever be on the same London stage as Guinness.

INVITED HERE

Findley came to Britain last September along with Montreal's Robert Easton, 20, at Guinness' invitation. The British actor, impressed by their work in the Stratford cast, offered them the fare across, accommodation and three months' fee-paid training at the Central School of Dramatic Art.

The two actors lived for three months with Guinness, his wife and 13-year-old son, spent Christmas with them and then moved into separate digs.

"The Prisoner" is on the Cardinal Mindszenty theme. It concerns the efforts of an Iron Curtain interrogator to extract a confession of treason from a Roman Catholic cardinal, played by Guiness. There are only three speaking parts in the play. Easton has a wholly silent part.

Easier Home Buying

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain Tuesday announced plans to make home-buying easier for the average family man—by having the government underwrite big mortgages on low-price houses. Under the plan, the prospective homeowner will have to supply only a small down payment when buying a house through a building society.

Red Chinese Deny Indo-China Meddling

GENEVA (AP) — Red China's spokesman at the Geneva conference, Huang Hua, said Tuesday China "has made no intervention of any kind" in the Indo-China war.

Huang told a press conference the Vietminh rebel forces had obtained their arms by capturing them from the French.

He described reports of Chinese aid to the Vietminh as "rumors at variance with the facts" and said the rebels "undoubtedly obtained their arms in the same way we obtained ours in the struggle against Chiang Kai-shek."

GENEVA (CP)—L. B. Pearson, Canadian minister of external affairs, said Tuesday night he expects to remain at the Geneva conference for about another week. He will be succeeded as head of the Canadian delegation here by Chester Ronning, Canadian minister to Norway and Iceland.

Requests Press Admitted To Meetings

KITCHENER (CP)—A call for the admission of the press to council committee sessions was made Tuesday by reeve Clayton Rickert of Waterloo township. Reporters were barred by resolution passed at the beginning of this year.

Reeve Rickert said paying councillors for committee meetings is costing too much money. He said reporters should be allowed to hear background discussions.

He said in a statement that all committee meetings should be held before the council session with the press in attendance. Committee decisions could then be ratified the same day.

Decide To Increase Deputy Governors

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has decided to increase the number of $27,500-a-year deputy governors of the Bank of Canada.

Finance Minister Abbott informed the Commons banking committee Tuesday that he will ask for an amendment to banking legislation to provide for an increase.

The only deputy now is James Coyne. There also is an assistant deputy, L. P. St. Amour, who has been with the bank since its creation in 1935.

An assistant deputy, he gets an annual salary of $15,000. It is understood the government plans to make him a deputy.

Army Lawyer's Needling Checks McCarthy

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—For three days an elderly, gentle-looking Boston lawyer, Joseph N. Welch, sat almost speechless at the Senate inquiry into Senator McCarthy's feud with army officials.

Mild, almost detached in a room where emotions were steadily rising, he had a good-humored look in his eye as if he were saying over and over to himself: "Oh, dear, what a very strange place."

For a good part of three days Army Secretary Stevens, who had hired Welch to be counsel for him and his Pentagon partners in the case, was slammed with questions. For the first two days Welch said almost nothing.

A couple of times he asked Ray H. Jenkins, the Senate sub-committee's special counsel, to go a little slower on the questioning.

Welch seemed to enjoy the effect of a slightly exaggerated phrase—as when he told Jenkins the latter could do no wrong and asked the chairman, Senator Mundt, to use his "enormous" power to get him a microphone.

NEEDLED COHN

Always punctuating his remarks with gracious gestures, Welch seemed at times like a man who had stepped out of an earlier and courtlier page in history.

Sudenly, on Tuesday, he turned out to be a needler. When Roy M. Cohn, chief counsel of McCarthy's sub-committee and one of the principals in the case, took the stand to testify under oath, Welch went to work on him.

He asked Cohn to look at a photograph. Cohn said he had to pull it closer because he was nearsighted. Welch, very softly and courtesously, agreed that Cohn was nearsighted, implying that Cohn had displayed that tendency before.

Cohn was stopped cold—which was unusual for him. Cohn confessed he couldn't match Welch's quips.

WELCH VS. McCARTHY

If what happened is a sample of what's to come, then McCarthy may be in for an unusual experience when he testifies under oath and is cross-examined by Welch.

McCarthy has been called a lot of names since coming to Washington in 1946. He's called a lot of names himself. He's ridiculed others and been ridiculed. He's tried to be humorous. But he's heavy-handed. So are most of his critics when they try to be funny at his expense.

Welch may turn out to be heavy-handed, too, but if he keeps the light touch he showed Tuesday, his encounter with the senator may be the highlight of the hearing.

It's possible the army picked Welch for the very qualities he displayed in the belief that, while McCarthy had shown himself a match for the heavy hand, he may be vulnerable to a light one.

See Margarine Battle Looming In U.K.

LONDON (CP)—Margarine is to be derationed May 10 and a big battle looms.

The margarine industry, which has been turning out an anonymous, pooled product for the government for 14 years, has spent thousands of pounds on new "marge" in which such factors as "spreadability" and texture are paramount factors. Butter is expected to fight back.

Margarine makers—and butter interests—have planned advertising campaigns expected to rival those following the decontrol of gasoline and the coming of detergents.

WOULD KEEP ADVANTAGE

Margarine interests will be anxious to retain the advantages in consumption gained through rationing, wherein the pre-war ratio was reversed to give the manufactured foodstuff a 3-1 advantage over butter.

Margarine was invented by a French chemist called Mege-Mouries, who combined substance including minced beef fat and fresh sheep stomachs to win a contest sponsored by Napoleon. Nowadays, such oils as peanut, palm kernel, coconut and palm are used.

Ford Plans Layoff Of 1,500 Employees

WINDSOR (CP) — Ford Motor Company of Canada, in a letter to employees, Tuesday announced layoff of more than 1,500 production employees May 12.

The letter, signed by T. J. Emmert, executive vice-president, said a sharp decline in truck sales will force a shutdown in the truck assembly line, not expected to last past mid-June.

The company previously announced 682 men will be laid off in connection with the transfer of motor car production to Oakville.

Charles McDonald, president of Local 200, United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) said the new layoffs bring to 2,600 the number of men to lose their work at Ford since the first of the year.

Chest X-Ray Urged For All Citizens

COLDSPRINGS (ENS).— Hugh W. Calverley of Cobourg, survey chairman of the Cobourg area for the forthcoming free TB mass X-ray, spoke Monday night in the Coldsprings hall.

This drive is sponsored by the Northumberland-Durham Tuberculosis Association and is financed through the sale of Christmas seals.

About 35 solicitors from Baltimore, Bethesda South, Precious Corners, Camborne and Coldsprings met under the leadership of Mrs. Keith Harper, survey chairman of this area.

Mr. Calverley urged every citizen to get an X-ray during the coming survey. He said only those who had received an X-ray in the past six months could feel exempt from this obligation.

Many people became infected and in turn infected others without knowing they had active TB. The pathetic fact is that such people infect those closest to them.

The success of this program and TB seal funds depended on the solicitors of this area, he said.

The mobile clinic will be at Coldsprings community hall May 19, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. and in Cobourg at the market building, May 25 to 28, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

McGillis Quits As Head Of Centre Committee, Member Of Exhibition Bd.

Charges He Was Kept In Dark About Site; Claims Will Clash With Midway Contract
Revolts Against "One Man Running Show"

D. A. McGillis announced today he had resigned the chairmanship of the Memorial Centre general committee and from the board of directors of the Peterborough Exhibition.

Mr. McGillis said he had not heard anything about a site being picked for the Memorial Centre until he read in The Examiner that the site had been sanctioned by the Exhibition board. He hadn't been asked to attend any meetings of the site committee or of any other committees in connection with the Memorial Centre in the past six or seven weeks.

"I've been kept completely in the dark as to what's going on," Mr. McGillis told The Examiner.

He said the Exhibition Board had signed a contract with Paddy Conklin to bring a midway to the exhibition next August. Mr. Conklin had come to Peterborough and selected a location for the midway, which apparently coincided with the site selected for the Memorial Centre.

"We'd be breaking our contract with Paddy Conklin if we started to build there," Mr. McGillis said. "He wouldn't let us do that."

The midway contract included a stipulation regarding where it was to be located, Mr. McGillis told The Examiner.

"I didn't know anything about the site being picked," he said. "I'm just walking around in the dark.

"I asked Cec. Perdue (Examiner sports editor) where he got the information about the site and he told me."

(City Clerk E. A. Outram is chairman of the site committee.)

"I figure there's only one man in Peterborough running the show," Mr. McGillis said. "But there's one thing he can't do; and that is to tell McGillis what to do. I have a mind of my own."

Asked about the reason for his resignation from the Exhibition Board, Mr. McGillis said, "There are a lot of nice people on the board and a lot of very stupid people.

"A lot of people on the board will tell you one thing in a board meeting and then say another when they get out."

Mr. McGillis said that, although he had not been at any meetings in connection with the Memorial Centre for six or seven weeks, he had attended Exhibition Board meetings regularly.

ST. PETER'S PIANO

The separate school board will investigate purchase of a second-hand piano for the St. Peter's gym. The suggestion came after an application from St. Peter's CYO to hold a dance in the gym May 14, for most such dances require pianos. The board felt that extra piano rental to groups using the gym would shortly amortize cost of the piano. The St. Peter's CYO application was approved.

CHANGE OF VENUE

The separate school board plans to meet in a different school each month henceforth, to give board members a chance to become personally acquainted with the various separate schools in Peterborough. Tuesday night they met at Sacred Heart on Lake St. Formerly, meetings were held at St. Mary's school across the street from St. Peter's cathedral.

TWENTY THOUSAND RED AND WHITE small pine strees are being planted today (upper photo) at the Nassau Hill flat by 81 members of Lakefield District High School 4H Club. 81 Lakefield Students

Plant 20,000 Pines at Nassau

Lakefield 4-H Forestry Club, composed of 81 boys and girls of the high school, set about planting approximately 20,000 seedling pines at Nassau this morning.

Seventy of the students reported at 9 a.m. to Frank C. Paterson and Ken Best of the Ontario department of agriculture to resume the work begun a year ago.

The objective of 150,000 trees, seedling red and white pines, is to be extended over ten years. This project plantation is on the property of the Canadian General Electric Co. on the west side of the river, immediately north of the Nassau bridge.

Part of this morning's chore was a replacement of infant trees that didn't survive the winter. This was a shovel job in the furrows that were turned over last May.

PLOWMAN SICK

Mechanical assistance today was provided by a tractor and plow supplied by Cliff Curtis. Norman Blodgett, Junior Farmer of the Curtis staff, had to retire at 11 o'clock with a pain in his side, and was taken to a doctor's office by Mr. Paterson, agricultural representative, for examination of cause.

There was also a tractor-drawn planter that was brought from the Northumberland forest by Claude Phillips. Boys and girls took turns in thrusting pines into the trench as the machine moved along.

Assisting in directing the expansive job over a wide acreage were Willard Thurston, district forester of Lindsay, recently transferred from Huron county, and John Bell of Lakefield, zone forester.

TEN-YEAR PLAN

The first year's growth and rooting of the pines that were placed a year ago probably encouraged the 4-H Club young folks as they tackled the second instalment of the 10-year undertaking Most of those trees are thrusting out new shoots, but will be another three or four years before they stand high enough to show themselves to people passing along the Lakefield highway.

The project of Lakefield 4-H Foresty Club has received attention in club publicity all the way across the country. Boys and girls were carrying buckets of trees along the fresh furrows, and others armed with shovels were setting the seedlings in position at required depth, then heeling the soil around them.

The trees are provided by CGE, and Bob McMorran was among those looking over the reforestation activity. Cases of chocolate milk were provided, and arrangements were made for lunch.

Separate Board Wants Facts Before Deciding

The separate school board does not want to commit itself on tentative school sites in the 660-acre land assembly scheme in the north end of the city until "we get more definite information" on building plans in this largely unsettled area.

"It's hard to distinguish between grandiose plans and actuality," said chairman J. G. McCarney. He was commenting on "pressure" from the department of planning and development so that subdivision plans can be made.

Separate school inspector J. C. Doyle acted for the department of education as a middleman between the separate school board and the planning department. He passed on the word to the board that the planning department would appreciate an early decision.

The department had hoped that sites would have been confirmed by April 21. They have asked the department of education, represented by Mr. Doyle and public school superintendent K. S. Wightman to act as agents in getting the wishes of the boards back to the department.

Mr. Wightman has suggested that the separate school board might have the wrong impression about school sites on this area. He said the department of planning "is simply asking us if we are satisfied that enough acreage has been set aside for school sites, when and if we need it."

"I might have chosen the sites differently," said Mr. Wightman, "but we can't tell the planners how to do their planning." He pointed out that the department request represents no firm committment, but assures the school boards that sites will be reserved until the board decides whether or not to build.

Mr. Wightman approved this arrangement, recalling that other land assembly projects had contained so many houses that by the time schools became necessary, there was little room. He said that he had confirmed the planning department's tentative choices, but expected no schools to be built for five years or more.

Meanwhile the separate school board was cautious although one member, Harry Bartlett, pointed out that "it's not a question of money. The department just wants to go ahead with subdividing."

Chairman McCarney suggested that a representative of the department of planning and development explain the whole arrangement to the board. He wanted to be sure that the board is protected in the event that the site is developed piecemeal. He did not want to see the board holding on to unused sites in undeveloped territory, and wondering "where are all the people coming from" to fill up this area.

CHILDREN MUDDY

Reports from separate school principals this month reflect worry over children's health in muddy spring weather. At St. John's children must go "up over their ankles" to get to the school building, since, according to one member of the board "the city is way behind in sidewalk building." It was suggested that a cinder path might alleviate the trouble here. The principal of St. Anne's also has suggested cinder paths west of Chemong road.

Civil Defence Committee Votes To Disband; Lacks Finances, Public Support

With No Help From Province, Members Feel Could Not Handle Disaster
Decide Existence Would Mislead Public

Peterborough's advisory committee on civil defence decided unanimously Tuesday to ask permission from city council to disband.

The decision was manifestly a result of provincial secretary Arthur Welsh's statement a week ago that Ontario did not intend at the time to join or participate in any new federal system to finance civil defence work in municipalities.

The local committee's formal resolution stated it "now finds that a combination of financial stringency, public apathy and an apparent conflict of opinion on policy between the Dominion and provincial governments makes further progress under existing conditions impossible."

HAVE MADE PROGRESS

Much progress had been made in certain aspects of civil defence organization, it was said. "The prevailing situation however does not warrant this committee creating the impression among the citizens of Peterborough that a civil defence organization could function if a disaster of even moderate intensity should occur.

"To ensure a minimum effort, at least a nucleus of properly-trained personnel with a suitable headquarters and complete communication system is essential. This requirement must have a full-time or part-time director to provide continuing effort and efficiency. This of course entails a considerable annual expenditure.

"Insofar as there appears to be no likelihood of any early change in present policies, and not being able to pursue this organization and training task to a successful conclusion, it is resolved that this committee request permission from city council to disband."

G. R. E. Melton, who placed the resolution before the committee, pointed out that the civil defence objectives of the federal department of health and welfare included the establishment by local authorities of an operational organization of key personnel on a "skeleton basis" trained in the routine duties required of them in the event of an emergency.

This would require a trained director and a suitable headquarters. This would be impossible without adequate financial assistance.

Max Swanston, who seconded the motion, said it was too bad the step was necessary but he agreed with the wording of the resolution.

VOLUNTARY WORK

Committee chairman Ald. John Dewart said the local organization had been set up when the Chinese entered the Korean war. Several people including ex-mayor Hugh Waddell and executives of the city's large industries had given "marvellous voluntary work that didn't cost the citizens a cent" but this was "preparatory to whatever the governments were going to do."

Ald. Dewart said he had attended a civil defence meeting in Arnprior where he discovered that other sections of Canada were much more fully represented and apparently better organized than Ontario. On his return, the committee had decided to call a meeting of the local organization and Major K. B. F. Smith, senior administrative officer of Ontario civil defence.

The committee had felt it was "absolutely necessary to have a clear statement of provincial

Plan Campaign Arouse Interest In Auditorium

A campaign to drum up interest in having an auditorium added to the Memorial Centre is planned by citizen's auditorium committee.

At least 17 of 27 civic organizations who were sounded out a month ago have given verbal or written approval to the eight-year-old proposal that an auditorium should be added as an extra wing on the arena.

Tuesday night, the group held their second meeting in the public library. The turnout of 17 was disappointing but it was generally attributed to a change in dates. Originally, the meeting was to have been on Thursday night.

The gist of the committee's point of view seems to be this:

(a) a hockey rink by itself is not a sufficient memorial for those who lost their lives in the war; there should be some provision in the Memorial Centre for cultural pursuits as well as sports.

(b) an auditorium can be built most economically as a wing on the main building.

NO MEETING

A committee of two—Edmund S. Humphrey and Mrs. Frank Guilfoyle—had been given the assignment on April 8 of interviewing the building committee of the proposed Memorial Centre. However they had been unable to arrange a meeting with the building committee. Katherine MacDougall is chairman of the new auditorium committee.

Because of the confusion in dates neither M. Humphrey nor Mrs. Guilfoyle were present at Tuesday night's meeting.

A brief on plans for the auditorium was presented to city council in 1946. The University Women's Club organized it at that time and got 23 organizations to sponsor it.

The brief calls for a wing on the main building for an auditorium seating 1,200 to 1,500 people with a stage suitable for a variety of entertainment, including dramatics and symphony concerts.

The auditorium would also have a balcony, projection room and screen. On a second floor would be a recital hall accomodating 250 to 350 people for smaller lectures, recitals and other cultural activities. Four club or committee rooms would adjoin it.

What will it cost? Perhaps $500,000. The city will have to sell debentures to pay for the Memorial Centre in any case, a number of speakers pointed out.

Added up, it appears that the Memorial Centre, complete with the auditorium envisaged by the committee, will run anywhere from $750,000 to $1,000,000.

Brothers Hear Of 86-Year-Old Mother Dying In Siberia

Prayers for the repose of the soul of Mrs. Victoria Zberanowsky, who died in Siberia last winter, a transported victim of Soviet Russia, were offered at the church of the Sacred Heart last Sunday.

Mrs. Zberanowsky was 86 years old. Two sons, Richard and Joseph Zberanowsky, who live on Stewart St., received last week information that their mother died February 23 at a concentration camp at Tsukalinsk.

Generations of the Zberanowsky family had been farmers in Poland, about 30 miles from the city of Minsk. One day in the fall of 1929, Russian soldiers appeared in their community, knocking at the doors of farm homes ordering the occupants to report at once at a central place, bringing with them only the possessions they could carry. The mother and two daughters, and a three-year-old daughter of one of them were crowded with others into a wagon that travelled 60 miles to a railway station. They were driven into freight cars that had been used as cattle cars, and were four weeks on the rail trip to Siberia.

CHAINED TO WORK

One son, and the two sons-in-law, were arrested and sent to an island in the White Sea, north of Petrograd, to work in a mine. Information that came to the brothers Richard and Joseph, provided the details of news that the Polish men, condemned to the mine, were forced to work with wheelbarrows, their hands chained to the handles. The men were captive laborers in the mine five years. Three years later in 1937 they were rounded up again back in Poland, and that was the last the family heard of them.

Richard Zberanowsky said the Russian soldiers on their first appearance in the farm country beyond Minsk scattered their attentions, selecting some farm homes for their round-up of victims and passing others by.

"It was a policy of terrorizing the people, filling them with fear."

"I doubt whether there is much use telling the story, even the outline of it," Mr. Zberanowsky remarked to The Examiner. "It is so inhuman that the people in this country, who are far from that part of the world, pay little notice to the news that has been published for years."

DIED OF STARVATION

One sister, and two nephews of the brothers here in Peterborough, died of starvation.

"When my brother came home from the five years in the mine on the island in the White Sea, his friends could hardly have recognized him, so much had he changed, and aged."

The only offence of the farmers in the Minsk district was their HYDROGRAPHIC DREAM SHIP—The keel is expected to be laid this fall for this dream ship of the Canadian hydrographic service specially designed to explore and chart Arctic waters. The vessel, shown in this ship designer's drawing, will be a 285-foot, diesel vessel designed to withstand the pressure of Arctic ice and with a draft of 15 feet to enable it to chart shallow waters. It will carry a crew of 102 and will have a flight deck and hangar amidships for two helicopters. If all goes well the ship, first hydrographic ship built in 40 years and the first designed and built for hydrographic service operations, should go into operation in 1956.—(CP Photo).

Building New Canadian Ship To Explore Arctic Waters

OTTAWA (CP)—The men who chart Canada's coastal waters will soon have a new ship specially designed to explore Arctic waters.

The attention of both economic and defence planners for some time has been directed to the little-known channels, reefs and inlets along Canada's northern coast and in the Arctic archipelago.

The keel is expected to be laid this year for the dream ship of the Canadian hydrographic service, its first in 40 years.

Tenders are expected to be called shortly, says Dominion hydrographer F. C. Goulding Smith. If all goes well the ship should go into service by the summer of 1956.

STURDY CRAFT

The flagship of the hydrographic fleet will be a 285-foot, diesel vessel, designed to withstand the pressure of Arctic ice and with a draft of 15 feet to enable it to chart shallow waters.

It will have a flight deck and hangar amidships for two helicopters, and will be the mother ship for six diesel survey launches. The crew, plus survey workers, will number 102.

It will carry new electronic devices for fixing the ship's position, operating with two portable shore beacons with a range of 300 miles.

Mr. Smith says the vessel has been in the blueprint stage for several years. It will be the first designed and built for hydrographic service operations based on the east coast since the old Acadia was launched in England in 1913. There have been other survey ships since then but none have been designed for the job.

Mr. Smith says the job of charting the Arctic seas will take 50 years to complete. But the more immediate aims will be to meet the pressing needs of defence and industry.

Defence planners want safe sea lanes in the Arctic that will enable them to reduce their reliance on air transport. And industrialists seeking to open up the mineral wealth of the North want good ports and safe sea lanes for the future.

NEED SAFE ROUTES

The importance of safe routes is seen in the cost of marine insurance. If safe routes can be found, such as the one to the Hudson bay port of Churchill, insurance rates will go down and, perhaps, further economic development of the North.

In the last few years the hydrographic service has been busy with special jobs—finding safe harbors for titanium at Havre St. Pierre on the St. Lawrence and for iron ore at Sept Isles and along the Labrador coast.

While looking for harbor facilities in the southwest corner of Ungava bay last year, hydrographer D'Arcy Charles and his party found the highest tides in the world, a 54½-foot rise which beats the Bay of Fundy tides by some two feet.

On the Pacific coast, hydrographers have been charting safe routes for ships which will carry aluminum ore to the Kitimat project.

This year surveys will be made for a nickel ore port at Rankin inlet on the northwest shore of Hudson bay, below Chesterfield inlet.

The service took over one of its biggest jobs with the entry of Newfoundland into Confederation. Charts of the coast of Newfoundland's Labrador were largely obsolete, and Mr. Smith sees 25 years' work there for his ocean searchers.

Trapped In Elevator Mother Has Baby

HASTINGS, Eng. AP) — Three persons walked into a hospital elevator Tuesday and four came out. The fourth was a baby girl, born on the journey up.

The mother, Mrs. Dorothy Gilham, was being taken up to a fourth-floor maternity ward by her husband and a hospital attendant.

The elevator jammed between the third and fourth floors. The attendant shouted for help.

Nurses rushed to the shaft. They called instructions to the attendant and the husband. And they passed down blankets for the newborn child.

After 40 minutes engineers freed the car. Mother and baby were reported doing fine.

Maritimes Demanding Compensation

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament Tuesday heard a suggestion that the northern sections of the central and western provinces belong as much to the Maritimes as to the other provinces.

A. J. Brooks (PC—Royal), said in the Commons that the Maritimes should receive compensation now that northern Quebec and Ontario and the western provinces are deriving tremendous wealth from the development of natural resources. The Maritimes had contributed to the purchase of these domains from the Hudson's Bay Company at the time of Confederation in 1867.

In 1908, he said, Manitoba and Saskatchewan were carved out of lands purchased at Confederation and in 1912 the boundaries of Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec were extended to include the northern sections of these provinces.

In view of the fact that New Brunswick, Nova Scotia — two of the original provinces of confederation with Ontario and Quebec—and Prince Edward Island cannot be extended territorially, they should receive some compensation.

Cocktail Lounge Voting In Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Residents here will vote Wednesday on whether they want dining lounges.

Since Niagara Falls has a population of less than 50,000, it is the first Ontario city to vote on cocktail lounges since the Liquor Licence Act of 1946. The act permitted cities of more than 50,000 to apply to the liquor control board of Ontario for cocktail lounge licences without a vote. Centres under 50,000 must first hold a referendum.

Voters will decide by separate ballot whether they want cocktail lounges where liquor is sold by the glass without food and whether they want cocktail lounges where liquor may be served with meals. A total of 13,911 persons is eligible to vote. A 60 per cent majority in favor of lounges is required to carry the vote.

WET VOTE

In backing a wet vote, campaigners said millions of dollars in tourist money crosses the Niagara river each year to bars and taverns in Niagara Falls, N. Y. The affirmative group said local residents spend their money there also, as well as in local bootlegging establishments here.

Those opposing a wet vote said a new class of drinkers would be born out of the new sources of liquor if the referendum is carried.

Forty polling sub-divisions will be open from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. EDT.

Two Canadians Leave 7 Million

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Vancouver business leaders who died recently left estates totalling more than $7,000,000.

Robert W. Fiddes, pioneer brewer and hotelman, is reported to have left holdings valued at $3,000,000 in Canada and $1,000,[illegible] in the United States.

Edward Blake Ballentine, lumber magnate, left an estate with a gross value of $3,378,148. His principal heir is a son, 28-year-old Patrick Ballentine, an advertising agency executive living in Toronto.

Under the terms of the Fiddes' will, two brothers and four sisters will benefit as well as the University of British Columbia and several charities.

Library Association Seeking Pioneer Newspapers

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — An unceasing hunt for old Canadian newspapers is carried on from a small office overlooking Confederation Square here.

The Canadian Library Association conducts a widespread search for copies of pioneer newspapers to capture on microfilm their accounts of great events and the day-to-day lives of colonial settlers before time and accidents eliminate priceless records.

Eighty-six papers have been put on film, but many issues are missing. For instance, the CLA still is seeking copies of Canada's first newspaper, the Halifax Gazette, for the years between 1770-83, covering the American Revolutionary War period.

The Gazette was founded in 1752 and although the first page of the first issue is still in existence most of the rest of the paper is missing.

FAMOUS PUBLISHERS

Some of the publishers of those early newspapers made news themselves—Upper Canada's Little Rebel, William Lyon Mackenzie and his Colonial Advocate of Toronto, and Nova Scotia's patriot Joseph Howe and his Nova Scotian, founded in Halifax in 1824, in which Howe fought for a free and responsible press.

Copies of some newspapers have been found in unlikely places. Louis Riel, Northwest Rebellion leader, published the Metis between 1871-81, and the only complete copies turned up in Washington. A United States consul in Canada at the time sent the papers to Washington.

Copies of the New Era, published in Montreal by Thomas d'Arcy McGee in 1857-88 before he entered Parliament, were found eventually in the archives of St. Patrick's church in Montreal.

INK FROZE AT NIGHT

Also microfilmed are issues of the Nor'western of Winnipeg, first newspaper between the Great Lakes and the Pacific coast. Its paper and most of the press were brought by ox cart from St. Paul, Minn., by two youthful Englishmen who published the first issue Dec. 28, 1859, even though the ink froze the previous night.

A recent fire in the Yarmouth, N.S., library caused water damage to files of the Yarmouth Herald, Canada's second oldest weekly, founded in 1833. The CLA quickly filmed the publisher's copies, the only other complete file.

The association lacks many of the early issues of Canada's oldest weekly still in existence, the Cobourg, Ont., Sentinel, which began in 1831.

WIDELY USED

Microfilms of old papers are distributed chiefly to university libraries where they are used not only by historians but also by sociologists and economists who check advertisements to learn more of colonial life.

Tracking down old papers, however, is only one of the tasks of the association, formed in 1946, which now has 1,700 members.

It was one of the main organizations which pressed for a national library, for which legislation was passed in 1952.

The CLA campaigns for better children's literature and conducts an annual Young Canada book week, which has been credited with stimulating formation of several children's libraries and the publication of better books for youngsters.

It also sends indexes of magazines and documentary films to members — librarians, library boards, publishers, book illustrators, some book stores and library supply firms, and readers. Any person can become a member.

At present the association is conducting a campaign to enlist public support for its work. Members already have contributed $23,000 and the public has given or subscribed some $30,000 of a campaign goal of $100,000.

Soon your digestion starts functioning properly and you feel that happy days are here again! Don't ever stay sunk. Always keep Carter's Little Liver Pills on hand. Only 37c.

what does pre-chilling do to pie crust?

It's not everyone who can make really fine pastry. Some of us have the gift, and a lot more don't, but even so, a cook is judged by the crust she makes.

One important rule is to have everything perfectly blended. The shortening especially should be well chilled so that it will remain in separate pellets when cut into the dry ingredients. That makes your pie crust flaky. Shirriff's use plenty of pre-chilled shortening. It's not mixed in, but cut in, so that every tiny piece is well coated in dry ingredients. Shirriff's Pre-Chilled Process makes pie crust that's as short and crisp as the best of them.

Whether you've had years of experience, or none at all, you'll feel very proud of the flaky, golden-brown pastry you turn out with this easy-to-use mix. Try it soon, won't you?

BACK AT WORK—Alphonse Berube is back on the job as a mechanical foreman with the Canadian National Railway following an eight-month lay-off. Alphonse lost his way while hunting last fall and spent a week in the bush exposed to the elements. His jaunt, besides putting him out of work, robbed him of all 10 toes and most of his savings.

Senate Studies 2 New Measures

OTTAWA (CP)—Two new government measures were introduced Tuesday night in the Senate as the upper chamber resumed sittings after an Easter recess which began April 8.

Solicitor - General Macdonald, government leader, introduced proposed changes to the Citizenship Act which would abolish the requirement that persons applying for naturalization must give one year's notice.

A minor change also is proposed in the law bringing into effect the agreement between the federal government and the Ontario hydro-electric power commission for the latter to build power works in the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence river.

Under this bill, expropriation of land by the Ontario hydro follows procedure outlined in Ontario provincial legislation. The proposed change would give Hydro powers of expropriation similar to those provided for development of the St. Lawrence waterway by a federal law passed two years ago. The federal powers are almost identical to those under Ontario law.

Ask Financial Aid To Improve Education

OTTAWA (CP) — A 33-year-old lawyer elected to Parliament in a by-election March 22 Tuesday night demanded that the federal government make it possible for Canadian municipalities to finance adequate educational services.

John Pallett, who succeeded the late Gordon Graydon as Progressive Conservative member for the Ontario riding of Peel, made the suggestion in his maiden speech in the Commons.

Mr. Pallett said Canada's rapid increase in population and the need for new schools has placed an uncompromising financial burden on municipalities.

Durham To Vote On Liquor Sales

DURHAM (CP)—Durham citizens will vote June 30 on the proposed establishment of government liquor stores and beverage rooms to which women are admitted.

The town council gave third reading Monday night to a bylaw authorizing the vote after receiving approval from the liquor control board. A petition signed by more than the required 25 per cent of eligible voters brought on the vote.

Guilty of Bigamy

OTTAWA (CP)—Winston Frederick Hensler, 46-year-old Toronto man who served a month in jail in 1953 for stealing the Currie report on the Canadian Army, Tuesday pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy. He was remanded in custody until today for sentence. Evidence was that Hensler has been married three times.

Objections Made To Proposed Road Expressway

TORONTO (CP) — Objections to the proposed $50,000,000 lake shore expressway across Toronto's waterfront were voiced today by business and civic officials.

Plans for the crosstown super highway, designed to ease traffic snarls on the heavily-travelled east-west route through the city, were submitted to the Metropolitan Toronto council Monday.

Premier Leslie Frost said the province will take "a pretty close look" before committing itself to the expenditure of provincial funds. Highways Minister George Doucett said the province "might be able" to grant "a couple of millions" this year to help in engineering work.

The Toronto Harbor Commission expressed alarm that the western gap harbor entrance might be obstructed by the expressway. Toronto Transportation Commission general manager E. P. Duncan said the required relocation of street-car tracks on the west-end Humber bridge would create a "tight" situation.

G. A. Godsoe, vice-president of the British American Oil Company, which owns property along the route, led objections before the Metropolitan council.

"Our facilities are already crowded," he said. "Any encroachment on our property would have serious effects."

Australian Premier Declares Tax Cuts

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Prime Minister Robert Menzies Tuesday forecast new tax cuts in the next budget and declared: "Australia's finances were never more solid, her prosperity never so notable and her treasury never more solvent."

Menzies, opening the Liberal-Country party coalition's campaign for the May 29 federal elections, said in reference to national defence, "we will rebalance our expenditure so as to place the emphasis on air defence and equipment."

Before returning to Great Britain he may visit other military areas in Canada.

Mrs. Lavern Lawrason Keene Native Dies

TORONTO—Active church worker and soloist, Christena C. Elmhirst Lawrason, 79, widow of Dr. Lavern Lawrason, who practiced medicine in Beamsville and Toronto, died here Sunday.

Latterly she had made her home with her son, Ronald Lawrason, 17 Gaylord Ave., Islington. Born at Keene, Mrs. Lawrason belonged to a family of early settlers in the Keene and Rice Lake districts.

Following her marriage she was a resident for some years in Beamsville and was soloist in the Baptist church. In 1913 her husband established a practice in West Toronto. After Dr. Lawrason's retirement, because of ill-health, Mrs. Lawrason opened dry goods stores in West Toronto and on Roncesvalles Ave., and retired from business 24 years ago.

She had been a member and had sung in the choirs of St. John's Rd., Annette St. and Farmer Memorial Baptist churches and was one of the charter members of the Kingsway Baptist church. Mrs. Lawrason had also been prominent in the WMS and other church organizations.

She leaves three sons, Eric, Homer and Ronald; a daughter Mrs. T. J. Hall, and a brother, Joseph Elmhirst.

Dr. Burritt E. Kelly Was Well Known Here

Dr. Burritt E. Kelly, a general practitioner in Bobcaygeon since 1920, died in Civic Hospital today following an illness first detected last November.

Dr. Kelly was born in Bridgenorth, son of the late W. B. Kelly and Mary Hulda Mann about 1885. Following local education, he graduated in medicine from the University of Toronto, and came to Peterborough where he practised until joining the armed forces during the First World War. After active duty as a lieutenant-colonel, Dr. Kelly returned to Bobcaygeon and set up a practise which he fulfilled constantly until his recent illness.

Among his survivors are his wife, the former Harriett Zetta Bottum, and two sons, Lt. Jeffrey Kelly of London, Ont., and FO Murray Kelly, stationed with the NATO forces in Zweibrucken, Germany. There are also two sisters, Mrs. James Jopling (Wippie) of Bridgenorth, and Mrs. N. Ireland (Beatrice) of London, Ont., and one brother, Smith Kelly of Toronto.

Dr. Kelly was a member of the Trinity United church in Bobcaygeon, past master of Verulam lodge 268, AF and AM, and a member of the Peterborough lodge of perfection.

Funeral arrangements will be made later.

Italian Takes Taxi Kingston To Halifax

HALIFAX (CP)—After a separation of 26 months, Dennis Kotsovos was impatient to see his wife and three children again.

So he hopped into a taxi at Kingston, Ont., said "Halifax please" and was on hand at the docks when his family arrived from Methoni in the Italian province of Messinias.

Kotsovos, a cook, said he decided to come to Canada ahead of the family and establish himself before their arrival.

Now they're on their way home with taxi driver Fred Stephenson of Kingston at the wheel for the return trip.

Charge China Stepping Up Narcotics Sale

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—ed China was accused Tuesday f stepping up its sale of narcotics in a government-operated plot to spread drug addiction and use the money proceeds to spread commu

The charge came from Harry J. Anslinger, U.S. narcotics commissioner. Similar to charges voiced in past sessions about Red China's role in the narcotic drugs traffic, they included new details which Anslinger put before the UN commission on narcotics drugs.

Among them:

The Chinese Communist regime foreign ministry now has over-all control over the entire program.

GET PART OF PROFITS

A set portion of the profits from the sale must be returned to the finance ministry of the Communist regime in China.

In some areas of Red China poppy cultivation has tripled, under government supervision.

New heroin factories have been set up in the country.

The drugs are offered for sale through the world.

Spreading narcotic addiction and using the funds for political purposes is the policy of the entire Communist regime in mainland China, not just the policy of one man.

Crosby Ready To Turn Serious

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bing Crosby has hit 50. The birthday may go down in show business as the birth of the new Crosby—a serious non-singing actor.

Bing makes no secret of the fact that he's ready to turn dead serious after a lifetime of casual banter. He believes a switch to serious acting now can add 10 or more years to his career. One intimate makes this observation:

"Bing is a smart man. He knows his days are numbered if he tries to compete with Eddie Fisher and the rest of these kids. The teenagers want their crooners young and the middle-aged set wants Liberace."

So look one of these days for a Crosby movie without songs. It's coming. What does Bing think of such a project?

"I'm more than willing," he admits. "I'll take the serious stuff any day. It's a breeze compared with making musicals."

Some see Bing's yen to dispense with songs a result of a serious dip in his record sales. A Decca executive recently said that the kids, who make up the bulk of the record - buying public, just won't buy Bing.

"To the teen-agers," said the executive, "Bing is just Gary Crosby's father."

More Salesmanship Needed Retail Federation Told

TORONTO (CP) — People will continue to buy goods of lasting value in large volume, John D. Campbell of Hamilton said today.

"There seems little doubt," he stated in an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Retail Federation, "that retail sales in the durable goods field (such as electrical appliances and furniture) should remain at an over-all high level in spite of seasonal or temporary slow-down, and should continue to advance during the next 12 to 18 months."

Mr. Campbell, who is general manager, consumer products division, Canadian Westinghouse Co., Ltd., advised the retailers, however, that they must do a selling job.

"It almost seems we have lost the art of selling the product and are only capable of selling prices, terms and trade-ins."

In apparent reference to various current devices to attract customers, he added:

"We are manufacturing and selling products that everybody wants and that nearly everybody has the money to pay for, and we're allowing it to degenerate into a panicky, disorganized free-for-all—a sort of commercial donnybrook.

SALESMANSHIP NEEDED

"Most buyers will spend more to get more. Salesmanship is needed to show them how much more they are getting. And most dealers have discovered that a product properly sold in the first place will stay sold—with fewer complaints and more satisfied customers."

Salesmanship, especially on mechanical devices, included service, and Mr. Campbell stated, dealers who are engaging in an orgy of price-cutting are doing so either at the expense of their legitimate and necessary operating profit, or at the expense of proper attention to the needs and rights of their customers and the manufacturers.

There was evidence that not a few dealers were giving away their normal profits "in their feverish desire" to outdo competitors.

WATCH STORM SIGNALS

Credit managers, Mr. Campbe added, should be on the lookou for storm signals. Reduction, or in some cases, elimination of downpayments and excessive lengthening of the repayment period should be viewed critically.

"Dealers operating on such unsound financing practices are already finding themselves in a very tough spot when the customer discovers it pays to let go of his purchase, in which he has only the smallest financial stake, and buy some other product at a lower price, also on ridiculously favorable credit terms."

BAFFLING SITUATION—Joseph Welch, Army counsel in the McCarthy-Army hearings, relaxes at his Walpole, Mass., home and listens as his wife, Judith, reads his "fan mail." Said Welch: "I can't understand why all these people want to bother with a dull person like me."

New Fare System Announced In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Transit Commission Tuesday announced a new fare system based on zones for metropolitan Toronto, effective July 1.

A central zone covering the city and sections of five suburbs will have a fare of five tickets for 50 cents or 15 cents cash, compared with the present fare of three tickets for 25 cents or 10 cents cash. This applies to the subway, too. Fares for two suburban zones will be established later.

Wide Variety Of Programs Designed For TV Channels

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Television is opening in new areas in Canada. New viewers are going to discover what other regions have found—you can't please everybody at the same time.

The men may stick to the set for sports shows including boxing and wrestling, hockey, football and important horse races, baseball's world series.

The women soon discover their own favorites, which may include cooking lessons and fashion shows.

For the youngsters, programs that have instant appeal to the child under eight will leave the 'teen-ager cold. The latter group will go for cooners or orchestras.

CORONATION EPIC

But in the whole range of television fare there's a proportion of programs that appeal to everyone.

Canadian television's biggest audience up to that time was drawn by the Coronation in June, 1953. Interest in the historic ritual had been stirred by the transatlantic race of jet planes carrying films for TV networks on this continent. The CBC was able to show the Westminster Abbey service on television earlier than any United States station, starting at 4:14 p.m.

Regular TV watchers were again joined by a host of others for the Grey Cup game last November, when the football classic was televised direct from Varsity Stadium in Toronto. The Grey Cup final, Canada's biggest single sports event, had been televised by means of film the previous year.

OUTSTANDING PROGRAMS

The CBC will provide a minimum of 10½ hours weekly in programs to private stations, who will produce much of the remainder themthroughout the week.

In addition to the occasional special feature, CBC television now shows several popular American programs such as the Jackie Gleason show on Saturdays, Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" on Sunday, the Studio One dramatic series on Monday's and others out the week.

Biggest of the CBC's own productions are the Big Revue on Fridays and more serious programs such as a Sunday evening show with the Leslie Bell singers and Howard Cable's orchestra. A new drama series produced in Toronto runs Monday evenings. CBC stations now are generally on the air from 2:30 p.m. to midnight.

POOL OF TALENT

At the Toronto television studios the CBC selects around 200 actors for various shows each week, and roughly 85 of these will be new to the programs. Around 100 are given singing parts. An average week will see about 30 solo musicians facing the cameras, while special performers fill another score of program spots.

All, or most, are chosen from a group that varies in size but averages probably 800 persons, divided about evenly between dramatic and variety artists.

The big singing and dancing shows of course are only a segment of the whole TV menu, ranging from puppets to public panels, from harmonicas to symphony orchestras. One recent feature was the TV debut at Toronto of the National Ballet Company of Canada.

Special events c be almost anything, from official movies of an H-bomb explosion to the big Santa Claus parades in the larger cities.

TELEVISION INTEREST GROWS—Television is opening in new areas in Canada and while new viewers will discover what other regions have found, that you can't please everybody at the same time, news programs remain popular. At the CBC Vancouver studios a rehearsal for the seven p.m. newscast is held. News producer Peter Elkington stands, with finger raised to give the cue to the other technicians taking part in the program.—(CP Photo).

Council Decides To Keep DST

WINDSOR (CP) — City council stuck determinedly by daylight time Tuesday night in spite of sharp criticism from spectators benches and some opposition by council members.

In a 10-4 vote, council decided to leave its original resolution unchanged.

Controller Hugh Simpson said council was morally bound by the plebiscite in 1951 which turned down fast time. He claimed the city was wrong in passing a resolution which authorized daylight time April 25.

Confusion resulted after the original measure was passed when suburban and surrounding municipalities failed to make a 100-per-cent switch to fast time. Only one township followed the Windsor lead. Detroit is on standard time.

Crew With Duke

OTTAWA (CP) — A three-man special events crew will accompany the Duke of Edinburgh on his Canadian tour this summer to report to CBC radio and television audiences, Charles Jennings, CBC programs director, announced Tuesday.

Comic Book Testimony Given

TORONTO (CP)—A morality officer testified Tuesday that picture panels in two comic books depicted possible murder, torture and strangulation, as the first charges laid in Toronto of selling crime comic books were heard.

Charged jointly with six offences are Superior Publications Ltd., and manager William Zimmerman. They pleaded not guilty to the charge which carries a maximum two-year sentence.

The charges were laid April 12 after investigation by morality officer Harry Long and refer to six crime comic publications.

Long said he visited the offices of the publishing company where Zimmerman told him the books were printed in Canada from "mats" obtained from the United States.

The trial is continuing.

Girl 16, Missing Since Dance Date

ORILLIA (CP) — Ontario provincial police said Tuesday night Rosalie Craig, 16, has been missing since April 23 when she went to Barrie to attend a dance.

Officers said they have charged Ronald J. Bourgon of Ottawa with assaulting a 15-year-old girl friend of the missing girl.

Police said they are looking for two men in connection with the disappearance.

Mostly Soviet Pilots Flying In Korea

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—There were more Russian than North Korean pilots flying for the Communists in the Korean war, Noh Kum Sok, 22, told reporters when he landed in the United States Monday night.

He is the former North Korean fighter pilot who got $100,000 for turning a MiG-15 jet plane over to American authorities.

Noh will leave for Washington tonight. He is going to the University of Delaware for a year to spend a small portion of the reward he got from Gen. Mark W. Clark last Sept. 21 when he landed his MiG at Kimpo airfield near Seoul.

The airman said he knew nothing about the $100,000 reward offer before he landed.

Guests were welcomed to the tea room in the basement of the parish hall by president Mrs. F. E. Hooper and Mrs. F. G. Ongley, and the rector, the Rev. Mr. Ongley, was also present

A colorful, old-fashioned bouquet of spring flowers arranged in a tall glass comport was a most attractive table centrepiece. The decorator used daisies, pansies, sweet peas, snapdragon and pussywillows in this, and she highlighted it with yellow candles in a pair of tear-drop glass doubie bolders.

Pouring tea the first hour were Mrs. G. H. Moore and Mrs. George Groombridge, and Mrs. H. C. Sootheran and Mrs. G. S. Cameron poured later.

Miss Margaret English attended the treasurer's table at the door.

Variety Highlights Floor Coverings

BY KAY SHERWOOD (NEA)

Every room in the house and budgets of all sizes are getting full consideration from the makers of hard-surfaced, resilient floor coverings.

This means that designs are beautifully colored and shaded, and that there's plenty of variety in everything from vinyl and inlaid linoleum to asphalt tiles and felt-base printed rugs. Texture is all-important to the new patterns.

Having scrubbed a good many miles of linoleum, I am quick to appreciate the dirt-concealing advantages of textured effects.

Master linoleum patterns make capital of textured effects on a smooth surface by clever shadings of one color. Because colors go through from top to bottom, long wearing qualities can be expected.

A splatter-dash pattern sparks the eye appeal of one inlaid linolieum. Millions of tiny, bright-colored specks glisten like sequins on a background which might be brilliant or neutral, depending on your needs.

Equally handsome is a yard goods linoleum pattern that stimulates the hand-laid look of individual, nine-inch tiles. Three color values in the pattern, in such shades as gray, brick, tan or charcoal with red, account for the textured look.

Modestly priced but no less textured in appearance is a new brick pattern in a felt-base covering printed with vinyl inks. It is vinyl plated for longer wear. You can get this one in true, pink-brick tones.

Sharp and clear are brilliant, Scottish plaid patterns that look three dimensional but shine up fast with a damp mop.

An outstanding new asphalt tile takes its design from the irregular shape of flagstone and should look as handsome in a foyer as it does in a living room.

MASTER LINOLEUM PATTERN in a textured effect makes a handsome floor covering for a family room. Its smooth surface is easy to clean, even after little girls have been playing on it with their dolls.

I was also impressed by some of the new, low-cost, printed rugs. One thatsimulates a random weave rug would serve very nicely in a bedroom or kitchen. Others incorporate clear colors that would brighten a gloomy apartment at a minimum of cost.

Incidentally, one designer told me that these rugs are becoming more popular with young couples on the move. The initial cost is so low that a family that moves a lot can use them and then leave them behind if transporting furnishings is a problem.

Notable, too, is the increasing use of brown, beige and copper shades that appear in all lines and prices. You'll see quite a bit of turquoise, clear blue and aqua, and plentiful dashes of red in new patterns.

St. Alban's WA Variety Night

Both entertainers and audience thoroughly enjoyed the variety show put on by the WA at St. Alban's church on Friday evening.

The Rev. Henry Peasgood was chairman for the occasion and he recited "Albert the Lion" and another Ramsbottom story.

George Brook led the audience in community singing, and for this and all other times, Mrs. F. Foster was a most skilled piano accompanist.

The varied musical items were much appreciated. Misses Ruth and Christina Bland gave vocal and piano duets. Tom Paton entertained with his euphonium and Gordon Mintz set toes tapping with his banjo numbers.

Mrs. William Higgins recited a "Bedtime Story" in which men and boys of the congregation modelled the "striking creation" won by the fairy princess of the story.

The climax of the entertainment was the black-faced comedy skit by George Brook and Arthur Rose, supported by the Rev. Kibblewhite, Rover Crew of All Saints Church. Both the dialogue and the singing delighted the audience.

When the show ended, a more serious note was struck. Mr. Peasgood called upon the wardens of St. Alban's church, Mr. Walter Thompson and Mr. Bert Marshell, to and make a presentation to Mr. and Mrs. George Brook on the occasion of their leaving to take up further church work in Saskatchewan. The Rev. Maurice Poole then presented Mr. and Mrs. Brook with a gift on behalf of the wardens and congregation of All Saints Church.

Mr. Brook was lay-reader for St. Alban's parish and Mrs. Brooks was the organist and also the choir leader. While everyone wished them well in their new life, it was felt that they would be greatly missed in St. Alban's parish.

Mother never told me...!

And I wish she had!
For years I've been stumped about what to get Mom for Mother's Day, and all those gift-giving occasions. She wants, above all, to be pampered with the things that she just won't go out and buy herself! Like the luxury of fine lingerie . . . the extravagance of a fresh, pretty blouse . . . the glamour of a really swish housecoat.

And Mom's a pretty smart girl, too!
She knows that a gift from Reitman's is a gift that leads in styling, quality and value. She knows, too, that if I misjudged her correct size she can take it back to any Reitman's store anywhere and they'll gladly exchange it for her. That's why I'm on my way to Reitman's right now. Come Sunday, I'm going to give Mom a lift with a Reitman's gift!

DOROTHY DIX

No Solution To Religious Differences

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a sophomore at a coed college and I have become very much interested in a young man here. He, I am sure, has become quite fond of me, but our difficulty is a difference of religions. He called on me at home during a vacation and my parents made no bones about the fact that they considered our deepening friendship unwise.

Since we are so compatible in other respects, it seems foolish to me that our respective faiths should stand in the way of a happy friendship and probably marriage. Other students at school face the same problem, and we'd like to know your opinion.

J. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

NO SOLUTION QUITE SATISFACTORY

ANSWER: The question of religious differences is one of the most difficult and delicate that two young people in love can encounter. There simply is no solution that will prove enitrely satisfactory to all concerned— the young man, the woman, and their respective families. Of course, there are many, many couples who have found happiness. There is always a lingering shadow between them, however, and often the wife will think, "If John only went to church with me and the children," or John says to himself, ""I feel so left out of things when the rest of the family is observing a religious festival."

In such relationship involving possible marriage, two things are necessary to forestall future disagreement. First, all problems connected with the marriage, or at least as many as possible, should be settled before the wedding, and second, the matter should be discussed with clergymen of both faiths. By both parties learning about the other side of the story, much friction may be avoided.

Even when the young people themselves have settled matters satisfactorily, there, is always the problem of families. No matter what the cynical may say, it's nobody's business but the young couple's', shelving a lifetime of tradition isn't so simple. Religion is more than going to church on the Sabbath; it's a way of life that stems, usually, from many generations. That there quite likely may be difficulties with one or both families is also a question for grave consideration.

This subject has been well and fully treated in a pamphlet issued by the Public Affairs Pamphlets of 22 East 28th Street, New York City. It is called, "If I Marry Outside My Religion," is written by Algernon D. Black, and costs 25 cents. Anyone with this particular problem will benefit through reading it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a middle-aged widower deeply in love with a widow about my age. We've been friends quite a while, and have had some wonderful times together, but she has always evaded the subject of marriage. A few weeks ago she began dating an old-time friend, and I have practically faded from the picture. How can I find out if he is serious about her or just a casual friend? Should I ask him? If he intends to marry her, I'm willing to withdraw my suit, but if I still have a chance I'll pursue it persistently.

A.R.

ANSWER: Why not ask the lady? Tell her you've been patient a long time and that you'd prefer her to be frank; that either you have a chance or you have not, and that you think in all fairness she should tell you which.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My fourth baby was born recently, and it has come to my attention that a particular friend of mine is so set on being godmother that she will be terribly hurt if not chosen. I have another person in mind, and wonder if it's my duty to ask the lady who expects the honor or the one I want.

Mrs. O.

ANSWER: This is a matter to be left entirely to your own discretion. The lady is putting herself, and you, in an embarrassing position by arbitrarily considering she is your choice. Has she any special reason for coveting the role of godmother? Perhaps she is particularly fond of your other children and would like to become part of your family through the spiritual association. When you talk to her about the matter, handle it as tactfully as possible so as not to cause additional hurt feelings.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Asks For Time To Answer Many Questions

NOTE FROM EMEM: Again I have to cry "Uncle!" As many of you who have written to me know, I am behind in my answers to you. Would you be kind enough to 1) give me at least 3 weeks before you expect answers 2) enclose a 5-cent stamped self addressed enveloped with your letters 3) hold off writing for two days after you read this? This way I can catch up on the backlog of mail, and enjoy that coveted feeling of "holding the line" instead of steadily falling behind. Is it a bargain?

Question: . . . look forward to your column every day. . .need a spot to help: 1) Do fresh mushrooms need to be peeled, or any mushrooms for that matter? . . . my young son who works in a supermarket often brings home bargains on Saturday nights. . .recently mushrooms. 2) is there any way of making marshmallow sauce out of marshmallows. . .? 3) How do you prepare smelts? . . . a reader asked for salad dressing that taste like the commercial stuff one buys. On the side of — mustard tin there is a very good one, also on—mustard tin—they both taste like—. Another reader asked about using chicken fat for pastry. . . you suggested adding tallow to thicken (harden) it. Who wants tallow in pie pastry. . .I was wondering if one could make good pastry with chicken fat using same method as when using (corn oil)—that is combining the chicken fat with ice cold water and beating with a fork until thick and creamy, then following the rest of the directions? (name omitted by request).

ANSWER: Scrub mushrooms under running water and trim off cut end of stem for ⅛ inch. All you need to remember when scrubbing is the medium in which they were grown, then clean scrubbing is enough.

MARSHMALLOW SAUCE

In top of double boiler melt 20 marshmallows with 3 tablespoons cream. Meanwhile boil together 1 cup sugar and 1-3 cup water until they will spin a thread (232 deg. Fahr.) Then pour this syrup over the melted marshmallow mixture and mix until smooth. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla.

FRIED SMELTS

Wash, scale and remove internal contents of smelts, but leave on heads and tails. Dry. Dip in salted and peppered flour, then in beaten egg to which you have added 1 tablespoon cold water, then in very fine crumbs. Fry in deep fat at 380 deg. Fahr. for 3 or 4 minutes or in shallow butter until crisp and golden. Serve with lemon wedges or sauce tartare.

Thank you for your salad dressing idea. As for the chicken fat—tallow is rendered out beef fat you know. Many shortening manufacturers use it to harden too-soft shortening. Your idea of adding ice water to chicken fat is excellent however.

QUESTION: (I have a wonderful letter from Wanda—but at the end she says "Please do not print"—but she does give her heirloom recipe for Dark Fruit Cake which was used for her Wedding Cake—and which I may just use for Marianne's next April.

DARK FRUIT CAKE

(Courtesy Wanda)

Cream together ½ lb. butter and 1 1-3 cups brown sugar. Add ½ cup strawberry jam, 5 eggs—yolks and whites beaten separately then combined, ½ teaspoon soda dissolved in cherry juice (see below), 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg, salt. (This flour and spices mixture is used to flour fruit, then shaken off through sieve. All flour is added to batter.) One 6-oz. bottle maraschino cherries and juice. (Use juice to dissolve soda.), 2 lbs. raisins (use both seeded and seedless kind), 1 lb. currants, ½ lb. dates, ½ lb. mixed peel, ½ lb. almonds, skins left on and put through food chopper, ½ lb. broken pecans. Steam 3¼ hours and bake 1 to 1½ hours at 200 deg. Fahr. to dry out. Fill pans 2-3 full. Tie 3 thicknesses waxed paper over cakes. Pans should be lined with several thicknesses buttered brown paper use French (glaceed) fruit instead of peel if you wish but it must be very thinly and finely cut so as to lose its identity but contribute flavor raisins can be put through chopper if you like. Let ripen six weeks please in a crock, in its original papers.

ANSWER: Thanks for this detailed recipe. It is tops.

Decide Keep Civil Defence

COVENTRY (Reuters) — The Coventry city council Tuesday night postponed abandoning its civil defence organization and called on the British government to supply an answer to hydrogen bomb attack.

The council voted to ask Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe whether an adequate defence against the hydrogen bomb exists.

The council also decided to ask the home secretary to form a civil defence corps capable of dealing with attacks by modern atomic weapons.

Pending an answer, the council voted to maintain its 3,000-strong civil defence organization. It previously had decided to disband the group on the grounds no precautions would be adequate to meet an H-bomb attack.

Special Division To Handle Security

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times says today that Attorney-General Herbert Brownell will announce soon the establishment of a division of internal security in the United States department of justice.

The new unit, The Times says, "will handle cases involving espionage, treason, sabotage, federal employee loyalty or security risks and subversive activities—in fact, all court proceedings dealing with matters affecting the internal security of the United States and its possessions. . . ."

3 Charged With Damage Of Thousands In Cottages

Three Campbellford men went on trial Tuesday afternoon in magistrate's court on four charges of breaking and entering summer cottages in Belmont-Methuen with the intention of committing theft, a similar charge of breaking into a storehouse, and a sixth charge—taking a farm tractor without the owner's permission.

The three—Charles F. Ibey, 22, Edward Hicks, 29, and William O. Parcels, 24—had all chosen summary trial before Magistrate W. R. Philp and had all pleaded not guilty.

It is alleged that about April 14 they broke into the Belmont-Methuen cottages of Arthur Redden, Norris Whitney, Ralph Durbin and Robert McQaid; that they also broke into Kenneth Marshalls storehouse, and used and damaged a farm tractor without permission from Norris Whitney, the owner.

PHOTOGRAPHED DAMAGE

Photos taken by the OPP indicate that thousands of dollars damage was done by whoever broke into the cottages. What the thieves did not or could not steal they tried their best to smash.

OPP Constable John Cawood, one of the officers who worked on the case said that he and OPP Constable Tom Armitage were travelling north from Havelock on the Havelock-Apsley road when they saw a southbound 1929 car about 2. a.m. April 14.

The police were going up into Belmont-Methuen to investigate a complaint about somebody "joy-riding" with Norris Whitney's tractor. Acting on a tip, they stopped the 1929-model car, owned and driven by Ibey, and escorted the three men back to the Havelock police station.

At that time the police knew nothing of the cottage breakins and were only interested in the tractor incident. However they ordered the men to unload the car and found that it contained a carton of American-type book matches, a biscuit tin with tinned and packaged foods, a sack with 50 or so muskrat traps, a coal oil lantern and an ancient flint-lock gun.

Asked where they got this assortment, the men said they bought the food in Campbellford and Parcels said it was for a camp up north. The other stuff came from the Campbellford dump they said.

Later Ibey was searched and two red hadled kitchen knives were found in his coat, similar in style to two forks later found in Kenneth Marshall's boathouse in Methuen township.

TORN POCKET MATCHES

Ibey was wearing a blue suitcoat with a torn pocket, Constable Cawood said. Subsequently a pocket was found—of the same material and fitting the tear—in the region where the thefts occurred, 18 miles north of Havelock.

Somehow this coat, which the crown would like as an exhibit, was lost in the Peterborough county jail.

When the three men were stopped in the old Ford car they all looked red-eyed "as though they were just getting over a drunk."

Cross-questioned by J. C. N. Currelly, defence counsel, Constable Cawood conceded that he didn't notice any smell of alchol and that the red-eyed look could have been caused by tiredness.

OPP Constable Armitage, who escorted Ibey back to Havelock, quoted the accused as saying:

"I hope there'll be no trouble out of this—I've just got married and have a wife and child to look after."

The charges against the three men are identical and the evidence on each charge as it is heard will apply to each of them.

The case is continuing today.

Pope Appeals To Journalists

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Pope urged Roman Catholic journalists Tuesday to intensify their efforts in the world's spiritual struggle, "whose extensiveness everybody knows."

"An immense wave of atheism is crashing against the world, and rarely has the action against the religion of Christ been more penetrating and systematic," the pontiff wrote Count Giuseppe Dalla Torre. The count is editor of the Vatican's L'Osservatore Romano and president of the fourth international congress of the Catholic press, now meeting in Paris.

The Pope's letter said "even within Catholic ranks, one finds faithful (members of the church) whose confidence in the mission of the Church is shaken."

The Pope mentioned especially the need for the Catholic journalists to obtain an "adequate professional and technical preparation in methods of modern journalism."

nationality. They were Poles, and it was one of the ironies of history that the farms which were preemptorily evacuated by Russians were settled by Tartars brought from beyond the Caucasus.

The liquidation of men of the Zberanowsky family in 1937 or thereabouts is a fact without information of the manner of their disappearance, similar to the evanishment of the 15,000 Polish officers of whom there is said to be ample evidence of their massacre by the Russians in what became known as the Katyn forest incident.

Joseph Zberanowsky and his brother have their separate stories of how they made their way to Canada, one of them by crossing Asia to Vladivostok, but overriding their experiences — both of them lived for some 20 years in western Canada — is a sense of amazement that the people of this country fail to understand the values of their freedom. Associated with that incomprehension is an awareness of propaganda favoring the so-called democracy claimed for Soviet Russia.

Cadi Refuses To Believe Fish Story

Charges against three Curve lake men involving the illegal possession of game fish, brought about, among other things, a verbal exchange between Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, and defence counsel W. J. Arthur Fair, QC, concerning the seating of accused persons at the barrister's bar, today.

Crown witness, Harry McKnight was unable to identify Herman Taylor as the man who allegedly had offered to sell him some fish. Crown attorney John A Bradshaw asked Mr. Fair why the accused was not seated at the table. Mr. Fair replied that this practice wasn't necessary and Magistrate Philp sugegsted that it was a practice inaugurated for the benefit of counsel.

Mr. Fair declared that the accused should be seated close behind the barristers' bar, but not at it.

"Sometimes they're very objectionable . . . blowing breath that would intoxicate you."

Mr. Bradshaw, shortly after the trial began, asked that the individual charges be dropped and a joint charge be laid against the three men, Herman Taylor, Len Taylor and Bob Jacobs, but when the validity of this proposal was questioned by Magistrate Philp and Mr. Fair, Mr. Bradshaw acknowledged that "probably that idea wouldn't be in the best interests of justice."

PC Arthur Beardsmore testified that a sack containing one pickeral, twelve bass, and a muskelunge, was taken from the trunk of Herman Taylor's car by police, when it was parked south of Brock on George St., April 3.

"Did Herman Taylor admit any knowledge of the ownership or possession of those fish," asked Mr. Bradshaw.

Beardsmore: "He denied ownership, but admitted possession. He told me he knew who owned them."

"I didn't know the fish were there and I didn't know who thye belonged to," said Herman Taylor. He said he had an idea who they belonged to, but didn't know for sure until later that night.

"You mean these other men didn't offer to pay you to drive them into town," asked Mr. Bradshaw.

ASKED FOR RIDE

Herman Taylor: "No. They asked me for a ride to town, but I didn't know they had the fish with them."

Magistrate Philp said he didn't believe Herman Taylor's evidence and was not impressed by it. Taylor was convicted and fined $75 and $3.75 costs and was not granted time to raise the money if he didn't have it with him. The recourse was 30 days in jail.

"I don't like it, it isn't fair to the accused or counsel," retorted Mr. Fair. "If it were a rich man who thought nothing of a $100 fine . . . it would be a different thing. I'm getting tired of police court practice."

Mr. Fair intimated that he would leave the court if he were not representing the other two men charged on the same count.

Charges agains Len Taylor and Bob Jacobs were "wihdrawn" for lack of evidence by Mr. Bradshaw.

"Dismissed," said Mr. Fair.

Parents Protest Principal Ousting

PORT COLBORNE (CP)—Parents of Vimy public school pupils at a special meeting Tuesday night decided to take action against the dismissal of Mrs. Melissa Pitez as principal of the school.

Mrs. Pitez, principal for the last 14 years, was dismissed by the Port Colborne board of education in favor of a male principal at the expanding school. She is to be retained as a grade teacher at the salary she now receives as principal.

The parents presented a petition, signed by more than 300 persons, to the board protesting Mrs. Pitez dismissal. The board considered it in closed session and then decided to uphold its original decision.

The parents said the board has refused to meet with them and the city council to discuss the matter openly.

The parents said if their representations to the board and department of education failed they would vote in their own representatives at the next municipal election.

Civil Defence

thinking and a course of action regarding financial support to municipalities and equipment and training for operational use."

On April 28, Major Smith had replied that when Ald. Dewart had contacted him he had "at that time, no firm policy.

"Within the next few days," Major Smith said in his letter, "I hope to send you all the information regarding the matching grants and methods of securing this federal assistance."

"We all thought it would be ironed out," Ald. Dewart said. "It was only last week we found out it wasn't . . . Now we know there are no arrangements for financial assistance and equipment.

NO PROTESTS

"I haven't seen an editorial in a Toronto paper or in The Peterborough Examiner," he said. "In fact I haven't heard of any protest or criticism whatsoever."

"I thing a lot of people don't care," Mr. Swanston said. This opinion was also given by Herbert Bradburn.

Ald. Dewart said Sarnia, Sudbury and Windsor had full-time civil defence directors, paid by the municipalities, and Toronto had an annual defence budget of $16,000.

"That doesn't even touch it," he said. Peterborough was classed as a mutual aid area and was intended to give assistance to cities such as Oshawa and Toronto.

"But they're not doing anything about it," he said. "Personally, I think something will be done. I think the federal government is working out an accounting system with the province, whereby they (the federal government) will be able to pay 25 per cent and the municipalities 75 per cent. But I don't think city council should be asked to shoulder that burden.

"I feel that nothing is going to succeed unless it gets the support of all levels of government."

J. P. McGrath suggested that, in view of the H-bomb, the province might not know what to do. He felt the civil defence organization for disaster areas was inadequate for the destruction that would be caused by an H-bomb.

Mr. Bradburn expressed some doubts as to the wisdom of disbanding the organization without further consideration by the executive.

"Most of them are here now," the chairman said. "Eventually I don't think this work will be in vain."

"Without a trained director and a communications centre, we're just perpetrating a hoax on the citizens," Mr. Melton said. "If a tornado hit Peterborough, we just couldn't do anything."

"I agree it would be a mistake to let the people think we are doing anything when we can't," C. B. Muir said.

"We have to approach this in a different way than we have been if we're going to get any action," Ald. Dewart said. "I've had the utmost co-operation from industries and individuals and I think if a situation develops in which it's possible to work and the financial difficulties are straightened away, everyone will step in again."

"I don't think anyone is shirking any responsibility," Mr. Swanston said.

Ballet Groups Win Approval

TORONTO (CP)—Ballet groups from Toronto and Halifax, won the critics approval Tuesday night, the second night of the sixth annual Ballet Festival being held here.

Toronto's Janet Baldwin group scored for a second time with an impressionistic ballet of life called "Cycle." The same group brought the audience to their feet opening night with their dancing of Don Gillies' exciting work, "I want, I want."

The Halifax Theatre Ballet's performance of "Variations Romantique," a classical ballet in all-white setting, was well received. "Evocation To Apollo" was danced by Heino Heiden's Vancouver Ballet.

Colorful performances were given by the Willy Blok Hanson group of Toronto, in a Ballinese dance "Bunga Kamboja," and by a Czechoslovak New Canadian group presenting traditional folk dances.

Have Tentative Plan For Industrial Area

KITCHENER (CP)—A tentative plan to develop 800 acres of land in the southern section of the city as a new industrial area was outlined to the city council at a special meeting Tuesday night.

George Ridout of Toronto, president of the Ridout Real Estate Company, which proposed the development, discussed the plan with civic officials.

The area being considered, half within the city limits, is now largely farm land. The Canadian National Railways line to Galt runs through the middle of the tract.

It was reported that the real estate company will consider plans for the erection of industrial buildings which would be leased to European, Canadian and American companies.

1,500 Seamen Parade For Queen, Duke

VALLETTA, Malta (AP)—Some 1,500 seamen paraded across the windswept flight deck of the aircraft carrier Eagle today before Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

The Queen swayed in a 20-knot blast of wind and clung to her tight-fitting blue straw hat as she and the duke rose to the deck on a huge lift used for moving planes.

The Queen launched the Eagle in 1951.

Arabs Lose UN Fight For Censure

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) The Arabs have lost their fight in the United Nations Security Council for an immediate censure of Israel, but have backed down on previous threats to boycott general debate on the tense situation between Jordan and the Jewish state.

Lebanon's Charles Malik, only Arab representative on the 11-member council, opened the debate Tuesday night with a new demand for action against Israel. He called for UN members to sever economic and diplomatic relations with Israel if necessary to stop border raids into Jordan.

Observers at UN headquarters give the Lebanese proposal little chance of winning council approval. They expect it will be bypassed in favor of some general pronouncement on the whole frontier situation.

GENERAL DEBATE

The council voted 8 to 2 Tuesday to hold the general debate rather than consider first Lebanon's charge that Israeli forces raided the Jordan village of Nahalin Nationalist China abstained.

Malik and Soviet delegate An-March 28, killing nine Arabs.

The Lebanese foreign ministry drei Vishinsky voted against the proposal for the general discussion. had said previously Malik might walk out if the council did not consider the Nahlin complaint first. But Malik said after the vote: "We have decided not to withdraw from the engagement but to fight the good fight to the end."

TORONTO (CP)—Sarnia's radio station CHOK is honored "for awareness and execution of its responsibilities to its community during and after the disastrous tornado which paralyzed Sarnia May 21, 1953" in national radio awards announced today.

Seven Canadian radio stations have been chosen by an independent panel of judges to receive the "Beaver awards for distinguished service to Canadian radio during 1953."

The awards are made by Canadian broadcasting's trade paper, Canadian Broadcaster and Telescreen, which launched them in 1945.

The awards, engraved copper plaques, were displayed at the Association of Canadian Advertisers' convention here today.

Moscow Criticizes Speech By Pearson

LONDON (Reuters) — Moscow radio today assailed Canada's external affairs minister for the speech he made Tuesday on the Korean dispute before the Geneva conference.

The Moscow commentator said L. B. Pearson's address "was proof that the Canadian delegation is unwilling to help in the settlement of the Korean question."

"He (Pearson) said that the Canadian delegation would not support any proposals opposing the resolution of the United Nations on the Korean problem. Thus he has shown his unwillingness to admit that these resolutions were adopted in the absence of representatives of the Korean peoples and that they are therefore illegal. They are also useless for any settlement of the Korean question."

Pearson To See Delegation Head

GENEVA (CP)—L. B. Pearson, Canadian external affairs minister, had an appointment this afternoon with Walter Bedell Smith, undersecretary of state who now heads the United States delegation to the Far East conference.

Smith took over from State Secretary Dulles, who has gone back to Washington to report to President Eisenhower.

Votes For Chapel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Senate voted Tuesday to fix up a small room at the Capitol as a chapel "for prayer and meditation" of members of Congress.

REV. H. K. WRIGHT

Rev. H. Wright Chairman Of Presbytery

The Peterborough presbytery of the United Church of Canada met on Tuesday in the Keene United church, and was unanimous in its choice of the Rev. H. W. Wright, Norwood, as its chairman. He succeeds the Rev. A. A. Mathews, the minister of George Street church. The Rev. A. E Larke, of the Springville charge, was elected to succeed the Rev. H. B. Herrington of Keene as secretary. Rev. J. A. Steed, Peterborough, was re-elected treasurer.

As reported by the secretary, 12 ministers, representing various countries and communions, are presently seeking admission to the ministry of the United Church of Canada. Decision will be made at the annual conference sessions to be held next month. Plans were made by the presbytery for representation and committees for the Bay of Quinte conference which will meet in annual session in Belleville, June 8 to 11.

Members of presbytery heard with great interest of plans for a special service on May 19 in Mark Street United church, Peterborough. At this time, Clifford Robert Chapman, a member of that church, will be licensed to preach. He will be ordained to the ministry of the United Church in Belleville on June 9.

The presbytery recorded its sincere appreciation of the service rendered to youth of the church by Albert College, the church's secondary school in Belleville. It pledged support to the forthcoming financial appeal for $300,000.00 in connection with the centenary celebration of the college in 1955.

A large increase in givings to the missionary and maintenance fund of the church was reported for the presbytery and the United Church of Canada during the first part of 1954. The Christian education committee outlined the church's summer program. There will be camps for boys, girls and young people at Camp Quin-Mo-Lac, near Madoc. Vacation schools will be held in the presbytery. During the day, greetings were brought from the woman's association and the woman's missionary society.

Rev. H. K. Wright and Mr. Fred Rogers, of Havelock, were elected as commissioners to the general council of the church, subject to final decision of the conference in June. The general council meets in Sackville, N.B., in September.

Drop Wholesale Gasoline Price

TORONTO (CP) — Sun Oil Company today dropped the wholesale price of gasoline to dealers two cents a gallon. The company sells only "premium" grade.

A company spokesman said the move was result of "a new marketing policy" permitting decreased costs through opening of the new Sarnia refinery and the sale of one grade.

Retail price a gallon at the one company-operated station here went to 41.5 cents from 43.6. Retail dealers are expected to drop their prices in line with the company's action.

Spokesmen for other major companies said they are not aware of immediate decreases by their firms.

GENEVA (Reuters)—Dr. Joseph N. Togba, 39, director-general of Liberia's public health service, today was elected president of the 71-nation World Health Organization.

Stronger Germ Infects Michigan Milk

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Isolation of a new and more potent form of brucellosis germ in milk of some cows in Michigan was reported Tuesday by a scientist who also said it was similar to an organism previously discovered in the blood of three undulant fever patients in Alabama, Massachusetts and England.

Saying that in cows at least the organism has been found to cause more damage than previously-known strains of the germ, Dr. I. Forest Huddleson of Michigan State College, and one of the world's leading authorities on brucellosis, said in a report to the Society of American Bacteriologists:

SERIOUS LOSS

"If it is spreading, it could lead to a very serious economic loss in the dairy industry because while previously-known types of brucella organisms caused abortion, low fertility and low milk production in affected cattle, this new type can also cause a mastitis-like inflammation of the udder which could practically shut off milk production."

But he added:

Unlike previously-known strains of brucellosis in cattle—which have been resistant to the most powerful drugs in practical and economic quantities—the new form, at least in laboratory tests, appears to be vulnerable to penicillin in relatively small amounts.

Queen's Slimness Draws Attention

LONDON (AP) — The tabloid Daily Sketch today gave the Queen a new title—"Her Slender Majesty." The paper urged the people to see she gets a rest when her world tour ends next week.

Across its front page the mass-circulation paper spread a picture from Malta showing a much slimmer queen than Britons had seen before her tour began last Nov. 23.

That picture followed up a pair of "before and after" photos Tuesday, captioned, "See how slim the Queen is now."

The Sketch headed its editorial, "Give her a rest."

"Everywhere," it says, "there is comment on how slim she has become: She has lost weight: She looks fine-drawn and tired—as well she might.

"The tour has been an arduous and long one. She deserves a holiday—and a long one."

Charge Using Loyalty To Sell Magazines

Loyalties of children in some separate schools have been "commercialized," Henry Nokes, secretary of the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council, charged in a letter to the separate school board Tuesday.

Mr. Nokes' objection was to children selling magazine subscriptions in schools, for both secular and religious publications. He felt that competition thus engendered was responsible for a "commercialization of loyalties."

This activity is not sponsored by the separate school board, Chairman J. G. McCarney pointed out, suggesting that the letter be referred to the principal of St. Peter's where the practice is described as most prevalent.

Another board member felt that Mr. Nokes' point was well taken, since "taxpayers are being robbed of some business." The magazines are sold through agencies which first introduced the practice into the separate schools.

DRUDGERY DISMISSER—Pictured above is a new gadget that promises to take the back-breaking drudgery out of ditch digging for many water pipe installations. It's a plastic pipe layer. In a recent demonstration at Franklin, Pa., 1,000 feet of pipe were buried in less than ten minutes. The device uncovers a narrow trench, lays in the pipe and back-fills in one continuous operation. It is described as a great labor-saver in installing underground water lines from house to barn or other outbuildings or lawn springler systems.

4 Committed To Stand Trial

MONTREAL (CP)—Four persons including a brother and sister, Tuesday were committed for trial in Court of Queen's Bench on charges of murdering Restaurateur B. J. (Bert) McAbbie in a $5,000 robbery Jan. 19, 1953.

Facing trial are Jonathan Dawn, 22, Gertrude Servant, 25, her brother Leo, 36, and Roy Colligan, 38. Police still are searching for a fifth suspect, 33-year-old Gerry McKuhen.

Dawn, main crown witness at a preliminary hearing of the other three last week, showed no emotion Tuesday when a woman eye-witness described the fatal robbery in an apartment over the restaurant Au Lutin Qui Bouffe.

The woman, 33-year-old Margot Drouin, former employee of the restaurant, said she had been with McAbbie the night of the crime and saw Dawn take part.

Two CCF Members Disagree On Policy

OTTAWA (CP)—Two CCF members of Parliament disagree on the kind of government action needed to improve Canada's present economic situation.

Clarie Gillis, Cape Breton South said Tuesday in the Commons that this is no time for cuts in government spending. The greater the amount of money in circulation the greater the reduction would be in unemployment.

Ross Thatcher, Moose Jaw-Lake Centre, said Monday that the government should reduce expenditures and thus cut the need for high taxes.

U.S. Congress Approves St. Lawrence Seaway

UPENDED ARTILLERY TRACTOR, smashed motorcycle and crumpled car was the result of a freak accident two miles east of the city limits on Highway 7, on Wednesday afternoon. The two car ocupants were brused. The accident occurred when the car of Earl Lowes, 134 Sutherland Pl., Peterborough, was in collision with the tractor driven by Kenneth A. Graham of Lindsay. Both vehicles slewed to the ditch and the tractor flopped over on its side after skidding onto the soft shoulder. Partly under the car, is a crumpled motorcycle which had been parked beside the highway. (Examiner Staff Photo)

Red Chinese Asked Help Get Truce

Report New Split On Chairmanship For Far East Talks

PARIS (Reuters) — The French delegation at the Geneva conference has asked Chinese Communist representatives about the possibility of arranging a cease-fire at Dien Bien Phu for the evacuation of wounded, diplomatic quarters said here today.

A reply from the Communist side is expected soon. There are about 800 French wounded in underground shelters at Dien Bien Phu. Evacuation of wounded from the besieged French fortress ceased March 27 when the Vietminh rebels got control of the airstrip.

Senior French ministers met here today under the chairmanship of Premier Joseph Laniel to draw up new instructions for the Geneva delegation. Marc Jacquet, secretary of state for Indo-China, will take them to Geneva tonight.

REPORTED SPLIT

GENEVA (AP)—East and West were reported split today over the chairmanship of the Indo-China sessions of the Geneva conference. There were signs the negotiations to bring peace in Indo-China may have to be postponed until next week.

Delegates had hoped to open the talks Friday or Saturday. Viet Namese and Laotian delegates arrived today. The rebel Vietminh contingent was already on hand. But the hope for quick action faded with the lack of agreement on the chairmanship and the fact delegates from Cambodia, partner of Viet Nam and Laos in the associated states of Indo-Chino, have not arrived in Geneva.

ALL SUGGESTIONS SPURNED

U. S. Undersecretary of State Walter Bedell Smith received from British Foreign Secretary Eden an account of discussions Eden had with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov after a dinner meeting at the Briton's villa.

IN FINE SHAPE—Genevieve de Gallard-Terraube, who is the only woman in the hard-pressed fortress of Dien Bien Phu, Indo-China, has assured her friends by radio-telephone that she is in fine shape. She has been decorated twice in the last few days—first with the Legion of Honor and today with the French Military Cross with Palms. She has been decorated for her work in caring for French troops.

Youth 19, Has Own Police Force Organized

MONTREAL (CP) — A diminutive, 19-year-old youth who organized his own 27-man police force was freed today by police with a stern warning to disband the unit.

Aurele Beaulieu, five foot, two inch resident of suburban Ville St. Laurent, drove up to the provincial police station Tuesday night in a siren-equipped car bearing the inscription "Police" on the door. He volunteered the services of his recruits as guards on Laurentian beaches.

He was booked on a charge of impersonating an officer of the law, but Det.-Capt. Leopold Trottier, chief of provincial police detectives, later decided to drop the charge.

HAD ADULT HELP

"I think it would be a shame to give the boy a criminal record just because he showed lack of judgment," Capt. Trottier said. "I blame more the people who helped him."

The police officer said a Ville St. Laurent bank manager who is a commissioner of the Superior Court had sworn in the "chief" and his 27 men as special constables. A paris priest allowed them use of his church hall for meetings.

All the group's equipment was confiscated. Captain Trottier said it included a revolver, chrome-plated handcuffs "better than the ones we have," badges, identification cards, nightsticks, blackjacks and a siren and flasher on Beaulieu's car.

OFF COMES LABEL

Beaulieu, a butcher by trade, was ordered to remove the police inscription from his car.

Capt. Trottier said all the members of the force were youths with the exception of the "deputy-chief," a 58-year-old former guard at a Laurentian beach. Seventeen of the recruits supplied money for uniforms but none had been purchased yet except the one worn by Beaulieu, almost a replica of those worn by provincial police.

"The boy's idea actually isn't as silly as it looks on the surface," Capt. Trottier said. "If he had a permit to operate the force, the whole scheme would be absolutely legal."

Long Fight Ended Over Project

U.S. Joins Canada In Building International Seaway

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The House of Representatives today approved St. Lawrence seaway legislation, thus ending a long fight to authorize United States participation with Canada in building the international project.

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States House of Representatives gave backers of the St. Lawrence seaway legislation a major victory today by turning down an amendment to change financing provisions of Senate-approved bill.

The amendment, offered by Representative Charles Brownson (Rep. Ind.) was beaten on a standing vote, 173 to 79. The proposal was that $105,000,000 to defray the United States' share of the seaway construction be raised through sale of revenue bonds to the public rather than to the treasury department.

The bonds, under the amendment, would not have been guaranteed by the government.

AMENDMENT FEARED

The amendment was opposed by the administration.

Representative George Dondero (Rep. Mich.), floor manager for the pro-seaway forces, told the House that the Brownson amendment would "defeat the whole project."

Dondero added that under a private financing arrangement the interest rate would be higher than that charged by the government.

Brownson argued that acceptance of the amendment would prevent "any pressure on the national debt." He asserted it would not cause any delay in raising funds.

NO DEBATE

The House, without debate, accepted an amendment by Representatives Kenneth Keating and Harold Ostertag, New York Republicans, to guarantee protection for U. S. owners of shore property on Lake Ontario against any high water damage caused by the seaway.

The House convened in strength two hours ahead of schedule today in an effort to wind up debate on the project, bitterly fought by powerful lobbies for nearly 50 years.

The Senate, which in past years has consistently shelved or voted down enabling legislation for the 27-foot-deep waterway opening the Great Lakes to deep-sea shipping, approved the measure this year.

Democrats Claim Astounding U.S. Defeat At Geneva

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Guy Gillette of Iowa told a national Democratic conference today that the United States suffered "an astounding and unprecedented reversal" at the Geneva conference on the question of Indo-China. He blamed it on what he called a "split" Republican administration lacking a foreign policy.

He declared in a prepared address that the 1952 election put one group of Republicans in charge of the executive branch of the U.S. government and another group in Congress, and called the "fiasco" at Geneva only the most glaring example of what price the U.S. is paying in the struggle against Communist imperialism.

State Secretary Dulles said after his return from Geneva Wednesday that the talks are going about as anticipated, and that he knows of nothing that has happened to justify an interpretation that the U.S. has suffered a defeat.

UNQUALIFIED FAITH

President Eisenhower told his press conference he has unqualified faith in Dulles, and he said no one loses a battle while the battle is still going on.

Gillette, a Democratic member of the Senate foreign relations committee, said the country will live to regret the administration's decision not to use the United Nations machinery to halt the Indo-China war.

"We could have hauled the Red aggressor before the bar of world opinion," he said, "but we preferred to revert to outworn methods of military intervention. . . .

"While the whole world was watching, the administration marched straight up the hill to Geneva, then turned around and marched right down again."

NO INDO-CHINA POLICY

The explanation was to be found "in the fact that there was no policy for Indo-China and no firm basis for a policy if one had been found on which the Republicans could agree."

Dulles was quoted by informed sources Wednesday night as having told a group of 24 members of Congress, both Republican and Democrat, that the U.S. has no present plans to send any forces into the Indo-China war. Neither Dulles nor the legislators commented afterward.

Dulles was said to have reported that Eisenhower regards Indo-China as a far worse place to involve U.S. forces than Korea. He was also reported to haveasaid he plans to go ahead with his plans for "united action" to protect Southeast Asia even if Britain balks, as she has done pending the Geneva talks. He was represented as saying, however, that he thinks Britain eventually will go along.

Niagara Falls Turns Down Cocktail Lounge

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The first Ontario city to vote on cocktail lounges since the provincial liquor licence act of 1946 said "no" Wednesday.

More than 50 per cent of the persons who voted were in favor of the liquor sales but it wasn't enough. A "yes" vote of 60 per cent of the voters was needed to pass the referendum.

The vote in this city of 22,000 persons was regarded as a test for Ontario cities which have a population of less than 50,000. The provincial Liquor Licence Act requires all cities with a population of less than 50,000 to hold a vote before applying for liquor lounges.

RESULT OF VOTE

Only 13,911 persons were eligible to vote here and slightly more than half of these cast ballots. On dining lounges, 4,220 voted in favor and 3,459 against. Ballots favoring the sale received 54.9 per cent of the vote.

On the question of selling liquor by the glass, 4,175 voted yes and 3,518 no. The vote was 54.27 per cent in favor.

Supporters of the lounges said in their campaign that millions of tourist dollars cross the Niagara river and are spent in bars and taverns in the United States. They said local residents also spend money there as well as in bootleg establishments here.

Opposition came from persons who said a new class of drinkers would arise from the new sources of liquor if the referendum were passed.

10 Missing On Plane

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) The U. S. naval air station here reported today one of its flying boats, with 10 men aboard, is missing in the Gulf of Mexico. The plane, a PBM patrol bomber, was on a routine training flight.

Army Truck, Car, Motorcycle Tangle In Crash

Earl Lowes, 42, and his mother, Mrs. P. H. Lowes, both of 134 Sutherland Place, were bruised and shaken up late Wednesday afternoon when an army artillery tractor plowed into the rear of their vehicle, east of the Brookside dance pavilion.

One of the oversize front wheels of the tractor, which is used for pulling artillery pieces, crushed the trunk completely. It knocked Lowes' 1953-model car off the travelled portion of the road and almost into a water-filled ditch.

A motorcycle parked by the side of the road was run over and wrecked.

Lowes, a Toronto newspaper correspondent in Peterborough, was bruised on one leg. His mother received a bump on the head when she was thrown forward against the windshield; also a bruised leg.

The artillery tractor, driven by Kenneth A. Graham, 28, of Lindsay, was travelling along Highway 7 east toward Peterborough. After striking the rear of Lowes' car, the large vehicle turned over on its left side but received only slight damage.

MOTORCYCLE PARKED

The trunk of the car was smashed and there was further damage caused when the vehicle ran over the motorcycle that had been parked by the side of the highway since early Tuesday night. It

RCMP Rushes More Men After 2 Strange Shootings

MINTO, N.B. (CP)—RCMP reinforcements rushed into this central New Brunswick mining area today and started an intensive search for a 25-year-old man wanted in connection with two shootings, one of them fatal.

RCMP said they are seeking Floyd Edgar Brown of Minto, formerly of River Hebert, N.S., for questioning in the two apparently unprovoked shootings Wednesday night during which Earl Thompson, 54, was killed and Rene Patris, 50, wounded.

Police warned all residents of the area to lock their cars so that their vehicles could "not be used to facilitate the escape of Brown." They said the man who shot Thompson and Patirs escaped in a light truck stolen from the Patris farm.

CARRYING RIFLE

The truck was found today, abandoned in a ditch a few miles south of this coal mining town.

RCMP said Brown was "believed on foot, armed and dangerous."

They said he carried a .22-calibre rifle.

He was described as 5 feet, 6 inches tall, weighing 150 pounds and, with a one-inch scar on his forehead.

The police circle around the Minto area was tightened after finding of the truck. Earlier their roadblocks had extended into Nova Scotia and through a wide area of New Brunswick.

Thompson, a miner and woods worker who lived alone on a secondary road about two miles from here, was shot and killed about 8:30 p.m.

Courtesy Call By Russian CO

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP) Col.-Gen. A. A. Grechko, Soviet army commander-in-chief in East Germany, today paid an unprecedented "courtesy" call on his American counterpart at United States headquarters here in West Germany.

Gen. William M. Hoge, commander of the U. S. army in Europe, had made a similar visit to Grechko in East Berlin last November.

The Russian's visit was the first by such a high Soviet officer to West Germany since the occupation began nine years ago. Since the Russians rarely do anything impulsive in their relations with the West, and since Grechko's trip coincided with the East-West negotiations at Geneva, it aroused enormous speculation in West Germany.

The U. S. air forces gave the Russian and his party an extraordinary escort. Two U. S. Air Force helicopters met the three black Russian limousines at the East-West border at Hersfled and furnished an umbrella down the express highway to Heidelberg. Two American jet fighters circled the party. U. S. military police jeeps, six in all, guarded the convoy fore and aft during the three-hour drive.

Expect Crowds Blossom Week

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Thousands of sightseers are expected in Canada's orchard garden, the Niagara peninsula, this week-end for the start of Blossom Week Saturday.

Blossoms in a color range of pale white to deep pink decorate nearly 50,000 acres of trees, now in mid-bloom. Petals have dropped from the early-flowering apricot but the peach is in bloom in every part of the area.

District growers reported today fruit blossoms have been unharmed by the cold snap, although the below-normal temperatures may delay by a few days the best display in some sections. Temperatures were several degrees above freezing through the fruit belt below the escarpment Wednesday night.

Dr. J. F. Palmer, director of the Dominion experimental station at nearby Vineland, said it still is too early to tell whether there has been any damage to the fruit crop, but generally the blossom display is expected to be at its best at the end of the week.

He said any injury would be spotty anyway, since fruit is at various stages of development through the area.

Unhurt In Crash But Attack Kills Man

ORILLIA (CP) — Robert Newman of Cleveland died early today of a heart attack suffered a few hours earlier after a light plane in which he and Joseph Walton, Jr., 52, also of Cleveland, were flying from Cleveland to North Bay on a business trip crashed near here.

Police said Newman apparently suffered the seizure just before doctors arrived at the crash scene eight miles north of here.

Newman's wife arrived from Cleveland during the night.

Police said the almost-new plane apparently developed engine trouble as Walton flew it low when snow and rain cut visibility. It had been refuelled at Toronto, about 70 miles south of Orillia.

French War Front Reported Quiet

HANOI (AP) — Vietminh rebel troops crushing in on Dien Bien Phu regrouped and bolstered their attack positions early today, but gave no indication when they would unleash their next massive assault on the French Union Indo-China fortress.

French army headquarters reported the critical hours of darkness Wednesday night passed "calmly" for the garrison troops stubbornly clinging to the core of the fortress defences. The maze of trenches, dugouts and bunkers now is less than five-eighths of a mile across.

It was the second night in a row without ground action.

Rebel artillery and mortars, however, kept up incessant pounding of French positions. Hitting back, French guns lobbed shells into enemy positions in the encircling hills.

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain's Roger Bannister, 24, today ran a mile in less than four minutes. His time was given as 3:59.4.

Authorities Denying Queen Not Well

VALLETTA, Malta (CP) — Authoritative sources have scotched rumors that the Queen is not feeling well as she nears the end of her round-the-world tour, and several British newspapers backed them up today.

The London Daily Sketch Wednesday had created some uneasiness by remarking that the Queen has lost weight in the tour which began last November and "looks fine-drawn and tired."

But sources here Wednesday night said she is in "good health and the best of spirits." Circles close to the royal household said the Queen probably has been suffering somewhat from the after-effects of a lightning change in climate, from Aden, at the southwest corner of Arabia and one of the world's hottest spots, to this British naval base in the centre of the Mediterranean.

IN SOUND HEALTH

Today's London Daily Mirror assured its readers that the Queen, while somewhat thinner, is in sound health. Its correspondent in Valletta said that at the royal ball here Wednesday night she looked "positively radiant."

It said she had suffered a slight chill which now has been shaken off and is "not physically tired in any sense that can cause alarm."

The London Daily Herald, estimated that the Queen has lost about five pounds but "this isn't surprising in view of the heat during her strenuous tour." The Herald quoted a member of the royal entourage as saying "the Queen is feeling perfectly fit."

SCOLDS PESSIMISTS

Lord Beaverbrook's London Daily Express scolded "pessimists who while protesting their loyalty seem to take perverse delight in forecasting trouble for the Queen.

It is possible, said The Express, that the Queen "deliberately has been slimming to counteract the effect of all the feasting and banquets held in her honor."

"Or the hot climates maybe have reduced her appetite."

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh had a quiet day Wednesday, before the ball. The duke took part in a polo game while the Queen watched with theri children.

THE ROYAL FAMILY IS REUNITED aboard the yacht Britannia, as they watched the Fleet being assembled in the waters off Malta. The Duke of Edinburgh stands by Princess Anne and Prince Charles while Queen Elizabeth watches the naval manoeuvres.

French Commander Seeks Key To Victory Should Have Been Medieval Knight

By LARRY ALLEN

SAIGON (AP) — A gallant French Army officer sits in a rain-soaked bunker on the plain of Dien Bien Phu, seeking the key to victory in the darkest hour of his career.

Brig.-Gen. Count Christian Marie Fernand de la Croix de Castries, commander of the little pot-shaped valley position, is surrounded by tens of thousands of Communist-led Vietminh troops. They are trying to strangle his isolated fortress. The grip has been tightening for days.

Against them stand about 14,000 French, North African, Foreign Legion and Viet Namese troops, crowded into a circle less than a mile in diameter.

In the hands of the six-foot de Castries, a champion horseman who wears a red Africa cavalry cap instead of a steel helmet, is the decision whether they—and he—will leave the position alive.

"He was meant to be a medieval knight, a cavalier in mail and armor," said one of his intimates recently. "Failing that, he did the next best thing—he became a cavalryman."

TRAP BACKFIRED

Jacqueline, his tall blonde second wife, lives in Hanoi—187 miles from the battle—and talks to him by radiotelephone every day at noon.

"You know," his friend says, "the general has never doubted even for a moment the possibility of holding Dien Bien Phu. If it falls it will be because the defenders have died to the last man, destroying with them most of the Vietminh."

Dien Bien Phu was designed as a trap to lure the Vietminh into open battle. Now the French themselves are trapped.

De Castries' only lifeline is through the sky. Everything he uses is parachuted in.

The situation must remind de Castries of his experience in the battle of France. Tanks and dive-bombers supported the 2,000 Germans who surrounded him and his 60 men in 1940. After three days of fighting he tried a break-out, was wounded and taken prisoner. He made three unsuccessful attempts to escape, succeeded on the fourth try, and two years later was fighting on the Garigliano in Italy.

BORN IN NOBILITY

De Castries was born in Paris Aug. 11, 1902 to a family of the French nobility—and to the cavalry. One of his ancestors was the Marquis Charles de Castries, who fought under Louis XV, became minister of the navy and went into exile with Louis XVIII.

Young de Castries entered the cavalry school at Saumur. One day he saw a beautiful horse galloping in the pastures of a cousin's estate. The animal suddenly made a prodigious leap, clearing a hedge more than six feet high. De Castries had to have that horse. In 1933 he took the unknown jumper—named Vol au Vent—over the barrier to a world record jump of 2.38 metres (7 feet 10 inches).

In the Second World War, he took part in the capture of Karlsruhe and Freudenstadt, the key to the Black forest. He captured the German crown prince.

Rule TCA, RCAF Will Share Damage Blame

OTTAWA (CP)—Trans-Canada Air Lines and the RCAF will share responsibility for life and property damage in the two-plane collision over Moose Jaw, Sask., April 8 that cost 37 lives.

The mid-air crash, Canada's worst flying accident, has resulted in a joint inquiry by civilian and military authorities that will attempt to ascertain whether Canadian flying regulations, particularly those bearing on the Moose Jaw disaster, should be tightened.

The announcement came Wednesday from Trade Minister Howe when he gave the Commons an interim report on incomplete investigations into the crash by the transport department, TCA and RCAF. He indicated the TCA North Star had the right-of-way over the air force Harvard trainer, but that did not relieve the air liner's pilot of the responsibility of keeping a lookout to avoid collision.

Mr. Howe, who reports to Parliament for TCA, said the publicly-owned air line has assumed responsibility for claims arising out of the death of the 35 passengers aboard the North Star. The air force would settle damages for life and property on the ground.

CIVILIAN INQUIRY

Informants said the civilian end of the air-regulations inquiry will be handled by the government's air transport board; the service section by the RCAF.

Mr. Howe said Canadian policy has been to avoid unnecessary flying restrictions, particularly in good visibility. Canadian restrictions, however, were constantly reviewed and in some cases were more rigorous than those of other countries.

Detailing investigations into the Moose Jaw collision, he said the two aircraft were on converging courses. The Harvard knifed into the left wing of the North Star and both plunged to earth.

Houses were destroyed by falling wreckage. A cleaning woman was burned to death in one. The Harvard pilot also died.

Indo-Chinese Moving Money

HONG KONG (CP)—The flight of capital from Indo-China through Hong Kong has reached big proportions, banking sources disclosed today.

Many persons are trying to get their wealth out of Indo-China lest it be caught there by military defeat of the French Union forces or by an unfavorable truce.

Maritime Agreement Hits Potato Growers

SARNIA (CP)—A federal marketing arrangement with the Maritimes has been forcing Ontario potato growers to accept "ridiculously low prices" for their products, R. G. Goodin of the Ontario department of agriculture said Wednesday.

Mr. Goodin adressing a meeting of potato growers at nearby Blackwell, said under the agreement the difference between actual selling price at base and the guaranteed price is made up from federal funds.

Ontario growers feel let down because as taxpayers they are helping to pay that artificial price and yet have no voice in negotiating the policy, he said.

FARMER ALSO SHOT

Less than an hour later Rene Patris, 50, a dairy farmer at nearby Newcastle Bridge—about a mile from the Thompson home—was shot through the neck when he stepped to the door of his barn, where he was milking, in answer to a call from outside.

Patris was able to jump back into the barn. He ran out another door to a neighbor's for help. He was taken to a Fredericton hospital where he was described as conscious and improving this morning.

His assailant jumped into a half-ton pickup truck used by Patris in his milk deliveries, careened out of the yard.

According to neighbors, two men from the district were in the Thompson home just prior to the shooting and one of them afterwards disappeared. The other, a brother-in-law of the missing man, said he had been forced to go to the Thompson home at rifle-point and had remained on the doorstep while the armed man entered the kitchen.

Admits Bought Beer Illegally Man Fined $100

Fred La Plante, 779 Brown St., pleaded guilty before Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, Thursday, to having liquor not acquired on his individual permit and also to having liquor in a place other than his residence.

On the first charge LaPlante was given the minimum fine of $100, costs $2.50, and on the second he was fined $15, costs $2.50.

Crown attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, told the magistrate that he intended to ask LaPlante where he had obtained the liquor and from whom. He said that there was an added penalty if an accused person refused to give the required information.

The magistrate agreed, but gave LaPlante time to discuss the matter with his lawyer, John Corkery.

FOR PARTY

LaPlante then told the court that he had obtained four cartons of beer, 12 bottles of wine and four bottles of whisky, in Port Hope on Easter Saturday. A further two cartons of beer had been bought in Peterborough. He said that the liquor had been intended for a party supposed to have been held at Chemong on the Sunday.

Police had arrested LaPlante in Peterborough and he had never got to the party.

However, the police did get to the party. At least detective Dennis Traynor said that he had gone out to Chemong on the Sunday afternoon and visited the house metioned by LaPlante. The detective said there was no party going on at the house and it did not appear as though the occupants intended having one.

The detective also told the court that LaPlante had an extra case of beer in his possession which he said belonged to "a friend."

In court, LaPlante admitted ownership of the beer and the fact that he had told a lie to the police. He understood that he was able to buy only four cases of beer in any one day and thought that he had broken the law by purchasing six cases. That had been the reason for his lying.

"Your worship, I can't make head or tale of this, I don't know whether you can," commented the Crown attorney.

Mr. Corkery said that his client had given a reasonable explanation of how he had acquired the liquor.

The magistrate agreed that there had been no evidence to prove that what LaPlante said was not true.

Stock Market Bearish In Light Trading

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market was bearish in light early afternoon trading today.

Industrials lagged with profit-taking. Only strong categories were constructions, steels, manufacturing, and motors. Western oils weakness continued. Base metals were down in seniors and juniors. Bathurst issues were down and uraniums steady. Manitouwadge issues were weaker.

Volume at 1 p. m. was a light 1,044,000 shares.

Steel gains went to Atlas, Dominion Bridge, Dominion Foundries, Page-Hershey, and Stelco.

Western oil's biggest loss was Canadian Devonian, down 17-cents. In base metals, Gunnar dropped 25 cents in uraniums.

Four senior golds—Bulol, Giant Yellowknife, Hollinger and Kerr-Addison—were down fractions. But juniors and prospects were up.

Spend Three Billion On Planes To 1961

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department plans to spend $3,180,000,000 in the next seven years for aircraft.

This amount will represent roughly 25 per cent of the total defence budget for the years 1954 to 1961, officials said Wednesday, and will reflect Canadian concern with continental defence.

Equipping the RCAF with the proper fighter aircraft is a slow and painstaking job. And it never ends because in this supersonic age planes become obsolete almost as soon as they are in service.

That is why the defence department must plan for aircraft seven or eight years ahead.

The air force takes delivery of about 800 planes a year from Canadian manufacturers, including all types.

An informed source said that Eden, acting on behalf of the U. S., France and other interested countries, suggested a chairmanship rotating among Bidault, Eden and Molotov. While Molotov did not immediately reject this suggestion, it was said he showed no great interest in it.

The informant said the Communists turned down Prince Wan Waithayakon of Thailand as sole chairman and the French were understood to have rejected continuance for the Indo-China talks of the arrangement followed for the Korean debate—a chair rotating among Prince Wan, Eden and Molotov.

Russia's Andrei Gromyko was reported Wednesday to have turned down a French suggestion that Canada's External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson occupy the chair.

DOUBLY URGENT

The critical military situation at the besieged Indo-China fortress of Dien Bien Phu made the talks a doubly urgent matter to Western diplomats here.

In London, informants said Britain has agreed to talk over possible united Allied action in Indo-China to either guarantee any settlement that might be reached in Geneva or to aid the French forces if the negotiations here break down.

VETOED SUGGESTION

Britain vetoed previous U.S. suggestions for military action, contending that negotiations with the Reds should be tried first.

London sources expect military experts of the United States, Britain, France, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand to start the talks, in Washington or in Singapore, within three weeks.

Most of the arrangements for the Indo-China talks here have been completed.

READY FOR MEETING

A room in the Palace of Nations, in a wing separate from that being used for the Korean talks, has been prepared for the meeting.

TO JOIN TALKS

LONDON (AP) — Britain has agreed to join Allied talks on united action in Indo-China if the Geneva peace parley fails, authoritative sources said Wednesday night.

The report came as London newspapers voiced fears that Britain would drift into a serious split with the United States over Allied action in Indo-China. Moscow radio had asserted that British refusal to join in "new aggressive plans" "isolated" the U. S. at the Geneva Far East conference.

The American-proposed parley is expected to take place within the next three weeks in either Washington or Singapore, and will also involve Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

FEAR CANADIAN MONOPOLY

Canada's decision to build the seaway alone if necessary and retain exclusive control over tolls accounts for much of the change of feeling.

In an impassioned speech today Robert T. Secrest (Dem.) said it is unthinkable that the U. S. should remain outside a project that would give Canada control over shipping that could enter deep into the heart of the U. S. and put many of its industries out of business.

The motorcycle was wrecked.

Lowes' car stopped on the edge of a three-foot ditch that in the spring contains a fast-flowing stream of water. The car narrowly missed hitting a tree.

CECIL GORDON HUNT

Cecil Gordon Hunt of 31 Dennistoun Ave. died on Wednesday at his home following a prolonged illness. Born in Campbellford 40 years ago, Mr. Hunt was the son of the late Jesse Hunt and Emma Post, and has lived most of his life in Peterborough.

Besides his wife, the former Mary Plumpton, he leaves three sons: Gordon 17, Larry 14 and David 9. There is one sister in the city, Mrs. Alex Steven (Rita), and two brothers, Clifford of Peterborough and Stanley in Alberta. Mr. Hunt was in a clerical department of the Canadian General Electric and a member of the Salvation Army.

Funeral service will be held at the Kaye funeral home on Saturday at 2 p.m. Major Harry Everitt will officiate and burial will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO (CP) — Soybeans opened firm on the board of trade today but mixed trends ruled in other cereals.

Wheat started 1¾ lower to ¼ higher, May $2.02, corn unchanged to ⅛ lower, May $1.53⅝-¾, oats unchanged to ⅛ higher, May 72⅝-¾ and soybeans ¼ to 4½ higher, May $3.98-3.98½.

Ottawa Facing $1,000,000 Loss On Butter

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is offering its 33,000,000 pound butter stockpile to the trade at 55½ cents a pound—2½ cents below what it paid for it.

This reduction—along with handling charges—may mean a loss to the federal treasury of more than $1,000,000.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner Wednesday announced the sharply-reduced selling price—compared to about 61 cents a pound last year—as a move to dispose of the government's 1953 surplus.

Meanwhile, the government will continue to buy 1954 butter from producers at the support price of 58 cents a pound. And if pastures are good, the government may be buying more butter this year than it did a year ago.

For one thing federal experts anticipate that milk production this year will be higher and for another, the release of 1953 stocks at the cut price will reduce the market for 1954 butter.

FIRST IN YEARS

This is the first time since 1950 that the government has cut prices below cost. At that time it unloaded about 20,000,000 pounds.

Commercial dairy representatives said they felt the trade likely will buy some of the butter at the reduced price, but that the temporary price cut is not the answer to the dairy industry's problems. The industry is faced with sharp competition from lower - priced margarine.

Either the industry had to find a way to reduce long-range dairy prices or have the government impose tolls on margarine to raise its price to the dairy level.

Canada Over Hump With Unemployment

MONTREAL (CP)—Labor Minister Gregg says Canada is over the hump so far as unemployment is concerned.

"We are certainly past the unemployment peak for this year," Mr. Gregg Wednesday night told the annual meeting of the employers' advisory group of the unemployment insurance commission.

There would be seasonal unemployment again next fall, "but not on the scale we experienced last fall."

Sliced Bacteria Aids Study Of Cancer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sliced bacteria, cut something like bologna, may be a new aid in the study of normal and cancerous growth, a Princeton University scientist said today.

Dr. George B. Chapman, describing the first successful preparation of germ slices thin and stable enough to allow real payoff study with an electron microscope, said the technique already has provided new information on the process of cell division — one of the basic mechanisms of all growth.

He told the Society of American Bacteriologists in a prepared paper that bacteria only 1-25,000ths of an inch in circumference and only three times as long have been sliced lengthwise as thin as 1,500,000th of an inch.

The bacteria, imbedded in plastic, were attached to a rotating wheel brought to bear against a stationary knife.

Chapman said studies of these slices with science's super-sleuthing electron microscope disclose new information.

Young Organist From Germany Returning Home

Friday evening, Heribert Michel will be giving a farewell, and perhaps final Canadian piano concert in St. Peter's auditorium. He is scheduled to return to his native Germany on June 5.

Pianist Michel was born in Steinwiesen, Germany some 22 years ago and at the age of 11 was studying music at the Nurenburg school. Immediately following the war, which interrupted his studies, he returned to Nurenburg and then to the Regensburg school of music where he studied under Dr. Ferd Harperls for three years. During this time his accomplishments set new records. He received teaching degrees in piano, voice and organ before his 19th birthday.

Following the death of John Armstrong in 1951, organist and choir master at Sacred Heart church for 37 years, Monsignor J. E. Ronan, of Toronto inquired at the Regensburg school for talent to fill the vacancy. The outstanding applicant was Mr. Michel, and in April of that year he came to Sacred Heart, Mr. Michel has trained a ladies' choir; and composed four masses, regularly performed in the church. Three of these compositions are high masses; the fourth is a requiem written in honor of his father who died in Germany in 1952. A copy of the requiem mass was sent home upon completion.

Although Mr. Michel's appointment here was to terminate in three years, he has grown very fond of this country. His work at Sacred Heart has been highly satisfactory, and he hopes to return.

This depends, however, on the state of affairs at home. His mother is presently raising two daughters and a younger son. An older son, Wilfrom, 24, is being ordained into the priesthood this summer, the immediate reason that Heribert is returning to Steinwiesen, June 5.

Should he come back to Peterborough (he has purchased a return fare) Mr. Michel will take his Canadian music examinations and continue his career as choir master, organist, teacher, and composer, in Peterborough.

Wool production in Canada in 1953 reached 8,621,000 pounds, or 12 per cent more than 1952.

STEAL $40 IN CASH—Thieves entered the Peterborough Metal Co. building, River Road North, early today and stole about $40 from two petty cash boxes. Isabel McArthur (top photo) peers through a hole, punched through the side of the wall safe from which a cash box, containing about $30, was taken. OPP Constable Don Lacombe (lower photo) makes notes near the window through which the thieves were believed to have entered. An empty cash box, from which $10 was taken, lies open on the floor.

About 60 members of the National Association of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians (CIO) struck Wednesday night in a contract dispute over wages and other benefits, but the stations remained on the air. Pickets were posted.

Zoning, The Riverside And Heavy Industry

We think that the Otonabee Valley Conservation Committee does well to protest against those sections of the Zoning By-Law which allot riverside properties to Heavy Industry. Specifically, these properties are those on the east and west banks of the River north of Parkhill Road, and the area on the west bank of the River running from the C.P.R. bridge north to Hunter Street. The Committee, which was officially approved by the City Council, and which exists to preserve and beautify the Otonabee River, is acting well within its rights in making such a protest and we feel that it should be given a thoughtful hearing by the Planning Board.

* * *

There are not many riverside properties left in Peterborough, and we should take care of those which remain within our power. There are not many types of industry today which require riverside sites; industries that need water close at hand usually have demands which cannot be met by such a river as the Otonabee. All that we shall do, if the Zoning By-Law remains in its present form, is to gain a few industrial sites which can easily be duplicated, in area, elsewhere. What we shall lose is the incalculable advantage of easy access to the river which flows through our city. It is one of the natural beauties of Peterborough. Can we do nothing with it except build factories on it? Must we make it one with Jackson Park Creek?

* * *

It may be said that the factory of today is not the dirty factory of the nineteenth century. Very true, and several of the big industries in this city have beautified their surroundings in a fashion which deserves praise from us all. But is it necessary or desirable that the last open parts of the river bank should become private property? Would they not be put to better use as park areas?

* * *

We must have the vision to see Peterborough as it will be a century from now. It will be a much bigger city than it is today, and people from other cities will reach it far more easily than they do at present. We are in an area filled with beautiful waterways; are we to insist that all our city parks and playgrounds be inland in future? Are our grandchildren to wonder why we were so foolish as to sell so much of our riverbanks, instead of keeping them for walks, parks and playgrounds?

* * *

If the Planning Board has a reason to offer for its action, it should be heard. We do not suggest for a moment that it has acted without thought. But we think that the Otonabee Valley Conservation Committee has a very strong case, and that it, as well as the Planning Board, works under the protection of the City Council. It must not be borne down by sheer weight of officialdom, for it has something very important to say.

It Depends Whose Ox Is Gored

In politics, perhaps more than in any other human activity, we see the application of the old saying 'It all depends whose ox is gored'. It is not many months since the predominantly Conservative press of Ontario was in an ecstasy of indignation about the scandal of Camp Petawawa; there was evidence of faulty supervision, of swindling, of disregard for public economy, and there was only one thing which would have fully satisfied the journalistic watchdogs at that time—the resignation of the Minister of Defence, Mr. Brooke Claxton. It was the Liberal ox which was gored then, and feeling ran high. But now we are in the middle of a scandal of considerable magnitude concerning the Ontario Department of Highways; great sums of public money have gone astray, there is evidence of faulty supervision, of swindling and of disregard for public economy, and, marvellous to relate, we have not heard one passionate outcry for the resignation of the responsible Minister, Mr. George Doucett. A different ox bleeds today.

We do not think that anything would be gained by Mr. Doucett's resignation. Nothing has appeared to link him with the scandal. Yet he is the responsible Minister, just as was Mr. Claxton. Anyone who has any insight into the workings of a government knows to what an extent a Minister is in the hands of his subordinates—who are not white-winged angels, but simply men of varying degrees of honesty. It is difficult for a Minister, without making himself very unpleasant, to find out what his subordinates are doing, in any detail; if he is too persistent in his enquiries, work in his department slows down, for the civil service is the most closely knit and intractable of all trades unions. Yet the Minister is responsible; he is chosen for the task of guiding a particular department of state.

Strange, is it not, how much charity is extended to Mr. Doucett, by those who wanted to see Mr. Claxton brought down in the dust?

Action On A Proper Coach Terminal

A great many of our readers will join with us in complimenting the City Council, and Alderman McBride in particular, on their reply to a request from Colonial Coach Lines for permission to add to its garage space on Douro Street; the Council said that it would be prepared to consider extensions of the garage when Colonial Coach Lines made clear its intentions regarding a proper bus terminal for this city.

For ten years the coach company has been promising a terminal that would be suitable to Peterborough, and for ten years it has made use of quarters which provide the minimum of convenience and appearance. Great numbers of people enter and leave Peterborough by coach, and they deserve decent waiting rooms and a well-kept marshalling-yard. It will not be long before a very fine public building—the new Post Office and Customs Building—will be opened directly in front of the present coach yard, and this is the time for a change which will improve all of that section of the city.

Other cities of a size comparable with Peterborough have fine bus terminals, and the number of people who use the buses makes it desirable that we should have one, as well. Businesses which prosper in Peterborough have an obligation to add something to the amenity and dignity of the city, and the coach line cannot be considered an exception. We are glad that the City Council has seized this opportunity to take a firm stand on this matter, and we hope that its rebuke will have effect.

Far Away Fields

It is a strange quirk of human nature that mere distance greatly enhances things in our estimation. The budding trees, or the lilacs in bloom are in the country inevitably more spectacular than those in the back yard, or on the street.

A visit to the seat of our Government, Ottawa, is a much-to-be-desired journey. To be permitted to view the Parliament buildings, the Peace Tower, the House of Commons and the Senate Chamber, would evoke feeling of pride in most of us. But it would be amazing to learn the number of people in Ottawa (where such viewing is always possible) who have never visited the Parliament Buildings, nor listened to a debate in the House of Commons.

The other day, while thumbing over the Encyclopaedia Britannica, we observed a picture which looked familiar. It was the Ashburnham Bridge, on Hunter Street, and was described as "the longest concrete arched bridge (in the world) without reinforcement by steel. It is know as the Peterborough Arch."

But how many people in Peterborough know of the fame of the Ashburnham Bridge? It would appear that this fact is being overlooked in the publicizing our our city—even to our own residents.

Better Not To Know

A French archaeologist has discovered a marble portrait, which he insists is an effigy of Cleopatra; it is not the portrait of a beautiful woman, and on these grounds the archaeologist insists that the great Queen's legendary beauty was—legendary.

We are astonished by the number of people who have rushed into print to dispute his assertion, and to defend Cleopatra's beauty. We know that thousands of men thought her beautiful, among them the great general Julius Caesar (who writings do not suggest that he was easily swayed) and Marcus Antonius (who was reputed to be a judge of beauty).

It is a great truth that beauty lies in the eye of the beholder. Styles in beauty change from age to age, and from place to place. What is widely admired as beauty today? A large mouth, painted to look almost square; large, white teeth; very large breasts; small hips; long legs; rather big feet; short hair, artificially curled. We may be pretty sure that Cleopatra did not look like that. What was the ideal of beauty a century ago? Large eyes; rosebud mouth; tiny waist; large hips; short, rather thick legs, and tiny feet. We doubt if Cleopatra looked like that, either.

Every age creates its own ideal of feminine beauty, and few people are capable of seeing beauty which does not conform to the popular pattern. Cleopatra would not have suited Hollywood. We do not suppose that one of Hollywood's glamour girls would have suited Caesar and Antony. Cleopatra, as each man sees her in his mind's eye, is far more beautiful than any portrait could make her.

Naboth's Vineyard—1954

By FATHER TREVOR HUDDLESTON, C.R.

NOTE.—Father Huddleston is an Anglican priest and a member of the Community of the Resurrection.

THE purpose of the Natives Resettlement Bill, due to become law shortly in South Africa, is to clear the way for the Western Areas Removal Scheme, which involves the removal of 57,000 Non-Europeans from their homes in a suburb of Johannesburg. During the debate in the House of Assembly a violent attack was made upon the Bishop of Johannesburg and myself as persons who must have ulterior motives for opposing such a beneficent scheme. There are very many people in South Africa who apparently do not understand why such a fuss is being made. This must be still truer of the Commonwealth, and I welcome the opportunity of trying to clarify the position, if I can. For I am convinced that the carrying through of the Western Areas Removal Scheme will have disastrous effect on race-relations in this country, and may have, in the long run, very serious repercussions indeed throughout the continent of Africa.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE Western Areas comprise the freehold townships of Sophiatown, Martindale and Newclare. They are, in every respect, similar to the adjoining European suburbs of Johannesburg in that their residents are ratepayers who have freedom of ownership (including freedom to mortgage their property): they house a settled, working population closer to the centre of the city and to its industrial belt than any other Native urban area; many of the Non-European families living there have never known any other home; many of the houses are better-built and more spacious than those in the locations. In these respects the Western Areas are unique, and it is important to realise this when the removal scheme is considered. For it envisages the destruction of privileges which have been enjoyed for fifty years and which, once taken away, may never be restored. Freehold title—taken for granted by the white man in South Africa—exists for the African in its fullest sense only in the Western Areas of Johannesburg. Dr. Verwoerd, the Minister of Native Affairs, has made it perfectly clear that he has no intention of ever allowing the urban African to possess such a privilege again.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN THE area to which these people are to be evicted the most that they will get is a thirty-year lease, and, because Meadowlands (their new home) is to be a Native location under municipal control, they will lose at the same time such other freedoms as they now enjoy. The real reason for the deprivation of freehold title is not far to seek. It is the determination of the present Government to prevent the African urban population from regarding itself or being regarded as more than a migratory labour force—a labour force which is essential, but which must never be permanent. The chief moral objection to the scheme is precisely here: that it is a deprivation of rights (robbery, if you like) for no other reason than a purely racial and ideological one.

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT, IT IS argued—and this has been the Government's chief weapon—the Western Areas are a major slum: their removal is essential on grounds of health and social security: ergo if you oppose this removal you are in fact encouraging slum conditions; you are an enemy of the people you profess to serve.

✧ ✧ ✧

I HAVE lived in Sophiatown for over six years. There are not many of its streets and backyards, not many of its pleasant homes, not many of its overcrowded rooms and tin shacks that I do not know. That slum conditions exist — and in a big way — I do not for one moment deny. That they need to be dealt with I have said publicly for the past ten years. That they are a crying scandal to this city and a challenge to its citizens and its local authority, we, who live and work here, have consistently and loudly proclaimed. But slum clearance can be effected without mass removal. Sophiatown and the Western Areas can become — and this has been demonstrated by expert town-planners —an ideal Non-European suburb on one condition: that houses are built in sufficiently large number and sufficiently soon to accommodate its sub-tenants elsewhere.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE only reason for slum conditions in Sophiatown is the appalling dilatoriness and apathy of both local and central government in building houses for its permanent Native urban people. Only now — ten years too late — has the City Council embarked on a housing programme imaginative enough to meet the situation. On any estimate 50,000 houses are needed at once to house Johannesburgh's existing Native population. We shall be lucky if we get 5,000 houses built in a year. Yet the Minister chooses this moment to remove an entire community from its home and to divert the energies, the manpower, the machinery and the money from its proper channels, in order to carry out this fantastic scheme.

✧ ✧ ✧

AS I write, 90,000 people live in slum conditions far worse than those of the Western Areas — in the temporary breeze-block shelters of Orlando and in Moroka Emergency Camp. Thousands more, from Primville and from the peri-urban fringe, have been waiting for houses for eight or ten years. The City Council has a list of its own exceeding $10,000 names. All these people (and of course they include the sub-tenants of the Western Areas) are in desperate need of a place they can call their own, of a home in which family life can be a possibility. The Western Areas Scheme will, I believe, postpone indefinitely their chances of securing this.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE are many other factors of a practical nature which could be mentioned—amongst them the appalling overcrowding of transport to such places as Orlando, Jabavu and Moroka, when already the railways are forty per cent. overloaded; the fact that the residents of the Western Areas will be pushed at least twice as far from their work as they are at present; the total lack of amenities in the new areas today. There is the question of expense — of entirely unnecessary expense in this case, for there is no need to build down houses which are adequate, no need to scrap amenities such as schools, churches, cinemas, etc., which exist in the Western Areas and exist only in blueprints elsewhere.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE is also—and this is becoming a major issue in the struggle—the very vital question of the control of the local authority by the Government in Native Affairs. Under the Resettlement Bill the Minister will create a board, responsible to himself, which will have an overriding authority in these matters, and the powers of the City Council will be very effectively destroyed.

But all these things are, to my mind at least, of secondary importance.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE real issue is very simple. The motive, the principle (if you can call it that), underlying the Western Areas Removal Scheme is not and never has been one of benevolence to the African citizen of Johannesburg. It is much the same motive as that which inspired King Ahab when he set eyes on Naboth's Vineyard. Here, in the Western Areas of a wealthy city, is a poor man's plot: well sited and, for a Native area, well served with the essential amenities. But it is adjacent (now) to surrounding European suburbs whose people, for the most part, belong to the lower-income group and who are therefore, through fear of economic competition, anti-Native. These suburbs are represented in the City Council and in Parliament by members of the Nationalist Party.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE FACT that Africans have been in occupation for fifty years, and that the white suburbs have encroached upon their home and surrounded it, does not alter the one damning issue. Here is a community owning property and daring to want to own property in a European area. It must go. And if that involves theft of property-rights the uprooting of families, the destruction of stability; if it involves no attempt at consultation and the blatant overriding of men's opinions and hopes and desires — no matter. It must go. And if — as must surely happen —it deepens the tension and widens the gulf between black and white in South Africa — why worry? It must go. In the interest of Apartheid—it must go. That, and that alone, is the reason for the Natives Resettlement Bill and the Western Areas Removal Scheme.

✧ ✧ ✧

THOSE of us who have opposed the scheme, and who still hope to persuad Johannesburg's citizens to oppose it, have done so for one reason. We see in it an attack on human rights in the interests of an untenable ideological theory, and we see in its success just one more disaster for our country: a disaster which neither we nor the Commonwealth can afford.

Letters To The Editor

ASK THE KING

SIR: While not wishing to seem unappreciative of the dubious honour accorded me by the inclusion of my name in Watt's letter, I feel I should point out that Edward III made the original remark: "Evil be, etc."

Perhaps Watt should wait and see the King personnally with a view to holding him in strict accounting for the subjunctive use of the verb "to be."

Sans peur et sans reproche, m' dear fellow, I remain,

Yours truly,
GERALD TULLY.

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST CHILDREN

SIR: Do you have more than one child? If you have, try and get a house in our city. You seem to be branded for raising a family. I have tried to get a home for two months but I have three school-age children so I am turned down. I wonder how many of us or our families before us taught our children to destroy property? There may be a few who do not take care of a house, but should everyone be judged by that? I have enquired about several houses and the preference has always been given to couples. People do not set a rent price. One woman asked me if I was prepared to pay more than $75 a month. Another one said she had been offered $95 and $100 a month rent. I wonder what working man can pay this. I do think the landlords need a raise in their rents but why a jump from $40 to $85 and $90? Maybe someone could tell me.

It is all right for our council to give permits to people for a business but do they give one small thought to the people who are going to have their homes torn down? There are not just a few, there are many. My husband and I were raised in Peterborough, also our families before us and I don't think they ever had to go through the worry of the present day. If their is anyone in Peterborough with a heart and house to rent, you may be able to contact me through the editor of this paper.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the Lord God said, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever: therefore the Lord God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken. So he drove out the man; and he placed at the east of the garden Cherubims, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life. (Gen. 3:22-24.)

And Adam knew his wife; and she conceived and bare Cain, and said, I have gotten a man from the Lord. (Gen. 4:1.)

✧ ✧ ✧

That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the spirit is spirit . . . The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit . . . And no man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man, which is in heaven. (John 3:6, 8, 13.)

Taxes Galore

(The Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

Fresh air and sunlight were taxed in Seventeenth Century England. The government collected from all households with six or more windows. This burdensome window tax wasnt repealed until 1851.

There was an annual tax of £2 2s on family crests and coats of arms. The Puritans paid weekly meal tax, giving up the price of one meal every seven days to Oliver Cromwell.

Until 1879, every man, woman and child in France was subject to the gabelle — a tax requiring them to purchase seven pounds of salt a year whether they needed it or not.

There was a Roman tax on dying, enforced by prohibition of burial for non-payment. The Emperor Constantine taxed his subjects also for the privilege of giving him presents.

Peter the Great of Russia taxed all men who wore beards. Barbers, stationed at the gates of Moscow, enforced the tax by shaving all non-payers. The Russians also paid tax on marriages, funerals, horse collars, leather boots, hats, beds, milk, baths, kitchen chimneys and cucumbers.

In Eighteenth Century Turkey after a pasha had visited and dined with a peasant family, he would demand his "tooth money," a tax to compensate him for wear and tear on his teeth.

The Barber's Razor

(Windsor Star)

There are several reasons for the decline in barber-shop shaving. The advent of safety and electric razors has been a boon to those timid about shaving themselves with an old-fashioned straight-blade. Modern bathrooms, with hot and cold running water, are a convenience to men who shave themselves. The tempo of modern business and professional life makes it more difficult to leave the office or shop.

Also, in earlier days a greater proportion of men were self-employed. If they wanted to go out for a shave, they could. They weren't tied to an assembly line.

REMEMBER MOTHER'S DAY MAY 9th

Spencley's

Why Mother's Day?

World wide observance of Mother's Day had a modest beginning. The first Mother's Day celebrated resulted from the inspiration of Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia who felt one day a year should be set aside as a tribute to her Mother. She incorporated the idea into the church she attended . . . plans were made to hold special services dedicated to mothers on the second Sunday of May, 1907 . . . and everyone was asked to wear a white carnation in honor of his or her mother.

It's unlikely that Anna Jarvis, herself, dared dream of the far-reaching influence of Mother's Day. The idea caught on and spread like wildfire. By 1911 every state in the union, Canada, South America, China and many other countries had adopted the custom. In 1912 an International Mother's Day Council was formed . . the custom of wearing a white carnation was modified. In 1914 Congress asked the President to issue a proclamation designating the second Sunday in May as national Mother's Day.

No Privacy Left Anywhere Even Forests Invaded

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Time was when the nerve-frazzled business man could sneak away to his favorite fishing hangout and forget about everything civilized.

Not so now; aerial eyes are watching him and aerial voices may call out to him. Should his camp fire be burning too fiercely a voice like a heavenly commercial may rasp out a warning: "Watch that fire. Watch that fire."

The voice comes from the planes of the Ontario department of lands and forests whose air division has already launched its annual campaign against forest fires.

Twenty Beaver type aircraft have been fitted with aerial ground hailers to warn campers to douse their fires, butt their cigarets and watch their matches.

TWO YEARS OLD

The hailers were first introduced to the department's air division two years ago. A 130-watt loudspeaker is fitted into the bottom of the fuselage. The microphone is operated by the pilot. Cost of the installation runs around $300.

Hap Hoar, department pilot operating over the Lindsay and Tweed fishing country from the Toronto island air base, said during a press demonstration Tuesday that while flying at 800 feet the hailer can be heard over a radius of two miles.

Jack Dillon, supervisor of forest protection control, said the fleet operates during the summer months north of the French and Mattawa rivers. When the aerial ground hailer was first introduced it was used during periods of high forest fire hazard. But it was found through experience that more fires were started during low hazard periods when campers lit more fires to keep warm.

At least 12 times the hailer has been successfully used to guide lost persons out of forest areas.

Urges Canada Speak Louder

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Canada should speak out more frequently on international affairs, and in clearer and louder tones, Davis Lewis, national vice-president of the CCF, Wednesday told a group of trade unionists.

At the closing session of an international affairs seminar conducted by the Canadian Congress of Labor for a group of senior union officials, Dr. Eugene Forsey of Ottawa, CCL research director, discussed the importance of international trade to Canada.

The seminar sessions were closed. But a statement issued by the CCL said Mr. Lewis, in a critical review of Canadian foreign policy, told the unionists that Canada frequently fails to take advantage of its unique position of economic strength.

Turn Down Appeal By Walter Murdoch

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal Wednesday turned down an appeal by Walter M. Murdoch and members of the Toronto Musicians' Association against a court order directing them to play for four dancers on the CBC's Big Revue television show.

The ruling said it was not the court's place to decide the merits of the case. They would be decided when the issue came before a trial judge.

The dancers—Andrew Body, Robert Van Norman, Babs Christie and William Yle—are members of the American Guild of Variety Artists, a rival union of the Musicians' Association.

Hasn't Found Butter Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Benson said Wednesday he hasn't found a suitable plan for disposing of 360,000,000 pounds of surplus government-owned butter. He asked Congress for help.

Benson told the House of Representatives agriculture committee that to avoid future government buying a production payment plan is "administratively feasible" but that he does not feel he has authority to use this.

Under the plan, he said it would be possible to halt further government buying. Butter prices would be allowed to drop to whatever level that supply and demand would carry them.

The government would make up the difference between the market price and the support price in the form of payments to processors.

Rec. Commission To Administer Ball School Fund

Organization of the proposed Peterborough Baseball School conducted by Bill Sisler, began at a meeting held last evening in the City Hall general committee room. Wilf Langan, chairman of the Peterborough Recreation Commission, presided. After a general outline of plans, it was decided that the Recreation Commission would receive and administer all funds in connection with the school for minor baseball players here this summer, with advice on expenditures given by an executive committee.

This committee consists of: Co-chairmen, Hugh Campbell and Dr. F. J. Pitz; secretary, Ken Robinson; custodian-treasurer, Bill Bennett, the latter being chairman of the sports committee of the Recreation Comission. Bill Sisler wanted it understood that he would handle no money.

GIVEN AUTHORITY

The Recreation Commission will give Hugh Campbell—who has been seeking aid from local industries—a letter of authority in this respect, and it will be submitted also to the Chamber of Commerce and Better Business Bureau. It was pointed out that such a written authority from a recognized civic body would allay any doubts as to the authenticity of the project.

While no money has been raised so far, a goodly portion of the required sum has been promised and is expected to be forthcoming within a week. Service clubs are to be contacted, as well as industry, and Bill Sisler is available to speak at any meeting to explain the plan of the summer school. Its first part will be organizational, with lectures, films and general planning, followed by some 10 weeks of on-the-field work daily for all boys of the city.

It is expected that the school will begin to function following a final meeting to check funds next week.

Probe Status Of Athletes In U.S. Army

By HERB ALTSCHULL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators called army officers to a public hearing this afternoon to explain reports that 10 prominent American athletes spent most of their time in the army playing baseball or boxing.

Eight major league baseball players and two boxers are listed among the 10 men whose cases are under study by a House of Representatives armed services sub-committee headed by Representative William E. Hess (Rep. Ohio).

The House members are trying to find out whether these men were "coddled" while in the army by being permitted to play baseball and box instead of taking part in normal military duties.

PLAYERS IN CLEAR

Hess has made it clear, however, that the players themselves are not charged with doing anything improper.

Brig.-Gen. Herbert P. Powell, deputy chief of the army's personnel division, went before the sub-committee Wednesday, flanked by army officers familiar with the 10 cases.

Powell said the army's sport program of baseball, basketball, football and other games are "morale-builders, even for the spectators."

He produced a series of documents showing that the army had been issuing directives ever since 1919 to guard against favored treatment for name athletes and entertainers.

But, he acknowledged, "in a few cases, field commanders may not have carried out department policy."

PROVIDES LIST

To back up his contention that the army has not given preferential treatment to athletes, Powell handed the committee a list of 62 men he said were nationally known athletes and entertainers who served overseas between 1952 and 1954.

Among the better known athletes on the list were Curt Simmons, pitcher for Philadelphia Phillies; Don Larsen, pitcher for Baltimore Orioles; Del Crandall, catcher for Milwaukee Braves; Leo Kiely, pitcher for Boston Red Sox; Arnold Galiffa, army football quarterback and Clayton Tonnemaker, Minnesota football star.

REWARDED—Goaler Al Rollins of the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks, is a true believer in the biblical adage "the last shall be first" after being named winner of the Hart Trophy. The National Hockey League award is worth $1,000.

Penticton Jolts Wolves With 6-2 Win

VERNON, B.C. (CP)—Penticton V's slashed through Sudbury Wolves' crumbling defence Wednesday night to jolt the eastern team 6-2 and square the best-of-seven series for the Allan Cup at one game apiece.

Sudbury took the opener 2-1 Monday on Penticton ice.

The defence which baffled the British Columbia team in the first game leaked badly and only the agile work of Sudbury's goalie Al Millar kept the score from soaring higher.

From here, the series shifts to Kelowna for the third game Friday with the fourth slated for Penticton Saturday. Venue of the fifth is still to be decided.

IN COMMAND

V's, who missed the pinnacle of Canadian senior amateur hockey in a playoff with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen last year, were in command all the way, with Dick Warwick, Jim Fairburn, Jack McIntyre, Grant Warwick, Kevin Conway and Ron Montgomery dividing the spoils.

Ed Harrison and Gord Heale tallied for Sudbury.

The game was a carbon-copy of Monday night's as a brawl, with 17 penalties handed out in each. Wolves, who picked up 11 in the first game, were assessed 10 Wednesday night.

PENALTIES A KEY PART

This time, penalties played a key part in the scoring, V's connecting four times while Sudbury was shorthanded and Wolves making a manpower advantage pay off once.

Dick Warwick put Penticton ahead 1-0 on a play with McIntyre for the only scoring of the first rebound in at 3:17 of the second to make it 2-0 and Millar didn't even see McIntyre's screen shot which made it 3-0.

A lapse by V's was responsible for Sudbury's first goal while Orval Lavelle was off for charging. Penticton swarmed around the Wolves' net and appeared to have scored on a poke shot. The puck rebounded, however, and Harrison picked it up for a rink-long payoff rush. Sudbury came within a goal of tying it up when Heale scored from close in at 9:33.

However, Penticton took over from there with first Conway and then Montgomery scoring.

Montgomery's goal came when he broke up a power play and skated through the Wolves to score unassisted.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Quite dissatisified with their showing last September in Mann Cup finals when they bowed to Peterborough Trailermen, the Victoria Shamrocks of the B.C. Senior lacrosse loop are really building up now. They've added four good easterners, Nip O'Hearn, George Johnston, Jack Sibbald and Jack Bionda, with three newcomers from the West Coast also joining the club. This item appeared in the Times out there after the 'Rocks won their opener: "Nip O'Hearn, the Peterborough cutie arrived several hours before game time and turned in a sparkling show of shooting—scoring two goals — and ball control and checking." Nip was on the air later and predicted that St. Kitts would win out in the east this year. Tut, tut, Nipper, is that nice?

Comes an ineresting little para from Quebec by Andy O'Brien. Says: "On the train we were discussing the romantic news item from Bombay, India, where a woman wrestler has introduced wooing the hard way. Miss Hamida Bey said she'd marry any heavyweight wrestler who could get the better of her. A Hindu from Calcutta, a Sikh and the latest, Bab Pahelwan, of Bombay (who lasted only 94 seconds despite a pledge to retire if defeated), have failed to change Hamida's marital status. Phil Watson, coach of Quebec Frontenacs, pondered long during the discussion. Finally, around Three Rivers, he drew from his vast and travelled knowledge of the sport world to reflect: 'There are worse things than defeat,' he said, 'especially when the prize consists of a female wrestler.'"

Quinte Club Works Out

Manager Vern (Jumbo) Goyer of the Belleville Batas had more than 20 prospective senior baseballers working out the other day. Bobby Bunton, Art Wright and Sam Mulholland were pitching 'em in, with Tony Pettitt receiving. Others fielding or batting were Jack Wade (once of the Petes), Claude Orr, Turk Barclay, Mouse Bush, Johnny Batchelor, Cuffer Noakes, Keith MacDonald, Dick Fitzpatrick and others. Goyer, too, will play this season, the big fellow being a hard hitter. Like the Petes, the Batas will be okay if they get good hurling. They open the local season here May 24 against Peterborough, though the schedule begins a week Sunday in Toronto with Petes playing a twin bill.

* * * * * * *

Playing manager Joe Lowery of the Petes has on open workout listed for tonight at six in Riverside Park, weather being okay, and there again at two Saturday aft. Everyone welcome, former seniors, good prospects from junior ranks, and newcomers to the city over the past year or so. All positions wide open. The club is after one more good hurler from down in the Niagara district, and officials feel then they could field a contending team in the Viaduct Ontario Baseball League. The VOBL includes Oakville, two Toronto teams, Oshawa, Belleville and Peterborough. We should soon have a list of likely candidates for the local lineup this semester.

Organizing For School

Peterborough Baseball School, to be run by Bill Sisler here this summer, was organized last eve, though it will require about one more week to be sure enough funds are available to handle it. However, this looks promising. Industries and service clubs are being contacted for aid, and the Recreation Commission will handle all the funds with advice from a committee comprising: Co-chairmen, Hugh Campbell and Dr. F. J. Pitz; secretary, Ken Robinson; custodian-treasurer, Bill Bennett. The school instructor, Bill Sisler, advised the meeting that he wanted to handle no money in the operation, apart from his salary, and he said he would be glad to interview anyone or speak to any club explaining the plans and function of the ball school for boys.

Some soccer info tonight. In the Eastern League, Batawa plays UEW in Morrow Park on Saturday aft, while local Merchants meet Canadian Scots at King Edward Park, both tilts starting at 3:30. The Peterborough Soccer Commission has been re-organized with John Galloway chairman, Jim Craig secretary-treasurer, and Homer Lee and William Milligan members. The City League consists of UEW, Canadian Scots, Merchants and Port Hope, first game being May 12 betwixt Merchants and Scots. Applications for referees in this circuit will be taken by Jim Craig, 8 Cluxton St., Peterborough. Looks like a large season for fitba' fellows of Peter's town coming up, with two good leagues in operation.

Remember When—

Hank Greenberg hit two home runs for Detroit Tigers against New York Yankees 13 years ago today, in his last game before induction into the United States Army. Hank returned to the Detroit line-up in time to repeat the trick against Chicago Cubs in the second game of the 1945 world series, which Detroit won by four games to three.

Get $50,000 Needed For B.C. Games

MONTREAL (CP)—The British Empire and Commonwealth Games Association of Canada says $50,000 needed to put Canadian athletes in the field for the forthcoming British Empire Games at Vancouver has been guaranteed.

The money has come from federal and provincial governments, cities, sporting organizations, and private firms and individuals, treasurer Laird Watt Wednesday night told a meeting of the association.

Watt said $40,053 is already on hand and the remainder "definitely promised."

GOVERNMENT AID

He said the federal government provided $10,000, Quebec $4,000, Nova Scotia $1,000, Saskatchewan $1,000, Alberta $500, and Ontario has promised $7,500.

Toronto put up $3,500, Montreal $2,500 and Hamilton $500.

President Jack Davies announced that Tom Lord of St. Johns, Que., has been appointed assistant general team manager in place of Tim Worrall of Toronto, who resigned for business reasons.

Other appointments were: Leigh Miller of Halifax, formerly of Hamilton, Ont., head coach to the track unit and Kenneth Wright, Vancouver, track assistant; A. B. Smith, Hamilton, assistant to the marathon team.

Lindsay Golfers Name Executive

LINDSAY (ENS) — Executive of the Lindsay Golf and Country Club elected at the annual meeting are: president, Peter Atman; vice-president, Jack Gleeson; secretary-treasurer, Jack Lamb; captain, Pete Karrys; vice captain, Mansley Clarke; house committee, Alan Wetmore and Hudson Pillsworth; greens committee, Tom MaKeigan; membership committee, Roy Broom; press and bulletin, Al Simpson; entertainment, John Anderson.

An enthusiastic gathering of golfers officially opened the new season at the meeting. Some early birds have already been on the course, which is still slightly damp, and remarked on the improvements effected by pro Ted Hill.

The "back" holes of the course have been toughened by replacing some greens and new hazards. Work has begun on new landscaping of the club house.

Trabert Makes Second Round

ROME (AP)—U. S. champion Tony Trabert swept into the second round of Italy's international tennis tournament Wednesday but his Davis up teammate, Vic Seixas, was having his troubles when rain stopped the proceedings.

Trabert, top-seeded in the men's division, ousted Steven Lazlo of Yugoslavia 6-3, 6-1, 6-1. Seixas, seeded third, lost the first set to P. F. Guimaraes of Brazil and had a 3-2 lead in the second set when rain interrupted play.

Seventh-seeded Sven Davidson of Sweden, holder of the U.S. indoor championship, fell before a young Canadian, Robert Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que., who won 4-6, 3-6, 11-9, 6-3, 6-2.

Bob Falkenburg, former Wimbledon champion who moved from the U.S. to Brazil, lost to Italian Orlando Siroloa, 6-0, 3-6, 8-6, 6-4.

Penticton Planning Shot At Championship

VANCOUVER (CP) — Penticton V's, now playing in the Allan Cup finals, are planning a bid to take a shot at the world hockey championship.

A request to represent Canada next year in the world hockey championships, wherever they are held, will be entered at the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association starting here Monday.

Dr. Mel Butler, B.C. Hockey Association president, will enter the bid, well-backed financially.

Penticton radio station CKOK and the Penticton Herald have guaranteed $10,000 to cover players' loss of wages during the two months the team would be away from home.

Patrick Appointment Has Been Confirmed

BOSTON (AP) — Coach Lynn Patrick's appointment as manager of the Boston Bruins' National Hockey League team was made official Wednesday by club president Walter A. Brown.

Brown said the confirmation was made at a special meeting of the team's directors.

Patrick will continue as coach until Capt. Milt Schmidt is ready to quit playing and assume the coaching duties. Schmidt said last month he plans to play next season.

Patrick succeeds Arthur H. Ross who will remain until Oct. 1 as vice-president and alternate governor.

Bisons Own More Players

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League today own more players outright than they did during the past season.

The Bisons, who finished the 1953-54 season in first place, but lost their first-round playoff series, ran their list of players owned to 12 Tuesday night.

They traded their rights to Brian Cullen of the St. Catharines TeePees in the Ontario junior league to the Toronto Maple Leafs.

In return, they received Frank Sullivan and Jackie LeClair of the Leafs' Pittsburgh farm in the AHL and George Blair of Ottawa in the Quebec League.

The Bisons operated most of the past season with three players owned outright. The rest were here on option.

Syracuse Blanks Havana In 4-0 Triumph

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syracuse Chiefs, leaders in the International League, apparently have come up with the catch of the year in rookie Jim Owens, 20-year-old righthander.

Owens is working his way up in the Philadelphia Phillies farm system. He pitched for Terre Haute (Three-I League) last year where he had a record of 22 victories against eight losses. He helped Syracuse preserve its lead in the International by blanking Havana Sugar Kings 4-0 Wednesday night for the Chiefs' fourth straight victory. The young pitcher allowed only four hits as he struck out nine and walked seven.

WALLOP ROYALS

Rochester Red Wings trounced Montreal Royals 12-1 scoring eight runs in a wild third inning. Jack Faszholz, 27-year-old righthander, limited the Royals to seven hits in going the route for his second win of the season against one loss. He struck out two and walked one.

Bob Ludwick, starter and loser, tossed a three-run homer to rookie Joe Cunningham and before the side was retired the Red Wings had scored eight runs off Ludwick and reliefer Joe Carbonaro.

Buffalo's high-scoring Bisons outslugged Richmond Virginians 18-6 with Jack Wallaesa, Harry Bright and Frank Carswell hammering home runs for the Herd.

Ottawa and Toronto were not scheduled.

Pitching—Bob Porterfield, Washington Senaotrs scattered four hits in posting his first shutout of the season, 1-0 over Chicago White Sox.

Batting—Joe Collins, New York Yankees, hit a bases-loaded triple and drove in three runs as the Yanks beat Baltimore 4-2.

TeePees Crush Quebec In 9-1 Victory

QUEBEC (CP)—A gamble by St. Catharines coach Rudy Pilous paid off Wednesday night for the TeePees to the tune of a crushing 9-1 victory over Quebec Frontenacs in the fifth game of the eastern Canada Memorial Cup final.

Pilous, whose team was smarting from a 5-3 loss to Frontenacs Sunday, sent his players out Wednesday night without a practice session on Quebec ice, figuring the trouble was more mental than physical. He was right. The TeePees swarmed all over Frontenacs.

TeePees now lead the series 3-2 in games.

Barry Cullen led the victorious pack with four goals and an assist. Hank Ciesla counted twice while Barry's brother and line-mate, Brian, scored one goal and helped set up four others. Cec Hoekstra and Jack Armstrong completed the scoring for the TeePees.

St. Catharines led 1-0 after the first period and 5-0 going into the final.

RATCHFORD AVERTS SHUTOUT

Mike Ratchford spoiled goalie Marvin Edwards' brilliant bid for a shutout late in the third period with the final goal of the night on a solo effort.

Five of the 13 penalties distributed by referees Stan Pratt and Ching McDonald, both of Ottawa, figured in the scoring. Frontenacs were charged with seven misfractions.

St. Catharines outshot Quebec 33 to 29.

The Frontenacs will have their backs to the wall when they meet St. Catharines in the sixth game, scheduled for Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens Friday night. The series winner goes against Edmonton Oil Kings in the Memorial Cup final.

Senators Post 1-0 Shutout Over Chicago Sox

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Lemon looked at his 4-0 record today, doublechecked the date, and began wondering if this is the season he escapes his May jinx.

The 33-year-old Cleveland right-hander, busiest pitcher in the American League in 1952 and 1953, has won at least 20 games in five of the last six years. But May has been his hard-luck month.

Wednesday night, in his first May appearance this season, Lemon coasted to a 7-2 victory over Philadelphia Athletics. It was his fifth start, and his fourth complete game.

Two years ago he won 22 and lost 11. When May came he dropped five out of six.

Only one game Wednesday, Detroit at Boston in the American League, was postponed because of the elements.

Washington's Bob Porterfield, the American League's biggest winner last season, shaded Bob Keegan of Chicago White Sox 1-0 for his first shutout. Baltimore's Bob Turley lost a two-hitter for the second time this year, 4-2 to New York Yankees.

In the National League Philadelphia made it two in a row over St. Louis, 10-8. Milwaukee beat Pittsburgh 4-1. Brooklyn whipped Chicago 7-0 and Sal Maglie of New York Giants was beaten for the first time after winning four, 7-1 by Cincinnati.

The pitching duel at Washington was broken up in the eighth inning when Keegan, who had won three in a row, walked Roy Sievers with the bases loaded.

WILDNESS DOWNFALL

Turley's wildness proved his downfall as Baltimore paid its first visit to Yankee Stadium. The fast-balling righthander walked the bases full in the fifth, watched one run come home on a sacrifice squeeze bunt by Eddie Lopat and then, after another walk, served up a fast pitch that Joe Collins blasted for a three-run triple.

Robin Roberts came back 24 hours after being knocked out by the Cardinals and checked them on seven hits. His mates solved five St. Louis pitchers for 13 safeties including four singles by Earl Torgeson.

The Cubs had hit at least one home run in every game this spring until they met up with their old team-mate Russ Meyer. The Brooklyn lefthander shut them out on seven hits for his 11th straight over the Chicagoans.

Eddie Mathews hit his first home run for Milwaukee in 10 days and drove in another run with a sacrifice fly in the first inning in beating the Pirates.

Quebec Aces Determined Grab Victory

CALGARY (CP)—Quebec Aces, champions of the Quebec Senior Hockey League and the East's hope to take the Edinburgh Trophy, will be gunning for a victory tonight when they meet Calgary Stampeders, the Western Hockey League champions, in the second game of a best-of-nine east-west series.

Aces need a victory to tie the series at a game apiece. They dropped the opener Tuesday night by an embarrassing 8-1 score. Third game will be played at Edmonton Saturday night.

Coach Gerry Brown of the Aces shrugged off the initial setback and is looking ahead to better success.

"I'm not making any alibis for the loss," said Brown Wednesday night, "but our fellows can play a lot better. All season long we've done our best when our backs have been to the wall and it looks as though it is going to be more of the same in this series."

DIFFERENT TEAM

"Stampeders have a fast, hard-hitting club and fully deserve their win the other night. However, I think they'll find themselves up against a much different team in the next game."

In the Calgary camp, coach Frank Currie was reported having his hands full in an effort to keep his club from becoming too complacent about the eastern representatives.

"Tuesday night's game was no indication of the way this series will go," said Currie. "You can't count this Quebec club out of anything by a long shot."

BEAT NORSE

GLASGOW (AP)—Scotland's national soccer team, preparing for the World Football Cup in Switzerland in June and July, defeated the Norwegian national team 1-0 Wednesday night.

Edmonton Players Bring Own Water With Them

By WALTER GRAY

TORONTO (CP)—Water, water everywhere. Miles and miles of it stretching before the Lake Ontario motel hideout of Edmonton Oil Kings.

And the "go-go" kids from the West brought their own with them.

"We've got four gallons here now and six more are on their way from Edmonton," said coach Ken McAuley Wednesday.

"The players claimed they suffered cramps during the season from drinking other water and they didn't want to take any chances down here," said the 33-year-old coach of western Canada's representatives in the Memorial Cup hockey final. "I don't know if there's anything to it but if they want Edmonton water they can have it."

HOW LONG?

The question is, how long can the supply hold out? The Kings arrived Tuesday ready for action but have been forced to wait until the eastern representative is decided—either Quebec Frontenacs or St. Catharines TeePees.

The West minced no words on the delay. Said McAuley:

"It's not fair to us. I feel the delay is harming the team. It's not as sharp as it should be."

The club took to the ice at suburban Weston arena Wednesday for an hour's workout.

McAuley said he couldn't call the winner of the Quebec-St. Catharines series.

"They're both strong clubs. They both play a lot rougher hockey than we do."

He offered no opinion on Edmonton's chances.

"It's pretty hard to say until they're on the ice."

Announce Dates For Playoffs

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association announced Wednesday the playoff dates for the Memorial Cup finals.

Edmonton Oil Kings, western Canada junior champions, will meet either St. Catharines TeePees or Quebec Frontenacs in the finals. St. Catharines leads Quebec 3-2 in their best-of-seven eastern finals.

If St. Catharines wins the eastern championship in six games the Memorial Cup finals will be in Toronto May 9, 11, 13, 15, 16, 18 and 19.

If the TeePees win, but seven games are necessary, the Memorial Cup series will be in Toronto May 11, 13, 15, 16, 18 and 19. The seventh game for this case has not yet been decided.

If Frontenacs eliminate St. Catharines the Memorial Cup finals will be in Quebec May 11, 13, 15, 16 (afternoon), 20 (in Montreal,) and 22 and 23 (both in Quebec).

EASIER HOMERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Senators decided Wednesday to move in the fences at Griffith Stadium, the toughest park in the major leagues for home run hitters. The home run range in left field will be from 374 to 388 feet. It's now 391 to 405.

QUEEN'S PLATE ODDS

TORONTO (CP)—Odds against King Maple, Canada's outstanding juvenile in 1953 and the favorite to take the 95th running of the Queen's Plate June 12, have been trimmed to 8-5.

The strapping colt, owned by Mrs. Gordon McMacken of Toronto, was quoted as low as 7-5 a month ago. However, his price eased to 2-1 in recent weeks when his main rival, Queen's Own owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, turned in good times during training trials for the 1⅛-mile classic.

King Maple's odds were cut after last week-end's interim payment of $100 reduced the field to 43 three-year-old horses. The favorite was the shortest-priced winter-book favorite in the history of the Dominion's premier racing event.

Queen's Own is second choice at 3-1. Another Taylor colt, Free Trade, has been reduced sharply from 20-1 to 6-1 and is a solid third choice.

Among those quoted at 10-1 is Beauty Bunty, owned by B. S. Chris of Kitchener.

WILLIAMS CATCHES

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams playing catcher and a baseball announcer pitching his high fast one was part of the scene Wednesday when the game between the Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers was rained out.

Williams warmed up by catching his old nemesis Paul (Dizzy) Trout, former Detroit ace and now a sportcaster, at rain-soaked Fenway Park. Boston's slugging outfielder, looking forward to pinch-hitting in the near future, wanted to limber up despite the light rain. Williams' broken collarbone is about healed and he won't let a day go by without exercising it.

TO RAISE WATER

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Empire Games Society may have to spend up to $23,674 to ensure good water conditions for rowing events at the games July 30-Aug. 7.

Executive committee members Wednesday approved spending that amount, if necessary, to construct a small partial dam across the Vedder canal to raise the water level.

MIMS WINS

BALTIMORE (AP)—Holly Mims outboxed and outpunched George Johnson Wednesday night, snapping the 17-victory winning streak of the 23-year-old Trenton, N.J., middleweight with a knockout in the ninth round. Mims weighed 156½, Johnson 152¼.

Mims lured Johnson onto the ropes in the ninth then toyed with him, snapping his head back with a series of sharp lefts and rights. The hard-punching Mims then caught Johnson with lashing blows which left him helpless.

Galt Terminates Hawk Tie-up

GALT (CP)—Galt Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League have terminated their affiliation with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, it was announced Wednesday.

A statement released by Jack A. Moffat, Galt president, said:

"At a meeting of the executive of the Galt Hockey Club held May 3 it was decided that they would not enter into negotiations with Chicago for the 1954-55 season."

Moffat also said the executive will decide during the next 10 days if the present operators of the club will continue operating the team next season.

No reason was given for the break-off with Chicago but Moffat said it was unfortunate that the relationship with Chicago had not worked out to the benefit of both parties.

Chicago has sponsored the team for the last five seasons.

Would Limit Reporters At Olympic Games

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)—The International Olympic Sports Federations proposes to limit the number of newspaper men permitted to cover future Olympic Games.

A joint meeting of the International Olympic Executive Committee and the international federations responsible for the different Olympic sports jointly recommended Wednesday that accredited newspaper men be limited to 1,000 reporters, 150 photographers and 150 radio and television commentators.

The recommendation is to be put before the full session of the International Olympic Committee opening in Athens Monday.

SAY HORSE DRUGGED

BOWIE, Md. (AP)—Track stewards Wednesday took away the first-place purse won by Will See in the $10,000 added Kindergarten Stakes at Bowie last Saturday and said the horse showed evidence of a drug after setting a track record.

Trainer James Watts was suspended and his case referred to the Maryland racing commission. No action was taken against Will See's owner, Carl M. Graham.

The two-year-old ran the five furlongs of the Kindergarten in 58 3-5 seconds, beating Auburn Farm's Powder Flask by four lengths and clipped four-fifths of a second off a record set by Equipoise 22 years ago.

OUT OF FOCUS—Britain's Randy Turpin, on ring ropes after being belted out in 28 seconds by Italy's Tiberio Mitri, complains there is something wrong with his eyes. He says he saw six Mitris in the fight and they were all in a line.

Have New Test For Polio Vaccine

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Developers of the new polio vaccine now under test or about to be tested in 45 states, announced Wednesday they have also developed a new and "simple" test, employing color changes, to furnish a rapid check on the vaccine's possible effectiveness.

Dr. Jonas E. Salk and Dr. J. S. Youngner of the University of Pittsburgh said the new technique made possible "many more tests" than previously possible in a given time and allowed a great saving of laboratory work.

They said the test is designed to determine in a given case whether the vaccine is acting in a way theoretically thought to be protective.

Companies Show Increased Mortgage Funds

TORONTO (CP)—Member companies of the Dominion Mortgage and Investments Association held $1,640,000,000 in real estate mortgages at the end of 1953, an increase of $211,000,000, or 15 per cent, over 1952, says the association's annual report, prepared for delivery to today's annual meeting.

The 24 life insurance, 15 trust and seven loan companies comprising the membership, approved gross mortgage loans, including the government's share of national housing act loans, totalling $501,300,000, up 17 per cent from 1952.

Of this amount, $73,200,000 was on business and farm properties and $428,100,000 on single and multiple dwellings, up 17.3 per cent.

Financing of some 83,300 housing units was assisted, 17,900 more than in 1952, made up of 57,300 single dwellings and 26,000 units in multiple structures.

AVERAGE LOAN UP

Average loan on new single houses was $7,900, compared with $7,790 in 1952, and $4,600 in 1946.

Approvals for new construction were some $385,500,000, accounting for 76 per cent of all mortgage loan approvals in 1953, compared with 70 per cent in 1952.

During the war, says the report, the bulk of member-company monies went to help finance the war effort, and by the end of the war Canada bonds formed a large part of the companies' assets.

Since the war, Canada bond holdings had been reduced substantially and other kinds of assets increased, notably mortgage loans, but the pace of mortgage loan investment set in recent years, and particularly in 1953 "cannot be expected to continue indefinitely."

Gregg Talks To Pickets

OTTAWA (CP)—About 100 men picketed the entrance to the main Parliament Building Wednesday and lobbied members of the Commons for federal action on unemployment.

The delegation — described by leaders as representing unemployed in different sections of Ontario — was unsuccessful in attempts to meet Prime Minister St. Laurent but saw some other members of various parties.

One leader had a brief meeting with Labor Minister Gregg, giving him briefs declaring that Canada is in the start of a depression and calling for measures such as expanded trade and more public works to boost available jobs.

One member of the delegation said it included some Communists but that largely it consisted of unemployed who got financing for the trip by levies on employed workers at the gates of their plants.

The delegation represented groups at Sudbury, Toronto, Hamilton, Welland, St. Catharines, Port Colborne and Niagara Falls.

Red Units Moved South

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—The interior ministry's news service today said large numbers of infantry, tank and anti-aircraft units of Red China's huge 4th Field Army have been moved to south and southeast China. The 4th, units of which fought in Korea, presumably still is under the command of Gen. Lin Piao, chairman of the Communist administration for central-south China. If true, the movement would indicate a reinforcement of positions opposite Formosa.

Slide Buries Five

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—Five persons were buried alive, three were reported missing and six others were injured, several seriously, Wednesday night when an earth slide crushed four houses. The tragedy occurred in the town of Marulanda, 100 miles northwest of Bogota.

HEIR TO $3,000,000 — Patrick Ballentine, 28-year-old advertising man now living in Toronto, is principal heir to an estate of $3,378,148 left by his father, Edward Blake Ballentine, Vancouver lumber magnate. Experts Disagree On Grants Given By Province For Schools $20,000 per classroom too low a figure on which to base provincial grants-in-aid for new schools.

This was the major theme at a conference of central Ontario trustees, meeting at Queen Mary school Wednesday afternoon. Diametrically opposed opinions were expressed, and conference delegates are still wondering.

Neil Maclean, assistant technical advisor of the department of education feels that this is a "quite reasonable figure." He said "building costs began to decline two years ago, and "durable" schools can be built on the basis of this figure.

Not so, said H. H. Roberts, an architect from Westport, taking part in the panel discussion with Mr. Maclean. "Costs are not down. They were down two years ago as Mr. Maclean states, but they have risen by as much as ten per cent just in the past two months."

Earlier, Harold Wagner, president of the Ontario Trustees Council, declared that the $20,000 figure is "completely inadequate." He noted that there has been a $2¾ million cut in the government's education budget and wondered "why roads get millions of dollars more than schools."

Mr. Roberts was also critical of a lack of provision for grants on additions to existing school buildings. He said that additions cost more per square foot, "than if the same attachment were built right out in the playground." Mr. Maclean replied that this is "not necessarily so.

A major point of Mr. Robert's argument was school lighting. He said that "very few school boards know" that lighting is subject to the approval of municipal boards of health.

Continuing this theme, Mr. Roberts declared that 21 footcandles provides 90 per cent visual efficiency for normal children, and that it takes up to 160 footcandles to provide 99 per cent efficiency. This caused him to wonder why the department of education insists on 30 foot candles.

The lighting question is "not a closed book" Mr. Maclean replied. He added that constant discussions take place with Hydro and other officials to see what is most desirable. The 30 footcandle figure is not unrealistic, he added, "when you consider that the power begins to deteriorate as soon as it is installed.

But the crux of Mr. Robert's argument was against present techniques in debenture sales for new schools. He saved most of his criticism for government policy in authorizing debenture sales "which average five per cent interest" when the province sells "its own fully guaranteed bonds at four per cent."

On the basis of five per cent interest said Mr. Roberts, a million dollar school will cost $1,600,000 after 20 years. Four per cent would produce a saving of 12 per cent of the original cost, $125,000.

Since architects can "cut no more than seven per cent from costs without tampering with quality" the provincial government is "wasting" at least five per cent.

Mr. Maclean's reply to this was that Mr. Roberts "may be right" but that he was stepping outside of his field" in talking about finances.

The two members of this panel agreed that the fundamental techniques of school-building have not changed very much. (The theme of their debate was supposed to be: "Schools of the Past, present and future."

Modern schools feature "fresh paint and lots of light" said Mr. Maclean, and are designed on the theory that "the whole child comes to school." This is why, he said, no modern school can be built without streamlined plumbing equipment and other such fixtures.

Major change in modern times, said Mr. Roberts, is in building techniques, rather than in style. He recalled one old school in which a third floor auditorium was designed to carry 30 pounds per square foot, whereas "your own living room is 25 per cent stronger."

"I haven't got the foggiest idea of the future," said Mr. Roberts, commenting on possible arhcitectural trends. He saw arhcitecture as "history written in concrete and brick of the ideas of you school board members."

Earlier, another debate took place between Peterborough school superintendent K. S. Wightman and Dr. E. P. Ray, principal of Kenner collegiate, on the difficulties of applying educational philosophy pragmatically. Both speakers seemed agreed on most of the fundamentals, but disagreed on more minor points.

GONE OVERBOARD

Mr. Wightman's main thesis was some teachers have "gone overboard" on the theory that education must be adapted to the interests of the child. While he agreed that the past had shown an over-emphasis on the "appearance of knowledge — memory work", he feared that too much fear of the alleged evils of repression could lead to worse chaos.

Discipline provides children with "a needed sense of security," Mr. Wightman continued, scoring techniques of educaiton which see discipline as stultifying.

Main point of argument between Mr. Wightman and Dr. Ray was on how to handle brighter children. Mr. Wightman noted that whereas in 1943, 21 per cent of children were too old for their grades, this figure is now 13 per cent. Similarly the number of students further advanced than their chronological age has risen from 5.8 to 25 per cent.

Commenting on Mr. Wightman's frequent allusions to greater attention given slower-learning children, Dr. Ray said that it is "all very well" to give proper attention to these children. He agreed that these children need help but wondered, in the theory that education should be adapted to the ability of all, if this might not tend to lower the brighter students to a level of mediocrity.

Whereas Mr. Wightman made partial defence of so-called frill subjects ("sometimes frilly things make life most interesting") Dr. Ray said that many activities and enterprises are "a blasted waste of time." From some such activities, said Dr. Ray, "the residue of useful knowledge is negligible."

Turning to a more humorous vein, Dr. Ray noted that everybody worries about education, and whether or not children are going to the dogs. He traced the chain of buck-passing thus: universities blame school boards, school boards blame principals, then through high school teachers, to senior elementary teachers, to junior elementary to kindergarten teachers all claiming insufficient background at a lower level. The kindergarten teachers blame parents for inadequate home background "and the pafents lift their eyes to heaven and avow that some things are unexplainable." God is thus the last in the chain of criticism.

Harry Tissington, vice chairman of the central zone committee of the Ontario urban and rural school trustees association was chairman for the afternoon sessions at Queen Mary's. Delegates were welcomed by Charles Huffman, chairman of the board of education, after an invocation was given by the Rev. Gordon S. Maxwell.

Former MP Dies At Eganville Home

EGANVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Ralph M. Warren, Liberal member of Parliament for Renfrew North from 1937 until last year, died at his home early today. He was 72.

Mr. Warren retired last year from active politics due to ill health, ending a long political career during which he was never defeated in a federal election. He a member of the Ontario leg- from 1919 until 1923.

He entered the Commons following a by-election and his victories in the general elections of 1940, 1945 and 1949 were with near-record majorities for the riding.

Nurse Again Decorated

HANOI (Reuters)—Nurse Genevieve Degalard Terraube, only woman in the besieged Indo-China fortress of Dien Bien Phu, has been awarded the French Military Cross with palms, friends said here today. Genevieve, chestnut-haired French Air Force nurse, has already been awarded the Legion of Honor for her work in caring for wounded French Union troops.

Otonabee Gives Approval To Build Motel

KEENE (ENS) — The May meeting of the Otonabee council was held in the council chambers Monday, May 3rd, with all members present.

The building inspector was given authority to issue a building permit to Mr. LeVack to erect a twelve unit motel and residence on the east half of lot 26, conc. 10, on No. 7 Highway. Robert Wood's public garage license was renewed to December 31st, 1954.

Delegates were present to discuss possible 1954 construction on roads.

A delegation was also present from the rifle range area with complaints regarding the use of fire arms, trespassing on property, etc., particularly by teen-age youths who do not reside in this municipality. Council is taking steps to set up a restricted area to limit the use of guns in the rifle range area from the Douro boudary south to Lot 24 and east to the sixth line.

An employee pension plan was presented for the consideration of both council and township employees.

The clerk was instructed to write to Mr. Milford More in connection with salvage being piled on his property, contrary to regulations.

General accounts totalling $458.76 were ordered approved for payment.

Melville Johnston, county weed inspector, discussed township weed control with the council. Road accounts voucher No. 8, $1,301.17, was approved for payment. The R. A. Blyth Co.'s tender to supply crushed gravel was accepted, subject to department of highways approval, at 74c per cubic yd., ¾-inch opening, plus 7 cents per mile overhaul over a six mile limit, and 69c per cubic yd., 2-inch opening, plus 7 cents per mile overhaul over a six mile limit.

Instructions were given to the road superintendent to supervise the care and cleaning of the Memorial Lot at Keene.

The Keene Athletic Field Committee members were appointed as follows: Thomas Gall, one year term; Mrs. Evelyn Anderson, two year term; Jack Bolin, two year term; George Hawkes, two year term; Jack Mackness, two year term.

Most of the petitions asking for control of brucellosis under the Brucellosis Act, have been received by the clerk and it is expected that a bylaw will be passed within the next two weeks, whereby all calves six to nine months in the township will be vaccinated.

OFF TO KOREA—L.-Cpl. G. A. Fudge, of Sydney, N.S., and Petawawa, kisses his four-year-old son, Brian, goodbye before leaving Petawawa for Korea with "Dog" Squadron of the Royal Canadian Dragoons. Trained at Petawawa, the squadron will serve for a year in the Far East as part of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade. His daughter, Trudy, 5, and Mrs. Fudge wait their turn turn to say goodbye.

New Storm Over Phone Conversations

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new storm over monitored telephone conversations seemed to be blowing up today for United States senators already beset by bitter wrangling over duty offered in their probe of the Senator McCarthy-army row.

From sources close to the Wisconsin Republican senator but unwilling to be named came word today that he or his aides intend to question whether the army has been withholding from the Senate investigations sub - committee some telephone conversations on which shorthand notes were taken.

The army, through its special counsel, Joseph N. Welch, already has accused McCarthy and his aides of introducing into the record a "doctored" photograph and a "phoney" letter. McCarthy has denied the charge.

SWORN AS WITNESS

In a surprise development, McCarthy was sworn as a witness Wednesday to testify about the letter, which he described as a 1951 warning to the army from FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover about security suspects.

The senator said an army intelligence officer gave him the letter. He refused to name the officer, saying that under no circumstances would he disclose his informants.

SUBMIT ALL TRANSCRIPTS

With the subcommittee today starting the third week of its televised hearings, acting chairman Karl Mundt (Rep. S.D.) said both sides were to submit during the day all transcripts they had of any relevant telephone conversations.

Mundt, who has replaced McCarthy as the sub-committee chairman for the duration of the probe, told reporters he will demand that each camp certify to the completeness of the records and their accuracy.

Thieves Rob Offices Of $40 At City Limits

After forcing a rear window and ransacking the offices in the Peterborough Metal Co. building on River Rd. N., thieves early today made off with about $40 in cash.

The new building, just outside the city limits in Douro township, houses offices for the Peterborough Metal Co., managed by Irving Moldaver; and the Trent Valley Products and Trent Pole and Timber Ltd., managed by his brother, Allan Moldaver.

A $10 bill was taken from the petty cash box in the Trent Valley Forest Products office. And the thieves got about $30 in bills and silver from a wall safe at the north end of the main business office by smashing a hole through a lavatory wall that flanks the safe.

No attempt was made to force the safe door. A hole, big enough to admit one person, was made in the double layer of gyproc—the wall separating the inside of the safe and the bathroom. Wooden cupboard doors were ripped off and the metal cash box in one of the cupboards was rifled.

DRAWERS RANSACKED

All the drawers and filing cabinets in the two private offices and the main business office were ransacked. Many of the books and papers were thrown on the floor as the thieves searched for hidden money.

Entry to the building was made by prying open a window on the east side of the building. Here the thieves were screened from the view of anybody passing on the River Rd.

Ray Cornell, a driver for Peterborough Metal, noticed that the office was in order when he left at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday. And the breakin was discovered at 8 a.m. today when Arthur Whitwell, the bookkeeper arrived for work.

OPP Constable Don Lacombe is investigating.

Last Thursday $25 in small change and tobacco was stolen from the Stop-A-While grocery and lunch counter next door.

Bracken Helps Review Laws

WINNIPEG (CP) — John Bracken, who headed the Manitoba government when the present liquor laws were enacted, arrived in Winnipeg Wednesday to act as chairman of an independent five-member commission which meets today for the first time to review the Manitoba liquor laws.

The 71-year-old former Manitoba premier arrived from his farm at Manotick, Ont., where he has lived since resigning as national Progressive Conservative leader in 1948.

He said he is not surprised that Manitobans want a "new look" at their present liquor setup, but he added that, "This is a job that will not likely increase the popularity of the commission, but it is a community task and one that has to be done."

2 Trucks Collide One Driver Killed

ROLPHTON, Ont. (CP)—Leopold Lefrancois, 30, was killed Wednesday night and five-year-old Roland Couture was seriously injured when Lefrancois' truck collided with another near this village about 130 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Three other Rolphton children in the Lefrancois truck were taken with the Couture boy to hospital in Deep River, but their condition was reported not serious.

RCMP Investigate Morphine Theft

HAMILTON (CP)—Police and RCMP are investigating the theft of 600, ¼ grain morphine tablets from an express car of the Canadian Pacific Express company at the Hunter street yards on April 28.

J. H. MacDonald, investigator for the company, said the tablets were taken from the car about 15 minutes after the train arrived here. The drug was assigned to a local drug company.

Detective Ernie Jackson said the 600 tablets would bring at least $3,000 to a narcotic peddler if he distributed the morphine to addicts.

A drug company official said the price of the tablets when sold to an authorized dealer would cost around $30.

Hit By Strike

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Residents from Niagara Falls, N.Y., affected by a strike of 750 members of a baking union, invaded this city Wednesday and by noon had bought up the entire day's supply of bread from chain stores. Rationing of two loaves to a visitor was set up later in the day. Canadians could buy all they wanted.

WI Delegates Arrive

GUELPH (CP) — Nearly 400 women representing institutes across the province arrived here Wednesday for the sixth annual officers conference of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario. The conference runs until Friday.

500,000 TICKETS FOR SALE—Sammy Rosen, 35-year-old former circus barker, is ticket director for the British Empire Games in Vancouver July 30-August 7. From his Vancouver office, lined with 500,000 tickets, Rosen is mailing tickets around the world. He handled all ticket mailing in the 1948 London Olympics.—(CP Photo).

500,000 Tickets Ready For British Empire Games

By DON MATHESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sammy Rosen has 500,000 tickets lining the walls of his 9-by-12 office, and a system.

Ticket director Rosen, charged with selling tickets to the British Empire Games here July 30-Aug. 7, needs his system. It's a good one.

He can say that he knows where every ticket is at every moment of any day, and why. And he can prove it.

The 35-year-old one-time hockey player, referee, circus barker, television commentator and now spare-time actor handled all ticket mailings in the 1948 London Olympics. More than £2,000,000 worth went out all over the world from his office. It was the first all-advance, all-reserve sale for such an event.

IMPROVED SINCE

Rosen's ticket methods here are identical, except for what he terms "the control book system, which is an improvement." Complicated to explain, but simple to work, it gives Rosen an iron grip on the destiny of every ticket.

He can start at tickets, either sold or unsold, or at any particular seat, day, event, price, name of buyer or even box-office dollar and give all the other information, or combinations, within two miutes.

The control books are locked in a fire-proof safe every night. If every unsold ticket should burn, Rosen could be back in business the next morning. And he wouldn't have to issue a duplicate ticket.

The mail customer is protected. Lost, strayed or stolen tickets can be replaced with tickets cancelling the original.

On the sale itself, it's "first come, first served, no favors."

"But the customer who buys series tickets (every day for the same sport) gets the best seats, and the same seats every day."

PRICES NOT HIGH

A touch of professional pain dulls the usual sparkle in Rosen's eyes when he discusses prices.

"It's my personal opinion that the class of action is going at a very cheap price," he says. "Pricing is very conservative for such an event.

"In the 1952 Olympics, the top for the opening ceremonies was $15. Here the top is $5. Track and field events ranged from $150 to $12 there—here $5 to $1.

"The average price, for average seats for a couple here, for every event they can get to, is only $56."

EASILY LOCATE SEATS

A touch of Rosen is spread throughout the whole games. He designed the tickets, watermarked like a dollar bill, which have a seating plan of the particular stadium they are for on the back. They come in nine colors, one for each sport.

He designed the seating arrangements for the three new sports sites; the 35,000-capacity stadium, 4,000-seat cycle track and the 6,000-seat swimming pool.

Aisles in the stadium are in the middle of the seat section. "It lessens the chances of a person getting lost. If he has to go over more than 15 people to get to the seat, he's in the wrong section. The seat is at least 30 away. So he goes out again and gets in the right section."

Another Rosen design is the combined ticket-and-housing application form. About housing, Rosen says: "We feel we have a responsibility. If the customer purchases tickets by mail and wants accommodation, we will do everything possible to get him a place to stay."

EXPECTS SELL-OUT

In the first week of April, a month's ticket sales totalled about $15,000. The box-office for local sale opened April 22. Ticket sales by mail now total more than $25,000.

With about $400,000 worth to go, Rosen isn't worried.

"At the present rate, once the box-office opens we'll be sold out three or four weeks in advance.

"I've got ticket applications from Alaska to Peru, from Kansas City to California, from Halifax to Victoria. More come in every day."

In another departure, the customer keeps the ticket and the gatekeeper gets the stub. So Rosen designed a folder to hold the tickets, with this legend on the back:

"We hope these tickets will be retained as souvenirs of a very pleasant visit to Vancouver, Canada."

Ballet May Get Toronto Donation

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Ballet Festival may get some money from Toronto after all.

Controller Leslie Saunders indicated Wednesday he has softened in his attitude toward ballet, which he classes with waltzing. He said he would not be averse to granting $1,000 to the festival.

But he asked board of control to delay a decision until Mayor Allan Lamport returns from Greece and can express an opinion.

Dr. W. Hills Would Use Morphine, Stop Hanging

OTTAWA (CP)—An injection of morphine or curare, large enough to cause death, would be a more merciful method of execution than hanging, Dr. W. H. Hills, Toronto jail physician, said Wednesday.

He told the Commons - Senate committee on capital punishment that in his view hanging is an inhuman method of execution, although practically painless.

Dr. Hills' view that hanging is archiac was shared by sheriff J.D. Conover of York county, Toronto. Both said that capital punishment is not a deterrent to murder.

Sheriff Conover said that in his official capacity he would like to see abolition of capital punishment. The county sheriff, he explained, is responsible for the carrying out of executions ordered by the court and hires a professional executioner to do the job.

WOULD KEEP IT

Personally, he favored retaining capital punishment because of the fear that a professional criminal might kill a second time.

Dr. Hills had no views in his official capacity, but personally said he feels that capital punishment serves no purpose.

The sheriff and Dr. Hills described for the committee their duties in connection with a death sentence. The committee is studying whether the Criminal Code should be amended concerning capital and corporal punishment and lotteries.

Three Flee Fire

TORONTO (CP)—A $75,000 fire destroyed the top floor of the Elcraft Manufaoturing Company here Wednesday night. Three persons fled to safety from the four-storey building.

Township Worried About Water Pollution

TORONTO (CP) — Markham township, confronted with pollution of its water supply from private wells, appealed to nearby metropolitan Toronto Wednesday for water.

Reeve A. LeMasurier said only a proper municipal water supply, pumped through mains after purification, will remove the health hazard in the township.

It was reported that contamination of Markham's water could cause jaundice, polio, typhoid or various types of dysentery.

Liberal Member Sides With Opposition In Commons Over Quebec Income Tax Issue; Given Catcall

OTTAWA (CP) — The Government's budget policies have received Commons approval in a vote in which a Liberal member sided with the opposition over the Quebec income tax issue.

Wilfrid LaCroix (L — Quebec Montmorency) voted against the budget as it passed the Commons Wednesday by 136 to 70.

He said he could not approve the Government's refusal to permit Quebec's new 15-per-cent personal income tax to be fully deductible from federal tax payments. The law permits only a five-per-cent deduction.

dence in Government financial

The vote, in effect one of confipolicy, ended a nine-day debate in which the major topic was the budget announcement opposing Quebec's bid for full deduction of the tax.

It cleared the way for immediate study of a series of resolutions to give legislative effect to tax changes in the April 6 budget.

Besides Mr. LaCroix, the votes against the budget came from the three opposition parties and three Independent members from uebec, Paul Gagnon, Chicoutimi, Raoul Poulin, Beauce, and Fernand Girard, Lapointe.

HOPED FOR AGREEMENT

Mr. LaCroix, the last speaker in the budget debate, said he had hoped the federal and Quebec governments would reach agreement on the tax issue "because the federal finance department cannot oppose indefinitely the just and reasonable claims of my province."

He was met with catcalls from Liberal benches when he voted. The 63-year-old Quebec City architect has been a member since 1935. He crossed the floor of the House in 1944 to sit as an Independent as a protest against the sending of conscripted troops overseas. In 1945 he was re-elected as an Independent Liberal but later returned to party ranks.

During the debate, Progressive Conservatives and the three Independent members urged full deduction of the Quebec tax. Opposition Leader Drew said this shoul be done this year pending an immediate federal-provincial conference to reallocate taxation powers

Prime Minister St. Laurent said the door is open for Premier Duplessis to discuss a solution to double taxation in Quebec. However, there was no need for a tax conference with all the provinces.

ELECTED DIRECTORS

Charles Huffman of Peterborough and Mrs. Mary Temple of Toronto, were elected directors of the central zone of the Ontario urban and rural school trustees' association, at a meeting of the annual spring conference Wednesday evening in the Empress hotel.

SMOKE TOO THICK

Smoke from railway ties burning at the old city dump on Simcoe St. proved too much for the residents of Ashburnham, just across the Otonabee river, early today. A number of the residents complained to the fire department who doused the fire in the smouldering ties with a booster pump.

PLENTY "OFF STREET"

Six cars on a parking lot with space for some hundreds, and across the way 26 along one curb of a busy and paved street, and several score along the curb of an adjoining busy and paved street. That was at Monaghan Road and Albert St. this morning, a memorandum for that special traffic committee, if they care about such matters.

BREATH OF WINTER

Last Sunday's 75-degree, warm, sunny weather is now just a memory. A cold movement of air from the west has brought the chill back into the bones of Mr. Ontario. Here in Peterborough the night low was 32 degrees; by noon the thermometer had only risen to 37 degrees and what started as a sprinkling of rain turned into snowflakes. A year ago today the city was basking in a 71-degree temperature.

Criticism Unjustified Says Mayor

Suggests Decision By McGillis To Quit, Too Hasty

Mayor Norman Graham today said D. A. McGillis' criticism of city clerk E. A. Outram was unjustified. His Worship also suggested Mr. McGillis' decision to resign the chairmanship of the Memorial Centre general committee was made too hastily.

When he announced his resignation Wednesday, Mr. McGillis said, "I figure there's only one man in Peterborough running the show."

Mr. McGillis said he hadn't been asked to attend any committee meetings in connection with the Memorial Centre for the past six or seven weeks and had been kept "completely in the dark as to what's going on."

He took particular objection to a report that the site for the Memorial Centre had been sanctioned by the exhibition board. Mr. McGillis also announced his resignation from the exhibition board.

"Mr. Outram isn't trying to run the city," Mayor Graham told The Examiner today. "Since becoming mayor, I have found he has done an excellent job for the city.

"He took on the chairmanship of the site committee of the Memorial Centre on his own time and it is costing the citizens of Peterborough nothing," His Worship said. "The members of the site committee feel the same way."

NO FINAL REPORT

The mayor said he understood the report of the site committee had not been final in any case. The executive committee was not scheduled to hear the report by the site committee chairman until Saturday afternoon.

"After organizing the general committee, I stepped out of the picture altogether and left it to the various committees to do their own work from there on," His Worship said. "Of course I've always been ready to give them whatever help they asked for.

"I myself don't know anything about what the site committee were considering, nor was I told by any member of the committee what site they had in mind. My first information about the site came from reading in The Examiner what Mr. McGillis said."

(Mr. McGillis said the site selected by the committee coincided with the location of the Conklin midway at the annual exhibition.)

"The site committee were told by the general committee to withhold their report until they were ready with plans for a site that would be suitable, practical and acceptable to all parties concerned," Mayor Graham said.

Modern Education On Right Track

Education must hold some sort of intrigue for the learning mind if the learning is to be complete, and, academic knowledge must not overshadow the more practical sciences as it has done in the past.

These two points were emphasized by Dr. T. H. W. Martin, public school inspector for the Toronto board of education, addressing members of the Ontario urban and rural school trustees association in the Empress hotel, Wednesday

"We get all sorts of opinions, condemnations and encouragement from people across Ontario concerning the educational system," said Dr. Martin. "But we must believe that all these offerings are sincere. They stem from interested people.

"But, we must examine the experience that lies behind these various conceptions of education, and, when something is said, often from the lunatic fringes, that hurts us, it is probably because it has hit a tender spot."

4 STEPS IN LEARNING

Learning requires four steps, all of which are important, particularly the last one. They are: (1) the establishing of a fact (2) understanding (3) acceptance (4) practice. It is not enough to unconsciously memorize formulas. We must understand them, accept them, reason and know their origin, and finally, put them into practice. It is only then that we can say we have learned a thing.

The old methods of forced learning, of cramming for marks (which had become an end in themselves) has resulted in a civilization of sterile minds.

Dr. Martin referred to T. S. Eliot's poem "We are the hollow men . . . heads filled with straw." Because of the old system of forced learning, often of curricula with no practical value, and except in rare cases only temporarily retained, the ability for logical and fresh thinking has been nullified.

It is said, continued Dr. Martin, that the educational standards of the United States are far below that of Great Britain, and that Canada lies somewhere in between. But, statistics show that the USA educates, on a university level, some 20 per cent of that age group, Canada, between 12 and 14 per cent; and, Great Britain, only four per cent. He ventured an opinion, that probably the top third of American university students reach standards higher than ever before. Trained youth is a necessity in this age, but the standards should never be lowered in the specialist's field, such as medicine.

"The curriculum must be adapted to suit the child, not the child to suit the curriculum, and no-one need apologize for this step," said Dr. Martin. "Those who gripe about the abolition of certain courses, usually do so because of a vested interest, and not in consideration of the student."

STRESS SELF-CONTROL

The idea of unquestioned obedience is slowly making its exit and is being replaced by a free discipline which stimulates self-control. Perhaps the strict discipline of the old school, where every move the child made was the result of an order, is the cause of the selfish disorder found in the Toronto subway today, jested Dr. Martin. After years of rigid control, the student emerges with an urge for chaos.

Because of the method of leaving children somewhat on their own, initiative is developed. It requires a teacher well trained and intuitive, to know how much students will do on their own, and the teacher must be able to accept failures. To succeed, the system of free discipline depends upon the sharing of responsibility from the top down.

"No teacher can successfully operate a democracy with a Hitler in the principal's office, and this same principle extends to the administration departments."

The method of class standings, percentages, and the publishing of marks can only be fairly accepted when the public pillory is brought back into use, said Dr. Martin. In fact the ducking stool is more in order, as it supposedly meant for the mortification of the mature person, not the developing child.

EXAMS TO START

The place for examinations is not at the end of the year when nothing can be done about failure, but rather at the beginning to determine how much the child really knows. This excludes the practice of cramming the night before an exam, then regurgitating the knowledge on the paper, and forgetting it. Short, frequent tests are far more satisfactory.

Probably the pioneer influence in this country is largely responsible for the tendency to direct young people into academic fields regardless of the student's desires. In the past, parents were required to work very hard and they became determined to educate their children for the "white-collar" job.

"We must remember that the cabbage provides nourishment;

Improvisation Shows Quality Of Musical Gift

The most striking feature of the concert given on Wednesday night by Ellsasser, the concert organist, was his fourteen minutes of improvisation on a theme given to him by Mr. Aubrey Bland. The theme itself was of a pleasant, folksong-like quality, and with it the virtuoso did all the usual things in the way of inversions and variations, finishing with a rousing fugue and a quiet return to the theme. This feat, very properly, moved the large audience to prolonged applause.

Improvisation has been described as very rapid composition of music in the head, which is immediately played by ear upon the instrument. There are rules which govern it, and tried and true methods which give some help with it. But the rules and the tricks do not make an improviser of Ellsasser's quality; his improvised performance was the clearest possible evidence of an unusual musical gift supported by great technical ability.

The recital opened with four pieces from the seventeenth century, played with verve and delicacy, and not unduly transformed for the modern organ. The contemplative, profound voice of the organ was heard only once during the evening, in the Bach Chorale Prelude 'Heartily I Yearn'. Bach's Toccata in F was also given a brilliant and rousing performance.

More modern music was represented by a selection from one of Widor's organ symphonies, and by transcriptions from Debussy and Sibelius. Of special interest was 'En Bateau', written by Mr. Ellsasser on themes provided by Bela Bartok — a somewhat extended musical joke about a sea voyage.

The artist was generous with encores, and during the course of the evening he played Handel's familiar Largo, Victor Herbert's Parade of the Wooden Soldiers, an impression of a Sleighride by Leroy Anderson, and Ravel's Bolero. He also made brief comments on most of the numbers as he played them, and made a plea for the recognition of the organ as a concert instrument which was eloquently supported by his own performance.

The recital, which took place in St. Paul's Presbyterian church, was under the auspices of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club.—R. D.

Talk In Cell Gave Police Theft Tip-off

If it was just the tractor things would have been alright. That was the opinion of Charles F. Ibey, 22, who, with Edward Hicks, 39, and William O. Parcels, 24, all of Campbellford, are charged with breaking and entering summer cottages in Belmont - Methuen, a storehouse owned by Ken Marshall, and joyriding on Norris Whitney's tractor.

In police court, Wednesday, OPP Constable Tom Armitage said he had heard Hicks and Ibey conversing in the Havelock jail, where they were held following arrest on April 14. Constable Armitage said he was outside the jail building, but could hear the voices clearly and recognize who was speaking.

Just after leaving the building he testified that Ibey uttered a long stream of curses, and he heard the following conversation:

Hicks: "It will be alright as long as they think its just the tractor."

Ibey: "If they look any further at those cottages we've had it. If they find that piece of my coat that's torn off up there, they will know I was there. I can pick a lock and get us out of here."

NO ACTION TAKEN

Constable Armitage said he reported this knowledge to the Havelock chief of police, but no action was taken as there was no doubt of them staying in the cells.

Defence counsel J. C. N. Currelly suggested to Constable Armitage that he could not be certain in recognizing the voices overheard.

No guess sir, I could recognize his voice," replied the officer, referring to Ibey.

OPP corporal Bill Baluk, identification officer for district 8, entered photographs taken of the McQuaid cottage, of the car in which the men were apprehended, and tracks of narrow tires found in the road near the McQuaid cottage.

One of the photographs showed a canoe in the McQuaid cottage, with the left side punctured. Much other damage was evident. Corporal Baluk said the tire impressions, photographed near the scene of the break-in, were made by tires similar to the ones found on the Ibey car in which the trio were arrested. A wine bottle, nearly empty, but apparently recently opened, was found near the canoe in McQuaid's cottage. Fingerprints were too smudged, however, to be of any value.

The case was adjourned until May 10.

Wanted! A Teacher

Harold Wagner, president of the Ontario School Trustees Council, suggested Wednesday that school boards might have less difficulty obtaining teachers if they worded their advertisements differently.

Greeting the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees Association central zone annual spring conference here, Mr. Wagner said working conditions and salaries for teachers are satisfactory, and suggested advertisements might run something like this:

"Wanted: Elementary school teacher, holidays, two weeks at Christmas, one week at Easter, and the months of July and August. Hospital and surgical benefits. Salary $12 a day, increasing to $20 a day in eight years. Job security, protection of teachers' federation.

Thrown From Cultivator Farmer Killed As 4-Horse Team Bolts

Temple Punctured By Tooth Of Cultivator Death Instantaneous In Farm Accident Near Coldsprings

COLDSPRINGS (ENS)—Kenneth Grieve, 64, who lives one-quarter mile west of the village, was killed instantly today at 9 a.m. when he fell from a farm cultivator behind his four-horse team. Mr. Grieve's temple was punctured by a cultivator tooth.

Mr. Grieve had just completed cultivating his garden and was returning to the barn for another piece of equipment when, apparently the cultivator on which he was riding, struck a stone, throwing him to the ground under the machine. The horses broke the whiffletree and bolted. Hired man Bert Vanclief was witness of the accident.

Neighbors were summoned and Percy and Fred Grieve, brother and nephew, respectively, Albert Willis and Newton and Milton McIntosh succeeded in lifting the cultivator from Mr. Grieve. Dr. F. N. Blackwell, of Cobourg, who arrived immediately, said death was instantaneous.

Besides his wife, the former Beatrice Lindsay, and brother Percy mentioned above, he leaves another brother, Merwin, in Camborne. Mr. Grieve was a member of St. Paul's United church, Coldsprings. Funeral arrangements are to be announced shortly.

Head Injuries Fatal To Driver

HEARST, Ont.—Howard Walford, 54, of Cochrane, a brother of Mrs. Russell Baer of Peterborough, died in hospital Tuesday night from head injuries suffered in a head-on collision on Highway 11, four miles east of Hearst.

Police said Walford was driving east towards Hearst and was attempting to pass a car driven by O. Lapointe of Timmins, when he smashed head-on into a truck, driven by Joseph Hector Brisson of Val. Cote. It was reported snowing at the time.

Walford received a fractured skull and internal injuries in the crash. He died about three hours later.

Brisson received slight cuts to his face and legs.

Mr. Walford is survived by his widow, who was visiting other members of the family in Detroit at the time of the crash; a son, Jerome, in Moncton, a daughter, Mrs. Russell Johnston (Lenore), Cochrane and his mother in Galt. Three sisters and two brothers also survive.

Hearst is about 125 miles northwest of Timmins.

Plant Pine Trees Reap Appendix

Two hours after Norman Blodgett quit the planting of pines at Nassau Wednesday he had parted with his appendix at Civic Hospital.

Pains in his side had been bothering him of late, but he kept putting off medical examination until he was forced to climb down from his tractor.

"We'll go right now and see a doctor," Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, decided.

Dr. R. K. Magee adivsed the immediate trip to the hospital; further examination strongly recommended immediate action. By 1.30 p.m. or thereabouts the operation was just about completed.

Junior Farmer Blodgett is employed with Cliff Curtis, Aylmer St., who provided a tractor and plow for turning furrows in which Lakefield 4-H Forestry Club boys and girls planted the red and white pines. Pains warned him by 11 o'clock that they were no longer to be ignored. He told Mr. Paterson the circumstances, and the reply was: "Let's go right now."

Send Letters Of Apology

VANCOUVER (CP)—Wing Cmdr. D. C. S. Macdonald, officer commanding Sea Island RCAF station, has sent letters of apology to four Vancouver newspapermen because they were not immediately allowed on the base during a $2,000,000 hangar fire last Thursday.

"The guards at the gate had been told to admit no civilians to the station," said the letters, "but unfortunately they did not display very good judgment in preventing newspapermen from entering."

The letters were received Wednesday by photographers George Diack and Roy LeBlanc and reporter John Kirkwood of the Vancouver Sun, and by Johnny McGinnis, photographer, Vancouver News-Herald.

McGinnis charged he had been mistreated by a security officer. —Wing Cmdr. Macdonald is conducting an investigation into the charge and Associate Defence Minister Ralph Campney has ordered a report from Ottawa.

Yonge St. Merchants Getting Fed Up

TORONTO (CP) — Some merchants on Yonge street, the city's main thoroughfare, said Wednesday they are fed up with furrowed, sand-piled stretches of roadway in front of their stores and threatened to move to another street unless things are cleaned up quickly.

The merchants said they are losing money and customers because of slow progress in cleaning up work left by construction of the new subway. Street-car tracks have been torn up and the street will be repaved.

The merchants at a meeting to discuss the problem, heard Elliott G. Tyler, chairman, say at least one big retailer has moved from the area because he was losing

Denies Millar Made Scapegoat

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Highways Minister Doucett today termed as "utterly untrue" charges by political opposition leaders that Deputy Highways Minister J. D. Millar was being made a "scapegoat" by his transfer to the post of deputy in the public works department.

The transfer of Mr. Millar was announced by Premier Frost Monday and brought charges from Liberal and CCF opposition leaders Tuesday that the premier was trying to "soften the full impact" of the investigation into irregularities in the Fort William division of the highways department.

Both Farquhar Oliver, Liberal leader, and Donald MacDonald CCF leader, suggested the replacement of Mr. Millar by Melbourne A. Elson as highways deputy, was an attempt to make Mr. Millar a "scapegoat" for the highways irregularities.

Commenting, Mr. Doucett said: "All I can say is that those charges are most unfair and they are utterly untrue."

Report More Girls Becoming Juvenile Delinquents

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A 10-year study of juvenile delinquents in Toronto has shown about four times as many girls as boys classified as sex offenders on a percentage basis.

In a paper presented before the American Psychiatric Association here, Dr. J. D. Atcheson, director of the Toronto juvenile court clinic, and Dr. D. C. William, professor of psychology at the University of Toronto, said they had studied 283 sex offence cases, involving 116 boys and 167 girls, in the 10-year period.

They said 5.8 per cent of the boys and 34.5 per cent of the girls were involved in sex behavior offences.

Their report added that a similar study held in the United States in 1930 showed similar results with two per cent of the male and 21 per cent of the female juvenile delinquents involved in sex offences.

Most of the sex offenders, they said, really were emotionally sick, particularly the males.

While the girls sometimes were promiscuous in attempts to gain status or affection, the male offenders generally were driven by sex curiosity.

The paper concluded that the results of the study indicated the need for in-patient diagnostic centres for children.

Two Speeches Please U.S.

NEW YORK (CP) — The Herald Tribune says in an editorial today that speeches Tuesday by two Canadian statesmen "bear new witness to the warm mutual relations between Canada and the United States."

"At Geneva, Mr. Lester Pearson rose to defend the United States against Communist charges of imperialism . . . that such assurance should need to be given about the United States is one of the anomalies of the present age; that the Canadian secretary of state for foreign affairs should take it on himself to give them is one of its compensations."

Governor - General Massey's address the same day before the joint session of the U.S. Congress emphasized "the mutual respect that exists between men and nations that lead their own lives and are faithful to their own ways."

"At a time like the present, when the Communist bloc is making every effort to divide the Western alliance, these brave and forthright words from Canada are of inestimable value."

The two-man crew of the lead locomotive escaped uninjured. Cows, calves and pigs had to be destroyed. Forty-five cars remained upright on the rails.—(CP Photo).

George Benton Recalls Sights Of Early Days

ONE OF THE ORIGINALS—George Benton, 782 Water St., one of the few remaining people who were born within the original boundaries of Peterborough, is 80 years old today. Mr. Benton (above, in front of his birthplace on Dalhousie St.) recalled the old days when Dalhousie St. had only six houses, snow drifts were good for sleighing on Rubidge St., and the old gas lamps.
—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Year by year those who can recall the days when Peterborough had board walks, gas lamps, hand-drawn fire wagons, and wide, open spaces were the snow drifted high are becoming fewer and fewer.

But today one of these few remaining originals, George Benton, 782 Water St., is celebrating his 80th birthday.

Mr. Benton is perhaps in a more select group; he's of a small group, those who were born within the early boundaries of Peterborough. He was born in the house that is now 287 Dalhousie St., then one of six houses between George and Park Sts.

At that time Peterborough was still confined well within the boundaries laid down when it first became a town. In fact Peterborough then was well within the area bounded by Townsend, Park, Smith Sts. (now Park Hill Road) and the Otonabee river.

"Yes, in those days Dalhousie St. had just the wooden sidewalks," said Mr. Benton today. "There were only three houses then between Bethune and Park Sts.; six between George and Park Sts."

Even though most of these houses have since been modernized, Mr. Benton could easily spot "the original Dalhousie St. homes." Most were roughcast in his early days. Now one can hardly tell them from later homes.

Sitting in front of the homestead, Mr. Benton pointed across the street to a house, 292 Dalhousie, now owned by George Goheen.

WAS SUNDAY SCHOOL

"That used to be the interdenominational Sunday school, a low cottage. Down the street, near Bethune and Dalhousie, used to be the Anglican Sunday school."

"Over at that corner (pointing to the northwest corner of Stewart and Dalhousie Sts.) was the fire bell. There was a platform and a bell. You grabbed the rope and rang the bell."

Did Mr. Benton ever pull the rope in fun? An emphatic "No." Mr. Benton followed up with "There were real fires when you rang that bell."

"Over on that corner (the northeast) was a street lamp; they were gas then." In fact an uncle of Mr. Benton, William Jobe, was the old "lamplighter" for the Dalhousie district.

"Winters were winters in those days," he commented. He recalled that winter started in November and lasted well into April.

"We could sleigh-ride down the drifts on Rubidge St. then. It was all wide open; it's all built up now."

Starting back to The Examiner, Mr. Benton passed the Wonder bread company. This brought back more memories of his early days.

"We used to get hot buns for breakfast out of that cellar window," pointing to the corner building. It was then William Stock's home and bakery, with the baking done in the basement.

Passing by the city parking lot on Water St., Mr. Benton recalled the old market hall where his parents, well-known gardeners in their day, had a favorite stand.

Looking back over the city's history Mr. Benton concluded, "It's been 80 years of progress."

Bancroft Church To Be Renovated For $10,000

BANCROFT (ENS) — St. Paul's United church is to be extended and renovated at a cost of $10,000.

The proposed alterations include an addition to the front part of the building, remodelling the basement, modernizing and enlarging kitchens and redecorating the church interior.

At a congregational meeting in the Legion hall, Jack Hattin was appointed chairman of a campaign committee to raise $5,000 necessary before the project can be started. The sum of $2,200 was pledged at the meeting. The afternoon Women's Auxiliary have, for some time, been raising money for new kitchen facilities.

Chairman of the board of stewards Gordon Wragg acted as chairman of the gathering and Alex Smith, chairman of the building planning committe, used slides to explain the proposed extensions.

Guest speaker K. Kidd of Peterborough spoke on similar projects with which he had been connected.

A pot luck spper was served and the children present were entertained by the showing of the film "The Little Cloud," with the Rev. Alan Borland acting as commentator.

FLIES PLANE AT 10—Maureen Godson, of Edmonton, sits at the controls of her father's two-seater Ercoupe aircraft after successfully taking off, making a circuit and landing the plane. At 10 years of age, she is believed to be the youngest person in Canada ever to fly a plane. The youngster is not allowed to fly alone, however, and was accompanied on the flight by Al Lang, chief instructor at the Edmonton flying club. Department of Transport regulations forbid anyone under 16 years from flying solo. Lang says Maureen, who started taking flying lessons last fall, is exceptional and was ready to fly solo after only four hours' instruction. Maureen sits on three cushions while flying in order to see over the nose of the plane.—(CP Photo).

Leader George Drew Suggests Survey To Save Money

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative party leader, said Wednesday the only suggestion made by the federal government to deal with unemployment and reduced sales is that industries should increase efficiency.

"It makes no effort of any kind to do the same thing itself," he told some 600 delegates to the Western Ontario Progressive Conservative Association annual meeting here.

He said the bureau of statistics reportes 770,0 persons either unemployed or only partially employed.

He advocated a "committee of experts" to examine the "whole organization of government" and estimated it could effect a saving of close to $700,000,000.

This saving could have the effect of reducing individual taxes as well as rapidly increasing employment from the production that would follow reduction in sales and excise taxes, he said.

Both Mr. Drew and Premier Leslie Frost of Ontario spoke of organizing for possible coming elections.

"We cannot afford to be complacent," said Premier Frost. "There is always so much to do and so little time to do it in."

Mr. Drew told western Ontario Progressive Conservatives to get their organization "in fighting trim as soon as possible."

Mr. Drew said "not a single bushel" of the 1953 wheat crop has been sold and the situation would get worse if this year produced a "better-than-average crop."

Unemployment was increasing but the federal government appeared not to have heard about "unemployment in the textile industry, the electrical equipment industry, the farm equipment industry and other large employers."

The Conservative leader told the convention the federal government seems to think there is nothing to worry about which will not be cured by efforts of the United States.

"I have very great respect for the United States, but I believe it's the job of Canadians to tackle their own problems," he said.

City Willing To Collect Old Ice Boxes

If there are any disused ice boxes around the city, the council is willing to have them removed from the reach of small children.

Referring to the recent release of a small boy, Carl Whelan, discovered by Mrs. Annie Baker of 348½ Water St., in an abandoned ice box down the lane at the rear of The Examiner, Ald. Stan McBride suggested that some action should be taken to prevent any repetition of that episode.

"It was very fortunate for the boy that Mrs. Baker happened to hear him knocking on the side of the box," Ald. McBride said. "It is hard to believe that anything like that could have happened here after the deaths of children in other places who pulled box doors shut on themselves."

Ald. McBride said that apparently people see such abandoned boxes, but do not realize that the same kind of fatal accident could happen here.

MIGHT HAVE DIED

"That boy was trapped in a box in the lane and might have died if Mrs. Baker hadn't heard him. I think the board of works or the parks department would co-operate in having such boxes taken away."

City Solicitor Huycke informed the committee of the whole that essentially "it is purely a matter of common sense and the criminal code" in leaving empty ice boxes where children could get at them.

"I think our trucks would pick them up and taken them to the dump," Ald. McBride suggested. "If we were to gather up a half a dozen of them around town we would accomplish something. If we advertise it, people would avail themselves of the city's co-operation."

His suggestion that an advertisement be published announcing the willingness of the city to take away empty boxes was seconded by Ald. Gordon Powell.

"We know that these old ice boxes can be a hazard to children, and the advertisement would bring them to the attention of he public," Ald. Powell said The motion carried.

Shuster Denies Statement By McCallum

TORONTO (CP) — Comedian Frank Shuster today termed "ridiculous" a statement by Hiram McCallum, general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, that top Canadian entertainers are "afraid of live audiences."

"That's a silly remark," said Mr. Shuster, of the team of "Wayne and Shuster," which turned down a CNE offer to headline a show.

"Crowds are our last problem. The real reason we turned down the job . . . is quite different than Mr. McCallum's version."

DIDN'T HAVE TIME

"They were in a spot and called on us. Frankly we didn't have enough time to prepare a good show and we knew they wouldn't have paid us as headliners."
